The leaven is placed by the woman not on, but in, the meal, where it can work from within outwards, and change the whole substance from centre to circumference. The man in whom God's grace is hidden goes through a corresponding change. That grace is hidden in the heart; the change begins there: the outward reformation is the consequence of the inward regeneration, not the cause of it. This has been God's method always. "My son, give me"—not thy moral obedience, nor thy good character, nor thy careful habits, but—"thy heart." First make the tree good and then the fruit will be good. Our Lord said, "The kingdom of heaven is within you;" in other words, religion does not lie in the church we attend, or the denomination to which we belong, or our works of benevolence, or professions of piety. It is in the state of the heart; if the heart be full of burning love to Christ, if the grace which the Saviour gives be cherished, it will not cease its work till, like the leaven, it has subdued the whole nature to its influence.

If the woman had taken a common substance instead of the leaven—if she had put in the meal a stone, or a jewel or ring, any inert substance, the meal would have remained just the same. But so soon as the leaven is embedded a process of fermentation goes on until the whole mass is leavened. Neither nature nor art could supply a better illustration of the power of God's grace than this. When honestly cherished in the heart it must change the whole man, assimilating him to the character of God, as the leaven made the whole mass like itself.

There are three peculiarities of this heavenly leaven which may teach us something as to the worth of our professed religion. It is within us, not on the outside: have we felt its power on our hearts? It is assimilating: are we being renewed by it into the likeness of Jesus Christ, into the image of God? It is expansive: is there a work begun in us, and on us, which shall at length "sanctify us wholly"? These are serious questions, and if we cannot answer them as we ought we need to begin at the beginning, and, by the Holy Spirit of God, to be born again. Then let us try to be as leaven in our homes, among our friends and associates, in our neighborhoods around us, and in the community at large. Every Christian should be a centre from which should radiate a life-giving power on all around. Soon would the dull mass begin to work and ferment and change. Then, in the best use of the words, would it be seen how "a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump."

THE HIDDEN TREASURE.

"Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hid in a field, the which when a man hath found, he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field."—Matt. xiii. 44.

Many of our readers must remember something of the excitement which was caused by the discovery of gold in California; how thousands broke away from all other pursuits and pleasures, snapped every tie that bound them to home, friends, and business, and hurried off, over land and sea, to reach the golden strand. And yet, for many years before that discovery was made in the Valley of the Sacramento the wild Indian had roamed about that country, hunting the deer and catching the salmon, unmindful that beneath his feet and in yonder hillside were treasures which could almost buy a world.

In this we have the type and image of thousands who are ignorant of the riches of divine grace, the gold of the gospel. "The god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not." Were God to make these heavenly treasures as plain to men's eyes as the golden sands were to the first discoverer, they would be far happier than he. In the parable the treasure is evidently found without being sought, come upon by chance, as it were; and so the riches of Christ's salvation, the pardon of our sins, the sanctifying influences of the Holy Spirit, like the treasures which the ploughshare has brought unexpectedly to light, lie at our feet and within our reach. "He was found of them who sought him not."

We are not required to settle the moral questions which may arise concerning his manner of acting after he finds the treasure. In hiding it till he had made himself owner of the field, he took the surest way of making it his own, and showed, better than words could do, its value in his eyes. He spared no pains, and lost no time, and grudged no sacrifice, to gain this treasure—and, as concerns the infinitely more valuable treasures of the gospel, our Saviour would have us show the same anxiety. We are encouraged and urged to leave no stone unturned, no anxiety unfelt, no prayer omitted, no Lord's Day unimproved, to make these treasures ours. If the man took so much pains to secure a fleeting treasure, what care should we exhibit to obtain Christ and the riches of his grace!

In the treasures of gold and silver there may be great danger; in those of grace there is none. Common, earthly riches cause jealousy and envy and fears. But he who has the heavenly treasure is always willing and eager to share it with his neighbor. And then, how great and deep is the joy which he feels in the possession of it! He parted with all he had to obtain it. What he paid indeed was not the full value of it, nor does the parable mean to teach that salvation or grace can be bought. Certainly not. Salvation is all of free grace; yet self-denial is required: "Let him that nameth the name of Christ depart from iniquity." "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Salvation is not purchased with "corruptible things, such as silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ." If He gave up everything for us, it is not too much to demand from us some sacrifice in return. If by faith we rise above the world, it will sink into nothingness compared with Christ: this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.

THE PEARL OF GREAT PRICE.

"Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a merchantman, seeking goodly pearls: who, when he had found one pearl of great price, went and sold all that he had, and bought it."—Matt. xiii. 45, 46.

In our own country we generally estimate the amount of a man's wealth by the size of his bank account, by the extensiveness of his landed property, the sort of a house he lives in, and manner in which he extends his hospitalities or his entertainments. In our Lord's time and country a different standard obtained. There you could not always tell how much a man was worth by looking at his clothes or at the house he lived in. You enter a house with walls of clay and roof thatched with straw or reeds. You find an ill-dressed man sitting there, amid the coarsest furniture, on a piece of carpet which forms his seat by day and bed by night. And yet that man may be the wealthiest person you have ever seen. He has his wealth invested in jewels, and for a very good reason. In Oriental countries sudden invasions often take place, and great rebellions and revolutions frequently arise, where cruel tyrants oppress their people. So, in order that a man's wealth may be more easily hidden, or securely removed in case of flight, it is in most cases put into the shape of jewels. In this form and carried about the person, or hid in the tresses of a woman's hair, great fortunes have often been carried from place to place in the East; and if we remember this fact, it will help us to understand the value which God puts upon his people in calling them his "jewels," and to see the full meaning of the figure which Jesus uses to represent the blessings of his salvation, as one "pearl of great price" which all other property and jewels should be sold to obtain.

One thing we notice first: This pearl was bought, and not obtained or bestowed as a gift. The merchant was compelled to part with all his other possessions before he could obtain it. But we are told that salvation is free, that by grace we are saved, that it is all of mercy and not at all of merit that we possess what Jesus has given to us. And if this be so, it may be asked where is the analogy between the obtaining of the pearl and the getting of salvation? It is a seeming contradiction, of which there are many in the Bible. There is no need to disparage good works, there are none too many of them in the world, and Christians are told to let their light so shine before men that their good works may be seen. But we are altogether wrong if we suppose we can earn or deserve salvation by these. The price we are required to pay is not virtues and merits, but just that we abandon all trust in these, give up in them what we have reckoned goodly pearls; though we cannot buy salvation, we are to seek it as those who, if they could, would buy it at any price, at any sacrifice, giving the whole world, were it theirs, for Christ.

We learn from the conduct of this merchantman to make Christ's religion our chief end and aim. The merchant does not allot a few hours, by fits and starts, to the pursuit of business—hours grudgingly taken from his pleasures. He rises to his work every morning, and seldom yields himself to the enjoyments of ease; year in and year out his business is all in all to him. Would that the business of eternity had such a strong hold upon men's minds and hearts! But, alas! the most trivial thing drives it out of our head. What a different aspect is presented by men engaged in the service of religion, so listlessly and languidly, from the same men in the market-place, or in the council-chamber, or in the battle-field! In the world, all is life, activity, eager competition; in the Church, all is cold as winter, silent as the grave. May God help us to be as earnest as the merchantman; to throw our whole heart into His work, while it is called day, remembering that "the night cometh when no man can work."

THE DRAW-NET.

"Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a net, that was cast into the sea and gathered of every kind."—Matt. xiii. 47–50.

We are not ignorant of the fact that considerable controversy has arisen over the proper interpretation of this parable. Our space is too limited for us to state the different views of commentators; we can put down only what seems to us as the really practical meaning of this last parable in the series contained in this chapter. The Lord intimates in the introductory formula that he desires here to give yet one more lesson regarding the kingdom of heaven. Six consecutive lessons have already been taught. He has shown what the hindrances to the kingdom are in the wickedness and deceit of human hearts, and the machinations of the evil one; what the inherent force and power of the kingdom are, and what its contagious influence; how men value it, and what sacrifices they undergo to obtain its treasures. Some new lesson, some additional characteristic of the kingdom ought certainly to be looked for in this last parable: what is that lesson, and that characteristic? It is the closing scene of the kingdom—the separation of the good and bad on the last great day; it brings out in strong relief the parting between those who remain distant and those who are brought nigh. It will be seen that the Lord himself does not interpret to his disciples the first part of the parable—that part relating to the casting and drawing of the net; so that, as his silence may have a meaning quite as strong as his words could have, we are fully justified in leaving that part unexplained, and touching only upon that which he has seen fit to interpret.

Good and bad are brought ashore in the gospel net which is cast into the world. We cannot evade that net; its lines are thrown around us, its meshes entangle us. Here, in this world, all of us, the bad with the good, are together; but on the shore of the next world, where the net is hauled in, and its contents examined, the irrevocable separation takes place. No lesson can be addressed to us more solemn, more touching than this. It is the Saviour's word, not spoken figuratively or in parables, but the explanation of the parable just spoken. Every man, good or bad, hears it equally with every other man, and learns on the authority of his Master, and in language so unequivocal and transparent as to leave no room for mistake or doubt, that on the silent shore to which we are all moving we shall find each one his place. As regards the punishment or place into which the impenitent will be cast, we must simply receive our Lord's own words. What He intends to convey by the "furnace of fire" and by "wailing and gnashing of teeth," are unknowable to us in our present condition. In regard to such matters, we may well think of His own words to one who was curious regarding another matter: "What I do thou knowest not now, thou shalt know hereafter." May God, in his infinite mercy, grant that we may not know, practically, the fate of the lost! The reason why the Lord warns us that the wicked shall be cast away, is that we may never be numbered among them. He who died for sinners spake such words in infinite, tender love.

THE UNMERCIFUL SERVANT.

"Therefore is the kingdom of heaven likened unto a certain king, which would take account of his servants."—Matt. xviii. 23–35.

Forgiveness seems almost entirely foreign to human nature, and very difficult, even, to that nature improved by divine grace. In this same chapter Peter asks, "Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him?" The disciple had some notion of forgiveness, for he had read the ancient Jewish Scriptures in which God's pardoning mercy was so highly extolled. Among the heathen the law was, "An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth;" among the Jews three injuries were to be forgiven, but patience was exhausted at the fourth. Peter goes beyond the "three," and asks if "seven" shall be borne with. This was a grand advance, yet not far enough to reach the full Christian standard; so our Lord answers Peter, "Not seven times, but seventy times seven"—a definite number is used to express an indefinite one, teaching that, practically, there is no limit to forbearance and forgiveness, that man's mercy, like God's, should be boundless.

In this parable we are reminded that God, who is represented by the king, will reckon with us who are his servants. He will bring all our sins to our remembrance; in fact he is doing so now, through his Word, by the agency of the Spirit and our own conscience. We have sinned against him in unnumbered times and ways, and come short of his glory. The debt of the merciless servant is expressed by the very highest number in the Greek notation, ten thousand, or a myriad; reckoning it according to the Jewish talent, and calculating the amount in gold, the servant's debt is nearly three hundred and fifty millions of dollars. It was an enormous amount, but all the better fitted to express our debt to the divine law.

The Merciless Servant

What could a man do who owed a sum like this? Simply nothing; and so the king orders him "to be sold, together with his wife and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made." Full payment would not, of course, be made in that way, but it was all that could be done. Hearing his sentence, distracted with terror, the man prostrates himself to beg his master's mercy and patience. Our illustration pictures his sad strait. The officers are at hand ready to seize him, while his wife and children, in agony and tears, might almost move the heart of a stone. His master is touched, and in plentitude of mercy forgives the debt, and the servant goes forth a free man. He has asked for patience and receives pardon. Such is the all-abounding mercy of our gracious God!

And now mark the contrast to this scene of forgiveness. This same man went out and "found one of his fellow-servants who owed him a hundred pence," a paltry sum, only about fifteen dollars according to Roman reckoning. Forgetful of the mercy which had just been extended to himself, the wicked man, as our picture represents him, seizes his fellow-servant by the throat, demanding payment. He is deaf to the same plea which he had just made himself: "Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all!" He had been forgiven the much, and yet he refuses to forgive the little. The debt which was owing to him was as nothing compared with what he owed to the king, just as the trifling sums which our fellows owe to us sink into insignificance compared with our indebtedness to Almighty God. But no emotions of pity move him, he lets the law have full course, and inflicts upon his fellow-servant the very punishment which he himself had just escaped.

The other servants are naturally indignant at such cruelty, and go to their master to inform him of it. He summons the cruel man to his presence, and his indignation is hot against him: "O thou wicked servant, I forgave thee all that debt because thou desiredst me; shouldst thou not also have had compassion on thy fellow-servant even as I had pity on thee?" The former pardon is withdrawn, and immediately the prison-door closes upon the culprit, never to be opened for his release until he has paid the uttermost farthing of his immense debt.

Our Lord taught his disciples to pray, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors;" and this parable is a good comment upon such words, since it concludes with words like these: "So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses." But it may be asked, If the unmerciful servant had once been forgiven his debt, how could he be cast into prison and tormented for it? When God pardons, does he not do so unconditionally and without reserve? It may be answered that something is always to be allowed for the drapery of the parable and the surroundings; according to the old saying, "No figure walks on all its four feet"—that is, no illustration is necessarily exact in all its particulars. For instance, our Saviour is sometimes likened to a lion; but a lion is of a bloodthirsty nature, while he, the image of God, is pitiful and tender. It was essential that our Lord in this parable should also enforce the lesson, "With what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again." The chief instruction to be derived is, That we shall be as ready to forgive others as God is to forgive us. Our inward tempers, the dispositions of our hearts, should be tender and pitiful. The selfishness, so natural to unrenewed human hearts, should be crushed. If we would obtain mercy we should be merciful. As we sow we shall reap. If we shut our hearts against the sinful and wretched, God's heart will be closed against ourselves.

THE LABORERS IN THE VINEYARD.

"For the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, which went out early in the morning to hire laborers into his vineyard."—Matt. xx. 1–16.

We often forget one thing in reading our Bibles, and that is, that when the Scriptures were first written they were not divided into chapters and verses. Matthew's Gospel, for instance, has been written nearly eighteen hundred years, but its division into chapters and verses is only about four hundred years old. These divisions are, of course, no part of inspiration, and they have sometimes interfered with the proper understanding of the text of Scripture. Now, a great many people may be misunderstanding this present parable from their not seeing that certain verses in the latter part of the previous chapter should be joined to the initial verses of this one, since they contain the key to the meaning of the parable. It was evidently suggested by Peter's question (xix. 27), "Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed thee; what shall we have therefore?" It was a hard command which our Lord had enforced on the rich young man who came running to him to ask his duty: "If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come and follow me." The apostles had done this, had exercised this self-denial, and now Peter asks, "What then shall we have?" evidently uttering their thoughts as well as his own. The answer of our Lord is, that they shall be glorified with himself in the "regeneration" or new world which he would bring into existence. Their reward would be great and pre-eminent, a hundredfold beyond what they had given up in this life for their Master's sake. But, in order that Peter and his companions might not be puffed up, or tempted to indulge a mercenary spirit, Jesus adds: "Many that are first shall be last; and the last shall be first"—that is, many who now seem to excel in devotedness and obedience may be led away by self-confidence and pride, and so lose their position; while others, who are now timid and distrustful and seem to be "last," by humility shall take the first rank.

The explanation of the parable is not easy. It is a story of Oriental life. The householder, we might say the farmer, has a vineyard, and it is the season of the year when extra labor is necessary. He goes out into the market-place of the village, where men are wont to congregate, especially if they are idlers, and finds some men doing nothing because "no man had hired" them. He agrees to give them a penny (about fifteen cents) for a day's work, and sends them into his vineyard. The pay seems small, but it was the average wages of a working-man in those days. These men are hired "early in the morning," perhaps about six o'clock. He goes out again at six, nine, twelve, three (P. M.), and at last at the "eleventh hour," the hour before sunset, or five o'clock. Each of these times he engages laborers for the penny a day, and they all go to work. At set of sun when he comes to settle with them, those who were first hired were paid last; but every one received the penny, the men who were latest engaged as well as the others, though they had been promised only "whatsoever is right." Seeing this, the men who had worked the longest exclaimed against the seeming unfairness of paying them, who "had borne the burden and heat of the day," no more than the men who had worked one hour, forgetting the agreement which had been made with them. The householder reminds the spokesman of this agreement, and claims that no wrong is done, and sends them off with their wages. Such is the parable in brief. What is the real significance of it?

We do not think that any significance can be affixed to the various hours at which the laborers were hired. It is next to impossible to interpret them as being the different times of life in which men become religious; and it appears very unsatisfactory to explain those first hired as Jews and the remainder as various Gentile nations, called to the gospel some at earlier, some at later periods, for the whole context of the parable points to an individual rather than to a national application. What our Lord intends to impress upon us is the principle on which the householder gives his money. He wrongs no man, and yet he does what he will with his own. He wrongs no man, for those who were first hired got what they bargained for. It was his will to give those who trusted to his generosity more than their due, and he does so. The whole parable is spoken with reference to Peter's question, "What shall we have, for we have forsaken all?" It is as if our Lord had answered, "Do not rely on this; you can make no bargain with God. With him the reward is of grace and not of debt."

What, then, will destroy all such self-seeking, envious, mercenary spirit in us? One thing—a true sense of our sins and sinfulness, a true view of God's greatness and our nothingness, of God's goodness and our vileness. Only let us get this, and we shall be only too glad to throw ourselves on God's mercy. We will make no self-righteous bargain, but look upon all as a free gift, which indeed it is. We will wonder that God condescends to employ us at all; we will from our inmost soul confess ourselves less than the least of all his mercies, and of all the grace that he has shown to us his servants. He calls upon us to work in his vineyard; as, in our illustration, the Saviour stands with pleading look and points to others who are laboring while we are idling. We cannot say that we have never been called or hired. In infancy, in youth, in manhood or womanhood, and in old age, the call has sounded all our lives; and these very words as we read them are another call to be up and doing if we are still idling. Let us obey that call, trusting simply to God's gracious favor, and our reward will be everlasting life.

The Lord of the Vineyard

THE TWO SONS.

"But what think ye? A certain man had two sons: and he came to the first, and said, Son, go work to-day in my vineyard."—Matt. xxi. 28–32.

Some have maintained that by these "two sons" our Lord meant to typify the Jews and the Gentiles. But this need not necessarily be supposed; nor need we stop, as some have done, to consider whether it was an elder and a younger son that was meant by the "first" and "second." Looking at the parable in a natural manner, we may suppose the father going out in the early morning and meeting one of his sons, and, to "the first" one he met, saying, "Go work in my vineyard." This son, blunt, and perhaps rude in manner, not accustomed to make apologies for his disobedience, at once refuses to obey his father. The father makes no expostulation or reply. It seems as if he were used to his son's rudeness, and knew that entreaty or argument would be vain. It was, very likely, not the first time the young man had flatly refused to obey; and as the father turned away his heart probably ached, as many a father's heart has done before and since. And yet, this son "afterwards repented and went." What it was that touched his heart the parable does not tell us. Perhaps the look which his father gave him, one of pity and reproach, may have haunted him as he went to seek his own pleasure. When Peter denied his Master, and that Lord, with dewy pity in his gaze, turned to look at the denying disciple, he went out and wept. Peter was called to suffer with his Lord, and at first said by his denial, "I will not;" afterwards he repented, and went forth to work, and suffer, and die for Him whom he loved. And so with this son, at first disobedient. Very likely, no one worked harder that day than he did to make up for his early treatment of his father.

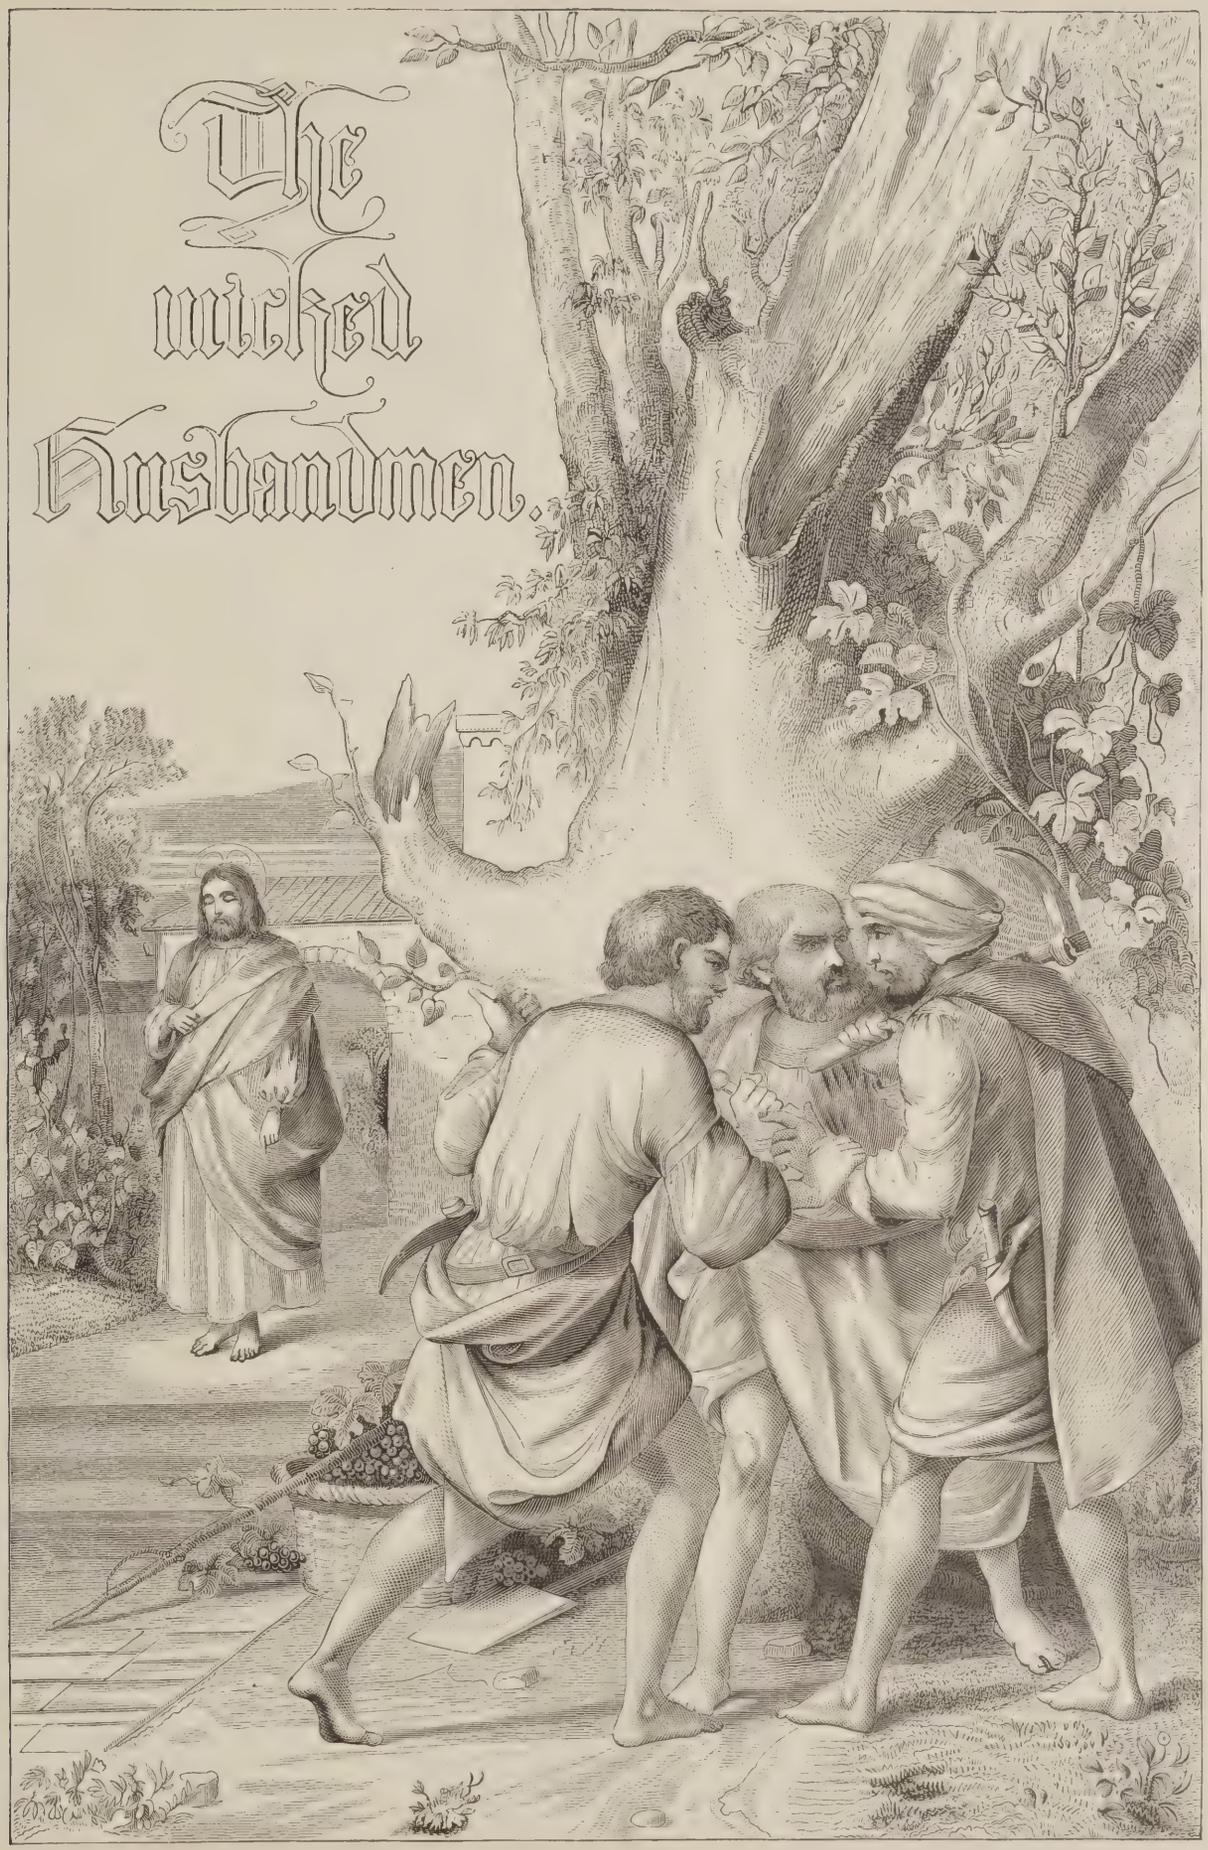
"He came to the second and said likewise." Here we have in answer to the command a ready obedience, glib and smooth in form: "I go, sir," said the young man promptly and politely. And here, too, it may be that the father was not so overjoyed at the ready acquiescence, for he may have had fair promises from this son before. In this instance the promise was broken. The tree that gave such assurance of fine fruitage was blasted ere the time of fruition came.

Now we have the hard question, "Whether of them twain did the will of his father?" And the Pharisees cannot help answering, and confessing the truth that is such condemnation of themselves: they say unto Him, "The first." That makes the parable plain. The first son is the hardest sinner repenting; the second shows us men who are godly in appearance without the power of godliness. Publicans and harlots, who had repented, turned from their evil ways and followed Christ, were seen in the first son; the Pharisees and Scribes, chief priests and elders, who for a pretence made long prayers and tried to appear righteous unto men, were seen in the second son. Now the answer of the one who refused to work was rude, outrageously bad, and without excuse. It is necessary to have this plainly understood; for, looking at the class whom that son represents, we find that it contains the ungodly and wicked of every sort in every age. They neither profess true religion, nor fear to say that they will disobey God. The answer of the second son was also evil, if we consider it in the spirit and not in the letter. We have no reason to suppose that he meant it when he told his father he would go. His polite language was a lie. We may notice that though the first son is said to have changed his mind, no change is affirmed of the second son between his answer and his act; and so we may infer that the intention of the disobedient son was the same when he promised well as when he acted ill.

There is a class amongst us answering to the publicans and sinners to whom Jesus proclaimed the message of mercy. To them comes the warning, "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord;" but even as the son in the parable repented and obeyed, so God's invitation to the sinner now is, "Repent, turn, and live." It was not the courageous, honest disobedience of the first son that made him right, for it was all wrong. It was his change of mind eventuating in act, his passing out of the state of disobedience, as if from death to life, that saved him. And so to every sinner now is the Saviour calling; to publicans and harlots is the kingdom open as of old; they are welcomed when they come repentant, not because their sins are any the less, but because Christ's forgiving love is surpassingly great.

In the end of the parable the Saviour intimates to the Pharisees that these very lowest sinners whom they despised are going into heaven before them. This does not mean that the licentious and profane find the way made more easy to themselves, but simply that they seized the right opportunity for entering while the self-righteous hung back. The parable is intended as a reproach and a spur to the Pharisees to press in, lest the door should be shut. It is not because men are sinners that they are saved, it is because they repent and bring forth fruit. When the self-righteous man admits his righteousness to be as filthy rags, and asks from Christ the clothing of his spotless righteousness, then he is accepted.

THE WICKED HUSBANDMEN.



"There was a certain householder, which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a wine-press in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country."—Matt. xxi. 33–44; Mark xii. 1–12; Luke xx. 9–18.

Whether anything like the exact circumstances of this parable ever happened in our Lord's time we are not in a position to say. It is the case of a man who owns a large property on which he does not reside. He lets it out to husbandmen, while he himself lives in a far country. It is not one capitalist who has charge of the property, but a sort of joint-stock company of laborers, who cultivate the land with their own hands, and pay the rent not in money, but in produce. When the landlord sends his agents to collect what is due to him, they receive the treatment narrated in the parable. Twice are his agents contemptuously and cruelly abused. He at last thinks that his son, as the heir to the property and representing the family, will receive better treatment, on account of the supposed feelings of respect and reverence which the laborers will have for him. But the landlord is mistaken. The tenants think that by killing the heir they may obtain the property, and so the murder is committed. It is a state of things which might really happen in our day in that unfortunate country, Ireland.

When the Pharisees had heard thus far, they are asked what treatment such wicked men are worthy of, and they pass judgment on themselves immediately by replying: "He will miserably destroy these wicked men, and will let out his vineyard to other husbandmen which will render him the fruits in their season." The interpretation of the parable is comparatively easy, and consequently no very great differences in opinion have arisen among the different commentators. The main lines of the lesson cannot be mistaken. Very often in the Scriptures the Jewish nation are likened to a vineyard; we find notable instances of this in Isaiah v. 1–7; Ezekiel xv. 2–5; and Psalm lxxx. 8–15. In all these places the vineyard, or the vines separately, represented the privileged people who constituted the Church of God as it then existed in the world. In Isaiah the wickedness of God's people is shown by their bringing forth bitter fruit after so much care and cultivation; in Ezekiel their unprofitableness is demonstrated by want of fruit on the vine; and in the Psalm we see their sufferings as depicted in the ravages of wild beasts on the tender vine. Our parable differs from the other three descriptions in this one respect, that it shows us a vineyard or vine whose cultivators, after it has brought forth fruit, refuse to give to the owner that portion which is his due; and this difference determines our interpretation.

By the vineyard with all its privileges our Lord means all the ordinances which God gave to his people Israel to be improved. The husbandmen are the leaders who at various times had usurped a lordship over God's heritage. At various times ambassadors were sent to them to demand the stipulated tribute—prophets like Elijah, Elisha, Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel, especially commissioned to approach them with reproof and instruction. But such ambassadors were despised, they were assaulted, imprisoned, exiled, and even put to death. This state of things happened all through the ages until "the fulness of the time" had come, and Christ the Son was sent as the messenger of the covenant. But while he came to his own they received him not. The very rulers who listened to this parable were then plotting to cast him out of the vineyard and to crucify him. Now, "when the Lord of the vineyard cometh he will destroy these wicked men;" in such words the rulers prophesy their own doom, and our Lord tells them plainly, "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." The Romans crushed the Jewish polity, and the Church, God's vineyard, fell into other hands; the worship and ordinances of God's house were given to the apostles and their followers, neither as Jews nor as Gentiles, but as the disciples of Christ. Those who are "born again" make up the new nation, and under their charge the affairs of the kingdom will be administered till Christ comes again.

The individual application of the lesson of the parable is very plain. Our Heavenly Father has given us a rich vineyard to cultivate, as Christian men; there are many privileges attached to our position. We have civil and religious liberty, the Bible, the Sabbath, the Church and its ministers, all the means of grace and the hopes of glory. For these privileges we have to render a tribute to our God. When Christ the messenger of the covenant comes and knocks for admittance at the door of our heart, the "carnal mind, which is enmity against God," refuses to admit him, and exclaims, "I will not have this man to reign over me." It brings upon itself the punishment which wicked husbandmen earned. And in like manner, a Church which refuses to improve its privileges or to render rightful tribute to its great Head, shall have those privileges removed from it, and given to a people bringing forth fruit. Our Lord sums up all the teachings of the parable in that sublime saying from the prophet, "The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner," and, "Whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder." Jesus Christ shall be either for "a rock of defence" or "a stone of stumbling" to us. It is impossible for us to be neutral, so as to be neither for nor against him; we must either accept or reject the Son of God. If we flee to him for refuge, he is the sanctuary in which we shall be safe; if we fall on him in a vain effort to be free from him, we shall perish.

THE MARRIAGE OF THE KING'S SON.

"The kingdom of heaven is like unto a certain king, which made a marriage for his son."—Matt. xxii. 1-14.

THERE can be no doubt that by the character of the king's son, the bridegroom of this parable, the Redeemer is meant, as the Church, His redeemed people, is the bride. The feast spoken of in the story is the marriage supper. When the king sent forth his servants to summon the guests, this was not their first invitation, but simply a warning that all the preparations had been completed. This is supposed to have been a common custom in the East at the time of our Saviour. It is well to remember this in order that we may understand why such severe punishment was inflicted on those who refused to come. They had already accepted the first invitation, and by retaining it, and thus enjoying a sort of reputation by being accounted the king's guests, and compelling him, as it were, to make preparations, their breach of engagement was both dishonorable and disloyal. He sent to them a second time, bidding his servants use special urgency, and tell what arrangement had been made; but the guests made light of it, going to their several occupations. Some of them, indeed, added injury to insult, and took his servants and treated them badly, and killed them. "But when the king heard thereof he was wroth; and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city." As far as appears in the story the same punishment was inflicted upon those who despised the king's invitation and those who killed his messengers—all were guilty of the one crime, disloyalty to their monarch.

But the wedding-feast must go on, and so the king sends his servants out into the highways—the places of public resort, both the city's streets and the country roads—to bid everybody they see to the marriage. The invitations in the first instance were select to those whose positions gave them the right to appear at court; but when these people despised their privilege, the king by his sovereignty invited others who possessed no right of admission. The instructions to the servants were carried out to the very letter; they brought in everybody they could find, "bad and good alike." They had not been told to make any inquiries about character or social position; the very streets were swept to provide guests.

This marriage-feast of the king manifestly refers to the redemption of man, completed in the birth, work, death, and resurrection of Christ Jesus. When the appointed time had come, our Lord himself, in the form of a servant, carried the invitation to his brethren according to the flesh, the chosen people. His immediate apostles and their successors repeated the same message. It was not a new feast to which the ancient people were invited; all through the ages they had known the rich feast which was prepared for them. They were favored but unthankful, for not only did they have one message sent to them, but, despite their refusal, another still more urgent, the second mission of the apostles after Pentecost and under the ministration of the Spirit. Both invitations were despised by those to whom they were sent; the Saviour came to his own, and they received him not. Yet although the Jews rejected him, Christ did not remain without subjects; the feast was not wholly deprived of guests. The servants, the apostles, went to the Gentiles, departed to the ends of the earth, bringing multitudes of outcasts to the feast of the King. "They brought in good and bad." The invitations of the gospel come to fallen humankind without respect of person or character. Really, in God's sight, none is good, no, not one, yet all are urged to come.

When the wedding was furnished with guests the king came in to see them. In customary society when a man entertains people he stands at the door to receive them as they come in; but with royalty it is different; the sovereign appears only when the guests are ready. As soon as the king's eye had rested upon the assembled company it discerned a man who had not on a wedding-garment. It has been said by some commentators, that a special garment was usually provided out of the royal store for those whom the king honored by an invitation to a banquet, in some such way as certain favors or decorations are often given to guests in our day. But the point is not of great importance; we may assume from the story that every guest was expected to be dressed in a garment such as even the poorest might obtain on very short warning. The primary use of such a garment was not to make the man look elegant, or to keep him warm, but to show his respect for and his loyalty to his host. The want of the garment was understood to be a decisive mark of unfaithfulness and disloyalty. There was no excuse for its omission, or the condemned man would not have remained speechless after the king had pronounced his sentence.

The spiritual lesson in the parable, for all who read it, is very simple. The guests who have really assembled at the call of the messengers, and have sat down at the king's table, are those who have heard the gospel message, and have adopted Christ's name and called themselves his people. But there is a distinction still among those who have complied with the call. We are not, indeed, told specifically of what shape, color, or size the wedding-garment in the parable was; the needful thing was that every guest should have one. So, while we may not know the exact plan of God's salvation, this thing is sure, we must comply with God's terms before we can be saved; and elsewhere in Scripture we are told what these terms are. The fault with the guest in the parable was that he claimed to be as worthy of the king's honor as any of the other guests, while still disobedient to the king's commands to put on the proper robe. And so the sinner who would be saved in his own way, in his own self-righteousness, instead of wearing the robe of Christ's righteousness, will also hear the words of doom from the great King at the last day.

THE TEN VIRGINS.

"Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom."—Matt. xxv. 1-13.

VIGILANCE is the safety-lamp of life. What the lighthouse is to the ship in the murky night, nearing the rocks and treacherous sands; what the torch is to the traveller who has been enveloped in thick mists; what the lantern is to the miner who creeps from gallery to gallery along the low corridors which penetrate the bowels of the earth, where the firedamp hangs around his way; what the genial blaze on the cottage hearth is to the shepherd as he comes from afar over morass or moor; what the branch of the green tree was to Columbus as it floated past his vessel's side, the sure harbinger of a not distant land—such is vigilance to man's life. Never, in all the admonitions which fell from Christ's lips, did he impress upon man a more solemn duty than when he proclaimed, "Watch, therefore; for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of Man cometh."

That famed event, when Jesus worked his first miracle of turning the water into wine, occurred at a marriage-feast in Cana of Galilee. The details of the parable before us, borrowed from a ceremony with which the Saviour must have been familiar, will acquire a reality for us if we can call to mind descriptions which have been given us by persons who have witnessed such ceremonies. The time is after the marriage has been concluded, and when the bridegroom, accompanied by his bride, is returning to his own house. It is at night, and the wedding-train go forth; the bridegroom is surrounded by his kinsfolk and friends, while the bride is attended by her maidens, conducting her with barbaric pomp and ceremony. The gleam of the torches is seen, and the ringing of merry shouts and laughter, the music of instruments, and the sound of nuptial melodies, fills the air. They come near the bridegroom's home, at the midnight hour, and then the loud shout goes up to heaven; there is a cry made, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him." Then all the village arise, and go out to meet him; and they that are ready go in with him to the feast, and the door is shut. A scene like this the Saviour had often witnessed. That mind, so sensitive to all that is picturesque, finds lessons of eternal value in a commonplace incident like that before us. It was because he was the Great Bridegroom, come to lead the Church, his Bride, to the Father's house. How may we be ready to go in with Him?

Let us look first at these virgins. There is no special significance in the number "ten," except that it was used by the Jews to represent completion. When there were ten present in an assembly it was considered complete. The virgins may be considered as representing the visible Church, the one part wise unto salvation, the other lost by their own folly and want of preparedness. The lamp may be called the lamp of Truth. But even truth may be lifeless. It can find expression only through external agencies, and nothing that is merely external can of itself preserve vitality. Our words may be lamps of truth, admirably constructed to expound it; our forms, our rites and ceremonies, may be lamps of truth; and yet, useful and necessary as instruments, if these instruments are estimated simply for themselves, and not for what they ought to contain, then they are as worthless as lamps without oil and flame. It is the Spirit, the oil which feeds these lamps, which giveth light. All external religion (whether expressed by language, form, or ceremony) may deserve to be called a lamp of the truth; nevertheless, every such lamp not only may but will go out, unless it be fed with oil—the same oil wherewith God anointed Jesus; that is the Holy Ghost.

Our first illustration depicts the virgins as roused from their slumber. We read that "they all slumbered and slept." This expression is supposed by some of the ancient commentators to refer to the sleep of death; but such an explanation seems to mar the perfectness of the parable, because this slumber occurs before the bridegroom comes, and enters into heaven, shutting the door between eternity and time. We think "they all slumbered" is a painfully true description of the best and holiest among us. We are apt to grow inactive, to slacken our exertions, or, perhaps with self-confidence, to slumber in the discharge of our duties. But true vigilance of heart will make provision and take forethought against known weaknesses and infirmities. We see the virgins awaking from their sleep. Some alert and eager, ready to go forth into the night, their lamps all trimmed and burning, while another is pouring in fresh oil which her wisdom had provided. One is with difficulty being aroused by her companion, and others are begging oil from the more fortunate ones who have just enough and none to spare. Nothing remains for the careless ones to do but to go to the shops and buy their oil; but when they return it is too late; those who are ready have gone into the feast, and the door is shut.

We see them again. The wise ones in the bridegroom's presence, where is "fulness of joy;" the foolish, down below in the darkness, knocking vainly at the door, and on bended knee and with tearful eye imploring admission to the light and blessedness within:

> "No light had we: for that we do repent;
> And learning this, the bridegroom will relent.
> Too late, too late! Ye cannot enter now."

"Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!" The early Church looked for the immediate coming of Christ on earth, and constantly urged the need of preparation. But though their view was mistaken, every earnest soul is, as the apostle says, hasting to the coming of the day of God. Christ himself has told us that we know not the day nor the hour of his coming, but when he cometh blessed is he who shall be found, like the wise virgins, ready. This parable shows us that it is not only dangerous but fatal to slumber on our way, if we have not vigilantly sought for God's Holy Spirit to keep the light of truth and faith alive in our souls—alive, despite the world's hindrance and temptations, so that when the summons startles us, we may trim our lamps for the solemn meeting, and go in with him through the heavenly portal when the hand of death shuts to the door, which, once closed against us, shall never be opened again. In the full possession of power and opportunity, vigilance alone will secure the abundant outpouring of the Holy Spirit to feed our lamps; and this vigilance is expressed and demonstrated by prayer. It is through prayer, unto those who diligently seek him, that God keeps alive in the lamp of the soul that light which alone can outlive the darkness of this world, and shine more and more through all eternity.

THE TALENTS

"For the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods."—Matt. xxv. 14-30.

THIS parable is so familiar to everybody that we need not consume the space in giving the details of it, but proceed at once with the exposition.

The master who leaves his goods with his servants is our Saviour, who, at the close of his earthly ministry, leaves his disciples and ascends into heaven. We know, of course, that by his spiritual presence he is always with his servants; but that fact is not inconsistent with the parable which deals with the visible and bodily. The giving of goods to the servants (the whole number of professing Christians) is symbolical of the fact that to every member of the visible Church talents and opportunities of service are entrusted. These talents are given in different proportions, and are of various sorts—health, wealth, genius, intellect, time,—and with this important qualification each one receives "according to his several ability;" no responsibility is thrown upon a man greater than he is really able to bear—as his power of service is, so is the talent entrusted to him.

There were two faithful servants in the parable, the one who had received the largest and the one who had received the medium amount of gifts and opportunities. Each was faithful according to his means. The third man made no endeavor to serve his lord by using the talent at his disposal, but digged in the earth and hid the money. We have these three examples as representatives of all possible cases, denoting an infinite variety in the measure of the gifts. Every man has talents of some kind, and of greater or less amount. The Master who gave them to us desires that we should use them in his service, and for his profit, until he shall come again. Now is the time for the improving of our opportunities, for when he has come again it will be too late. Though it is said that "after a long time the lord of those servants cometh and reckoneth with them," the time is not really "long" in the account of the Lord himself. His latest warning to the Church is, "Behold, I come quickly." Whenever he comes it will be too soon for the unprofitable servants; but to the true disciple his coming has ever seemed to be delayed. The faithful two are ready to welcome him, and to render their account with joy. Each is approved, and each is rewarded with the fruit of his own labors.

In the account of the unfaithful servant we have greater fulness of detail. He gives the reason for his unfaithfulness when he says, "I knew thee that thou art a hard man," etc. It was perhaps natural that he should endeavor to excuse his want of diligence, and strengthen his case by alleging hard treatment; but we find the essence of his answer in its first words, "I knew thee hard," which do not really tell us what the master's character was, but only what the servant supposed it to be; and the servant's opinion of his master was what regulated his conduct. It is so now, according as men look upon God will they find his service a joyful one or a hard one. In the parable, the natural and necessary as well as the actual result of this man's conception of his lord was to make him idle and unprofitable. And if we tell men now that they are called to serve a hard and rigorous taskmaster instead of a loving Father; if we infuse into their minds and hearts that fear "which hath torment" instead of that "perfect love which casteth out fear," we shall have idle and wretched servants in the place of willing and obedient children. The idleness of the servant who knew his master only as a hard man is a solemn warning to all except those who obey the Lord whom they love, and love the Lord whom they obey.

This is the sum of the whole matter: Whatever our talents and opportunities are, we are to use them as men who shall one day have to give an account. Gifts not used are taken away from their possessors. To waste life now in the hope of making up for it by repentance at life's close, is like leaning upon a staff which will break under our weight. "Unto him that hath shall be given;" from the whole circumstances of the parable, "to have" evidently means to "use aright." The man who received one talent was distinguished from the others not by not having but by not using; he did not really possess the talent; the talent possessed him, and held him with a cruel grasp. "Take it from him" is said before "cast him out." The first sentence prepares the way for the second. It is a process now going on by which destiny is decided. Now is the accepted time; either salvation or condemnation is being wrought out now.

THE SEED GROWING SECRETLY.

"So is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed into the ground: and should sleep, and rise night and day; and the seed shall spring and grow up, he knoweth not how."—Mark iv. 26-29.

THERE is a remarkable correspondence between the history of the Church and the spiritual life of the individual Christian. The principles which govern the former rule the latter, finding in each appropriate developments; hence what is said of the kingdom of God in this whole dispensation is often true also of the same kingdom in every believer's soul. This is so true of many of our Lord's parables that it is often difficult, perhaps impossible, to determine in which sense the "kingdom of God" is intended to be understood. This parable is an example. It sets forth a fact universally true in the order of the divine life, whether in individuals, communities, or the world, that the word of truth, if it be but sown, will mysteriously grow and bring forth fruit unto the harvest. Let us look first at this growth of the divine word in the world.

The good Shepherd

There is, primarily, a mystery in its growth. "The seed springs and grows, we know not how. It was so in its beginning. The kingdom of God did not come" with observation. Judea was the last country, and the Jews were the last people, from which we would have expected the message of salvation. That people, so wonderful and holy to us, were despised by the Greeks and Romans as a singularly obstinate, malignant, and intolerant race. Had the world indeed looked among the Jews for the truth, it would have gone to Jerusalem, to the temple in which rabbis taught and priests offered sacrifices, to the most bitter enemies, therefore, of the faith of Christ. But the good seed sprang not up among the learned of the Holy City, but in the darkest district of the land, in Nazareth, the worst village of Galilee.

And in its growth, as well as birth, was the same mystery apparent. They could not say "Lo! here," or "Lo! there," "In the chamber" or "In the desert." It was growing everywhere, though almost unseen. It took the kingdoms of this world by surprise, and overcame; so that, within three centuries after its first preaching, the faith of the crucified Redeemer became the strongest of beliefs and powers in a world at enmity against God. It grows and expands, not only like the seed, but like the dawn which ushers in the coming day. In vain do the rulers take counsel to avert its progress. They may as well try to darken the sunlight. It spreads and broadens and shines till all heaven and all earth is aglow, and its very enemies are transformed and glorified by its effulgence. So mysterious and so marvellous was the springing and growth of God's kingdom. Its growth was not only mysterious but spontaneous. "The earth brought forth fruit of itself." Man lay down at night and rose up in the morning, and went about his work, the seed growing all the time, by its own power, and not his care. The growth of God's kingdom was largely independent of human aid. When we ourselves take any important cause in hand we desire to have everything and everybody on its side, in its favor. Wealth, learning, culture, power, political influence, all the forces which men think of value in this world, we would desire to see enlisted in behalf of the cause we have so near at heart. But all the powers of the earth, religious as well as secular, were banded together against the gospel. Kings and rulers set themselves against the Lord and his Anointed One. Learning despised the new faith too much to trouble itself to refute it. Wealth was no more disposed to risk its gains for the truth then than now. The popular manners and customs were abominably corrupt, and the holy faith was a rebuke to them. There were no organized societies of the Church as we have them now, to do aggressive work, but each messenger of the truth went forth in simple reliance on the Spirit and providence of God. In a word, instead of everything being in favor, everything was against, the growth of the seed, and yet "mightily grew the word of God, and prevailed."

Its progressiveness was another feature of the growth of the seed. "First the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear." The kingdom grew slowly, as the seed grows unto the harvest; and that kingdom is still growing from less to more, until the time when God shall accomplish the number of his elect, and "the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ." We must be patient, as the husbandman is patient, "waiting for the precious fruit of the earth." Even in our own generation, what a marvellous growth and spreading of the kingdom have we seen! People that sat in darkness have seen a great light. The Bible is printed in scores of tongues unknown a century ago. The love of man is supplanting devotion to sect, and the members of the one family in Christ Jesus are beginning to form a sacred union. And yet, the kingdom of God is still a coming kingdom. The "full corn in the ear" may not be gathered soon. Still we may hope for what we cannot see, and wait God's time in patience.

As concerns the growth of the seed in the individual soul, there, also, is it mysterious. We cannot tell how it springs up at first; at any rate, not always. Affliction may have ploughed the heart; the hammer of judgment may have pulverized the rock; the fire of divine love may have burnt up the weeds, briars, and thorns which infested the soil, and some unknown hand may have dropped the good seed therein. A word may have fallen from the lips of teacher or preacher; some mother's loving accents may have uttered it, and like a winged seed it floated lightly down and fell softly into some quiet corner of the heart; and there in mystery and darkness it grew, pushing forth its vital germs, till at last the green blade peeped above the surface and exhibited itself in the life.

Then, too, in the individual as in the world, the seed must grow of itself and bring forth fruit; that is, its growth must be by virtue of the divine life planted in it by God. "Paul may plant, Apollos water, but God giveth the increase." We need to be patient here, also, both for ourselves and others. Resting in the assurance that if we go forth, even weeping, bearing precious seed, we shall doubtless come again with joy, bringing our sheaves with us. And since progressiveness is another characteristic of the growth of the seed, we have another reason for patience and hope. Natural, steady, progressive growth should be our aim—never hasting, never resting, but waiting for all sweet influences from heaven to nourish the seed. For let us never forget that if we are fruitless plants it is our fault, not God's. He has scattered the good seeds by his Word and all the means of grace; he has neglected no means of culture; and if the seed has not grown it is because we have resisted his culture and his ministry. Nevertheless, "He abideth faithful."

THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

"I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep."—John x. 11–16.

In the land of Palestine the life of a shepherd differs greatly from the life of one in our own country. No man here is supposed to feel any particular interest in his flock beyond finding a market for them. The animal is a representative to him of so many dollars, more or less. But it was different in the land of our Saviour. There the shepherd was continually with his flock, sharing in all their dangers, and leading them into green pastures and beside the still waters. And thus it would be very natural for a strong friendship to spring up between him and those under his care; stronger, in fact, than that feeling which we sometimes have for a faithful dog or horse who has shared our dangers with us. If we had been among those to whom our Lord addressed the words of the parable, we should have understood him perfectly, at a glance we could have taken in the whole scene; He the faithful and good shepherd, we the sheep of his fostering care.

One of the first characteristics by which the true shepherd is distinguished, is his relation not only to the flock as a whole, but to the individuals of the flock. "He calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out." He does not merge us all into one vast concourse, but singles us out by some endearing appellation, and we hear his voice and follow him. We are too apt to measure Christ's mind and love by our own finite capacities; and as in our large circle of acquaintances or friends we can select but one or two who shall be specially dear to us, so we imagine that Christ's kingdom is too extensive, his subjects too many, for him to look after each individual. But the parable, and, still more, the practice of our Lord, teaches us the opposite. Follow his footsteps as he goes through Nazareth, and we find him on many occasions singling out individuals, and giving them a loving word—whether it were Matthew at the receipt of custom, or James and John by the seaside; Nathanael, the Israelite without guile, or Zacchæus the publican; the woman who touched the hem of his garment, or the one who anointed his feet with ointment. And so he loves each of his disciples now, and calls each one by name, as surely as he loved Peter, and Thomas, and Mary, and Martha; and until we feel this nearness of Christ to us we shall never understand one-half the blessed mystery of his death and passion, the merits of which must be appropriated by us individually. Then, too, "He leadeth the sheep," another proof of his tenderness; there is no compulsion. The Eastern shepherd did not, like our shepherds, go behind his sheep and drive them on, but called them to follow him. And we see how consistent it must be with Christ's character to draw and not to drive his disciples.

Christ was the Good Shepherd because he gave his life for the sheep. In a country where the flocks were liable at any time to be devastated by wolves or other wild beasts, a man must be prepared to risk his life in defence of his charge. This would not be done by a mere hireling, one whose wages were the only inducement to him to serve as a shepherd, but by one who felt such a deep and personal attachment to the flock that no risk was too great to be run for their sakes. The life of each sheep must be as dear to him as his own life. Here we see how Jesus was the Good Shepherd. The wolf, Satan, is constant in his attacks upon the flock, but Christ has not left them in his power. The Saviour's life, laid down once for all, has vanquished the enemy, and over those who are Christ's he has no power. When the furious assault was made by priests and people our Lord did not flee. Had he been a mere hireling then was the time to have proved him; and it did prove him. There was no parleying, no tampering with the truth, no compliance with prejudice; the time had come when his life or that of the Church was at stake, and we know which it was that suffered —"the Good Shepherd giveth his life for the sheep."

But one of the chief proofs of our Lord's right to be called the Good Shepherd is the fact that he knows the sheep: "I know my sheep and am known of mine; as the Father knoweth even so know I the Father;" the last sentence reads more correctly, "as the Father knoweth me and as I know the Father." The thought is, that Christ's knowledge of us and our knowledge of him is just the same as the mutual knowledge existing between him and the Father. Now, what does our Lord mean when he says, "I know my sheep"—simply, I know who they are? We need not be told that. The truth lies deeper; He knows what they are, all their sorrows and cares, all their hopes and aspirations, their temptations and trials; so that there is not one poor man or woman, so oppressed by want or affliction that they may not feel that the Saviour is ready and willing to help. Yes, Christ knows the wants of his people better than they do themselves. He knows them and loves them with the same knowledge and affection that exist between the Father and himself.

And let us not forget the grand truth embodied in the words, "I lay down my life for the sheep." Not a day passes, perhaps, in which we do not think of the Saviour's dying for us, yet what practical effect has the doctrine had on our lives? Does His great sacrifice make us less selfish and more self-sacrificing? In the last day our Lord will not ask us simply if we have been orthodox in our creed, but will say, "What have you done unto one of the least of these my brethren? Have you cared for the homeless and the orphan, as I cared for you when like sheep ye were gone astray? Have you fed with the bread of heaven those committed to your care? Have you checked the harsh word as it sprang to the lips? Have you stifled the unkind thought which a wounded self-love prompted? Have you, in a word, shown by all the actions of your life that they were prompted by the remembrance of my dying love?" and on the answer to such questions will depend the position which the Good Shepherd will give to us at the last day, whether among the sheep or the goats.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN.

"A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, who stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead."—Luke x. 30–37.

THE occasion of this parable was the question put to our Lord by the "lawyer," as he is called—a man who was the expounder and teacher of the sacred Scriptures of the Old Testament. He had come to Jesus, "tempting him"—not as we use the word often, in a bad sense, but simply "trying" him—and asked, "Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" It was a serious question, but the words do and inherit make it possible that there was such misunderstanding in his mind as to the method of salvation as we often find among people in these days, who ought to be well instructed. Many seem to think that salvation is half of themselves and half of God's mercy and grace. Their good deeds, and self-sacrifices, and holy life, though perhaps not sufficient of themselves to save them, are to make them fit to be saved by the blood of Jesus. Christ in his answer bids the lawyer try the law, keep it if he can, that his failures may teach him how useless such a method would be. To the Saviour's question as to his understanding of the law he gives a very satisfactory answer, and receives in return the reply, "Thou hast answered right; this do, and thou shalt live." There may have been something in our Lord's manner of speaking which touched the lawyer's conscience, and made him say to himself, "I have not really kept the whole law, and it is hard for me to do so." But too proud to confess his inability, and "willing to justify himself," to escape from the difficulty, he immediately asks, "And who is my neighbor?" This beautiful and touching parable is the Saviour's answer to that question.

The Saviour was on his way to Bethany, the village of Martha and Mary. Bethany was the mountain hamlet which stood at the head of that great descent from Jerusalem to Jericho which is the scene of this parable. If, as we may suppose, he was advancing up the road leading from the deep valley of the Jordan to the high country of Judea, the country which lay before him would easily suggest the story. It is a steep mountain pass, descending for nearly 4000 feet, enlivened by no verdure, cheered by no spring of living water. Bethany is the last human habitation before you descend into that deep abyss of bare precipice and rugged mountain. Jerusalem at the head of the pass, and Jericho at its foot, were both important seats of government, of religion, and of commerce.

It was along this road, then, that "a certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho," and met the fate which so often befell the solitary traveller. He "fell among thieves" (as we should say, "among robbers,"), the Arabs, whose hand is against every man, and every man's hand against them. They overpowered him, stripped off his clothes, beat him cruelly, and vanished amid the desert rocks, leaving him half dead in the Syrian sun, reflected from the white cliffs of the mountain pass on this side and on that. The man lies helpless and alone, his life perhaps ebbing away as the blood trickles from his wounds. But two new characters soon appear. One is a priest from Jerusalem, on his way to join the station of his brethren in Judea. Far off he must have seen the bleeding sufferer; but "when he saw him," he determined not to be delayed; he "passed by on the other side," and continued his journey to the distant city. Then, from the opposite quarter, so it would seem, from the deep valley below, another traveller wound his way up to the fatal spot. He, when he was at the place, came and looked on the wounded man; the sight awakened in him a momentary pity; but he, too, had other business to discharge. He was a Levite, on his way to the holy city. He, too, passed on his way, and was lost to view.

And now a third traveller was seen approaching; and, if the failing sight of the wounded man could enable him to recognize the dress and aspect of the new-comer, his reviving hope must have sunk again; for the stranger was a Samaritan, and the Samaritans have no dealings with the Jews, and those who were Jews would not speak or give so much as a cup of cold water to those who were Samaritans. But the Samaritan rode on to the spot; he did not deliberately turn away like the priest, or start aside at the sight like the Levite, but he came where the wounded man was; and "when he saw him" only one feeling arose in his mind—not the thought of his own inconvenience or the danger of delay, but "he had compassion on him." He dismounted, he went up to him, he applied the usual Eastern remedies to the wounds, he mounted the sick man on his own beast; and when they reached the inn that breaks the solitude of the long journey, he halted there with him, he attended upon him, and, when on the morrow he went forth on his journey, he commended him to the charge of the host until he came again.

It is a beautiful story, for all its simplicity and seeming homeliness of style, and contains an important lesson for all. Who was this Samaritan in the story? We are not told—he was "a certain Samaritan," that is all we hear. But though man does not know his name it is written in God's "book of remembrance." On him, as a Samaritan, the wounded man had no claim. Probably the wounded man, in his health and strength, would have heaped scorn and derision on his benefactor. No hatred could exceed that which a Jew bore to one of the despised name. "Say we not well," they once cried to our Lord, as they gnashed their teeth against him, "that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a devil?" And yet it was to one of this race that the priest and Levite left their wounded countryman. It may be that they, too, "had compassion" on the sufferer, but no account is made of that, any more than we count the blooms of the orchard that wither without fruitage. It is only fruit, good deeds, that are entered on the book of judgment. "I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; . . . naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick, and ye visited me." The good Samaritan does his work thoroughly; it might have ended with his simply taking him to the inn, and putting him in the care of the Jewish host. Even then it would have been an admirable deed. But he will well finish what he has so nobly begun. He must go his way, but before he departs he will see that the sufferer's expenses are paid. "Two pence," the sum left, may seem very small; but the value of money was different then from what it is now, and so humane a man would certainly not be stingy. So the kind man leaves, followed by the blessings of "him that was ready to perish," perhaps poorer in one sense, but richer in another, and little dreaming that his good deed would be known to uncounted generations.

Our illustration represents Jesus as the Good Samaritan; and it is a true picture. Viewed in this light the story gains its sweetest and deepest significance. Man goes down from Jerusalem, his holy and happy state, to that place of wretchedness so aptly represented by Jericho, against which the armies of the living God waged war. The enemy of souls is well typified by the cruel robbers that spring upon the unguarded traveller, strip him, wound him, and leave him to die. Satan was "a murderer from the beginning." The law, with its works, finds its type in the priest and Levite. It can do nothing to save man, and these its representatives "pass by on the other side." "By the deeds of the law shall no flesh be justified." The law is wanting in the heart of mercy that prompts to help the suffering traveller, and in the oil and wine to heal his wounds and give strength. But in the Good Samaritan, Jesus Christ, and in his finished work, the sin-smitten sufferer finds the help he needs. There is balm in Gilead, and a physician is there.

A word or two of simple practical comment will finish all we have to say. How many are the sufferers who have fallen among misfortunes along the wayside of life! By "chance" we come that way; chance, accident, Providence, call it by what name we will, has thrown them in our path. What are our feelings and actions toward them? The priest and Levite may have had good reasons for hurrying on; they may have been hastening to services which they could not postpone, to duties which would not allow them to endanger their lives. The parable blames them not. It leaves us to ask whether we should have done likewise, it leaves us to determine who are most to be admired: they who did as we should all naturally do, they who would not be put out of their way, who thought it imprudent to mix themselves up with a matter which was no concern of theirs;—or he who had compassion on the wounded man, he who administered comfort and support, he who broke off his journey, who for the sake of a stranger did that which kinsmen decline to do. The priest and Levite are types of men as they commonly are, thinking much of themselves and little of others. But let us not judge them more harshly than we judge ourselves. Let us remember that there is a higher standard of the true Christian traveller than theirs. The good deed of the Good Samaritan has still a fragrant odor in all the world; may it be ours, if God throws like opportunities in our paths, to be enabled to share his blessing, and "go and do likewise."

THE TWO DEBTORS.

"There was a certain creditor which had two debtors; the one owed five hundred pence, and the other fifty."—Luke vii. 41–43.

A PHARISEE, having perhaps formed a favorable opinion of Jesus, and wishing to learn more of his doctrine, invites our Lord to supper at his house. The mode of sitting at table in the time of the Saviour was peculiar. The feast was spread in the middle of the hall or large room, and on each side of the table was stretched a continuous row of couches, what might be called sofas. On these were the guests, not sitting upright as we do, with feet under the table, but reclining with their feet projecting a little behind, the sandals having previously been removed for greater comfort and coolness. So it was easy for any one who entered the room, and wished to speak to any particular guest, to do so without disturbing the rest. As the company sat at meat, a woman of notoriously bad character in the town, enters the room, and, approaching Jesus, stands behind him weeping, till the tears rain on his feet, when she wipes them with the hair of her head and anoints them with a costly ointment. This entrance of the woman was not considered, as it would have been at one of our modern feasts, an act of intrusion. Even at this day it is said to be common in the East for persons not invited to enter the guest-chamber during the progress of the meal, and to sit on seats placed against the wall, conversing on any subject they please with the guests sitting at the table.

"Now, when the Pharisee which had bidden him saw it, he spoke within himself, This man, if he were a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him." It was an acknowledged sign of a true prophet to be a discoverer of hearts. Simon had this test before his mind, and was applying it to determine the claims of Jesus. He reasoned in this manner: Either Jesus knows what sort of a woman this is, or he does not. If he does not know, he is not a prophet, because he cannot discern spirits; if he knows, he is not a prophet, for he does not cast the disreputable person away. On either alternative, therefore, he is not a prophet. Then Jesus, by his omniscient power, reading the Pharisee's thoughts, narrates the parable of the two debtors, the spiritual meaning of which is as follows:

The creditor is God, who giveth us all things richly to enjoy, and to whom an account for all our privileges must one day be rendered. The debtors are sinful men, whose debts are the sins they have committed. There is a great disproportion between the two debts mentioned in the parable. In the one case the sum owed is five hundred pence, and in the other fifty, one-tenth as large; evidently intended to show us, not how much the guilt of one man may exceed that of another in God's sight, but the estimate which each man made of his own indebtedness and shortcomings. Simon the Pharisee kept an account of his own debt to God—his sins of omission and commission—and balanced them from time to time against a column of merits which he possessed. The balance he confesses against himself, but sets it down as expressed by fifty. The woman, on the contrary, had, during a long course of wicked living, lost all reckoning both of her own sins and God's mercies. But lately her heart had been touched, we know not how; perhaps she had formed one of the crowd when Jesus was preaching on some occasion, and the arrow of conviction had reached her.

The point of the story, as it is constructed by Jesus for the reproof and correction of Simon, lies here: The love of both the debtors to their master is caused, and therefore measured, by the forgiveness which they have received. The one who had been forgiven a small amount loved but little; the other, having obtained acquittal from a large debt, loved the forgiver much.

The words which Jesus speaks unto Simon, in applying the parable, have often been misunderstood: "Wherefore I say unto thee, her sins which are many are forgiven; for she loved much." They have been preached upon, times without number, as if the woman's love was the cause of her forgiveness, instead of being the consequence of it. This error springs, perhaps, from the awkward construction of the English sentence, or from the ambiguity of meaning of the word "for." If the sentence should read, "The woman loves much, for she has been forgiven much," it would express the idea of Jesus, and so be in perfect accord with the parable he had just spoken, and with Simon's answer when our Lord asked, "Which of them will love him most?" Simon's reply was, "I suppose that he to whom he forgave most;" and that is what we find illustrated in this woman who was a sinner and who felt that her many sins had been freely forgiven.

THE FRIEND AT MIDNIGHT.

"And he said unto them, Which of you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves?" etc.—Luke xi. 5–10.

THERE are two parables upon prayer found in this Gospel which are not found in the others. They are alike in form and in purpose. They teach that prayer, to prevail, must be importunate. One parable is about the unjust judge and the widow, that teaches us to pray for ourselves. This present one, of the friend at midnight, teaches us to pray for others. It is a simple, homely story. A friend in his journey, or, as we read in the margin, out of the way, comes unexpectedly to our door at midnight. Perhaps he does not tell his condition, but we see instinctively that he is in need. There is absolutely nothing in the house; a not unlikely condition for a family to be in. Even if our own children wished something to eat they would have to wait till morning for it, when we could go and buy it. Yet we must find something for our guest, and so we go out to one of the neighbors, late as it is, and beg him to supply our need. God is that neighbor. Begging of him is prayer. Do not put it off; go to him at once.

But it is very late, and the neighbor in the parable objects to being roused, and would have the asker go away and trouble him not. But importunity cannot be abashed or put off. At first it may seem to fail to reach God's ear. But still it calls until he answers. There is nothing which has puzzled and saddened devout minds more than God's seeming regardlessness of their prayers. "I cannot rise and give thee." Have we not all of us so interpreted the delay of answers to our supplications? But even if that were God's character, what is the lesson the Saviour gives us here, but to pray and pray again? There is, however, a deeper lesson than this: Jesus does not mean to imply that God is ever an unwilling giver, that he ever lets us go away empty. If we have this false view of him our prayer is hindered. Many a man is tempted, in his haste, to become impatient and to say, "It is of no use to pray." But to charge God with unfaithfulness is simply to indulge a rebellious spirit, which is sin. The truth is, we have not really prayed, we have not humbled ourselves before God, and desired above all things his glory; and such prayer, in such a state, he despises. We need first a broken and contrite heart; and when the answer to our prayer is delayed, we shall search and discover why we are not blessed, and learn that while God despiseth the proud, he giveth grace to the humble.

Moreover, importunity must be specific. Look at the man in the parable, and notice how particular he is in stating his case: "A friend of mine, out of his way, is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him." While we pray for the world, the government, the Church, for all large and general objects, it is a good thing to pray specifically for "a friend of mine." Such a one is always at your door. Then make the petition as definite as the statement of the case. "Lend me three loaves." The supply was large; as a quaint writer says, "One for the friend, one for himself, and one to spare." Earnest prayer is always specific and definite. Hezekiah went "and spread the letter before the Lord," told to him the whole story, item by item. Such prayer always prevails. After an extensive revival in a certain church, it was remarked that there was not a single known convert who had not been the subject of concerted, intercessory prayer.

Expect answers to prayer. "Believe that ye receive, and ye shall have." This man in the parable cannot admit the possibility of going home unsatisfied, without gaining his wishes. It makes no difference to him that the man of the house says, "Do not trouble me. My children are with me in bed. At this late hour I cannot rise and give thee." There was nowhere else to go, so he kept on knocking and calling. The neighbors may have been disturbed, and have tried to make him desist, telling him it was of no use. He would not be convinced; he still persevered, till the man within arose and supplied his need. His importunity has prevailed.

There are examples in the Scriptures of thirty-four special prayers, every one of which was answered. There is our encouragement. It is not promised that the answer shall come speedily; very likely the tenor of Scripture would lead us to the opposite conclusion. We may have to ask, and seek, and knock, before we obtain. But the answer which is best for us will surely come in God's good time, though it may not be how and when we wish it.

THE RICH FOOL.

"And he spake a parable unto them, saying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully."—Luke xii. 16–21.

A YOUNG man came to Jesus asking him to settle a dispute which had arisen concerning some property. A question as to the proper division of the inheritance between himself and his brother was to be decided. The young man, of course, well knew that Jesus had no civil authority to constrain his brother; it was moral influence that he counted upon to accomplish his purpose: "Master, speak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me."

But Jesus had not come upon earth to settle questions of property, or government, or any of those matters which are rightfully to be referred to ordinary earthly tribunals. His mission was to establish the principles of truth and equity and righteousness in the hearts of men, so that they could settle these vexed questions for themselves, according to divine and eternal laws. So our Lord simply answers the young man, "Who made me a judge or a divider over you?" and having discerned the principle by which the youth was actuated in his question, Jesus turns to the multitude with the warning, "Take heed and beware of covetousness;" this was the bosom sin which prompted the request to divide the inheritance, and it was this sin which Jesus exemplified in the parable which followed.

"The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully." This was according to the nature of things, of God's eternal laws. He caused his sun to shine and his rain to fall, and the earth brought forth its crops, filling the rich man's garners with all manner of store. The prosperous man had a right to all this, no law, human or divine, could challenge that right. But mark the effect which such bountiful prosperity produced. He had considered how rich he was getting, and congratulated himself upon it. Between himself and his soul a sort of conversation (dialogue in the original) took place. This was eminently proper. When riches increase it is fitting that consultation should be held as to their employment. This man asked his soul, "What shall I do, I have no room where to bestow my fruits." His prosperity had been so immense that it put him to inconvenience; and so his question, "What shall I do?" was a very natural one under the circumstances, and he himself was just the person to answer it correctly. What that answer was we now learn: "He said, This will I do: I will pull down my barns, and build greater," etc. This is the hinge of the parable on which its teaching turns. Was there no one but himself whom all his prosperity could benefit? Were there no poor, no widows or orphans, whose meanly-furnished store could be replenished from the overflowings of his cup? When God's gifts were showered upon him in such overwhelming abundance, he should have dug channels through which they might overflow to bless others also. It is for such reason that God gives plenty and prosperity to those who stand on the high places of the earth—that they may give freely of their abundance to their poorer brethren beneath them. But this man cared for nothing and nobody but self. He was the centre of the universe to himself; everything was created for him; and so he proposed to pull down his barns, already too small, and build large storehouses which could contain his crops. He goes on: "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years," etc. He speaks of the future as if it were all his own, as much at his disposal as his houses and lands. Many years! These are in the unseen future, perhaps in the already near eternity; the man has permitted an uncertain element to enter into his computations. It is simply an illustration of the manner in which the god of this world blinds the minds and hearts of them that do not believe. "Take thine ease, my soul; eat, drink, and be merry." The matter is settled; the man and his soul agree that a long and merry time on earth shall be their portion, when another thrilling word is added to the dialogue, by one whom they had not invited, and who breaks in upon the colloquy: "God said unto him, Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee; then, whose shall those things be which thou hast provided?" This is a different and more terrible way of estimating the man. His neighbors probably congratulated and envied him as a rich and prosperous man; his word was law, his judgment on most matters eagerly sought after, as being the wisest that could be obtained; but God calls him "Fool!"

This parable of our Lord seems almost a cruel one, yet he never inflicted pain without having a beneficial and healing tendency in view. The wise surgeon does not shrink from using the knife when the cancer is deep-seated, and the patient is gradually succumbing to its destructive power. The man who sets his heart on his barns, and storehouses, and money-bags, is indeed a "fool," for in these things which perish there is no lasting good; "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth" (ver. 15); these are not his true life, and when they are lost, if a man has lived only in them, all is lost. Riches are truly and wisely enjoyed only when employed in good and useful works; otherwise they are a burden to their possessor which crushes his soul.

By way of contrast, the Saviour speaks of another kind of treasure which satisfies now and is everlasting. The man who is "rich toward God" is rich indeed, and all others are poor; and this treasure, which is found in Christ Jesus, is offered freely and to all.

THE BARREN FIG-TREE.

"A certain man had a fig-tree planted in his vineyard; and he came and sought fruit thereon, and found none."—Luke xiii. 6–9.

THE Pharisees had the notion that peculiar sufferings or misfortunes in this life were proof of peculiar guilt on the part of the sufferer; and they had referred to the massacre of the Galileans by Pilate as a case in point. Jesus denies the truth of their notion, and cites another analogous case—the sudden death of some men through the fall of a tower. He does not touch the general question that men do suffer for sin, but simply declares that peculiar misfortunes or calamities are no proof that special sin has been the cause of them; for, if such were unavoidably the case, there would be no need of judgment in the future life. The Saviour warns these Jews that they would suffer a sudden and unexpected destruction like that of the Galileans, unless they repented in time, and secured salvation from the judgment that sin entailed. Then, as a further enforcement of his lesson, the present parable is spoken.

"A certain man had a fig-tree planted in his vineyard." It is important to notice that this was not a tree that had sprung up by accident, as a seedling, and was suffered to grow through carelessness. The precise language indicates that it had been deliberately planted where it was growing; and that, very likely, special pains had been taken in its selection and nurture. Of course, when the tree had reached the proper age it was expected to bear fruit, and more especially after the care bestowed upon it. But for the first, second, and third years the owner is disappointed. Naturally he deems the tree of no use, and as he could utilize the place which it occupied, he gives orders to cut it down. The man who has the care of the vineyard, and who may have taken special interest in that particular tree since it was planted, cannot bear to hear the sentence pronounced, so he begs that another trial may be given, just one year more; possibly everything has not been done for the tree that ought to be; if under the most energetic and careful treatment it remains barren at the end of the year, then let the sentence against it be executed.

The ten Virgins.

The parable is short, but its lesson is very tender and touching, and easily to be comprehended. Its first application is to the Church at large. God is the owner of the vineyard and the fig-tree. Christ is the Dresser of the vineyard, the one who intercedes for the barren tree. Abraham's seed, natural and mystical, are the fig-tree, according to many teachings of the Old Testament. They were "planted in a very fruitful hill," fenced, watered, and watched with peculiar care. They were protected by special providences in their history, and cherished by all the ordinances of grace; but in vain did God seek such fruit as he ought to have found. There is no special meaning to be found in the number of years ("three") in the parable. It was, perhaps, a reasonable period to wait, not too long or short; and God waited for Israel till the fulness of the time had come.

But the special lesson of the parable can be more profitably applied to individuals than to the Church at large, especially to those who bask in the bright beams of Christian civilization and live in the enjoyment of all the privileges which the Gospel bestows. God in whom we live has conferred all these blessings upon us that we may bear fruit; and if we remain barren we shall surely be cut down. As the fig-tree greedily drank in the riches of earth and air, and wasted all in leaves, so the unconverted enjoy God's mercies with unthankful hearts and unfruitful lives. Why should they not be cut down?

But here an intercessor appears, who cares for man and prevails with God. It is Christ alone, who stands between the unfruitful and condemned on earth and the punishment which is their due. He claims a brief space for repentance; but he does more than this. Further means shall be tried to bring that repentance about, and to call forth the fruit of good living. By the sunshine of his love, by the dews of his grace, by the pruning of affliction, it may be, by trials of different sorts, the Lord cares for the tree. The hard soil is broken up about its roots, and it begins to bloom and to bear. But what if it do not bear after all this patient nurture? What if man shall neglect and despise God and Christ till the very end? "After that thou shalt cut it down." Love intercedes for a period of trial, an opportunity of turning. If this avail not, love can ask no more; and the tree that is cut down is fit only for the burning. Truly, "now is the accepted time."

THE GREAT SUPPER.

"And when one of them that sat at meat with him heard these things, he said unto him, Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God. Then said he unto him, A certain man made a great supper and bade many."—Luke xiv. 15–24.

THIS parable bears a striking resemblance to that of the marriage of the king's son, but the difference is also sufficiently marked to make it worthy of special study.

"A certain man made a great supper, and bade many." This is a common example of hospitality exercised by a rich and influential citizen. In this parable, as also in the one analogous with it, it is assumed that, according to custom, the invitations to the feast had been issued some days before the entertainment took place; and also that those invited should be reminded a second time by a messenger as the day drew near. Thus, at supper-time, the guests received notice that everything was ready. It is probable that the feast was not a supper, in our sense of the word, but a dinner at an early hour; for, if the man who had bought the field really intended to go and see it, and the man who had bought the oxen intended to try them, their excuses would not have been plausible unless they carried out their intentions on the very day of the feast, and so the feast must have been at an early hour. The men had accepted the first invitation, either expressly or tacitly, and the giver of the supper had consequently prepared as if they were to be present. But when the moment arrived they did not care to go; their own affairs occupied them so closely that the supper had no attractions for them. When the servant saw them separately to remind them of the approaching feast, "with one consent" they all made excuses, which, though different in appearance, were the same in essence, springing from the same root of carnal selfishness. Naturally, the master was angry on hearing his servant's report, and immediately invited all the poor of the neighborhood to the supper, the very dregs and outcasts of society, declaring that none of those who scorned his invitation should have any participation in the feast.

The spiritual meaning of the parable is easily arrived at. God has provided a great feast in the Gospel. The Jewish Church at one time, and the Christian Church at all times, are a privileged class, who enjoy a standing invitation, one perpetually offered. But the charge which the parable brings against them is that they do not avail themselves of their privileges, being simply content with the outward name and profession, clinging to the form of godliness, but denying the power thereof. Not they who are invited, but they who come to the feast and partake of it, are blessed.

The servant who carried the message of invitation obviously represents the ministry of the Gospel in all ages, while the message, in the first instance, is carried to those "that were bidden." Begin at Jerusalem, was Christ's command, and afterwards go to the heathen. Our Lord came in person to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, and it was when the Jews rejected the Gospel that its messengers turned to the Gentiles. And in the experience of every generation and every individual that is within hearing of the messenger's voice that gracious message is repeated.

To "make excuse" does not necessarily mean to invent an excuse which has no reality in fact; it is simply to plead to be excused. The grounds on which the plea is urged may be either true or false: in the parable it is very likely that the grounds stated were in themselves facts. And yet a secret unwillingness to go to the supper may have induced these men so to time their purchases that they could have a good excuse at hand, if it were needed. The reason men do not accept the Gospel invitation is because they do not really care for it in their hearts; in comparison with earthly business the affairs of the immortal soul must take the inferior place. Where there is a will there is a way. If men really love God, and desire to receive his unspeakable gift, they may visit their lands or prove their oxen on the following day, feeling that in matters of the soul "now is the accepted time." We allow that earthly affairs must be attended to: the field must be bought, and the oxen must be used, family affections must be cherished, but it is to our eternal loss if we allow these to occupy our hearts and minds to the exclusion of God's claims upon our time.

THE LOST SHEEP.

"What man of you having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, till he find it?"—Matt. xviii. 12–14; Luke xv. 3–7.

THIS parable was spoken, and also the two which follow it, as a rebuke to the Pharisees, who complained that Jesus received sinners and ate with them, and in it we find a declaration of the design, the method, and the terms of the Redeemer in his intercourse with those whom he came to save. The one sheep which has strayed from the flock is missed by the shepherd. As we said in our remarks on the parable of The Good Shepherd, the knowledge and care of the Redeemer for his people is a personal and individual knowledge. He knows not only the flock, but each member of it. And so he misses any who wander.

The shepherd left the remainder of the flock for the sake of the one that had wandered. In doing this neither unkindness nor kindness was shown towards those who were left on the pasture, the shepherd's act had no bearing at all on them. Nor is it necessary to discover who are meant by the ninety and nine; our whole attention is meant to be attracted to the specific act of the shepherd towards the lost one; the work of Jesus in his incarnation, ministry, death, and resurrection has respect to the unworthy, and not to the worthy. Our Lord teaches us here that sinners are the objects whom a Saviour should follow and find, precisely because they are sinners.

How does the shepherd act when he overtakes the wanderer? He does not punish, or even upbraid it, for straying. All he cares for is just to get it back to the flock. The Lord has drawn this picture for us, that in it every trembling sinner may behold his yearning love over the wandering and lost. And not only love but joy; he flings it over his shoulder rejoicing. The doctrine expressed by this act is one of the clearest of revealed truths, and yet the human heart often seems unwilling to receive it—the work of saving, instead of being done grudgingly, is a present delight to Jesus; and if we could habitually realize this it would make us trust him fully and always. When the shepherd gets home, and his neighbors rejoice with him, our Lord likens their joy to that of the angels in heaven over the one sinner saved, more than over the ninety and nine just persons who need no repentance. The exact expression is that there is joy "in heaven in presence of the angels"—before their faces, literally. The question really is, Who rejoices there? and in what manner? Obviously in the manner in which the rejoicing took place after the strayed sheep was brought home. He who sought and found the lost rejoiced; but not wishing to be selfish in his joy he invited his friends to join with him. In like manner joy in heaven begins and spreads. He who saved the sinner knows that the sinner is saved; rejoicing in the fact, He makes it known to the attendant angels, and invites them to share His joy.

Who are the just persons that need no repentance? This parable was spoken specifically to rebuke the Pharisees, who thought the only ones that needed repentance were the publicans and sinners, not just persons like themselves. He could not tell them plainly that they were deceiving themselves in regard to justifying righteousness, for that would have been to drive them away. So He hints to them by this story that even although they were as righteous as they deemed themselves to be, the recovery of a lost one would afford the Redeemer a greater joy than the retention of the virtuous. It is, after all, the sick child who has cost the mother the most care and suffering whom she loves the most dearly.

THE LOST PIECE OF MONEY.

"Either what woman having ten pieces of silver, if she lose one piece, doth not light a candle, and sweep the house, and seek diligently till she find it?"—Luke xv. 8.

THIS parable pictures God as the Redeemer of man in three different attitudes or modes of feeling. The first division of the picture represents God as contemplating as a loss to himself the man who has fallen into a state of sin. Let us glance at the picture. It is the interior of a human household. The mistress of the house is in a state of anxiety and excitement. She has lost a piece of money, and is oppressed by a sense of her loss. Now, this lost piece represents man perverted from the truth, weighed down in the dust of sin, hid, useless, degraded, lost, and the excited, anxious woman represents God. It is certainly a very startling representation. Man's sin has certainly brought loss upon himself. It has allured him from the paths of joy, and led him into the valley of the shadow of death. Sin has entailed fearful loss upon man. But the great Teacher, if rightly read, discloses to us a truth which is equally certain, and infinitely more touching, namely, that man's fall has brought loss to God; God mourns it as a treasure of which sin has robbed him.

In the second part of the picture God is represented as striving to recover man from the sin and misery into which he has fallen. The woman has lighted a candle, and is searching diligently through the house for her lost piece. God will not let his human treasure go without an effort to recover it. This is the gospel which has been ringing clear above the world's sin and trouble for ages. There is no one point more urgently insisted upon in Christ's teaching than this idea of the Father seeking for his child. One of the great temptations to which man is exposed when smitten with a sense of sin, is the danger of thinking that God has abandoned him, has turned his back upon him. Christ sets himself to dispel this distressing and disabling illusion. He shows us a God wounded by man's sin, and yet feeling a personal loss; while the more one looks at this parable, the more one feels how determined God is not to let his human treasure go without an effort to recover it. This is the key to the true history of the world.

Look at the picture again, still the same household. We still see the mistress of the house, but not now in a state of anxiety. The troubled look has disappeared from her face. Her open eye beams with gladness, for she has found the piece of money, and sympathizing neighbors have come to rejoice with her. In her changed condition that woman of the parable stands for God, and her neighbors represent the good angels who rejoice with their Maker over the recovery of the treasure—over man restored to his true life and ancient home. The Father rejoices first, and with an alert and subtle sympathy the angels catch the influence of the divine joy, as the high mountain-tops catch the early rays of the rising sun. See how the separate parts of the picture answer to one another. There is the housekeeper weeping for her lost piece, then searching for it, then rejoicing over its recovery; that is to say, God contemplating man's fall as a personal loss, God putting forth effort for man's recovery, and God rejoicing over that recovery, and the empty place in his divine heart filled again.

THE PRODIGAL SON.

Luke xv. 11-32.

THE first two parables in this chapter refer to a dumb animal and an inanimate coin, and, as such, cannot possibly take such a strong grasp upon our sympathies as this third one which relates to a human being. And if we agree with the pagan poet when he says, "I am a man, and nothing human is foreign to my sympathy," we shall, by placing ourselves in the position of this wandering younger son, comprehend more fully the beauty and spirituality of our Lord's words here narrated.

We have first his separation from home. He demands (not asks) from his father the portion of goods which would naturally fall to him in the event of that father's death. He is tired of waiting for his father to die, tired of home, and its pure but insipid joys, and longs to see the world. He would be his own master. His father grants his desire, and gives him the portion. According to Jewish law, if a man had two sons, as in this case, his property would be divided into three parts, the older son taking two-thirds, and the other son the remainder. We are told that the young man goes into a "far country." He gets into bad company. Devoured by harlots, his portion is soon spent. Compelled by necessity, he adopts the meanest of employment, the tending of the unclean animals which a Jew had been taught to loathe. He is in danger of starving, he who had given so many gay banquets to others, and at last is forced to stay his hunger with swine-husks. Fit type of the sinner who departs from God, he is sunk to the position of the meanest slave.

But at last he "came to himself." He had been mad before, "beside himself." He had left the best of fathers; among his vile companions and so-called "friends" there were none to love him as that father had done. And as this young man dwells upon the scenes which he had left, and contrasts them with his present condition; as he sees himself, the youngest-born, the pet of the household, whose slightest wish was obeyed by his father's servants, now in his turn the servant of a hard master, we cannot wonder that in agony he cries out—"How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, while I perish with hunger! I will arise and go to my father," etc.

"When he was a great way off," it is said, "his father saw him." Had he sat, for many a weary day, in the porch of his desolate home, yearning for a sight of the wanderer, hoping to see him come across the fields? We may reasonably suppose so. And when at last he does see him, wounded affection or dignity does not say—"Let him first come to me, and ask my forgiveness." No. His one thought is, "This is my son, my poor boy;" his one feeling, an impulse of love which leads him to rush forth to meet the wanderer, and fold him in his arms, and cover his cheek with the kisses of parental affection.

And this is God, our Father, as he is drawn by the hand and seen in the image of Him who came to seek and to save us, to bring us poor prodigals back; the God who is not willing that any should perish, and who awaits our coming. "Therefore will the Lord wait, that He may be gracious unto you, and therefore," as was fulfilled by Jesus on the cross, "will He be exalted that He may have mercy upon you." The kiss is the sign of reconciliation, the past is forgotten, old griefs are buried. The father conducts the wanderer home. The news spreads like wild-fire. The servants hurry to the welcome sound, and at the father's command they bring forth the best robe for the returned prodigal. They strip off his rags, and put the rich garment on him, and there he stands, fit type of the sinner invested with the righteousness and imputed merits of his Saviour. "Put a ring on his hand," is the next command. In those times rings were used as seals, a symbol of the graces whereby the Holy Spirit seals believers unto the day of redemption. This ring may signify the marriage between Christ and His Church, the passport of those who go in to the marriage supper of the Lamb. "Put shoes on his feet." The naked foot, in those days, was typical of servitude; none but members of the family were permitted to wear shoes. The son was taught that all his ancient home rights and privileges were restored to him. Nor does it end here; a banquet is ordered—"Kill the fatted calf, and let us eat and be merry; for this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found." So the feast is spread, plenty abounds, joy beams in every countenance, and the walls of the banquet-room re-echo to the music and the shouts of the dancers. A great contrast, this, to his late forlorn condition as a swineherd! Instead of husks, the richest food, the sweetest cordials!

And such is our heavenly Father's reception of his wandering sons. There need be no ground for fear lest such a picture of God should make any think lightly of sin. God forgives offences, but the penitent sinner never forgets them. The prodigal does not forget his sins so soon as they are freely, kindly forgiven. On the contrary, while the father's arms are about his neck, and the father's kiss warm upon his cheek, in full assurance of forgiveness, he still confesses his sin, with the truest and deepest repentance of all. When we experience God's kindness, then we feel the deepest sorrow. When God says, "I will establish with thee an everlasting covenant," He adds, "then shalt thou remember thy ways, and be ashamed." When Jesus turned the look of mourning love upon Peter, after his denial, then, pierced to the heart, the disciple went out and wept bitterly.

THE UNJUST STEWARD.

"And he said also unto his disciples, There was a certain rich man which had a steward: and the same was accused unto him that he had wasted his goods."—Luke xvi. 1-9.

THE present parable has two lessons which we state as briefly as possible. The first lesson is contained in the 8th verse. "The lord commended the unjust steward because he had done wisely; for the children of this world are wiser," etc. The lord, that is, the master of the steward, commended him. Not, of course, his immorality, but his worldly prudence. Christ is here painting a picture of life as it is in the world, in order to convey a spiritual truth. For the moment, therefore, he leaves out the question of morality, and fixes our attention on the wisdom of the man simply, looking at it from a worldly point of view. So that Christ's teaching becomes this—The men of this world are, in this world's affairs, wiser then than the children of light in their heavenly matters. He thus wished to intimate, that the earnestness of men who are absorbed in the pursuit of earthly gain should be a living lesson to those who would lay hold on the kingdom of heaven. He meant that we should never see such men without learning from their conquering zeal our own folly in being so indifferent about our everlasting inheritance.

From this Christ proceeds to convey a higher lesson in the prudence of the steward. "I say unto you, Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness, that when ye fail they may receive you into everlasting habitations." These words have been thought to mean, "So employ your wealth in good works that it shall return to you in everlasting joy." But we can regard them in a loftier sense than that, and find in them a broader meaning, for all Christ's teachings have a reference to eternity. Consider the condition of the steward. His wealth is about to pass away; or, rather, his means of acquiring wealth; but while he remains in office he so uses his position as to secure a lasting benefit; those whom he had favored would not readily forget him when he was in trouble. What does his conduct teach us? All worldly wealth must pass, but while we possess it let us so use it that it may become a constant training for immortality. The broad meaning of the parable is: If the money, the riches of life, which are only one and a comparatively petty circumstance in man's earthly history, may prepare him for eternity, then it would seem to follow that every circumstance of life, our wealth or our poverty, our work or our rest, may help to train us and fit us for immortality, and, if rightly used, be the means of blessing.

THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

"There was a certain rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day."—Luke xvi. 19-31.

THE rich man had lived known on earth; his name had been on all men's lips. Could he not afford all the luxuries and extravagances of life? Could he not at his sumptuous board entertain with splendid hospitality? And must he not, therefore, have been well known and highly appreciated? The destitute lay at his gate. Perhaps he thought that poverty is a crime, and ought to be punished by refusal of assistance. And yet we may thank God that real misfortune will never be left without sympathy. The dogs licked the sores of Lazarus; even the dumb animals had consideration for the poor man; and thus we learn that, even in its deepest distress, God will not forsake suffering humanity. The poor man died, and angels carried the soul and name of Lazarus to the realms of bliss. The rich man also died, and was buried. He could not carry his riches with him; they gave him no position, not even a name, in the scene to which he passed.

We are told that the rich man being "in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torment." In accordance with the use of the word in classic Greek, we may assume that the word "hell" (Hades) simply indicates generally the world of spirits, the invisible abode of the departed till the resurrection; while the expression, "being in torment," serves to determine the specific region or condition in the world to which the rich man was consigned. Both were now in the world of spirits; but the beggar in that world was in Abraham's bosom, and the rich man in torment. Each went to his own place as certainly and as necessarily as vapor rises up, and water flows down. In the midst of his agony the rich man cries out, "Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue." The agonizing request shows the intensity of the suffering; and the answer of Abraham shows that beyond the boundary of this life no hope of relief is held out to man. Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners: it was to this world he came; but we are not told that any saviour goes to that other world to win back the lost who may have permitted the day of grace to run out. And then, too, as regards the rich man's intercession for his brothers, even if we are to understand (what is by no means a certain thing) that the dead are permitted to intercede for those whom they have left behind, a prayer like this of the man in torment is utterly futile. He asks that one shall be sent from the dead to produce conviction and repentance in his brethren. His heart of unbelief speaks out, showing that he did not and would not believe in God, in judgment, and in eternity. His heart had been so obdurate that the natural agencies to produce conviction in the human breast had not affected him; and he argues with himself that if God had used some supernatural means it would have brought conviction to him; it would so have arrested his heart that by the supernatural visitation he would have been terrified into repentance. What is the answer to all this which we have from Christ's lips?—"If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead."

Conviction is the forerunner of conversion. No man's heart can be turned to God, repentant for the past and prayerful for the future, which is not first penetrated with belief. That we are justified by faith only is a most wholesome doctrine and very full of comfort. Christ declares that he came not to destroy but to fulfil. The great duties of life, the great principles of all true religion, were distinctly established long before Christ. Moses and the prophets had proclaimed the fundamental spirit of religion and the duties and obligations laid upon man. These once proclaimed by God are eternal, because uttered in perfect wisdom and unchanging truth.

If the natural—what is evident to us, what conscience dictates, what Christ by his life, his doctrine, fulfils and exhorts—if these will not produce conviction, and so lead us forward to conversion and repentance, then the supernatural, even if it were permitted to be brought into exercise, far from making us repent, would not even lead us to believe. "If we hear not Moses and the prophets," if God's own precepts will not guide us, if the greater wonders of his forbearance, his mercy and his love will not constrain us, if the natural and eternal incentives to conviction and conversion will not inspire us, neither would supernatural but inferior agencies to God himself make us believe. No; we would not be persuaded though one rose from the dead.

THE UNJUST JUDGE.

"And he spake a parable unto them to this end, that men ought always to pray, and not to faint."—Luke xviii. 1-8.

IN Oriental countries it is very easy to find an official who answers to the description of the judge in this parable. Men vested with unlimited power, responsible only to themselves, in many cases, do not hesitate to abuse power for their own self-gratification. The present condition of Turkey and Egypt, the many instances of oppression which are notorious in countries where heathenism bears chief sway, and which retain many of the habits of ancient times, help us to understand how it was in the time of our Saviour, and how readily he might find an example, such as he gives us here, of an unjust judge.

The meaning of the parable is very plain. The widow represents God's own chosen and suppliant people. Like her, they are ready, suffering and weak. Their wrongs need redress. The Judge of all the earth has promised to right them. He stands pledged to hear his people when they cry unto him. In themselves they have no resources, but must fly for succor to One who is mighty. The Saviour did not speak this parable to teach men simply the duty of prayer, nor did he ever inculcate that duty in so many words. He took it for granted, just as he assumed the existence of God and of future life. So here the duty of prayer is assumed, not enjoined. Neither does the parable prescribe what men should ask in prayer, nor on whom they shall depend. The one sole thing taught is the duty of perseverance in prayer, persistent reiteration, when the thing asked for does not come, and until it does come. It is expected that there may be a delay in the answer to prayer; that is expressly implied in the words "though he bear long with them," that is, resists their pressure for aid.

Dives
and Lazarus.

But the questions naturally arise, Why does God not answer at once his children's cry? Why does he so often delay relief, that the hope of succor deferred makes the heart sick? The Scriptures satisfy these questions of the tired heart. In the case of the widow, the selfishness, the love of his own ease, which was a master-passion with the unjust judge, left her claims unheeded. He held out against her as long as he could, and then found that it would trouble him less to grant her petition than to continue deaf to it. But God's action resembles that of the unjust judge only in the matter of delay; and even in this He withholds the answer from His children only for their good. God must have loved the apostle Paul, and yet the petition for relief from the thorn in the flesh was offered up three times without obtaining any response. The thorn was left as a needed discipline for Paul, until in God's own time the answer came: "My grace is sufficient for thee."

The lesson of this story is so plain that it cannot be missed, even by the most careless reader. As the Lord loveth a cheerful giver, so he loveth an earnest, untiring asker. "The kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." "Open your mouth wide, and I will fill it." We know that it is Jesus who speaks to us with authority, and that he came to declare to us the Father. To reveal the Father's heart he spake this parable, and to show how God would have his children come, or keep coming to him. "Men ought always to pray, and not to faint."

THE PHARISEE AND THE PUBLICAN.

"And he spake this parable unto certain which trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised others."—Luke xviii. 9–14.

"Two men went up into the temple to pray;" to the acknowledged place of prayer appointed by God, and at the regular hour, a time when all true Israelites prayed, looking towards the temple if they happened to be distant from it. One of these men was a Pharisee, and the other a publican, each sharply distinguished from the other, alike only in one respect, that both were sinners before God; the essential distinction between the men turning not on the enormities of the sins they had severally committed, but on the opposite grounds on which they severally placed their trust. They stood while they prayed, the ordinary attitude of prayer, though kneeling and prostration were both practised at different times. It is the state of the heart in prayer, not the attitude of the body, which God looks upon. "The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, God, I thank thee," etc. Those critics are probably right who connect "with himself" with the word "stood" rather than "prayed;" it is not intended to intimate that he prayed by himself, but rather that he stood by himself when praying; he belonged to the aristocracy of God's kingdom, and must not be mingled with the crowd. Then as regards the Pharisee's prayer, the error of it does not lie in its form or matter. It is really a song of praise to God, and it may have been true in its statements. The sin and error of the prayer consists in his presuming to give thanks not for the mercies he has received, but for what he is and does; the leaven of self-conceit and self-righteousness taints the whole prayer.

"The publican standing afar off," etc. Here we begin to find the external marks of an inward penitence. He knew his own heart, and condemned himself. In his humility he esteemed other men better than he was. Getting a sight of his own vileness before God, he felt that his brother man would be contaminated by his presence. He "smote upon his breast," as a sign of deepest contrition, and said, "God be merciful to me, the sinner," not simply "a sinner," as the common version weakly renders it; for as the Pharisee, comparing himself with all mankind, concluded that he alone was good, so this publican, in the depth of his humility, counts himself as the only sinner.

Our Saviour's moral from this scene is an instructive one. "I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the other: for every one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." The entrance to God's kingdom is not a difficult one; the way of life is very simple, if the heart be rightly set to find it. Coming to God as if we were deserving of his favor, and better than other men, we shall find the wall of his righteousness blocking up our path. Coming to him conscious of our deep unworthiness, counting ourselves as less than nothing, and altogether undeserving of the least of his mercies, we shall find an abundant entrance into his heavenly joy administered to us by his loving hand. But if we feel strong and self-reliant, if we feel that we could not go wrong, then let us begin to be anxious, for danger is near.

THE POUNDS.

"And as they heard these things, he added and spake a parable, because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear."—Luke xix. 11–27.

Our Lord was approaching Jerusalem for the last time, and it was expected by the people that great things would happen when he arrived at the capital. An excited multitude surrounded him, the cause of the excitement being the expectation that the kingdom of God should immediately appear. Jesus spoke this parable to correct the popular impression so far as it was erroneous, and to turn it to account so far as it contained any truth. They looked for Jesus to proclaim himself king; he teaches them by this parable that his kingdom is not of this world—that he, the king, will depart from his subjects for a while, and that it is their duty to occupy their talents and opportunities until his coming again.

The nobleman's errand, when he went abroad, was not to seek the kingdom in a foreign place, but to obtain from a foreign power authority to rule in his own land; this is implied in the objection of his own fellow-citizens, who sent after him the message, "We will not have this man to reign over us." In our Lord's time both the Jews and other nations subject to Rome were familiar with the transaction which forms the basis of this parable. Before setting out on the journey he summons his ten servants and makes arrangements with them concerning the use of his property, naturally desirous that it should be productive during his absence. His method of action is the same as we have seen in the parable of the talents, only in that case the property entrusted was unequally while here it is equally divided. The opposition of his fellow-citizens had no effect in hindering him from obtaining the kingdom, so in time he returns successful; his first business is to reward his servants according to their merits, and his second, to order the punishment of the rebellious citizens. This is, in brief, the statement of the parable, from which we will try to extract the spiritual meaning.

Our Lord himself is represented by the nobleman. He had not obtained full possession of the kingdom during his earthly ministry. His departure for a season was necessary, and this was his death, resurrection, and ascension. Two classes remained in the country while the prince was absent, his servants and his adversaries; and so, spiritually speaking, there are only two classes now, those who serve Christ, and those who, being enemies of God, are rebels against his Son. The parable has not much to say of the latter class, except as it declares their doom; but the services and rewards of the disciples of the Lord are more fully touched upon. The servants are those who, at least by profession, are Christ's disciples, and the pounds are the faculties, of whatever sort, which they possess, and the opportunities which they enjoy. One may invest his Master's capital in one, and another in a different way; both may be equally faithful, equally successful, and so different disciples may in diverse manners serve the Lord. Each man must do the best he can. When the king returns, or the servants are summoned one by one through death to meet their master, they are tried as to their faithfulness. One by investing his pound gained two, and another five. Both are equally approved as faithful, but unequally rewarded; each receives the recompense he has fairly won; and by this we learn two spiritual principles, one, that the disciples of Christ vary as to their efficiencies and success; another, that reward is proportioned according to a man's work. All the faithful are made great; but the greatest worker is the greatest winner when the accounts are closed. The case of the servant who did not invest his pound for the master's benefit does not differ from that of the faithless servant in the parable of the talents, except in one thing: here the pound is simply taken from him, there the slothful servant was cast into outer darkness. But the lesson is the same in each case—not only those who do positive evil, but those who fail to do any good, are counted guilty in God's sight.

The closing lesson of the parable is the judgment and punishment inflicted on the rebels against the king. It is a solemn warning to all who refuse to admit Christ's claims, and to enrol themselves among his servants. He shall rule them with a rod of iron, and break them in pieces like a potter's vessel. Their only safety is submission now, while it is the accepted time, for in the day of his coming and his kingdom sinners shall find no refuge. Are any disposed to resist, rebel and disobey? Cast, cast yourselves at His feet; cast yourselves where you must otherwise lie; embrace those feet while you bow before them, that you be not trodden beneath them; wash them with your tears, that they may not at last trample you.

THE LIVES,

TRANSACTIONS, SUFFERINGS AND MARTYRDOMS

OF THE

HOLY APOSTLES AND EVANGELISTS

OUR SAVIOUR JESUS CHRIST.

By Rev. W. F. B. Jackson.

Entered, according to Act of Congress, in the year 1877, in the Office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington.

SIMON PETER.—Among the twelve companions of our Lord, the disciple Simon Peter appears most prominently, and his name is uniformly at the head of the apostolic list. He comes before us abruptly, almost like Elijah the Tishbite. Two youths were following Jesus as he walked. "One of the two was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother." He, thrilled with joy at finding the Christ, makes it his first care to seek his brother Simon, and tell him the good news. He brings him to Jesus, and that searching gaze which reads the hearts of all men sees at a glance the nature of the man who stands before it, fathoms Simon's character in its weakness as well as its splendid greatness, and the lips of the Master give the disciple a new name, which he is to bear henceforth and for ever: "Thou art Simon, the son of Jona: thou shalt be called Cephas, which is, by interpretation, a stone." Wonderfully symbolic in its meaning, beautifully applicable to Simon's character, is this appellation of "the Rock;" it reveals the superhuman foresight of Him who imposed it. Farrar, in his Life of Christ, quoting from Lange, renders the Saviour's address in the following manner: "Thou art Simon, the son of the dove; hereafter thou shalt be as the rock in which the dove hides." And this new name of the disciple superseded his old one, and clearly expressed the position he was destined to hold in the Christian Church. At this first meeting of our Lord with Simon the disciple seems to have made no reply to the Master's address. We know not by what emotions he was stirred; we see him going back to his work upon the lake-shore, where, for a year or more, he is separated from the Saviour. But the spell is working; the gaze of Jesus has subdued the heart of Simon, and when the Master once more appears he finds a ready and willing follower.

The real call of St. Peter to be a follower of the Saviour is supposed by the best commentators to be that which is narrated in the fifth chapter of St. Luke's Gospel, though the evangelists Matthew and Mark also speak of a meeting by the sea-shore, when the sons of Jona and of Zebedee were invited to follow the Lord. Though these latter calls appear to refer to the same event as that narrated by St. Luke, still it would seem that only after the miraculous draught of fishes did Peter fully realize the claim which the Master had upon him. It is not the purpose of these articles to discuss vexed questions of interpretation, but only to draw instruction from those points upon which all Christians are agreed.

The lake Gennesaret was a small inland sea, about thirteen miles long and six broad, lying in a sort of sink or basin below the common level of the Galilean table-land, and five or six hundred feet below the Mediterranean. Travelers speak of the situation as "one of the hottest in the world." On the western shore of this sea many small but flourishing towns were situated, and as our Lord went from place to place the people followed him in crowds. "And it came to pass that, as the people pressed upon him to hear the word of God, he stood by the lake of Gennesaret." St. Luke 5: 1. The pressure was too great for him. The multitude longed to catch every word that fell from his lips; they would touch him, perhaps, to be healed of their diseases, and he could no longer make headway against the crowd. There were two boats standing by the lake, but the fishermen were gone out of them. These were the brothers Simon Peter and Andrew, and James and John, with Zebedee their father. They have been fishing all night, but without success, and are now engaged in mending their nets. Jesus beckons to Peter to come to his assistance and relieve him from the pressure of the multitude; and, eager to assist the Master, the disciple jumps into the boat and pushes it ashore, so that Jesus can step into it and teach the people from it. The sermon was finished, and then, tired though Jesus must have been, worn out as he was from nervous excitement, he thinks not of himself or his own needs, but only of his hungry, tired, disappointed disciples. How astonished Simon must have appeared at the command of Jesus to push out into the deeper water and to let down the nets for a draught! Though he was ready to obey, a slight tinge of objection is mingled in his reply to Jesus, "We have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing;" we have tried the most favorable time for fishing, when the glare and disturbance of the day were passed away; we have been unsuccessful; "nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net." The result was marvelous, far beyond the fishermen's most sanguine expectations. It was not, perhaps, surprising that in a lake full of fish some should be caught. The marvel was that the multitude should have been so great and at the precise time and place pointed out by our Lord. It teaches us that though we may have great talents and vast opportunities, unless we exercise them in the way the Lord bids us, our work may be in vain; but following his will and walking in the way of his commandments, our labors will be crowned with abundant success.

Simon Peter was overawed at the miracle. His Lord's power was manifested plainly that when he saw it he fell down at Jesus's knees, crying out, "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord!" Not that he wished his Lord's mercy to be removed, but that he could not bear that the sinful thoughts of his heart should lie exposed to that all-searching gaze. And how tender was the Lord's reply: "Fear not; from henceforth thou shalt catch men"! The same power that had blessed the labors of Peter in the lower sphere of action would still more wonderfully bless them in the higher vocation to which he was called. He should still be a fisherman, but the captives in his net would be the souls of men. From this time forth he follows Jesus unto death.

As these essays permit the narration of the chief events only in the life of the friends of Christ, we pass to the time when St. Peter made his notable confession of faith in his Master. The scene is laid in the neighborhood of Cæsarea Philippi, for our Lord did not enter into the city itself. It was a place of considerable importance in ancient history. The Sidonians had once occupied it under the name of Laish, and one of the tribes of Israel, on the extreme northern limit of the kingdom, had made it the seat of the worship of the golden calf, under the name of Dan. Next, the Greeks colonized it, calling the name of the place Paneas, in honor of their god Pan, who had a grotto in a cave under the hill filled with images of his attendant nymphs. And now, face to face with the relics of discarded idolatries, the embodiments of decayed heathen religions, comes the great King of everlasting life, and what more natural than that he should endeavor to fix in the minds of his disciples his true character and claim upon their allegiance? "Who do men say that I, the Son of man, am?" he asked; and the answer was discouraging. The apostles had to tell the truth; men at large, the multitude, had not recognized the claims of the Messiah; "he came to his own and his own received him not." "But who say ye that I am?" The grand answer came from St. Peter's lips: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God"—an answer on which the destinies of humanity seemed to hang; for had the disciples, those who were chosen to do his work, failed to recognize his divine character and mission, may we not say that, humanly speaking, the world would never have been won? Our Lord's reply to Peter was solemnly encouraging in its import: "Blessed art thou, Simon, son of Jona: for flesh and blood have not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven. And I say unto thee, that thou art Peter (Petros), and on this rock (petra) I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." It would be out of place here to enter into the controversies which have arisen concerning these words of Christ, upon which the chief assumptions of the Romish Church have been founded. Many and the best commentators from earliest times have understood "this rock" to be either Peter's confession or Christ himself. So that no supremacy over the other apostles is to be claimed from the text. The Church is "built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets (plural number), Christ himself being the chief corner-stone." Passages in abundance may be found in the Scriptures to prove that St. Peter in no way claimed or exercised supreme authority among or over the other apostles. Matt. 18:1; Rev. 21:14; 2 Cor. 11:5; 12:11; Gal. 2:9, 11; Luke 22:24, 25, etc.

St. Andrew.

This was indeed a lofty position to which Simon Peter was raised, to have thus received the commendation of his Master; and may it not, for the time, have caused him to feel elated beyond measure? Shortly after, when Jesus speaks of the decease which was to be accomplished at Jerusalem, Peter endeavors to dissuade him, saying, "Be it far from thee, Lord: this shall not be unto thee." With what withering force must our Lord's reply have fallen upon the disciple's quick-growing presumption: "Get thee behind me, Satan; thou art an offence to me"! It was a disgraceful humiliation for Peter, but not of long continuance. It taught him a lesson, and not a long time elapsed ere he had an opportunity of proving how loyal he was at heart. At that wonderful discourse of our Lord, in the sixth chapter of St. John's Gospel, where he speaks of himself as the Bread of life, some who had followed him were offended, and turned back to walk no more with him. Saddened at their desertion, and grieving over their love of gain and present ease, Jesus appeals to the twelve: "Will ye also go away?" Eagerly does Peter improve the opportunity of showing his loyalty to Christ, and says, "Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life. And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God."

From this time we find hardly any prominent points in the life of Peter until we come to the last days of the Saviour's work. Christ had gone to Jerusalem to meet his death. It was the Passover season, and in an upper chamber of one of the houses the Master and the twelve sat down together for the last time before his crucifixion. The supper was ended, and it would appear from the narrative that disputes had arisen among the disciples as to who should be greatest. Jesus, in order to rebuke them, rises from the table and begins to wash their feet—a wonderful instance of the humility of Him whom even angels serve. Peter demurred at having his feet washed by his Lord, and would have hindered it, but as soon as Jesus shows him the spiritual meaning of the cleansing he submits. Once more at this supper is Peter's self-assertion to receive a rebuke. When Jesus speaks of his betrayal by one of the disciples, and desertion by all, with characteristic vehemence Peter exclaims, "Though all men should be offended because of thee, yet will I never be offended. . . . Lord, I am ready to go with thee to prison, yea, to death." But the Lord, who knew the confident disciple better than he knew himself, answered, "Before the cock crow twice thou shalt deny me thrice." The prediction was fulfilled. After this scene in the upper room, Jesus with two disciples and Peter goes into the deep shades of the garden of Gethsemane, the other disciples being left at the entrance to the garden. After the agony, the betrayal and capture of our Lord, though for a moment Peter's courage flashed up and prompted him to wield the sword in defence of his Master, yet as the others had fled, so he in turn seeks safety by flight. He does not go far, but hangs on the skirts of the mob who had captured Jesus, and goes with them to the judgment-hall. There, being detected as one of the followers of our Lord, he thrice denies it with oaths and curses; and then, as the cock crows for the last time, and the Lord turns upon Peter his sad look, the sight of that patient form crushed by sorrow causes his heart to relent; he thinks of the past and his loving intercourse with the Master, and from the depths of his remorse the bitter tears well forth. We lose sight of Peter now until after the resurrection. We do not even know if he was present at the crucifixion. On the morning of our Lord's rising Peter and John both go to the grave, but find the body vanished. Soon after this seven of the disciples, at least five of whom were apostles, go back to their old occupation of fishing. It was Simon Peter who had persuaded them by his words, "I go a fishing," as if, now that the Master was no longer with them, the great work to which the disciples were called was at an end. Weary with fishing, they hear a voice from the dim distant shore bidding them cast again; they obey, and cannot draw the net for the multitude of fishes. Then the keen instinct of love prompts John to say, "It is the Lord." Peter hears the words, and instantly plunges into the waves, eager to be the first to reach the Master's side. The others follow, a fire is soon kindled upon the shore, and Jesus sits down to breakfast with them. Then comes that touching scene when the Lord by his three questions tries the faith of Peter and the reality of his repentance. Jesus himself did not wish to be assured of it; he could read the disciple's heart; but the trial was not to be grudged which served to reveal Peter's softened disposition, to test his patience and develop his devotion. After this scene he appears no more in the Gospels, but in the Acts of the Apostles we read of his devotion to the Master's cause. From the day of Pentecost until the time that he disappears from Scripture history, whether preaching to Jews or Gentiles, he is ever foremost in every good word and work, proclaiming the unsearchable riches of Christ. After he escapes from prison, as narrated in Acts 12, we lose sight of him, and are compelled to follow tradition. There is no adequate reason for supposing him to have left Palestine immediately. In the fifteenth chapter of the Acts he is found in Jerusalem as a prominent member of the apostolic council over which James, the Lord's brother, presided. It had been settled at this Jerusalem council that St. Paul and his companions should undertake the conversion of the Gentile world, while the elder apostles were to seek after the Jews of the dispersion. The direction taken by Peter cannot be ascertained with absolute certainty. He is supposed to have taught at Corinth, at Babylon and at Rome, though his presence in each and all of these cities has been denied by some as strenuously as it has been maintained by others. Epiphanius informs us that Peter was often in Pontus and Bithynia; and Origen, as quoted by Eusebius, observes that he "is supposed to have preached to the Jews of the dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Bithynia, Cappadocia and Asia; who finally coming to Rome was crucified with his head downward, for he requested that it might be in that manner." Cave supposes that he arrived at Rome in the year 63, and Lardner thinks it was 63 or 64 of the Christian era. Without dogmatizing upon the subject, we may say that it is more than possible that the apostle visited Rome during the persecution under Nero, and there suffered martyrdom. The best historians agree on this point. The modern traveler finds the Eternal City full of memorials of the departed saint and martyr—the prison where it is said he was confined, and the shrine which is erected for his tomb. On the crest of Janiculum we may tread upon the very spot where he is said to have been martyred. About a mile outside the Appian Gate is a small church associated with the touching story told of Peter's last days. It is said that during the awful persecution of Nero, Peter's heart forsook him, and he endeavored to flee from the city to escape death. But in going hastily along the Appian Way he is suddenly confronted by the Saviour, and in his amazement can only cry, "Lord, where art thou going?" And when the well-known voice of the Master replied gently, "I am come to Rome, there to be crucified afresh," the heart of the apostle was touched; he was overcome with shame at his weakness; he turned himself resolutely about, and hastened back to Rome to give himself willingly up to death.

Thus died the leader of the Christian Church, next to Christ. We know very little of his personal appearance. His pictures represent him as a robust old man, with a broad forehead and rather coarse features, an open countenance, short gray hair, and short thick beard, curled and of a silvery white. His best portrait, and the one most precious to all Christian hearts, is drawn by his own hand in his First Epistle. There he shows us that, through the trial of faith more precious than of gold that perisheth, he has found Christ as a living Rock, and exhorts us all to that vigilance and prayerfulness and humility which he himself, through many failures and tears, had learned to exercise.

ST. ANDREW.—The great English poet has told us that "Some men are born great, and some have greatness thrust upon them." The apostle whose life we are now to consider does not occupy a very large place in the sacred narrative; no remarkable things are narrated of him; he is chiefly remembered as the one who led his brother, Simon Peter, to Christ. "One of the two which heard John (the Baptist) speak, and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother." Thus he is first seen as a disciple of the Baptist. It was a grand school in which he was trained. The stern-browed prophet in his rude garb, like Elijah of old, had come forth from his wilderness retirement to touch the nation's heart and to make it thrill with eager longing for the great Prophet who was to come. His words fell like scourges upon Pharisees and Sadducees, men who were so immersed in ritualism, so swathed in ceremonies, that the moral life was stunted. And yet beneath that rough skirt of camel's hair there beat a tender, self-sacrificing heart, for he knew that the crowds which came out to be baptized of him would before long desert him for the new Teacher, "One mightier than he," who was to come. "He must increase, but I must decrease;" these were his noble, generous words, and when the Messiah came John yielded up his own disciples to him ungrudgingly.

By such a teacher had Andrew been trained, and as he listens to the Baptist's words, "Behold the Lamb of God!" what more natural than that he should have followed Jesus? Our Lord sees Andrew and another disciple following him, and asks them what they seek. They say unto him, "Master, where dwellest thou?" This may have been a mere question of curiosity on the part of these two, more for the sake of having something to say than from any intention of attaching themselves to him, as so many now ask questions concerning Christ and Christianity without meaning to become professors. However that may be, the Lord does not countenance delay; he answers them immediately, "Come and see." They accept the invitation in the same spirit in which it is given, and follow Jesus—we know not whether to his settled home or to a temporary lodging; which latter is more likely, as our Lord was probably upon a journey. If, indeed, he were but tarrying for a short time in the place, it was the more necessary that they should see him before he left. And this incident teaches us the lesson of seizing upon opportunities as they present themselves; "now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation;" it may not come to-morrow. It was toward night when the disciples met Jesus about the tenth hour; they stayed for some time with him, going away late at night or early the next morning, with hearts full of joy at the gracious words they had heard, and burning to make others sharers in their happiness. With the keen instinct of brotherly affection, the companion of Andrew—who is without doubt John the Evangelist—hastens to call his brother James, and Andrew likewise hurries home to his brother Simon, eager to bring him to Christ. Though Simon was the more gifted of the two, and seemingly the more likely to attract the favor of Jesus, Andrew shows no petty jealousy, but on the contrary an eager longing to have his brother follow the Lamb of God. "We have found the Christ," said he to Simon Peter; "and he brought him to Jesus." It has often been said that if Andrew had never done anything more than this, his name would have been held in everlasting remembrance. Through his instrumentality the noblest man of the glorious company of the apostles was given to the Church. What an encouragement is his example to all, no matter how obscure or insignificant, to try and bring some one to the Saviour! The feeblest Sunday-school teacher may bring to the Master's side some child who in after years may prove a second Simon Peter in his devotion to Christ's work.

St. James.

When the Twelve were sent forth we know not with whom Andrew was paired. He went out to his work like the others, and soon after their return they are withdrawn for a while to the borders of the Sea of Galilee, in which district of country Jesus works the miracle of feeding the multitude of five thousand. It was near the time of the feast of the Passover, and great crowds of people were going toward Jerusalem. Here was an opportunity for the Saviour to feed the minds and bodies of men. When he saw the multitudes he asked Philip where the supply of bread was to be bought; and Philip replies that two hundred pennyworth of bread would not be enough, though each person should take only a little. Then Andrew gives the information that there is a boy in the company who has five barley loaves and two small fishes, "but what," says Andrew, "are they among so many?" We need not suppose that Andrew said this in jest or in scorn; he must have been familiar with our Lord's power, which had turned water into wine and filled empty nets with fish, and so his words are simply an appeal to that power now, as if he had said, "We know, Lord, that the materials are insignificant; we feel that they are useless unless thy mighty hand doth increase and multiply them as thou didst the marriage wine." And so, though the little lad may have hung back timidly, ashamed to bring his scanty supply to the great Teacher, Andrew takes him by the hand and leads him forward, and his young face brightens as he sees his brown loaves and salted fish the means of refreshment to hungry thousands. Christian men and women, you may have little to offer to Christ to help nourish the souls of your fellows, but bring that little to him in humble faith, and he will increase it a thousand-fold and make it a blessing.

We see very little more of Andrew in the sacred narrative. A few days before the crucifixion, as the Saviour was leaving Jerusalem for Bethany, where he passed the night, two of his disciples came up to him desiring an interview for some Greek proselytes who had come up to the feast. These Gentile converts speak to Philip first, and he goes to Andrew, and afterward both he and Andrew go up to Jesus. This incident is interesting, simply as showing the intimacy between Philip and Andrew, and as implying that Andrew was the best one of the disciples to introduce strangers to their Master. We learn no more of any consequence concerning Andrew in the Scriptures. Nor is tradition able to give us many facts. When the apostles were scattered abroad, he is said to have gone into Scythia, where his labors were rewarded with many converts. The legends of his death tell us that it happened in Patras, a city in the province of Achaia. There is hardly any doubt of his death by crucifixion. We are told that Ægeas, proconsul of Achaia, being irritated at beholding the numbers who went over from paganism to Christianity in consequence of St. Andrew's preaching, and especially maddened at the conversion of his wife, caused the apostle to be seized, scourged, and then crucified. He was obeyed, and on the canvas of famous Italian and Spanish masters has the martyr's death been portrayed. On his way to execution he is said to have exclaimed, "Welcome, thou precious cross, that hast been consecrated to me by the body of my God!" The cross on which he suffered is said to have been made of two pieces of timber intersecting each other at acute angles, in the form of the letter X, hence called St. Andrew's cross. We are told that his body was afterward removed by Constantine and deposited in the great church at Constantinople.

ST. JAMES THE GREAT.—There were two apostles of this name, but the one whose life we are now to consider was the brother of John and the son of Zebedee. His mother was Salome, who has been considered the sister of the Virgin Mary by some writers; and if this were true, it would make James and John the cousins of our Lord. Early Christian art would seem to give some color to this notion, for James is very often portrayed with a likeness to Christ, both in having the hair parted in the middle and falling on either side, and in the thin beard. We know very little of the circumstances of the parents of James; they were doubtless comfortable. The father is a fisherman, and the sons assist him in his work. They live in a village at the northern extremity of a small sea in the district of Galilee, on the borders of the land of Judea. Day after day they go forth to their work; they cast the nets, spread the sails, ply the oars, and when the catch of fish has been large or sufficient to sell, they dispose of their freight in their native village or the neighboring towns. Their companions in toil are Peter and Andrew, the sons of Jona, and they are all friends; they have joined themselves to each other in their humble profession, and agreed to share profit and loss, storm and calm, together. Their boats contain all their wealth, and their humble cottages all that they love. Their ancestors, perhaps, were fishers before them. They themselves have no idea of a different life. The only changes on which they calculate are the changes of the weather and the vicissitudes of their calling, and the only great interruption of the even course of their lives to which they look forward are the annual journeys which they make to the city of Jerusalem at the periods of solemn festival. Thus they live, and thus they expect to live until they lie down to sleep with their fathers as calmly, as unknowing, and as unknown as they.

It is quite possible that these two cousins of our Lord, James and John, may have had earlier intercourse with him than the rest of the apostles. Still, we have no means of knowing it. They were made disciples of Christ, but a full year elapsed before they entered unreservedly upon his service. We can remember when that time came, for we have just read of it in St. Peter's life. The scene was on the lake-shore. Look at these men, not as apostles, but as common men engaged at their common work. They have been toiling through the night, and have caught nothing. The work was hard, and they are disheartened. So they pull up their nets and wash them, mend them, and get them ready for another trial when the time shall be more propitious. Presently, followed by an eager crowd, the great Teacher draws near the spot where they are working; he enters Simon's vessel, and prays him to thrust out a little distance from the land; then he speaks to the assembled multitude as never man spake. After his discourse is ended he bids Simon launch out farther into the deep and cast the net, and there follows at once the miraculous draught of fishes. Then these four partners, Peter and Andrew, James and John, filled with awe and wonder, quit their boats, throw aside their nets, and become fishers of men. Oh, how ready and exemplary is the obedience which these men render to their Master! James has the boats to leave, servants to give up, a rich haul of fish to abandon, an honored father and beloved mother to whom no farewell kiss might be given, but for the Master's sake all are relinquished. What a rebuke to us worldly Christians is his hearty obedience!

At the formal institution of the apostolic band we read that James and his brother John received the surname Boanerges from the Lord. It is strange that we find only one mention of the name, and this fact would seem to intimate that it was not intended to be perpetuated, like the name Peter given to Simon. There are writers who suppose the name Boanerges, or "Sons of Thunder," to be a title of honor given to the brothers on account of their eloquence in preaching, while to others the name appears descriptive of an energetic and fiery temper and zeal. But we do not know that they had won any reputation for preaching, and the name surely would not have been given by our Lord if it denoted any fault of character. He gave Simon a name which was at once a title of honor and descriptive and prophetic of character. Peter had a rugged native strength which the name recognized, and he was to have a divine strength. So the "Sons of Thunder" had a divine seraphic zeal, which, though it did exhibit itself in an unchastened form, would, when moulded by the Spirit of God, take different shapes, and lead St. James to be the first apostolic martyr, and St. John to become in an especial manner the Apostle of Love.

There are not many incidents narrated in which the apostle James bears a prominent part. It is difficult to seize upon any salient points of his character. During our Lord's last journey to Jerusalem, as the little band were one evening approaching a Samaritan village, Jesus sent two of his disciples before him to make preparations for lodging. The Samaritans were always insolent, but especially so to people going to Jerusalem, upon religious grounds; so they refused to receive the travelers. It is quite possible that James and John were the disciples sent forward on this occasion. It must have been peculiarly exasperating to them, after the fatigue of travel and the hunger caused by a long journey, to find that food and shelter and even respectful treatment were denied. Full of zeal for their Master and his work, it was no wonder that they desired to show his power over those who treated him so rudely: "Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven and consume them, even as Elias did?" Nearly a thousand years before, in this very country of Samaria, the prophet Elijah had called down fire from heaven to protect himself while engaged in God's work. And now should not the anointed of God, the Messiah, be certified to by an exhibition of the divine power? But Jesus rebuked the fiery zeal of James and John; he told them they knew not what spirit they were of. The Son of man came not to destroy men's lives, but to save them, and if any received him not he would not judge them then. So he went to another village. The next time we see James is when his mother Salome comes to Jesus to ask for her two boys, that one may sit on the right and the other on the left hand in his kingdom. Like a true mother, her thought was not for herself, but for her children. He rebukes them all three by saying, "Ye know not what ye ask," and then calls their thoughts away from future rewards by putting before their minds present duties. Can they drink of his cup and be baptized with his baptism? They say that they can, they desire resolutely to share their Master's sufferings; and the Lord says they shall do so, but the reward must be left to the Father, who would give it to all who were faithful. In the garden of Gethsemane, James was one of the three chosen by Jesus to be with him, and after the resurrection he was among the seven who saw the Lord at the Sea of Tiberias. After the day of Pentecost and the establishment of the Church he seems to have occupied an important place, and when Herod attacked the Christians in Jerusalem, James and Peter were the first victims selected. Peter escaped, but James was beheaded—a form of punishment considered extremely disgraceful among the Jews, and awarded to those especially who had drawn the people away to the worship of other gods. So was our Lord's prediction fulfilled and the apostle's zeal requited. He drank the cup, he received the baptism of blood. It is strange that tradition should have busied itself with one whose life is strictly confined to the Scripture narrative. In contradiction of the inspired writings, which imply that the apostles remained in Palestine for many years after the ascension, tradition has sent the apostle James to Spain, where he worked many wonders and founded the Spanish Church before he returned to die in his native land. After his death his body was miraculously sent back to Spain. Of course, a vivid imagination can invent any number of pious stories, but we need not say they are utterly opposed to the severe simplicity of the sacred narrative.

ST. JOHN.—This apostle, the last named of the four friends and partners, the fishermen of Bethsaida, has by general consent been deemed the loveliest and saintliest of the twelve chosen companions of Jesus. It is quite possible, however, that his gentleness of character has been magnified to the forgetfulness of his firmness, and that an element of effeminacy has wrongly entered into the idea always entertained of him. Art itself has aided in forming this conception of his character, since he has always been depicted, in Western art at least, "as young or in the prime of life, with little or no beard, flowing or curling hair, generally of a pale brown or golden hue, to express the delicacy of his nature." Just as Christ's mother was wrongly exalted and worshiped in later ages, on account of the womanly tenderness which she was supposed to possess, and which it was erroneously thought her Son did not have—He who combined in his own perfect nature the blended grace of both sexes—so men were led to magnify the womanly element in John's character as an off-set to the masculine strength of Peter's nature. But they were mistaken, for it was no weak womanly nature that was called by his Lord a "Son of Thunder;" and he who could say "Little children, love one another," could also speak like a Christian soldier of the "victory which overcometh the world, even our faith." And even Art herself, though she has painted him as a tender delicate youth, has given him as a symbol the majestic eagle, the king of birds, significant of his power to soar up to the divine mysteries and pierce them with undaunted eye. We know something already of the early life of John, his family and his occupations, which were similar to those of his brother James. We have read of his first meeting the Saviour, of his going back to his fishing-boat, and afterward obeying the call to leave all and follow Christ. There is very little peculiar to him narrated in the early stage of the Gospel history. In the ninth chapter of St. Mark's and St. Luke's Gospels we are told that a dispute had arisen among the disciples as to who should be greatest. This difficulty was reproved and settled by the Saviour, who took a little child and set him in the midst of the disputants, and bade them be like him. Immediately following this incident, John says to Jesus, "Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and he followeth not us; and we forbad him, because he followeth not us." It would seem as if the tender conscience of John had somewhat reproached him as he looked upon the little child, an example of humility. He had before been jealous of his Master's honor, and unwilling that any outsider, as it were, should try the work to which he and his fellow-disciples seemed especially called. And so, in after ages, too many Christians have assumed that they alone have prescriptive right to preach or pray or do work for Christ. Men have tried to suppress what they have termed "irregular proceedings" in others who do not hold the same views of church government as themselves. But Jesus condemns this mode of action, and teaches a lesson for all the ages, when he says to John, "Forbid him not; for he that is not against us is for us." Any man who can cast out devils, who can destroy sin and wickedness, will be approved of Christ. His kingdom has no privileged class, his grace is confined to no one channel; the humblest worker for the Master is as acceptable as the loftiest apostle.

ST. JOHN.

The next time John is brought into prominent notice is at the Last Supper, where he is seen at Jesus' right hand, as the "disciple whom Jesus loved." We need not wonder at his nearness to his Master; there was evidently a union of strength and tenderness, of zeal and docility, in the disciple, which would be very winning to the human heart of the Saviour. After the supper is ended John is one of the three who follow our Lord into the garden of Gethsemane, yet, sad as it may seem, he sleeps when he should have watched, and amid the general desertion of the disciples he also flees. His cowardice and guilt were great, but not so glaring as Peter's. He only fled; he did not deny with oaths and falsehoods. And though we do not read of his sorrow and repentance, we need not doubt that they were deep. He afterward follows his captive Master into the judgment-hall, and was probably near him during most of his trial. The Gospel of John is of incalculable value to us as regards these scenes of the trial, since we have the testimony evidently of an eye-witness. Probably for a short time after the condemnation the Master and his disciple were separated, but only that John might go to the Lord's relatives and sustain their breaking hearts. All the pictures represent him as accompanying the daughters of Jerusalem who go to the crucifixion. They are gathered together about the cross. It is a sad spectacle! The rough soldiery, the brutal executioners, the scoffing rabble, and in the midst of them, perhaps touching the very cross itself, stand four weeping women and the youngest and gentlest of the twelve chosen disciples, eager to show their sympathy with the Lord. O, what a lofty courage, what unfaltering devotion is theirs!—not the mere animal courage of the battle-field, but that which is inspired by the pure divine Spirit of God himself. And this tender devotion of the beloved disciple so moved the heart of the Saviour that, looking down from the cross upon his friend and mother, "He saith unto his mother, Woman, behold thy son! Then saith he to the disciple, Behold thy mother!" How symbolical was this of the uniting of mankind by the death of the Saviour, the bringing together of young and old, rich and poor, Jew and Gentile, in mutual affection! And as he linked mankind to each other, so would he draw them to God. "He suffered once for our sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God."

The sad tragedy of the crucifixion was over, three days had passed, and the morning of the resurrection had come. Eager to view the body of her Lord, Mary Magdalene goes early to the sepulchre, but finds it empty. She hastens to inform Peter and John of this fact, and they both hurry to the tomb. They enter it, they behold the neatness with which the grave-clothes are arranged—which would not have been the case had robbers stolen the body—and the conviction begins to dawn upon them that their Lord has risen. It is quite probable that John was the first one who believed in the Saviour's resurrection. A verse in his Gospel tells us: "Then went in also that other disciple (John), who came first to the sepulchre, and he saw and believed." The succeeding verse says, to be sure, "For as yet they knew not the Scripture, that he must rise again from the dead," but by the word "they" is not meant Peter and John especially, but all the disciples. It was not generally received among them that Christ should rise, and so it is more particularly worthy of notice that John was the first to remember the predictions of Jesus. The other disciples were unprepared for his resurrection; even Peter did not think of ascribing the absence of the body to its true cause. The loving heart of John first took in the glorious truth that death was vanquished by the Son of God and that Jesus of Nazareth was the Prince of life. There is but one scene more in the Gospels where John is prominent. Some of the disciples are fishing upon the Sea of Tiberias; they have gone there to wait for the Master's coming. The long night has passed, the morning begins to dawn, the mists are lifting from the sea, when they hear a voice from the shore asking if they have caught anything. The tones of the voice are not familiar at first, but John, looking eagerly toward the land, and shading his eyes with his hand from the morning sun, at last makes out who it is, and says, "It is the Lord!" The disciples land, and after the breakfast Jesus says to Simon Peter, "Follow me." But John, supposing the command was addressed to all the company, starts to go with Jesus; and when Peter perceives his friend following, he asks, "Lord, what shall this man do?" The answer was, "If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee!" These words were supposed by many to mean that John was to live until the second advent of the Lord, or that he was not to die until some very remote millennium. But the coming referred to is supposed by the best commentators to mean the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus, which took place in the year of our Lord 70, when John was about seventy years of age. This disciple was the only one of the twelve who lived to see the famous city utterly destroyed and the heathen ploughshares run through its streets. When we get out of the Gospels we find little or no record of John. In the Acts we read of him in company with Peter when the latter heals the lame man at the Beautiful Gate. They are both arrested, and charged to teach no more in the name of Jesus; refusing to obey, they are both set free by the council, who are afraid to punish them. Thus these two men, who had played and fished together in their boyhood, still keep together as fishers of men—an exhibition of Christian friendship worthy of notice. Once more we see them together when they go down on a mission to Samaria, after which we learn no more of John in the historical part of the Scriptures.

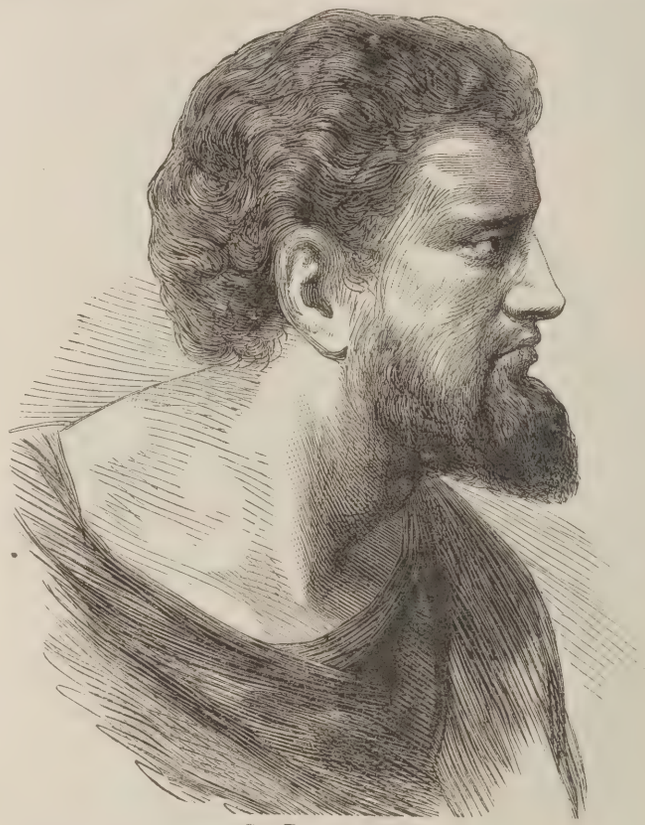
It is impossible to ascertain the exact date of the departure of this apostle from Jerusalem. He probably tarried in the city until the death of the mother of our Lord, but when this came to pass we have no means of finding out. St. Paul visited Jerusalem for the last time about the year A. D. 58, and no mention is made of his having seen John. So, if the argument from silence is of any worth, it is conjectured that John must have been absent at that time from Jerusalem, though the almost unanimous consent of tradition places the arrival of the apostle at Ephesus at about the year A. D. 69. At Ephesus he would have a great work to do, for even then early dissensions had arisen within the church, and schisms, heresies and hatreds had begun to quench that greatest of Christian graces, love. It was to the confuting of the erroneous doctrines which had sprung up concerning our Lord's nature that the fourth Gospel was partly directed. In the reign of the Emperor Domitian, between the years 90 and 100, the apostle was banished to the Island of Patmos, in the Ægean Sea, and while here he wrote the Book of the Revelation. Being recalled to Ephesus after the death of Domitian, he returned, and at this time wrote his Gospel. According to Epiphanius, he died at the age of ninety-four, in the one hundreth year of the Christian era, which calculation would make him six years younger than our Lord. Other authorities say that he attained to the age of one hundred years, and others again assert that he lived a still longer period. At any rate, he lived to bear the longest, while his brother James was called to bear the earliest, witness to Christ. Our limits do not admit of any commentary upon his valuable writings, and this essay may fitly conclude with a characteristic story or two which the early traditions narrate concerning him.

Clement of Alexandria speaks of a certain young man in whom John had taken a deep loving interest. The apostle had occasion to leave Ephesus for a while, and committed the youth to the care of a venerable minister of the Church. On the apostle's return his first question was for his convert. "I demand," he cried, "the young man and the soul of a brother." And the aged minister, weeping bitterly, replied, "He is dead."—"How did he die?"—"He is dead to God; he has turned out wicked and abandoned, and at last a robber." Upon hearing this the apostle cried with great lamentation, "A fine keeper, truly, did I leave of a brother's soul!" and immediately set out for the forest where the bandits were said to be quartered. He permitted himself to be captured and led before the chief of the robbers, who, upon beholding the aged apostle, burst into tears of remorse and implored forgiveness; "and while he spoke he hid beneath his robe his right hand, which had been stained with so many crimes. But St. John, falling on his knees before him, seized that blood-polluted hand, and kissed it and bathed it with his tears, and he remained with his reconverted brother till he had reconciled him with Heaven and himself." The old painters sometimes represent St. John as holding a goblet from which a serpent is rearing its head. This refers to a legend told of him by one Prochorus, who says that some heretics having given the apostle a cup of poisoned wine, he made the sign of the cross over it, and all the venom was driven from the vessel in the form of a serpent. It is also said that when he had grown so old and infirm that he was not able to preach to his converts, at every public meeting he used to be led to the church and say no more than these words, "Little children, love one another." And when his hearers, wearied with the repetition of the same words, asked him why he always said this and nothing more to them, he replied, "Because it was the command of our Lord, and that if they did nothing else, this alone was enough." Thus, preaching the gospel of love with his latest breath, the "beloved disciple" passed to be for ever with that Saviour on whose bosom he reclined at the Last Supper, and to realize for himself the glories of that heavenly kingdom which his divine genius so beautifully portrayed.



ST. PHILIP.—Fifth on the list of the apostles, as enumerated by Matthew, stands Philip, who was of Bethsaida. There were two towns of this name—one a large town called Bethsaida Julias, the latter name given to it in honor of Julia, the lovely but unprincipled daughter of the Emperor Augustus. The town from whence Philip came was on the opposite side of the lake, and was called the Western Bethsaida—a lovely spot, with gently-sloping banks, bright streams and a gleaming strip of white sand. This must not be confounded with the place where our Lord fed the multitude. On the day after Jesus had held his first conversation with the young Galileans, Andrew and Simon, he starts to return to Galilee, and on his journey he meets with another young fisherman, Philip by name. He was the only one among the apostles who had a Greek name, and it was given to him probably in honor of the tetrarch Philip, since parents in old times, as well as now, were in the habit of calling their children after famous persons. It is quite reasonable to suppose that this young man was on intimate terms with the sons of Zebedee and Jona, and that living in a town whose very name was significant of the staple industry of its people, he also earned his living by the boat and net. The narrative of our Lord's meeting with Philip is very brief. We are told simply that he met him, and said, "Follow me." A few days before disciples had come seeking him; now he is the seeker. We know not if the name of Philip had been suggested to Jesus by Andrew, who had spoken of him as a friend and begged that he might be invited to join the band; but the words "he findeth Philip" might imply that Jesus had gone to look for him. At any rate, the disciple is found, and the first greeting is short and abrupt, "Follow me." And is not this the way in which he comes to men now? He is searching for us anxiously and longingly, and many of us have as anxiously tried to elude his search. But when, at last, we have suffered him to reach us, his word is the same as of old, "Follow me." We have not the excuse which Philip might have urged had he refused to obey the command. In his case an unknown teacher stood before him, but we have known of Christ from our infancy, and all the hallowed associations of our childhood and early youth are connected with his story as we have learned it from the lips of those we used to love and honor. Oh, that men everywhere would listen to his word! They are roaming up and down the wide world in search of rest and peace, and it is found nowhere save in the service of that Lord whose yoke is easy and whose burden light.

Philip does not seem to have literally obeyed the command of Jesus to follow immediately, but goes to search for Nathanael; and in this action of his there is a lesson for Christians. The best way to be followers of the Master is not to sit at our ease in Zion, not to cultivate selfishly our own religious frames or emotions, but to proclaim his name to others, to go out and seek souls for whom he died, and lead them to him. That is really following Him who went about doing good; and when Philip came to Nathanael he spoke no uncertain words concerning Jesus. His mind had been perfectly made up. He said, "We have found him of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph;" and when Nathanael objected, "Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth?" how practical was Philip's retort, "Come and see"! Can there be any better rejoinder, even at this day, to the objections which are urged against our religion? And it means as much now as it did then. At that time it meant, Come and see One who teaches with authority, and not as the Scribes; come and see One who, though humble in appearance, yet draws men to him with a wonderful persuasiveness; come and see One who lives not, like other men, in sin, but is pure and spotless, and intent on doing his Father's will. We cannot, indeed, approach him as they of old who stood by his side in Galilee, but we can "come and see him" in the effects which his teaching and example have had on a worn-out and dying world. Wherever the Christian Church has carried the teachings of her Master, wherever she has set forth his example and asked men to "come and see," round her course through the ages have sprung up all the blessings of civilization. Her path has ever been marked by the soft verdure of the kindlinesses of home, the fresh shade of the courtesies of society, the fair trophies of science, the bright blossoms of art. When she has awakened to the purity and holiness of her mission, with her have awakened the exploring eye of discovery, the searching effort of invention. When she has made an onward step, with her have advanced the power of mind over matter, of love over hatred, and of peace over contention. It was she who knit up at first, it is she who has healed when threatened with severance, the bonds of intercourse among nations; and all because she is holding up the life of Him who is the Lover and Saviour of all men. No man who has ever "come and seen," no man who has ever tried Christianity, has found it a failure. What Nathanael's treatment of Philip's invitation was we shall see when we come to the life of that apostle.

There is comparatively little narrated of Philip in the Gospels. The evangelist John is the only one who gives us any particulars, and these in only three passages. After one of the missionary journeys of Jesus with his disciples, they have come into the neighborhood of Eastern Bethsaida, followed by immense crowds. We have spoken of this circumstance already in the life of Andrew. On the grassy plain near where the Jordan empties into the lake the multitudes were gathered listening to the wonderful words which fell from the lips of this strange prophet. The day was gently sinking to a close, and down the western hills the shadows were lengthening as the sun gradually went down. Yet such was the charm of this fascinating Teacher, such the power of his eloquence, that the multitude still lingered as if loath to leave. But the Lord had compassion on them. He knew that the night would soon come on and find them far from home, tired and weak from fasting, and so he says to Philip, "Whence shall we buy bread that these may eat?" It has been thought that the question was asked of Philip as the provider for the band of disciples; but as Judas kept the purse, it is more likely that he, if any one especially, was the purveyor. At any rate, the evangelist gives us a reason why the question was put to Philip: "This he said to prove him, for he himself knew what he would do." The Saviour used this opportunity of trying the faith of his followers, and preparing them for the wonderful work which was to follow. Possibly the faith of Philip needed more strengthening than that of the others. Trench, in his work On the Miracles, says: "It should now be seen whether Philip, calling to mind the great things which Moses had done, who gave the people bread from heaven in the wilderness, and the notable miracle which Elisha, though on a smaller scale than that which now was needed, had performed (2 Kings 4:43, 44), could so lift up his thoughts as to believe that He whom he had recognized as the Christ, greater therefore than Moses or the prophets, would be equal to the present need." Philip's faith was not very strong or hopeful. His answer to our Lord's question is somewhat discouraging: "Two hundred pennyworth of bread is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little." How slow was Philip to perceive the resources of that Divine Master who had turned the water into wine and healed the sick! But he was not the first whose faith has waxed cold. When God offered to feed his ancient people in the desert, their chosen leader, Moses, asks unbelievingly, "Shall the flocks and the herds be slain for them to suffice them? or shall all the fish of the sea be gathered together for them?" Now before we blame Philip let us be sure that we ourselves are not oftentimes as incredulous as he. We are the professed followers of the same Master, and are too much tempted to rely upon mere human efforts and worldly machinery to relieve the distress and misery all about us, and all caused by sin. Instead of complaining of the fewness of Christian workers, and the weakness of the means which they employ, and the poverty of the resources on which they depend, let us go to Him who is the source of all strength, and who can make our few loaves and fishes the means of untold blessings to countless multitudes.

Again, we hear of Philip as being appealed to by some Greeks or Greek-speaking Jews who had been up to the feast in Jerusalem, and being asked to introduce them to Jesus. There is a strange tradition told of these Greeks by some old historians. It is said that they were emissaries sent by the king of Edessa, Abgarus V., who had heard of the miracles of our Lord and the dangers to which he was exposed by his teachings, and now offered him safe protection and a home in his dominions. It is also said that Jesus wrote him a letter declining his offer, but to reward his faith healed him of a sickness. We need not add that this story is entirely apocryphal. Philip does not go directly to Jesus with the request of these Greeks for an interview, but consults his friend Andrew, and they both go to their Master. Whether Jesus sees the strangers or not, we are not told. If their request was not granted, we may suppose that it was prompted by motives of curiosity, which our Lord did not see fit to gratify, or it is possible that he did not wish his instructions to the people to be rudely broken in upon. Whether Jesus saw these Greeks or not, he directs the attention of Philip and Andrew to his coming death and glorification—to the hour when, lifted up on the cross, he should draw all men unto himself. These ideas work in the mind of Philip and produce perplexity; for we hear him at the Last Supper, when our Lord speaks of going to the Father, and says, "If ye had known me ye would have known my Father also," reply to Jesus, "Lord, show us the Father, and it sufficeth us." Canon Liddon, in his fourth Bampton Lecture, intimates that this request of Philip to have a sight of the Father may have sprung from his "restlessness of mind, taking pleasure, as men will, in the mere starting of a religious difficulty for its own sake; it may have been an instinctive wish to find some excuse for escaping from those sterner obligations which, on the eve of the Passion, discipleship would threaten presently to impose. However this was, Philip preferred to our Lord the peremptory request." Whether we adopt this view of the learned writer or not, every earnest, thoughtful mind must perceive how natural the apostle's request was. Are there not times in the life of every Christian when, under the pressure of the toils and cares of this world, under the burden of bereavement or sorrow, under the cloud of disappointment, or under the stress of terrible temptations, we instinctively cry out for a sight of God? Oh for a vision of the Father, that we may see for ourselves that he is true and loving, and has not forgotten us! "Show us the Father" bending with tender sympathy over the creatures whom his hand has made, "and it sufficeth us." And yet, natural as the prayer is, it is faulty. God the Father cannot be seen by mortal eye; the heart alone can take cognizance of him, and only as that heart rests upon him will it find the peace for which it sighs. And once more Philip failed to perceive that in his Lord Jesus Christ there was the perfect revelation of the Father. "Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip?" Hast thou heard my gracious words and seen my loving deeds? has my power been manifested in vain before thine eyes? have the dead been raised up, the lepers cleansed, the sick healed, the blind made to see, has my pure and spotless example been without avail? "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father;" no other vision of God canst thou have.

We cannot enter into the fullness of meaning which these words contain. But to every faithful, trusting heart they bring the assurance that the Saviour who thus led a life of sorrow and humiliation, and at last died upon the cross for us, was "the express image of the Father," God himself, taking upon him our human nature, and that in receiving him we are receiving our very God. And there is a gentle rebuke to many of us in those touching words of Jesus to the apostles: "Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip?" When we meet with ingratitude from earthly friends, how often will a sentiment such as this trouble our heart! We have been kind to these friends of ours; we have lived with them, perhaps, for many years; our life has been one of self-sacrifice for their good; our waking thoughts and our very dreams have been for their welfare; and yet our sacrifices are accepted as a matter of course, or are rewarded with neglect. Our tender words and our loving deeds have fallen on their hearts like the soft drops of rain upon the hard granite cliff, and no green herbage of gratitude has sprung up to bless us. How many a parent's heart is breaking over a wayward child! How many a wife's heart is grieved at the neglect of one who should be all the world to her! How many a pastor's heart grieves at the sinfulness of some soul for which Christ died! And if we feel the neglect of earthly friends, how much must the Saviour have grieved at Philip's forgetfulness or misapprehension of that loving intercourse of three years! Let us take the Saviour's words to ourselves, and if they rebuke us for our slowness to comprehend what he has done for us, an earnest prayer to him for more faith will receive a gracious answer.

Little more remains to be said of Philip. He disappears now from Scripture history. It is very likely that he saw Jesus again after the resurrection, and that he was among the apostles when they assembled at Jerusalem to wait for the Comforter. He must not be confounded with Philip the Deacon or Philip the Evangelist, who are both mentioned in the Acts. Ecclesiastical tradition speaks of his having gone first into Scythia as a missionary, and from thence to Hierapolis in Phrygia, where he found the people worshiping a huge serpent, whom they thought to be a personification of Mars. Philip held up the cross and bade the serpent disappear, and it immediately obeyed. The priests of the serpent were so wroth with him that they crucified him, and when he was fastened to the cross they stoned him. He is represented by ancient painters as a man of middle age, scanty beard and benevolent face.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW.—It has been believed, from a very early period, that Bartholomew was the same person as Nathanael. The first three evangelists make no mention of Nathanael, while the fourth makes no mention of Bartholomew. The first three evangelists always put Philip and Bartholomew together, and in the fourth Gospel we find Philip bringing Nathanael to our Lord. "As they were jointly called to the discipleship," says Cave, "so they are jointly referred to in the apostolic catalogue, as afterward we find them joint companions in the writings of the Church." Bartholomew is less a name than a sort of title—Bar-Tolmai, the son of Tolmai, as Bar-Jona, son of Jona, applied to Peter. We read in the New Testament of a Bartimæus and a Barabbas, and so here we have a man whose real name was Nathanael, but who, as the son of one Tolmai, was known also by the name of Bartholomew. There is very little said about this apostle in the Gospels, but that little gives us a very clear insight into his character. His home was at Cana of Galilee, a few miles to the north of Nazareth and not far from Capernaum, though on more elevated ground.

ST. MATTHEW.

Whether he was on friendly terms with Philip before his introduction to Jesus or not, we have no means of knowing, though it is very possible. Philip was so full of the new Teacher, so eager that another should share his joy, that he goes to seek Bartholomew with the earnest cry, "We have found him of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph." Was this, then, the Messiah, he who was looked for, and whose coming was expected to be ushered in with all the pomp and circumstance which earthly potentates love to surround themselves with? Was he of whom all the prophets sang, on whom the hopes of Israel depended, really a carpenter's son and a dweller in an obscure hamlet, whose very name was a byword? The dwellers in Judea were accustomed to speak contemptuously of the inhabitants of Nazareth. The place itself had no history, it is mentioned nowhere in the Old Testament, yet it had a sort of bad notoriety. Dean Stanley, in his book Sinai and Palestine, says: "Its wild character high up in the Galilean hills may account both for the roughness of its population, unable to appreciate their own prophet, and for the evil reputation which it had acquired even in the neighboring villages." We know not how deep Bartholomew's prejudice was; still, it was a prejudice, as evidenced by his question. What had Nazareth done in the past to win confidence in the character of its people? How can one be sure that this new Teacher is any better than his townsmen? Such seems to have been the very natural notion of Bartholomew, for which we can hardly condemn him, though it is not always fair to jump at conclusions so readily as he seems to have done at the mention of the despised place, Nazareth. There are exceptions to every rule, amid the most untoward circumstances lovely characters have been developed, and we often find fragrant flowers where we look for no pleasant blooms. Yet so candid and so simple-minded was Bartholomew that as soon as Philip answered his question by the invitation, "Come and see," he immediately laid aside his prejudice, and professed himself willing to see for himself what this new Teacher was. We have seen in a previous sketch how sensible was the advice of Philip, and we may notice here how Bartholomew's conduct in acting upon this advice gives us the key to his character. When he comes to our Lord he is met by the words, "Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom there is no guile!" The commendation may not have been addressed directly to Bartholomew, but more likely to those who stood by, yet the apostle heard it and wondered how Jesus should have known him. The wonder is intensified at the Lord's reply, "Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee." It has been commonly supposed that Bartholomew was engaged at his devotions when Jesus saw him. Just as Daniel went into his chamber whose windows looked toward Jerusalem, as Peter went on to the housetop, as the Saviour retired to the Mount of Olives, all for purposes of secret prayer, so this new disciple is thought to have sought the shade of his garden. Jewish houses had an inner court open to the heavens, and set around with vines and fig trees, reminding us of the days of old, when "Judah and Israel dwelt safely, every man under his own vine and fig tree." How Jesus saw Bartholomew who was praying in secret we are not told. It is not necessary to evade the supernatural element; Bartholomew did not try to do so. He admitted at once the power and character of Jesus, and said adoringly, "Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel." And what a comfort it is to every believing Christian soul to feel that its prayers are known to the almighty Saviour! The slightest yearning of the soul, the unwhispered aspiration, the upward look in hours of darkness, it may be when no earthly friend is near to comfort, are all observed by Him whose never-slumbering eye watches every soul that he has made. There can be no cloud so black, no darkness so heavy on the heart, that the all-seeing Eye cannot pierce it; there can be no spot so remote from man that the Saviour cannot reach it with his presence. And this loving watchfulness precedes the human call. No man may have cared for our soul, no companion may have bid us come to Christ, but, all the same, the Master's eye has been upon us, and his tender heart has been seeking our good. The Saviour sought out Bartholomew before this disciple sought the Saviour, just as in after years Saul the persecutor was arrested and changed into Paul the apostle. Jesus had read Bartholomew's heart, and knew that the sterling qualities which there abounded were needful, humanly speaking, to the propagation of the gospel, and so another disciple was added to the little band.

And now what was the characteristic in Bartholomew's nature which made him particularly acceptable to our Lord? There was in him no guile. He was one to whom might be applied the words, "Blessed are the pure in heart." Without being credulous, he was wholly free from that doubting, questioning, skeptical spirit which is one of the prevailing characteristics of this present age. He seemed to doubt at first what Philip said as to Jesus, but almost the moment he was brought into the presence of his Lord he was convinced that this was the Christ, the Saviour. Like two drops of water that run together when they touch, the heart of the Israelite in whom was no guile became one, as it were, with the heart of Him of whom prophet and apostle alike declare that "he did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth." The inward soul and spirit of the guileless man at once felt Deity in the obscure prophet who had seen him in secret, and was satisfied. The first look, the first word, the first tone, was enough. The electric fluid passes not more quickly than did conviction into his soul. With regard to spiritual things, it is this guileless disposition of heart unto which alone is still bound the special promise of the sight of God. Our Saviour says elsewhere, "I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes," showing us that it is the simple, unquestioning heart of obedient love unto which the manifestations of his sacred Person are made. But it is greatly to be feared that such a disposition is not common among us at the present day. Unwisely wise, we are not like Bartholomew. He reverenced the Scriptures, but left their difficulties unsolved to adore Him of whom they spoke. We inquire too much and adore too little. We turn our eyes from the living Christ to indulge the gratification of our intellects, and thus we find many, like those followers of our Lord mentioned in the sixth chapter of St. John's Gospel, after vain inquiries and disputes, "go away and walk no more with him." Bartholomew's life teaches us, then, to hold in sacred reverence this guileless disposition of heart in others, and seek it beyond all things for ourselves. Let us not desire to be wise in this world's craft, or eager to be thought adroit, quick-witted people in our business transactions. Let us seek rather to be candid, straightforward and upright in our dealings, single-minded ourselves, and not on the lookout for evil in others. This is the noblest thing that we hear of Bartholomew, his possession of this disposition. We learn of no wise sayings of his, no famous deeds, no great sacrifices; doubtless there were all these, but the only thing recorded for our instruction is this interview with the Saviour, and the commendation which that Saviour passed upon the guileless disciple. Noble, generous, high-minded, this is a character of exceeding beauty. It commands the reverent love of the good and the secret respect of all. It has a greater certainty about it than worldly policy, for, as the Scripture says, "He that walketh uprightly, walketh surely." And further, this princely heart of innocence is itself an unfailing treasure of peace and comfort, more precious than pearls or rubies, of equal value whether for health and strength or for the day of worldly misfortune, the hour of sickness, and the bed of death. Let us, then, seek for this pure, simple heart, this simple-minded integrity, that the same lips whose praise of Bartholomew is in the Gospel may speak our praise in the day of judgment.

Outside of this first meeting of Bartholomew with the Saviour nothing special is said of him. He is spoken of as present at the last miraculous draught of fishes, and is mentioned only by name once in the Acts. Tradition reports that he carried the gospel as far as India, where Pantænus, a very learned philosopher and preceptor of Clemens of Alexandria, asserts that a copy of St. Matthew's Gospel was found, brought there by Bartholomew. From India we are told that he passed into Phrygia, and was with Philip at Hierapolis at the time of his martyrdom, and himself narrowly escaped crucifixion. We hear of him last in Albanopolis in Armenia, where we are informed he was put to death on the cross. There is a rumor—not, we suppose, entitled to much credit—that he was first flayed alive, and another, equally uncertain, that he was crucified with his head downward.

ST. MATTHEW.—In his own Gospel, Matthew is placed eighth in the list of the apostles, while his brother evangelists unite in giving him the seventh place. By Mark and Luke he is called Levi; by himself Matthew, which latter name all the evangelists adopt in their list. He is called the son of Alphæus, which latter person we are not to confound with the father of certain other of the apostles. Matthew's profession was that of a publican, which occupied him in collecting the taxes or tribute levied by the Roman government upon the Jews. There were probably two classes of these publicans—the one, men of rank, who rented the privilege of farming the taxes from the Romans; the other, their subordinates, who did the actual and disagreeable work of making the collections. Matthew was evidently a member of the latter class. We can easily imagine how hated and despised a person in his occupation would have been, since he was looked upon as a representative of the oppressors of the Jews, and as extorting payment from his fellow-countrymen of dues which they looked upon as utterly unjust. And men of the class in which Matthew was placed have never been popular. The temptations to extortion are so many, and the opportunities to oppress are so great, that very few men are found who are above yielding to them. At the time this article is writing the whole world is convulsed by the accounts of atrocities in Turkey, which barbarities had their beginning in the oppressions of the Turkish tax-gatherers. All the accounts which we have of the Jewish publicans speak of them as despised by their fellows and classed with harlots and the worst of sinners. Moreover, the universal contempt in which they were held, and the opprobrium which was poured out upon them, would naturally cause them to lose their own esteem. As the old proverb goes, "They had the name, and they would have the game." Human nature is so constituted that when a man is suspected on this side and that, and finds dark looks and unkind words greeting him wherever he goes, when he feels every man's hand turned against him, he retorts with turning his hand against every man. While such may have been the characteristics of most among the publican class, yet we know there were honorable exceptions, such as Zacchæus and Matthew and many others. One cannot help having more respect for them than for the Pharisees, with their outside religion and inside corruption. Our Lord's condemnation of the Pharisees, and his tender pity for the publicans, show us in what estimation both classes were held by him. And we have a conspicuous instance of his loving consideration in the calling of this apostle.

The Saviour had come to Capernaum, where there was what we should call a custom-house. This town was a busy place, and from it roads were branching out to Jerusalem, Damascus, and Tyre. It was just the place, therefore, to collect tribute and taxes, and in such a business, seated at his desk, was Matthew now engaged. Jesus goes down to the lake-shore, followed, as he always was, by a crowd. He passes along the beach, and reaches the wharf or pier where the boats landed their freight and passengers. It was a stirring scene, full of business and bustle, and there hard at work, assessing the duties on goods, giving receipts for taxes paid, and selling tickets to the travelers who wished to embark, sat Matthew. It was no light work, and many a hard look and scornful word must he have received from his countrymen, who hated to pay taxes just as much as people do in this age of the world, and whose contempt for a man holding office under the Roman government is beyond the power of language to describe. Yet there was One who did not despise the publican; He who came not to call the righteous but sinners to repentance could take one who was hated by the world and give him the high honor of being the biographer of his Lord and Saviour. The account of Matthew's call is very brief: "As Jesus passed forth from thence, he saw a man named Matthew seated at the receipt of custom; and he saith unto him, Follow me." This may or may not have been the first meeting of Matthew with Jesus. There is no doubt, however, that the disciple had seen some of the Lord's miracles, and that his heart had been touched and prepared for the Master's command. It has been supposed that previous to this time Jesus had met Matthew in Capernaum, had enrolled him among his disciples, and then allowed him to go back to his work until such time as the Lord had special need of his company. This was the Saviour's mode of proceeding in the case of Peter and his companions, who were allowed to go back to their fishing-boats until the time for the final call had come. Matthew obeyed the call. "He left all, rose up, and followed him." What an indication of character we have here! How prompt and energetic the man is! It was a noble thoroughness of surrender, without hesitation and without parleying. And, after all, how characteristic is this sudden compliance in the case of nearly every man who followed Jesus! Peter and James and John had their fishing-coats on and the nets in their hands, and they threw them aside to follow him. Andrew and Philip came first to look at him, and they remained to go with him. Saul, when he heard his Lord's voice, said, "What wilt thou have me to do?" and immediately was obedient to the heavenly vision. On the contrary, all through Scripture we find that when a man delays and bargains with his conscience, and hesitates about his duty, that duty is seldom done. Balaam tampered with the truth. King Saul temporized. Hezekiah was a time-server. Nicodemus came only by night. The young ruler could not give up his riches. Pilate wanted to please all parties. Felix only trembled, and Agrippa only half believed. And so it will be to the end of time. When God's call comes to a man and he recognizes it, every time he closes his ear to it and hardens his heart against it, the less likelihood is there that he will ever listen to and obey it. The plain, honest duty is instant, unhesitating compliance; and of this Matthew's action is a pre-eminent example. He followed Christ, and for all that he left behind he received a thousand-fold.

And now we see the apostle in a different character. He has been the invited of Christ; he now becomes the inviter. We are at Capernaum again, and Jesus has been performing one of his great miracles upon the man who was let down through the roof of the house. After the miracle he goes to the sea-shore to teach a while, and thence at Matthew's invitation he goes to a feast which the late publican, now an apostle, has made ready for him. It was a generous spirit which Matthew showed, and the Saviour rewarded it with his presence, as he will ever do. If we make a feast for him in the poor room of our heart, he will not disdain to enter it. We are told that "there was a great company of publicans and of others that sat down with them." Matthew was not one who was so selfish as to wish to enjoy his Master's presence all by himself. He must have known enough of our Lord's character to feel that the outcasts of society would be just the ones whom the Saviour would like to meet and befriend. Then, too, they were Matthew's old associates, and he did not feel like neglecting them, as some men would have done in his position. He felt that the best thing he could do for them was to bring them in contact with Jesus. And how could there be a better way of getting them together than by means of a feast? If he had invited them simply to meet the great Teacher and to listen to a formal discourse, it is very likely that they would have refused. So he gives this social entertainment, and thereby ensures a large company. Is not this an argument in favor of making religion attractive to those whom we wish to convert? The fact that men will not attend religious worship in a dreary building, with a formal, cold service, warrants the attempt to make things cheerful and attractive; and certainly all social entertainments which are consistent with our religious profession are not only allowable, but commendable, if thereby we can lead men to the Saviour. The fact that the Lord himself countenanced this entertainment of Matthew's speaks volumes. The only ones who complained of it were the Pharisees, who hovered about the door and asked the disciples, "Why eateth your master with publicans and sinners?"

Shortly after this feast the number of the twelve is made up, and in the record of it there is a little point which gives us an insight into Matthew's character. The other evangelists say, "Philip and Bartholomew, Matthew and Thomas;" he says, "Thomas and Matthew the publican." As an old writer has observed, "He doth not call Peter, Andrew and the rest fishers, yet himself he nameth the publican." He was not ashamed of his ignoble position; it but reminded him of the gratitude due to that Lord who had taken him out of it.

We learn little or nothing from tradition concerning this apostle. After the separation of the apostles he is said to have gone into Egypt and Ethiopia, where he preached twenty-three years. At the capital of Ethiopia he was honorably entertained by that eunuch whom Philip the Deacon had baptized. He raised the son of the king of Egypt from the dead, and cured his daughter, called Iphigenia, of leprosy, and placed her at the head of a society of young maidens dedicated to the service of God. A heathen king determined to take her away from this community, on account of which his palace was burned and he became a leper. When this apostle was in Ethiopia a terrible fear was over the people on account of two skillful magicians who put many under their spells and afflicted them with dreadful diseases. St. Matthew overcame these sorcerers, and ended their power by baptizing the people. The manner of his death is doubtful. The Eastern Church says he died a peaceful death, but Western traditions teach that he suffered martyrdom in the reign of Domitian. Greek pictures of his death show him dying peacefully, while an angel swings a censer; other representations give the martyrdom by the sword.

ST. THOMAS.—It is very instructive to notice the differences of character and temperament among the persons chosen by our Lord to be his apostles. There was among them the same variety of disposition, the same assortment of genius, as might generally be found in the same number of other men called together in a similar manner. Peter, for example, is impulsive and demonstrative in his love, and at one period of his history mingling with it a good deal of natural self-reliance; John is calm and undemonstrative, quietly leaning on the bosom of Jesus; Andrew, again, would seem to have been self-retiring and of a contemplative turn of mind; while Paul is all for action: "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" The apostles may be called typical men; they find their counterparts in all ages of Christianity, and among ourselves Thomas may be taken as the type of the skeptical mind.

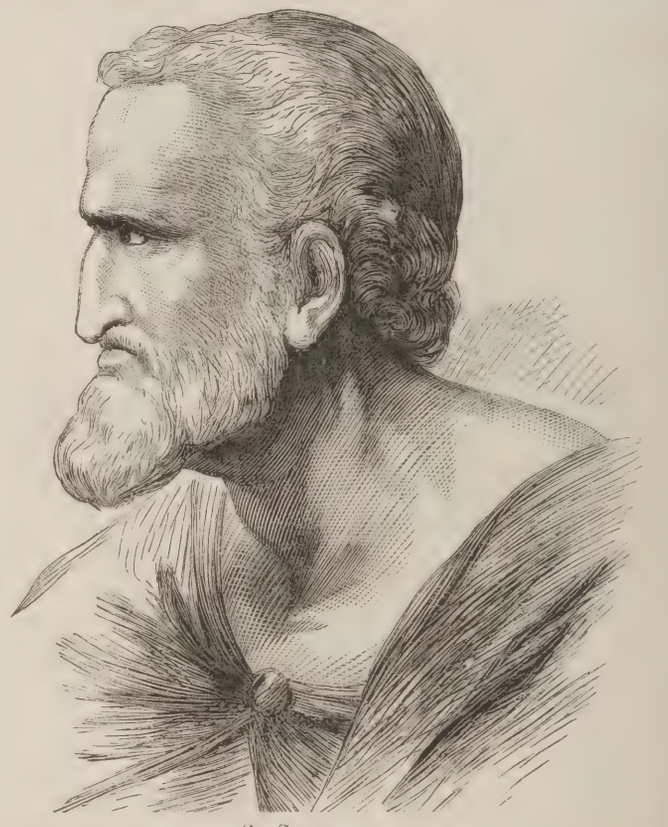
In the Gospel of John he is called Didymus—a name about which much discussion has occurred—but everywhere else simply Thomas. It is very likely that Didymus, which means "twin," is the translation into Greek of the Hebrew word Thomas, which has the same meaning. Whether he was a twin or not, we have no means of ascertaining, as so much uncertainty hangs over his early life. Of his first meeting with Jesus we possess no account. It would have been edifying to learn by what means Jesus won him to his service. A man of his temperament could not have been won so easily as the loving John or impetuous Peter, who were moved by their impulses and affections rather than by appeals to their intellect. And a conversion of this kind shows us that our religion takes into its service the whole nature of man—the mind with its eager searchings for truth as well as the heart with its longing for love. The first mention of Thomas outside of the apostolic list does not occur until late in our Lord's ministry. We then see this apostle in a very interesting position. Jesus had escaped from the hands of those who were about to stone him, and had gone away beyond the Jordan into the region where John was at the first baptizing. While tarrying there news is brought to him that Lazarus is very ill. He receives it in what might seem an indifferent manner. He stays two days in the place; he does not purpose to heal Lazarus of his sickness, but to bring him up from the dead for the greater glory of God. Then he says to his disciples, "Let us go into Judea again." They cannot understand why he should wish to run into danger again, and they expostulate with him, trying to dissuade him from the hazardous undertaking. In answer to their entreaties, Jesus tells them, in figurative language, that he must do his work while the opportunity for it lasts, and that his heavenly Father will keep all danger from him. Then he says that Lazarus sleeps, and that he is going to wake him out of sleep. The disciples, understanding that he speaks of natural sleep, intimate that Lazarus is well enough off, that he will recover, and that there is no need for their Master to incur danger merely for the sake of seeing the sick man. Then Jesus had to tell them plainly, "Lazarus is dead, and I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, to the intent ye may believe; nevertheless, let us go unto him." Just at this crisis, when the apostles are wavering between the sense of duty to their Master and the dread of the danger they may incur, the one urging them forward and the other holding them back, Thomas exclaims impetuously, "Let us also go, that we may die with him." Had we not seen the name of the apostle who said these words, we would instinctively say it was Peter, so very like him it seems. But why should Thomas be sure that his Master's going on would be to death? and how could he know that the disciples would perish with their Master? It would appear that he had lost sight of the fact that the apostles were chosen to carry on their Lord's work after he had been taken from them. It would seem as if Thomas had grown utterly faint-hearted, and thought of nothing but to die with his Master. And yet a noble courageous spirit breathes through his words. Some men in such a crisis would have made the probability of danger and death a sufficient pretext for withdrawing from Christ's company and leaving him to pursue his journey alone. But Thomas is not one of these. No matter what happens, he will cling to his beloved Master. Even though the cause for which Jesus came into the world was about to perish with his death, it will not deter Thomas from his duty; he will fight with him, suffer and die for him. And his courage animates the other disciples; they are brave enough to cross the river with their Lord and follow him right into the very camp of the enemy. We do not read that Jesus tried to reassure the minds of his disciples. We learn only that the intrepidity of Thomas is caught by the others, that they all go to Bethany, the village of Lazarus, where a notable miracle is performed, and that soon after that miracle the violent death which Thomas had anticipated befalls our Lord.

The next time we see Thomas is at the Last Supper. In those sublimely tender discourses which Jesus delivers to his disciples on that eventful night he speaks of the future state and of his approaching departure, saying that he goes to prepare a place for his disciples. When he utters the words, "Whither I go ye know, and the way ye know," Thomas answers, "Lord, we know not whither thou goest, and how can we know the way?" The disciple could not believe that his Master was going to die before the glorious work of the redemption of Israel was accomplished. His thoughts had not soared with the thoughts of Jesus; they were still groveling upon the earth, while the Saviour would have led them along the true and spiritual way to the mansions of the heavenly world. Philip, too, at this time utters those words of distrust upon which we have already commented. It is hard to know how to take the words of Thomas. But a short time before Peter had asked, "Lord, whither goest thou?" and had received for an answer, "Whither I go thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt follow me afterward." If Thomas had heard this reply of Jesus, it ought to have quieted his mind; he should have reasoned with himself that as once before he thought his Master on the road to death, but had found him instead the resurrection and the life, so now he could trust, even though he could not see through the dim future. But are we so trustful that we can afford to blame this disciple? Thomas had asked our Lord's destination and the way. The answer is given, "I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by me." This language implies that while the Father is the true End, yet Jesus himself is to be regarded practically as the End. "If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also; and from henceforth ye have known him, and have seen him." Do we wish to approach the Father? Jesus alone is our Way; by his merits and intercession alone we approach God; by his life and teaching we know the character and mind of God; by his aid alone we are made partakers of the divine nature. But he is also our End, inasmuch as we are complete in him, and may yield ourselves up to him with unfaltering trust, looking to be found in him hereafter without spot unto salvation.



Once more we hear of Thomas in a manner which photographs him distinctly upon the page of the Gospel narrative. How he passed the days immediately following the crucifixion we know not. What thoughts were passing through his mind when he saw the Lord of life and death nailed upon the cross we have no means of ascertaining. When his fellow-disciples were assembled on the evening of the third day he was not with them, and so he lost not only the sight of the person of his Lord, but the special proof of his reality which was vouchsafed to those present. We must remember that the idea of the resurrection scarcely found a place in the minds of the disciples. They were not expecting such an unheard-of event to happen to Christ. They evidently believed that the grave had closed on him for ever, burying their long-cherished hopes. So we read that when the risen One appeared to them they were terrified, and supposed they had seen a spirit. To allay their doubts and fears, Jesus says to them, "Behold, my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me and see, for a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have." Naturally, the first thing they would do upon meeting Thomas would be to tell him of the appearance of our Lord, but he is not satisfied; the news is too good to be true, he cannot accept the testimony of others, he must see for himself: "Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe." We must make a distinction between the skepticism of Thomas and the unbelief of the Athenians to whom Paul afterward preached the resurrection. They rejected the doctrine, some in intellectual scorn, and others with a quasi-polite show of deference, while Thomas asked for more proof. There is a difference between skepticism and unbelief, although they are often confounded together. The skeptic doubts and looks into the matter, as the word imports in the original; the unbeliever rejects altogether, too often without inquiring, and frequently on moral grounds, loving darkness rather than light, because of evil living. But skepticism may end in unbelief, therefore it is a dangerous spirit to indulge. It is useful as a safeguard against error and imposition, but needs to be sanctified by the Holy Spirit. The skepticism of Thomas was of the better sort, and his having been convinced is one of the strongest arguments in favor of the resurrection. Doubtless, the disciples were grieved at the slowness of their companion to accept their word, yet their own slowness of faith would silence any rebukes they might be tempted to indulge in. The days passed by, the doubts of Thomas increasing all the time, and preying anxiously upon his mind. No one can understand his painful perplexity, perhaps his anguish of heart, except one who has like him struggled with great questions of life and death. And notice how tenderly Jesus deals with the doubting disciple. The first day of the week has come round again, and the disciples are gathered together, Thomas being with them. The doors of the room are closed, but, passing through them, Jesus enters with his salutation of peace. Then, before another word is spoken, he turns to Thomas and offers him the very satisfaction he had demanded: "Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side; and be not faithless, but believing." One can fancy a tone of sadness in these words, though not a tone of rebuke, for Jesus must have known the heart of his disciple to be right. We are not told that Thomas accepted his Master's challenge and touched him. When art was materialistic in its tendency there were pictures representing the finger thrust into the side, but in a more refined and spiritual age the disciple is depicted as falling straightway at our Lord's feet in humble adoration, crying, "My Lord and my God!" Many have attempted to explain away these words, and to interpret them merely as an exclamation of wonder and astonishment, but they must stand to every candid mind as emphatic testimony to the divinity of our blessed Lord. Here is a man who refused to believe without the evidence of his senses—all of them; he desired to prove the matter clearly. The highest kind of proof is given to him, and in an instant an expression of the most devout reverence and trust bursts forth from his lips. The darkness is rolled away; he sees his risen and glorified Saviour as he had never seen him before, the Godhead shining through the sad face, and he falls at his feet to worship him. It may be said that he ought to have believed at first, and so have avoided the struggle which must have taken place between his intellect and affections. It is very easy to say what ought to be, but knowing the peculiar temperament of the man, his course of action seems the most natural, and not at all blameworthy. And this seems to have been the Saviour's judgment, for in his rejoinder he does not blame the disciple: "Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed; blessed are they who have not seen and yet have believed." Here is no displeasure shown, no refusal of the intellectual faith of Thomas, but simply the declaration that there is a higher, a more blessed sort of trust—a faith which overleaps all obstacles, which believes when all things seem opposed to it. There is not a word in this whole narrative to discourage any Christian if he demands external evidence; we are bound to prove all things. Yet we are encouraged to pray for that spiritual vision of divine things which enables us to do without the lower kind of proof.

Thomas does not noticeably appear again in the Gospel story, but numerous legends have him for their subject. We have space to notice only one or two. There is one in connection with the Romish doctrine of the assumption of the Virgin. Thomas is said to have doubted the fact, and to have required her tomb to be opened, "which was done, and lo! it was found to be empty. Then the Virgin, taking pity on his weakness and want of faith, threw down to him her girdle, that this tangible proof remaining in his hands might remove all doubts for ever from his mind." A legend is quoted by Cave, from Gregory of Tours, concerning the tomb of this apostle, to this effect: A lamp, says the story, hangs before his tomb which burns perpetually, needing no oil and undisturbed by the wind or any accident whatever. Thomas is said to have gone to India to preach the gospel, and this tradition receives countenance from the discovery by travelers of a community calling themselves St. Thomas Christians, after their founder, and living on the coast of Malabar. The descendants of these people are now living, and though the question is a disputed one, the best authorities encourage the belief that this apostle did go to India and labor and die there. According to tradition, the Portuguese found at Meliapore (Malabar,) an inscription saying that Thomas was pierced with a lance at the foot of a cross which he had erected in that city, and that his body had been removed to Goa in 1523. When represented in art as an apostle, he carries the builder's rule or square; as a martyr he bears the lance.

ST. JAMES THE LESS.—The history of James the Less, the ninth in order of the apostles as their names are arranged by Matthew, is somewhat intricate and perplexed. Lardner observes that he found it a difficult task to write it, having tried more than once and at different spaces of time. We can only touch upon one or two of the different theories which have been presented by historians, referring our readers to more extended works if they wish to pursue the subject, balance the probabilities, and arrive at a satisfactory conclusion. This apostle is supposed by some to be the same afterward called James the Just and bishop of Jerusalem, though others have hesitated to admit it. Assuming this as probable, however, a question arises concerning his parentage. St. Paul expressly styles him "the Lord's brother" (Gal. 1 : 19), and the testimony of the Jews of Nazareth to this point, as reported by the evangelist Matthew, is very clear: "Is not this the carpenter's son? is not his mother called Mary? and his brethren, James, and Joses, and Simon, and Judas?" 13 : 55. James, then, and the others named with him, were reputed by the Jews of Nazareth, where Jesus was brought up, to be his brethren, and were so considered by St. Paul. Origen mentions a tradition that they were the children of a former wife of Joseph, and thus properly termed Christ's brethren; and such was the opinion of Eusebius and Epiphanius, and, as it seems, of many of the Greek Fathers. They are spoken of as the sons of Mary, apparently the same as the mother of Jesus; but this, observe the advocates of the opinion just stated, was not unnatural, she being their father's wife. Again, James is called the son of Alphæus, but this, say they, might be only another name for Joseph. Cave is inclined to this view of the matter Lardner is of the same opinion, which is also asserted by Basnage and Vossius among Protestants, and Valesius among modern Romanists.

There is another opinion on the subject, which supposes that James and Joses were the sons of Mary, sister of Mary the mother of Jesus; that they stood, therefore, in the relation of cousins to him, but were called brethren, according to Jewish usage, which confounds the degrees of brother and cousin. This opinion, which we believe has been generally received among the Latins, seems to have originated with Jerome, but it is opposed, as we have seen, to a more ancient tradition and to the opinions of the earlier Fathers. In all the suppositions concerning this apostle there are difficulties, and which view is the most probable we leave others to determine. If we adopt the more common view, that he was the same as James the Just, the bishop of the Church in Jerusalem, we shall find the chief mention of him in the book of the Acts. We read in the twelfth chapter that when Peter had been miraculously delivered from the dungeon into which he had been cast by Herod, who had just slain the other James, the brother of John, he went to the house of a believing family and said to those assembled there, "Go, show these things unto James and the brethren." In the fifteenth chapter of the same book we read that he appears to have presided over the council held at Jerusalem, which decided the vexed question of the admission of the Gentiles into the full privileges of the Church without their undergoing the ceremony of circumcision. It will be noticed that, though Peter spoke first on this occasion, James finished the debate, and gave his opinion or "sentence" with regard to the right course to be pursued, and that the letter of the council was modeled upon his advice. The speech of James is a model of good sense, and full of the spirit of charity and forbearance. Milman remarks that "the influence of James effected a discreet and temperate compromise. Judaism, as it were, capitulated on honorable terms. The Christians were to be left to that freedom enjoyed by the proselytes of the gate, but they were enjoined to pay so much respect to those with whom they were associated in religious worship as to abstain from those practices which were most offensive to their habits." In the second chapter of the Epistle to the Galatians Paul says: "And when James, Cephas, and John, who seemed to be pillars, perceived the grace that was given unto me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship, that we should go unto the heathen and they unto the circumcision." Here it is to be seen that not only is James called one of the pillars of the Church, but is placed at the head of the three, even before Cephas or Peter; thus effectually doing away with the Romish theory of the supremacy of Peter in the government of the Church. There are other places in Scripture which will readily occur to our readers where this apostle is honorably mentioned. He seems to have remained at Jerusalem until his death, greatly respected by Christians and by the better class among the Jews. His virtues procured him the title of "Just." He was famed for his piety, and there was a tradition that by constant kneeling in acts of devotion his knees became worn to the hardness of a camel's. That he perished by a violent death cannot be doubted, though accounts differ as to the manner of it. According to Hegesippus, as quoted by Eusebius, he fell a victim to the rage and malice of the Jews, and was killed in a popular tumult. It happened, he says, in this manner: The Scribes and Pharisees, with other Jews, knowing that he shared the confidence of the people and could sway their opinions at will, placed him on the battlement of the temple, and required him thence to address the multitude then assembled at the passover, and persuade them to believe that Jesus was not the Christ. But, instead of gratifying their wishes, he bore testimony in favor of Jesus in a loud and distinct voice, upon which, instigated by disappointment and hatred, they threw him from the place on which he stood, and as he was not killed by the fall, they caused him to be stoned, and a blow from a fuller's staff at length put an end to his sufferings. Some circumstances of this narrative are very improbable. Jortin pronounces "it no better than a legend." It is reasonable, however, to suppose that it has some foundation in truth. That James either perished in a sudden affray, or that his death was procured by the intrigues of some leading men among the Jews, of whom was Ananus, the high priest, hardly, we think, admits of a question. It is added that he was buried on the spot where he fell, and that a monument was there erected to his memory. Jerome mentions an opinion entertained by some of his day that he was buried on Mount Olivet, but says that was a mistake—that he was buried near the temple where he was thrown down. He is supposed to have been put to death, if the account of Hegesippus is to be credited, about the year of Christ 62, "being taken away, as we are told, to the great regret and grief of all good men and of all sober and just persons, even amongst the Jews themselves." He has left an imperishable monument to the Church in an Epistle generally ascribed to him, a noble exhortation, full of divine wisdom.

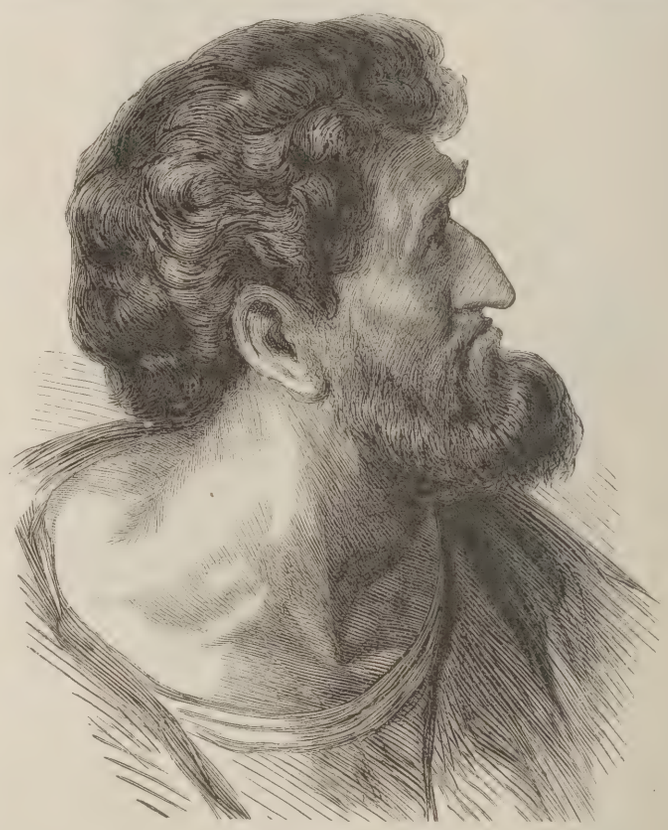
ST. THADDEUS.

SIMON ZELOTES.—This apostle in the lists of Matthew and Mark is surnamed "the Canaanite," and in Luke's Gospel and the Acts he is called "Zelotes." These two surnames probably mean the same thing, the former being a Chaldee word and the latter Greek. It signifies one who is very zealous, and it also points out Simon as one who belonged to that fierce faction among the Jews called the Zealots, who were distinguished for their earnest advocacy of the Mosaic ritual, and who played so conspicuous a part in the last defence of Jerusalem. In the latter days of that ill-fated city they followed the example of Phinehas, taking justice into their own hands, and punishing offenders by a rough-and-ready law of their own invention. They were said to be allied with the faction of the Assassins, and were credited with having hurried on the catastrophe which befell the Holy City. When we read that the founder of this sect was regarded by its members as the Messiah, it suggests to every thoughtful mind how different the two Messiahs whom Simon served—the first, the lord of bloodshed and misrule, of national and religious bigotry, and the other the Prince of peace, author of all true faith and liberty! This sect of the Zealots utterly repudiated the rule of the Romans, and would acknowledge no king over the chosen people but Jehovah. How interested, therefore, Simon must have been in the Saviour's answer to those who asked him whether it were lawful to give tribute unto Cæsar or not! We are told nothing about Simon in the Gospels. Many have supposed him to be a brother of James and Jude. There are a few legends or traditions concerning him, but very little reliance is to be placed upon them. He is said to have labored in Egypt and Persia, and to have been martyred in the last-named country. He is also made to penetrate as far as Britain, and there to be crucified. "Nor could the coldness of the climate benumb his zeal," says Cave, "or hinder him from shipping himself and the Christian doctrine over to the western islands—yea, even to Britain itself. Here he preached and wrought many miracles, and after infinite troubles and difficulties which he underwent, suffered martyrdom for the faith of Christ, as is not only affirmed by Nicephorus and Dorotheus, but expressly owned in the Greek Menologies, where we are told that he went at last into Britain, and having enlightened the minds of many with the doctrine of the gospel, was crucified by the infidels and buried there."

ST. JUDE, BROTHER OF JAMES.—This apostle is called by the evangelist Matthew "Lebbeus, whose surname was Thaddeus;" by Mark, "Thaddeus;" and by Luke, "Judas, the brother of James." It is very noticeable how carefully he is distinguished from the traitor Judas. The first two evangelists never call him by the name which he had in common with the other Judas, and the third takes care to distinguish him by adding to that name of ill-repute that he was the brother of James. The names Jude, Judas and Judah are one and the same name, which means the praise of the Lord. Thaddeus is derived from the same root, and has a similar signification. Lebbeus appears to mean a man of heart or courage, being derived from a word signifying the heart. These last two names were probably adopted to distinguish him from Judas Iscariot. Very little is said of this apostle in the Gospel narrative. All that we learn is that at the Last Supper he asked Jesus why he was to manifest himself unto the disciples, and not unto the world. It was a very natural question for the disciples to ask when we consider the notion which they had concerning the Messiah. The common Jewish idea, which the disciples could not help sharing, was that the Messiah should come with power and great glory as a conquering hero, and therefore that a victorious display must necessarily be made before the whole world. The great mystery was how the manifestation could possibly be confined to so few and such unworthy men as the disciples were. Christ's answer simply repeats his previous declarations concerning the rewards of his kingdom and the obedience of his servants. He shows them that because the world had not kept his commandments, it had showed no true love for him. The true manifestation of God and of Christ is to the loving heart, and in those hearts alone which loved him would Christ dwell and fill them with righteousness and peace and joy. This is all we hear about him; no light is thrown upon his character, and all that we know of his condition is that he was the brother of James the Less. Ecclesiastical tradition does not state with certainty where he preached or where he died, or whether he died a natural death or suffered martyrdom. Most of the Latin writers say that he traveled into Persia, where his labors were very successful, but where, having irritated the Magi by reproving them for their superstitious practices, he was put to a violent death. Some of the Greeks affirm that he died quietly at Berytus, and the Armenians contend that in their country he was martyred. One Epistle has been so universally ascribed to him that it has been admitted into the New Testament canon. There is no solid reason for disputing his authorship of it.

JUDAS ISCARIOT.—It is an ungrateful task to depict the history of the betrayer of our Lord. We are accustomed to consider him almost as a monster beyond the pale of human sympathy. It has been so hard for the race to conceive of such a crime as he was guilty of, that numerous attempts have been made to diminish or palliate the enormity of his guilt, by supposing that his secret desire was to see Christ assume his proper position as king of the Jews, and that he believed his betrayal would be the quickest and surest step to it. But the narrative in the Gospels hardly warrants any such explanation of his guilt, as we shall see upon investigation. He is always the last named on the lists of the apostles, and always distinguished, too, by those terrible words, "who also betrayed him." The surname of Iscariot, though it has received many interpretations, probably means "the man of Carioth or Kerioth," a city of the tribe of the children of Judah, toward the coast of Edom southward, and it has been noted as worthy of observation that the traitor was very probably the only representative of Judæa in the college of apostles, as all the others were Galileans. We know nothing about his early days, not even who his father was, though that father's name, Simon, is given. But to search the Scriptures for this particular Simon will be vain; he is known only by the misfortune of having such a son. The apocryphal Gospels narrate many stories concerning him, but of course no credit is to be given to them. He is first brought to our notice in that chapter of John's Gospel where the Saviour delivers the sermon upon the bread of life. It was just after he had performed the great miracle of feeding the multitude. The words of Jesus were misunderstood by some who stood by, and proved a stumbling-block to them. "There are some of you that believe not," said the Saviour; and to these words the evangelist adds his own comment: "Jesus knew from the beginning who they were that believed not, and who he was that should betray him." We might say that the faith of all the disciples was weak and wavering at first; they all seemed to have had some little difficulty in appreciating the spirituality of our Lord's words; but his eye had detected one among them who was covetous and disloyal, and in whose heart the seeds of treachery were just beginning to germinate. Shortly after, Jesus says in reply to Peter's noble confession, "Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil?" John adds another comment: "He spoke of Judas Iscariot the son of Simon, for he it was that should betray him, being one of the twelve."



There is no proof that Judas thus early had conceived the idea of betraying Christ, or that at that time he felt himself shunned by the rest of the apostles. Some have supposed that he did really know himself to be the devil referred to by Christ, and that his nature was so corrupt and callous that no moral pang troubled his conscience. But evil such as his is usually a plant of slow growth; no one, says the old proverb, becomes extremely wicked all of a sudden. It is more in accordance with average human nature to look upon Judas as a man who had begun well, but, without any fixed principles of right, was blown about by every chance wind. He was a man of strong passions and ungoverned impulses, one who could be very good or very bad, and probably at this early stage no dream of treason had suggested itself to him. Nor had his fellow-disciples the slightest suspicion of his inward character, for up to the very night of the betrayal no one of them knew who should deliver up the Master; nothing had hitherto happened which should make them suspect Judas particularly. Yet, though the evil which was latent in the heart of the fallen apostle was unperceived by his companions and himself, we cannot evade the fact that Jesus foresaw the end; and this being so, the question very naturally arises, Why did the Saviour admit to his confidence one who should betray him? The most reasonable supposition is, that Jesus possibly discerned in Judas qualities of heart and mind which would make him under proper training a useful man to advance the Master's cause—that he yearned over him with a tender love, striving to win him to himself, but soon discovered that evil was far more powerful in him than good—that just as the same sun which shines on the wax and melts it will shine on the clay and harden it, the difference being not in the sun which shines, but in the material upon which its beams fall, so the heart of Judas, like that of Pharaoh, became less and less susceptible to the Saviour's melting kindness, till by and by Jesus warns him, gives him liberty to depart, and finally sends him away with dignity, and awaits calmly the treachery of the son of perdition. It is unquestionably a very difficult problem how to reconcile the divine foreknowledge of Jesus and the human freedom of Judas, but we must admit both facts and await God's time for their reconciliation.

If the disposition of Judas was bad, it may be reasonably supposed that the badness would show itself upon provocation. In John's Gospel we have a scene presented to us which plainly shows what the peculiar vice of this apostle was. Jesus was on a visit to Bethany, where he had raised Lazarus from the dead, and while there a supper was made for him. During the entertainment, we are told, "then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair, and the house was filled with the odor of the ointment." It was a delicate loving compliment to our Lord, very graceful and generous, and as such could have met with nothing but approval from every right-hearted man. But how does it affect Judas? "Then, saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, who was to betray him, Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence and given to the poor?" From any man, with the slightest feeling of decency and propriety, the suggestion would have seemed a sordid one, but coming from one who was supposed to have loved his Lord, it was cold and heartless. But in Judas all feelings of propriety, all emotions of love, were crushed by the hand of his master passion, avarice. We are told the reason for his hypocritical remark by the historian: "Not that he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief, and had the bag, and bare what was put therein." Thus it is apparent that the love of money, which love is the root of all evil, exercised a powerful sway over this unhappy man. He was the steward of the company, his opportunities were favorable, his passion was strong, his principles were weak; he could not resist the temptation of purloining from the common stock, though it must have been small, and thus his comrades as well as the poor suffered by him. How mean and low is the character thus presented to us! We need not care to ask with what motives he had joined himself to the apostolic company; it seems scarcely possible that any prospect of gain could have presented itself at first. We see him now as he has become; to what a depth his inordinate desire for gain has reduced him! It is more than possible that he was appointed to take care of the funds because some peculiar capacity for business may have been discovered in him, or it may have been a test applied by his Master, a sort of touchstone to bring out the real character of the man. Soon after this scene of the anointing the Gospel record tells us that Judas, being one of the twelve, went to the high priests with the intent to betray Jesus into their hands. Smarting under the reproof which his Master had given him at the time of the anointing, angered at the loss of the three hundred pence which might have been his, he steals away in a rage that night from Bethany, goes up to Jerusalem, seeks a private interview with the priests, and asks, "How much are you willing to give me, and I will betray Jesus unto you?" How long they bargained, how much they beat the traitor down in price, we are left to imagine; we learn only the sum offered and accepted for which Judas was to deliver up his Master and consign himself to everlasting ignominy—thirty pieces of silver, between fifteen and twenty dollars, the ransom-money of the meanest slave!

And now the night of the Last Supper has come. The apostles and the Saviour are gathered about the board, the blessed memorials of his death and sacrifice have been partaken of, and Jesus rising from his couch proceeds to wash the feet of the disciples, even those of the traitor himself. Surely, may he not have taken this opportunity to whisper a last word of warning? Warning, indeed, does come in the words, "Ye are clean, but not all." The towel is laid aside, and the reclining posture resumed, and then Jesus says, "I speak not of you all; I know whom I have chosen: but that the Scripture may be fulfilled, he that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me." How touching and melancholy these words sound! They are words of deep, divine, omniscient, patient, long-forbearing love; and how hard must that heart have been that could withstand them! At last, the pent-up secret which troubled the Master was set free by the exclamation, "Verily, verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me." The apostles receive this announcement with sad amazement. Exceedingly grieved, they look upon each other, and in conscious innocence ask Jesus, "Lord, is it I?" Jesus, who had just before pointed out the traitor by a sign to Peter and John, answered, "He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish, the same shall betray me." Judas, who probably saw that his Master's hand and his own were together in the dish, and that consequently he was accused of the treason, thinks perhaps to brazen it out, feeling sure that his secret is guarded from the others; yet he feels compelled to say something, and so asks the same question, "Lord, is it I?" Jesus says directly, "Thou hast said," and then adds, "That which thou doest, do quickly." Judas obeys, seeing that he is discovered, and goes immediately out. "And it was night," adds the evangelist. The sentence is short, but what a meaning is wrapped up in it! It was night indeed, and over the soul of Judas such a pall of awful darkness fell that the light of morning never rose upon it again.

And now the small company, relieved of the traitor's presence, sing a hymn together, and then go forth into the Garden of Gethsemane. The Saviour has passed through that agony which no eye beheld, has awakened his sleeping disciples, and then seeks to leave the garden, when he is met by Judas and the armed band. The kiss of betrayal is given, the design of Judas is at last accomplished, the Lord of life is yielded up to death. The disciples all forsake their Master, as he had foretold, while Judas, slinking away through the trees of the garden, goes to the city to receive the reward of his treachery. But is he happy, now that he has reached what he was striving after? At first, perhaps, he is. But the gratification is only for a moment. The time for reflection has come; the betrayer has heard the sentence of death pronounced upon his victim; he recalls the many hours they have passed together in sweet communion; he remembers how good his Master always was to him, and how pure a life was that which is doomed to death; and remorse coupled with despair takes hold upon him. Seeing that Jesus was condemned, the narrative tells us he "repented himself, and brought again the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders, saying, I have sinned, in that I have betrayed the innocent blood." That cry was not the cry simply of rage or mortification, but a plain admission that he had done wickedly; and what a testimony it is to the pure life of Jesus! It would have been for the interest of Judas to persuade himself, if he possibly could, that his Master had done something unworthy, but he is forced to confess, like Pilate, "I find no fault in him;" and such confession from the intimate enemy of Jesus speaks volumes. In returning the money he may have had a dim hope that it would be taken back and his Lord released, but this hope is crushed by the words of the priests: "What is that to us? See thou to that." Thus are the emissaries of Satan rewarded; he uses them to complete his purposes; they sacrifice honor, self-respect, strength, and then are flung away to die in shame. Thus Judas dies; the answer of the priests comes with stunning force upon his heart. All hope of saving Jesus is taken from him; his crime must work out to the bitter end; he cannot bear the thought of life, with the pale face of his Victim ever looking reproachfully upon him; conscience stings him like the serpents of the Furies, and to escape from himself he turns, flings down the filthy lucre, the price of blood, upon the pavement, and goes and hangs himself.

At the southern end of the long ridge of Olivet, on the top of the Hill of Evil Counsel, there is a single wind-driven, storm-scarred tree, called the Tree of Judas, from the branches of which tradition says the traitor hung himself. The manner of his death is not precisely stated, though we get the clearest account in the first chapter of the Acts. It may be that while he was attempting to commit suicide the rope broke under the shock of his falling weight, and so his bowels gushed out. One writer says that the account in the Acts does not refer to the manner of his death, but to the way in which his corpse was treated after death, according to the Jewish custom of treating suicides.

And here we leave him, pity struggling with indignation as we read his awful history. He is the only man in all the world of whom it has been said that it would have been better for him if he had not been born. D'Alembert says, there are but two things that can reach the summit of a pyramid—an eagle and a reptile. So it appears there are but two characters in this world that can gain the highest pinnacle of fame or notoriety—the good man and the villain, the saint and the devil; one on the wings of goodness, genius and inspiration, the other on the belly of meanness and subtlety; and Judas has gained the apex of a cursed notoriety. It was said of the woman who anointed the Saviour, that wherever the gospel was preached this good deed should be told as a memorial; and so will the wicked treachery and awful death of Judas remain till the end of time a solemn warning.

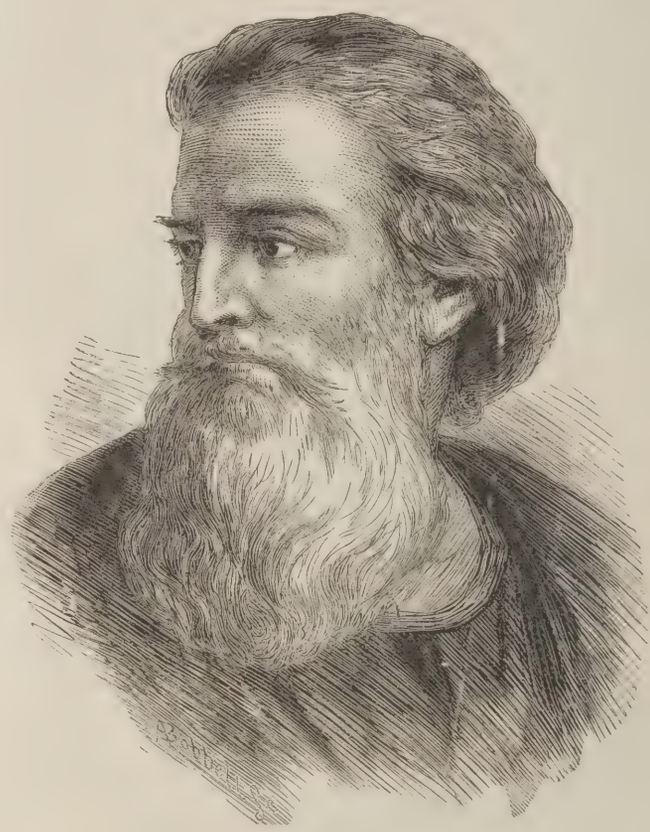
ST. MATTHIAS.—There was a vacancy in the college of the apostles, caused by the defection of Judas, and soon after the ascension of our Lord the remaining apostles were gathered in Jerusalem to wait for the coming of the Comforter which Jesus had promised. During this time of waiting it seemed good to them to fill up the gap which had been made in their number, to choose one to fill the post which Judas desecrated and deserted—one, to use the language of Peter, who should "be a witness with us of Christ's resurrection." From the whole number of men who were disciples, including, very likely, the seventy who are mentioned in the Gospels, two were selected as candidates—"Joseph called Barsabas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias;" and after prayer to God for the disposal of the lots, they were cast, "and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven apostles." All that we know of this apostle is comprised in the above account. We may take for granted that he had long known the other apostles, that he had journeyed with them, and had listened to the teachings of their common Master, and had beheld his wonderful works, and that since the resurrection he had beheld Jesus, and convinced himself by undoubted proofs that the resurrection was a fact. It is also a fair inference that this apostle was distinguished among his companions for his zeal and wisdom and virtue, and as one who was likely to do good service for Christ's cause. We do not learn much concerning his life and work. An author on whom not much dependence is to be placed asserts "that he preached the gospel in Macedonia, where the Gentiles, to make an experiment of his faith and integrity, gave him a poisonous and intoxicating potion, which he cheerfully drank off in the name of Christ, without the least prejudice to himself, and that, when the same potion had deprived about two hundred and fifty of their sight, he, laying his hands upon them, restored them to their sight; with a great deal more of the same stamp," says Cave, "which I have neither faith to believe nor leisure enough to relate." Cave goes on to observe that the more probable account of the apostle is—that from Judæa, where he first labored, he traveled eastward and preached in Cappadocia, where he at last received the crown of martyrdom on the cross. This account is of course only traditional, the main facts of which we are assured being that he was one of the early disciples of Christ, that he was a friend and companion of the apostles before being chosen among their number, that he was considered worthy to be among the twelve, and that he labored earnestly for his Master's cause.

ST. STEPHEN.

ST. STEPHEN.—We are told in the sixth chapter of the Acts that a slight dissension had arisen in the Church between the Hebrews or genuine Jews and the Hellenists or Grecian Jews. These latter were Hebrews in descent and religion, but Grecians in the country and language. Some of them had now become members of the new Church, and they found fault with the genuine Jews because they overlooked the claims of the Hellenist widows in the daily ministration or distribution of church charities. This is the first trouble in the infant community. In order that this evil may be remedied, the apostles advise that seven men, "full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom," be appointed over this business of the distribution of alms, and consequently Stephen and six others were chosen and ordained for this work. Stephen, we are told, was a man full of faith and power; and this natural power was not only great—the power of mind and character—but he had supernatural endowments. He worked wonders and miracles, prodigies and signs. His successful labors gained him the enmity of the Hellenistic Jews, and they formed a combined opposition to him, joining with "the synagogue of the Libertines, and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and those from Cilicia and Asia." They charged him, by means of false witnesses, with having spoken blasphemous words against Moses and against God, and with having said that "Jesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place, and shall change the customs which Moses delivered us." What roused the antagonism of these different classes of Jews against this lowly man, this humble follower of Jesus? A single verse answers this question: "And they were not able to resist the wisdom and the Spirit by which he spake." Hostility to a truth which they felt incapable of confuting was the feeling that raged in their bosoms on this occasion. In this trying hour of Stephen the presence which Christ had promised to his disciples was shown, and strength was given to bear witness manfully. The high priest invites him to make a defence, which he proceeds to do in one of the most memorable passages of the New Testament history. He appears perfectly correct in all his historical references. He shows them how thoroughly conversant with Jewish history he is; he had studied it attentively, and esteems his knowledge of it as the most precious of his attainments. But suddenly he turns from the historical line and becomes personal to the council before him. He burns with righteous indignation, and charges the people who heard him with being the children of fathers who had persecuted all the prophets, and then charges the people themselves with having been the betrayers and murderers of Christ. When they heard this "they were cut to the heart;" their rage and exasperation were intense. The kingdom of heaven will always make a sharp division in society. On one side tumult, rage, violence, disorder; on the other side calmness, radiancy, delight, hope, nearness to heaven. Why was Stephen calm amid all that angry tumult? Because he looked away from earth and man to God. He "looked steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God." He looked up to the Hill from whence came his help, not to the men at his feet, who were full of rage, tearing and foaming like wild beasts. And these men were not content with gnashing their teeth upon Stephen; they cried out with a loud voice, stopped their ears and rushed upon him with one accord, and cast him out of the city and stoned him. What for? For telling the truth? No, but for applying the truth. Had he stated it in a general sort of way, had he spoken merely of men who had lived hundreds of years before, there would have been no trouble. But when he said to those individuals before him, "Ye are the men," they turned upon him in a rage. History repeats itself; their fathers had stoned the prophets, and they stoned Stephen. And what did God do for his servant thus cruelly slain? He gave him grace and strength to say, "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." For a man under such circumstances to pray such a prayer as that is a miracle; no earthly power could enable him to do it. "And when he had said this he fell asleep;" as a tired child drops his head into the mother's lap, so this servant of God passes away into paradise.

We read in the eighth chapter of the Acts that devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and made great lamentation over him. What a contrast to the burial of Ananias! In that case young men, hirelings, strangers, or persons accustomed to do this thing come in and drag the body away and hurry it out of sight; they bury it as one of the ancients was buried, "with the burial of an ass." In Stephen's case good men made lamentation, they knew that a great soul had been taken, that the world had sustained a loss, and their hearts were broken.

Such were the life and death of the first of the noble army of martyrs, Stephen. It is not given to every Christian to bear such conspicuous testimony for the Saviour; we cannot all fill a page in history with our names; we shall not be called upon to die the martyr's death; but we can live the life of the martyr in its primitive sense—that of one who "witnesses" for Jesus. We can testify for Christ in the family, in the business circle, in the Church. We can live good, true, noble, wise lives. We can be a blessing to all about us, so that when we die we too may be buried with a great lamentation.



ST. BARNABAS.—There were added to the twelve apostles two more who were sent on a special mission to the Gentiles. Of these two Paul was one, and the subject of this sketch the other. The name Barnabas is an appellative—signifying the "son of prophecy" or "exhortation," rather than of "consolation," as our version has it—given to Joses, a Levite of the country of Cyprus. He is first mentioned in the fourth chapter of the Acts as one who "having land sold it and brought the money and laid it at the apostles' feet." In this chapter his Christian devotedness is seen in strong contrast to the self-seeking of Ananias, and his generosity is mentioned as a specimen of that of others, not because it is necessarily greater, but probably because he was destined to become so well known in apostolic labors. We next hear of him as being sent forth by the Church at Jerusalem on a mission of inquiry to Antioch. It seems that the Christians who had been scattered abroad after the death of Stephen had some of them gone to Antioch preaching the Lord Jesus. A great many converts were made, and it was very natural that the Christians in Jerusalem, when they had learned the news, should desire to know the full account of the matter. And no fitter person than Barnabas could have been chosen. He was a native of Cyprus, and some of the men who had been preaching at Antioch were also of that country. Then, too, Antioch was not very far from Cyprus. At this time Barnabas was not an ordained apostle, but merely an influential teacher at Jerusalem; he was sent forth, not as an ecclesiastical dignitary, but simply as one in whose wisdom and probity the Church had confidence. And the result of his appearance at Antioch justified their choice. "When he came and had seen the grace of God, he was glad, and exhorted them all that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord. For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith: and much people was added unto the Lord." At this time Saul, afterward Paul, was living at Tarsus, his native city, having fled there for safety from Jerusalem. Barnabas, having fully ascertained the kind of spiritual work required at Antioch, and knowing well the fitness for such a work of Saul, goes to seek him, and for a year they live there teaching much people. Who would not like to have a history detailing all the labors and all the events in the lives of those two great men for that whole year? The result of their labors was the growth of a church in a city which became a missionary centre for diffusing the gospel throughout the heathen world. Under the labors of these two apostles the adherents to the new faith grew to such importance as to be enrolled among the schools of religious and philosophic opinions recognized by the Greeks and Romans. "The disciples were called Christians first at Antioch." This word is used only twice elsewhere in the New Testament (Acts 26:28; 1 Peter 4:16). If given in derision, the appellation has become the most glorious symbol in the world. It towers above every other name on earth. The highest earthly titles pale before it. It represents the highest thinking, the divinest sympathies, the grandest enterprises and the sublimest characters of all lands and times. Oh that the day would come when all the appellations that designate little sects, parties, denominations, shall be lost in that one grand name, Christian!—a name that shall live and brighten when the most brilliant titles that dazzle a foolish world are lost in oblivion.

Barnabas was soon sent with Saul on a mission, having been separated to the work by the direct command of the Holy Ghost. They go to Seleucia, Cyprus and Paphos. How long they were occupied in these first journeyings we know not. The fatigues, inconveniences and perils of traversing these districts can hardly be appreciated by us in these days of great convenience in traveling. John Mark was with them, he being the nephew or cousin of Barnabas. When they leave Paphos and reach Perga, John leaves them and goes back to Jerusalem, for what reason we are not told. He may have become discontented with the transfer of authority from Barnabas to Paul. At first Barnabas was the active man and took the lead, but soon Paul's superior energy showed itself and marked him out for the head of the party. Afterward, when Paul suggested that they should again visit every city where they had preached, and Barnabas wished to take John his nephew with them, Paul positively refused to have him. It is hard to select any special points in the life of Barnabas after he became associated with Paul. They worked together, turned many to God, and were persecuted together. Once in Iconium, after a bold sermon by Paul, the multitude of the city was divided, some siding with the Jews and some with the apostles, till at last the Jewish adherents took up stones and compelled Paul and Barnabas to flee unto Lystra and Derbe. Here they performed a notable miracle, exciting the admiration and reverence of the people, who would have worshiped them, calling Barnabas, Jupiter, and Paul, Mercury. But the apostles disclaim any right to be considered other than men, and the popular admiration is soon changed to persecution by certain Jews who come from Antioch and Iconium and persuade the people to stone Paul. They thought they had killed him, but he recovers and goes with Barnabas to Derbe, where they both preach the gospel. Then they both go back through the same cities which they had visited, and reach their starting-point, Antioch. Soon after their return certain men came down from Judæa to Antioch and caused dissension concerning circumcision, trying to force it upon the Gentile converts, and Barnabas and Paul are sent with certain others to the Church in Jerusalem, and through their wise counsel and the advice of James the vexed question is settled. They return to Antioch, accompanied by Barrabas and Silas, and deliver the letter from the council at Jerusalem, which greatly rejoices the hearts of all the brethren. This was the ending of the first discussion in the Christian Church. Would that all others could have as wise, simple and successful ending! Shortly after this Paul proposes another journey to Barnabas, which the latter is about to enter upon when a difficulty arises between the two apostles. Barnabas desires to take John Mark, who had left them on their first journey, and Paul opposes this notion so vigorously that the two friends part in anger, each going his own way, Barnabas taking Mark and Paul taking Silas. It is not supposed that the bitter feeling between them was of long continuance, for we find Paul referring kindly to Mark and also to Barnabas in several of his Epistles. From this time we learn no more of Barnabas in Scripture. As to his further labors and death, traditions differ; some say that he went into Italy as well as to Asia Minor and Greece, and that he was the first bishop of Milan. They also assert that he preached from the Gospel of St. Matthew, written by the evangelist himself, which he always carried with him, and with which he cured the sick. He was at last seized by the Jews and cruelly martyred while preaching in Judæa.

ST. PAUL.—Though chosen last, Paul is the first in rank of "the glorious company of the apostles." It is very difficult to fix the year of his birth, though we know he was a young man when Stephen was killed. He was born in Tarsus in Cilicia, to which place his parents were emigrants from Palestine. We know that they were of the tribe of Benjamin and strict members of the Pharisee sect. His father probably was engaged in the Mediterranean trade, but we find no reference to his mother in all his writings. He had a sister whose son lived in later years at Jerusalem, and who would have been his playmate at Tarsus. He received the common education of Hebrew children. The Talmud tells us that a father's duty toward his boy is to circumcise him, to teach him the law, and to teach him a trade. We know from the apostle's own words that the first of these duties was performed; the second one would have been complied with by sending him to a Jewish school attached to one of the synagogues, where, after the age of five, he would have learned the Hebrew Scriptures, at ten the maxims of the great Jewish doctors, so as at thirteen to become what was called a subject of the Precept, after a ceremony which resembled somewhat the rite of confirmation in the Christian Church. Soon after thirteen the boy Saul would have been sent up to Jerusalem, when we can imagine the wonder and delight which would fill his heart at finding the dreams of his boyhood realized in this wonderful city. He would learn all about the ceremonies of his religion and the fame of its great doctors. He would attend the school of Hillel, and sit at the feet of its wonderful teacher, Gamaliel, called by his countrymen the "Beauty of the Law." He would listen to wonderful discussions of moral and doctrinal truths, and treasure up all that the highest minds of the day had to utter concerning the creed of his fathers. We must remember, too, that he was taught in other than sacred literature. In Tarsus, his native city, Greek would be spoken by every one, though Hebrew might have been his native tongue, and if little Saul had ever played with other boys he would have been compelled to speak in the Grecian dialect. His writings show an extensive acquaintance with some of the best authors in Greek literature. The thorough education which this apostle received tended to develop and mould a character which was remarkable for its intensity and concentration of purpose. We may be very sure that the young student put his heart and soul into the consideration of every question that came before him, and this was a grand preparation for the work of examining the claims which Christ's religion had to make upon him.

His first contact with our religion, as far as we know, was that of a bitter enemy. He was probably among those of Cilicia who were disputing with Stephen; he must have witnessed the arrest before the Sanhedrim, and have listened to the address of the first martyr. We have his own bitter self-accusing words: "When the blood of the martyr Stephen was shed, I also was standing by and consenting to his death, and kept the raiment of them that slew him." The Christians in Jerusalem were quite crushed out, but at Damascus a large community was found, and Saul was appointed to destroy them. He left Jerusalem, and traveled at least six weary days before he caught sight of the white towers and gay gardens of the far-famed city of Damascus. But ere he entered the city, in the hush of the sultry noon, when the very birds upon the trees are silenced by the heat, there shined round about Saul and his companions a light from heaven above the brightness of the sun. His companions fell to the ground as if stupefied. He alone heard a voice they did not hear, and saw a vision they did not see. The voice said, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? It is hard for thee to kick against the goads." He asked submissively what he should do, and was commanded to arise, go into the city, and it should be told him what to do. Blinded by the burning light of the vision, led by the hand as if he were a child, he was taken into the city, to the house of Judas; for three days he fasted and prayed, passed seventy-two hours in darkness, in silence, alone—alone with God. When he came forth from this solitary communion with his Maker he was another man—"old things had passed away, all things had become new." He gave himself up without reserve to follow the will of God; he was restored to sight by Ananias, a humble minister of Christ at Damascus; he was received among the followers of the crucified One by baptism. It is not the purpose of this short essay to enter upon the vexed question of Paul's conversion. The work of Lord Lyttleton is one of the best treatises upon the subject, and is easily procurable. To a candid mind every circumstance connected with the conversion would seem to substantiate its miraculous agency. In the first fervor of his conversion it was very natural that the apostle should wish to share his joy with others. So without delay he goes into the synagogues of Damascus to preach Christ. What must have been the surprise and wrathful indignation of his Hebrew brethren when they saw their co-religionist a recreant to his ancient faith! and what the thankful wonder of the trembling Christians when they saw their determined enemy, who had so lately persecuted them with death, now their zealous friend and earnest preacher of their religion! After this short season in Damascus he retires to Arabia for three years as Moses, Elijah and John Baptist had done before they entered fully upon their great mission. The value of such retirement would be seen by every thoughtful mind. In Paul's case it was a season for looking back over his life, for consolidating his acquirements, for balancing his convictions, for estimating the resources at his disposal, and for cultivating an intimacy with those means and sources of strength which he will need so much hereafter. And one effect of this lonely self-communion in Paul's case we know was to make him look upon the past which had been a gain to him, and to count it a loss because Christ had not been it. He comes out of this retirement, and enters upon a life of work and suffering for his divine Lord of which we can sketch but a dim outline.

The missionary life of the apostle embraced a period of nearly thirty years, for he really became a missionary from the day of his conversion. He began his work in Damascus, where the hostility of the Jews was intensely excited against him; and soon after his return from Arabia he was forced to flee for his life from an officer of King Aretas, who was commanding in Damascus, and who was instigated by Jewish influences apparently. Paul escaped to Jerusalem, a strong desire to see Peter impelling him to go to that city. It was natural for the Christians in Jerusalem to be afraid of one who had so bitterly persecuted their brethren in times past, and Barnabas was forced to testify to the reality and depth of Paul's conversion, and narrate what he had done in Damascus. He stayed for two weeks, holding intimate communion with Peter and James, and also engaging in argument with the Hellenistic Jews, for which he was peculiarly fitted from his early education. Exciting their hostility, he was compelled to flee to his native city, Tarsus. What he did there during the next four years we are unable to determine, but his life must have been an active one, as he would lose no time in preaching the unsearchable riches of Christ to his old friends and fellow-citizens. It has been supposed that several of the dangers and hardships spoken of in his Second Epistle to the Corinthians belonged to this period of his work, particularly his scourging by Jewish and Roman authorities and his three shipwrecks. In the year 44, Barnabas came from Antioch to Tarsus to get Paul to work with him. Antioch was a flourishing Gentile city, containing a goodly number of converts, over whom Barnabas presided. Paul and he worked together for a year, and at the end of this time went to Jerusalem with a large sum of money, the offerings of the Christians at Antioch to their poorer brethren who had suffered in the famine. They afterward returned to Antioch, taking with them John Mark, a nephew of Barnabas, and did such a grand work there that the city soon became the chief point in Christendom. While they were here the first idea of church extension seems to have dawned with irresistible force upon the mind of Paul, and he feels impelled to go forth with the message to the whole Gentile world. Hitherto he has been, as it were, second to Barnabas; the names were written "Barnabas and Saul;" but after the conversion of the Roman proconsul, Sergius Paulus, the name "Saul" is dropped, and the Roman name "Paul" was adopted, possibly to conciliate Gentile prejudices; and now the record reads, "Paul and Barnabas." This is the beginning of the real missionary life of the apostle.

What are generally spoken of as the three missionary journeys of Paul were comprised in the space of ten years, from the time of his departure from Antioch, in the year 48, to the date of his arrest at Jerusalem, in the summer of 58. There does not appear to be any fixed method or plan in these journeys. The apostle was seemingly at the mercy of circumstances, though of course the divine Hand was his guide, and sometimes this higher guidance was plainly manifested; as when he saw in midnight vision the man of Macedonia, and heard the cry of the Western world to the soldiers of the cross, "Come over and help us." His first tour was experimental, what a soldier would call a reconnaissance of the strength of the enemy. It started out with great success, but its ending was nearly fatal to the apostle. The Roman proconsul was converted at Cyprus and the sorcerer Elymas was punished. At Antioch, after a powerful sermon, the Jews rise up against him; and the same scenes are repeated at Iconium. Among the uncivilized pagans of Lystra and Derbe at one moment he is almost worshiped and at the next stoned. Everywhere the Jews are excited against him, and he turns his steps homeward, leaving the germs of churches in every place which he visits, and at last embarks from Attalia direct for Syrian Antioch. This was in the year 49, and during the next year he attends the apostolic council at Jerusalem. His second missionary journey began in 51, and he started upon it accompanied by Silas instead of Barnabas, a difficulty having arisen concerning the nephew of Barnabas, who had shown want of interest in the work. The second journey is considered by far the most interesting and fruitful of good works. The missionaries start from Antioch once more, and go through Syria, Cilicia, Lycaonia; they revisit the old scenes of Derbe and Lystra, where Timothy joins them; the Galatian mission follows, though but little account is given of it in the Acts. Paul was some time in this region, detained by some bodily ailment, but this did not hinder him from proclaiming the gospel. Then he is directed by a vision to cross over into Macedonia from Troas, which decisive moment marks the introduction of the gospel into Europe. Luke joins him at Troas, and they both go to Neapolis. Afterward the great Gentile cities are visited, Philippi, Thessalonica, Berea, Athens, Corinth, and the records of his labors in these places would fill a library. His residence at Corinth for about a year and a half was very fruitful of good works, and brought about the formal separation of the Church from the Synagogue. In the spring of 54 he returns to Jerusalem for the feast of Pentecost.

The apostle's third missionary journey is clearly intended to finish up the work of the second. At this time he makes his first visit to Ephesus, the capital of Asia Minor, and one of the wonderful cities of the world. He spends three years in this place, success crowning his labors, and then goes for about three months to Corinth, where he writes the Epistles to the Romans and Galatians, and in the spring of 58 returns to Jerusalem by way of Philippi and Miletus, with presentiments of coming trouble weighing heavily upon him. For ten years more, the remaining years of his life, from 58 to 68, his labors continue, though he works in chains. His audiences are more in law-courts, in guard-houses, in prisons, than in synagogues. He is arrested at Jerusalem in 58, suffers a long imprisonment at Cæsarea, and in the autumn of 60 is sent to Rome by Festus, reaching this city in the spring of 61. Everything seems to be against him, yet he is not discouraged, but preaches the truth surrounded by the most adverse circumstances. He is the ambassador of Christ before Felix or Agrippa, on the desert island of Malta, or chained to a Roman soldier near the prætorian camp. For the two years of his imprisonment at Rome he works faithfully among his own countrymen and among the Gentiles. On his release he seems to have gone for four years into Macedonia and Asia Minor, and then, probably, for a year or more to Spain. Once again he is in the East at Ephesus and Nicopolis, and then comes his second imprisonment in Rome. It would seem as if he must have been arrested at Nicopolis late in the autumn of 67, and sent to Rome for trial, where he was to have a more serious time than during his former imprisonment. After the great fire in Rome in 64, Nero endeavored to divert the popular indignation of which he was the object by turning it upon the Christians. The atrocities of this first persecution were fearful beyond all description. This was three years before St. Paul's last arrest, but a man so noted as the apostle could not hope to escape the eye of the Roman officials, and they captured him and put him on trial the second time. He was probably charged with introducing a religion not recognized by the state, and allowed the privilege of dying as a Roman citizen. Tradition says (and there is no good reason for doubting its truth) that he was beheaded with a sword outside that gate of Rome which looks toward the mouth of the Tiber, and which is now called, in honor of the great apostle, the Gate of St. Paul.

It would be interesting to know the personal appearance of so noted a man, but there are only meagre traditions. Augustine and other early writers allude to portraits of the apostle as existing in their time. He was said to be small of stature, with high forehead, sparkling eyes and aquiline nose. His hair and beard were brown, and the latter long and flowing.

An eminent poet makes a distinction between great men and sublime men. Of the very few constituting the latter class, Paul is one. He was a sublime man in his nature. Wherever he lived, and whatever position he might occupy, he would leave his mark upon the world. He possessed that immeasurable might of will and resource of soul which makes one stronger than a million of ordinary capacity. In the true census men are to be weighed, not counted. Genius is an intellectual gift, but sublime men are more than geniuses; they are seers, prophets, apostles, founders of states, fathers of their country—moral and spiritual archetypes of new eras in history, new stages of man's progress toward God. It is their mighty moral as well as intellectual power which makes the earth gravitate nearer to heaven and man more to resemble his Maker. To genius, to a superlative moral nature, Paul added the more transcendent gifts of inspiration. Sublime as a man, he became still more sublime as an apostle of Christ. He is sublime in his writings and in his earthly immortality. The brightest geniuses pale in the revolutions of time. Their names may be known as the commonplaces of literature and history, but their ideas have grown obsolete, their compositions cease to instruct and charm; little by little they die out of the memory of men, and they transmit to other hands the sceptre of their once unquestioned dominion. Their works are as the fossils of an earlier stratum of the earth. They lie in dead languages and on dusty shelves, read by a handful of scholars, but retaining little living hold upon the mind of the civilized world. But it is the glory of Paul, as it is of a greater than Paul, to win new power by time, to add as years and centuries pass new subjects to his faith, new provinces to his empire, until the kingdoms of this world have become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ, and He shall reign for ever and ever.

THE LAST SUPPER.

THOSE who are familiar with the crayon-study of Da Vinci, the original painter, or with the engraving of Raphael Morghen, will find the picture we present ever valuable. The original painting was made upon the wall of the refectory of the Dominican convent in Milan, at the order of Ludovico il Moro, and the artist was employed for sixteen years, finishing his work in 1498. In considering this work of art, it is well to remember that to see we must believe; religious art requires religious feeling, and this feeling must be love—passionate, personal love—for the True, the Beautiful and the Good.

The portrait of our Lord is a part of a whole, and its expression, as well as that of each of the disciples, is to be interpreted by the time. He has just uttered the words, "Verily, I say unto you, That one of you shall betray me." He is now silent. His head droops and his eyes have fallen for very shame. No man could have spoken these words like this man. No one would have looked as he does. There is no trace of personal feeling. He is not thinking of himself, nor of the consequences of the act which he foretells. In his still quivering lips are to be discerned the signs of suffering and of sorrow for sin. As we behold his sorrow we recall the expression of his countenance as he lately looked on Jerusalem, and we see also in the present anguish the beginning of the agony of the coming Gethsemane. It was such a look as this that he gave to Peter, who went out and wept bitterly. It is such a look as this that he gives us as he turns upon us, for we are all in the same condemnation, ever forsaking and denying him. On the right hand of our Lord, nearest to him, are John, Judas and Peter. Peter, the farthest off, on hearing the words of Jesus, moves rapidly up behind Judas, who, looking upward in fright, bends forward over the table, with the right hand holds firmly grasped the purse, and with the left makes an involuntary motion, as if to say, "What may that mean?" Peter has meanwhile with his left hand laid hold on the shoulder of John, to tell him to ask Jesus who the traitor is. A salt-cellar is overturned during the excitement, and this bit of superstition on the part of the artist has been considered of doubtful propriety. This group is thought to be the most perfect in the picture. On the left of our Lord, James the Elder starts back with terror, like one who thinks he sees the horror of which he has just heard. Thomas appears behind his shoulder, with the forefinger of his right hand pointing toward his forehead. Philip, the third of the group, has got up, bends forward toward the Master, lays his hands on his breast, saying most clearly, "Lord, thou knowest it is not I." The last three on this side are Matthew, who turns his face eagerly toward his two companions on the left, while his hands are stretched out toward Jesus; Thaddeus, who shows the most violent astonishment, doubt and suspicion, and makes a characteristic gesture with his hands; and Simon, extremely dignified, who sits at the end of the table, richly clad in folding drapery, with countenance thoughtful, but not agitated nor hardly moved.

Looking directly at the opposite end of the table, we see Bartholomew, who bends over with both hands laid quietly on the table. He is probably listening for the answer to John's question. James the Less, next to and behind Bartholomew, lays the left hand on Peter's shoulder, and in front of him is Andrew, who, as one of the most important figures, with half-raised arms, shows full the palm of his expanded hands—a decisive expression of wonderment. The distinctive characteristics of the several apostles are more plainly seen in the very beautiful pictures which we present, with the accompanying biographies. The pictures themselves are engraved from photographs of Da Vinci's original crayon drawings, and the very best artists in the country have been employed upon the work. It will be a delightful study to compare the individual portraits with those in the large picture, and the fidelity of our artist's work will be easily recognized.

"SUFFER THE LITTLE CHILDREN TO COME UNTO ME, AND FORBID THEM NOT:"—MARK X.-14.

A GREAT darkness, political, moral and religious, covered the chosen people among whom the Christ was to be born; and they longed for deliverance from it. Politically, they were the helpless, though by no means patient, subjects to the foreign Roman yoke, under rulers who quarreled among themselves and agreed only upon one subject, the oppression of the people under them. Morally, the rich were lustful, luxurious, oppressive and ferocious; the poor, lawless and turbulent. Josephus says of them—"In private and in public all were morally diseased; all vied with each other in ungodliness towards Him above them, and unrighteousness towards those around them. Religiously, their condition was still as mournful. Many of them had fallen away from the faith, the hope, the obedience of their fathers. The Sadducees and Pharisees were the two great religious bodies; the one, easy as to this life, indifferent as to anything higher, and scoffing as to the future, and the other, holding fast to the traditions of the fathers, but having a zeal without knowledge, and therefore blind, self-willed, arrogant, cruel. But there were really some who sighed and cried amidst the abominations of their countrymen, and had an intense desire for that long-predicted Deliverer who should ransom God's people not only from slavery to Rome, but from the far worse bondage of unrighteousness, ungodliness, and false religion. They believed in the prophecies, and looked eagerly for their fulfilment. And they were not disappointed. Redemption was nigh at hand. To them who sat in darkness there was coming great light. To them who lay in the shadow of death light was springing up!

A decree had gone out from the Emperor Augustus that all the world should be taxed; and as Judea formed a part of the Roman

OUR SAVIOUR.

Empire, its inhabitants, according to their custom, were taxed in the different towns to which their families originally belonged. So the carpenter, Joseph, and his wife Mary, went down from their northern home at Nazareth, to have their names enrolled at Bethlehem, where it had been prophecied that Christ should be born. Nothing could seem more improbable, in a worldly point of view, than such a journey for a poor man and a delicate woman. And yet it must be. God had spoken the word long before, and the decree of Augustus was only an instrument in his hands. The Child who was to be the Saviour of the world must not be born in the obscure village of Nazareth, but under such circumstances as to lay many witnesses under contribution, and to be open to observation. And so they come to Bethlehem. Great crowds were thronging up to the city of David, strangers of all ranks and degrees, rich and poor, high and low. Cæsar's officers attended by a vast retinue, and this poor carpenter and his wife dressed humbly and with no attendants. And there is no room for them in the inn. So Joseph and Mary retire to the stable—which in that rocky country was most probably a cave—and there the Saviour was born. He came to His own, and His own received Him not.

Christ was born, as we have seen, and straightway proclamation was made by a royal angelic messenger. Though the streets of the city were silent because its inhabitants slept, yet in the fields were shepherds, keeping watch over their flocks by night. To them came the tidings of great joy. "And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying, Glory be to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good-will towards men."

Only four events are narrated in the Gospel concerning the infancy of Christ—the Circumcision, the Presentation in the Temple, the Visit of the Wise Men, or Magi, as the Greek of St. Matthew calls them, and the Flight into Egypt. To the Christian, the rite of Circumcision, as submitted to by our Lord, has a solemn meaning. It shews us that He came, as He said, not to destroy but to fulfil the Law. He suffered pain then only for our sakes, that we might learn the true spiritual circumcision of the heart, the mortification of our bodily senses, to endure pain, if need be, for His sake. The Circumcision was on the eighth day after His birth, and on that day He received officially the name Jesus, which the angel Gabriel had before said to His mother that he should be called. Forty days after the birth, the Virgin went to the Temple for her Purification, taking with her the offering prescribed by the Jewish Law, two turtle-doves, or two young pigeons. The regular offering, for those who could afford it, was a yearling lamb for a burnt-offering, and a young pigeon or turtle-dove for a sin offering. But the poverty of Joseph and Mary compelled them to offer the more humble gift.

This visit to the Temple was also rendered memorable by the fact that the devout Simeon and Anna, who were endowed with the gift of prophecy, recognized the infant Saviour, and broke forth into inspired song.

The account of the visit of the Wise Men to our Saviour as recorded in the second chapter of St. Matthew, is very brief, but of the deepest interest: Herod the Great, after a life of magnificent wickedness was now residing, in his old age, in his palace at Jerusalem, when tidings reached him that some strange men had come to the city seeking a new-born king of the Jews, saying they had seen his star in the East, and had come to worship him. King Herod was a mere usurper, a base tyrant ruling over an unwilling and rebellious people, and such news would naturally startle him. So, summoning to his palace the chief men of the Jews, the leading priests and scribes, he inquires of them diligently where the child should be born. These men, learned in the Scriptures, refer naturally to the prophecy in Micah, which speaks of Bethlehem, as the city destined to be honored by the birth of the Messiah. Thither Herod despatches the wise men, bidding them return to him as soon as they have found the child, that he too may go and worship him.

Scientific research has made known to us that, about the time of Christ's birth, there appeared a phenomenon in the sky, so wonderful that it could not fail to attract the attention and careful study of astronomers. We have no need to claim that this phenomenon had really anything to do with the Saviour's birth, except that it led these wise men to seek for their rightful King. So, from the far East unto the West they had journeyed, over mountain, vale and river, through mighty forests and flowery meadows, and burning deserts, the star still beaming with ineffable lustre, still guiding them to their Infant King. When they had learned the direction from Herod they departed from Jerusalem; "and lo, the star which they saw in the East went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was. When they saw the star they rejoiced with exceeding great joy. And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down and worshiped Him; and when they had opened their treasures they presented unto Him gifts; gold, frankincense and myrrh;" gold, the fittest gift for a king, costly and brilliant; incense, for a God, the sweet savour of which rolls up to heaven; myrrh, for a man, purifying in itself, and denoting punishment or pain.—For so, too, the prophet David had said: "The kings of Tharsis and of the isles shall give presents; the kings of Arabia and Saba shall bring gifts." And again it had been said: "They from Sheba shall come—they shall bring gold and incense." Thus their work was done. They worshiped, laid their gifts at the feet of Him whom they acknowledged as their king and departed, having been warned of God in a dream that they should not return unto Herod.

CHRIST WASHING PETER'S FEET.

After this visit of the Wise Men, Joseph is warned in a dream that Herod will seek to destroy the young child, and is commanded to take Jesus and his mother, and to flee to Egypt. Concerning the particulars of this journey, and the residence of the family in Egypt, Scripture gives us no particulars. We learn only, that, after their departure, the cruel king issued an edict commanding all the children in Bethlehem, from two years old and under, to be slain thinking thus to make sure of the death of Jesus. But Herod soon afterwards died, and then an angel appeared unto Joseph, telling him to return with the child and his mother to the land of Israel. "And he came and dwelt in a City called Nazareth."

For thirty years, until the time came for him to enter upon his ministerial work, the Saviour of mankind dwelt in this humble village. Concerning His manner of life there the Gospels are silent. Only one story of His youthful days is told, and that by St. Luke—the visit to the Temple at Jerusalem, when Jesus was twelve years old. Loving and reverent hearts have often desired to learn more about the childhood of Christ, and the brilliant fancy of poets and painters has depicted the Virgin and her son as clothed in gorgeous robes, and seated on stately, golden thrones. But far from this, must have been the reality. Their humble home was like many another in that lowly village.—"And the child grew and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon Him." And again, "Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man." He did not come into the world full-grown, with all His faculties complete. As a man, He was like other men, and subjected to the weaknesses and imperfections of human in fancy. In only one thing was He unlike us—in having no tendencies to evil within His heart. As other children grow, so He grew; like the flowers, first the bud then the bloom; like the grain in the field, first the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear. And is there not a lesson for all in this quiet retiring childhood and youth of the Saviour? Is not the silence of the Evangelists more eloquent than their speech could have been? They teach us that God's ways are not as our ways. Man would have looked for the Messiah to come with a great burst of trumpets and chorus of hallelujahs, with miracles flaming about His path, and a visible rainbow of glory hovering o'er His head. But He came to be like one of us.

THE WATER TURNED INTO WINE.

He came to increase in stature as we do, and to be touched with a feeling of our infirmities. He led the exact life of the majority of children, in its being devoid of any remarkable occurrence.

The only incident of his boyhood life, we have said, was His appearing in the Temple at Jerusalem, at the age of twelve years, which was an important age for a Jewish boy. At this period of life, a boy of whatever rank or condition, was compelled to learn a trade, and to begin to support himself. Every year, we are told, it had been the custom of our Lord's parents to visit Jerusalem, at the feast of the Passover. And now that their son is of an age to assume the responsibilities of the Law, they take him with them. We can imagine the delight with which He, to whom such scenes were new, would look round the holy city. Attracted by its crowded streets and its beautiful buildings; entering into the enjoyments of the festival, with a zest the keener because it was new, that visit was an era in His life. But as He witnesses the religious service in the Temple, strange thoughts take possession of His mind, and questions came up which must be solved. So He lets the caravan depart to Nazareth, while He leaves His parents and stays behind. And when with anxious and aching hearts they return to Jerusalem to find the lost child; and Mary says to Him reproachfully:—"Son, why hast thou thus dealt with us? behold, thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing"—mark the character of the child's reply: "How is it that ye sought me! Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" How touching is this reply in its simplicity! how seemingly unfathomable in its hidden wisdom! how memorable in being the first recorded words of the Lord! He is so conscious of His own nature and His duty, that He seems astonished at their not understanding why He is in God's Temple, His Father's House. "And they understood not the saying which He spake unto them;" they who had guided His infant steps, and taught Him in God's word of what the ancient prophets sang; above all, she who knew the sacred mystery of His birth! What a mournful illustration of the truth of the Evangelist's words—"He came unto His own, and His own received Him not."

CHRIST HEALING THE SICK.

Still, He knew the work which had been given Him to do; He knew His Divine parentage; and yet He humbled Himself, like a holy child He was obedient to Joseph and Mary, "He went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them."

Thenceforth we hear no more of Him until He was thirty years of age, when His life of active labour began. How the intervening time was passed we can only conjecture. But it is most natural to suppose that He worked at the carpenter's bench with His foster-father, and helped thus to support the family. He would also receive the Scriptural and moral and intellectual education which all Jewish parents were careful to give their children. But whatever He may have done or learned, at home, or in the school, or in the synagogue, we may be certain that daily He was gaining clearer insight into His heavenly Father's will. Whether He stood on the brow of the hill behind the little village, and looked upon the fair landscape spread before Him; or gazed into the twilight heavens, and watched the stars steal gently out; or plucked the lily of the field, and noted the sparrow's fall—on all this, He saw God's loving care bestowed. Whether He studied His lessons in the quiet cottage, or stood in the crowded market place, He heard His heavenly Father's voice, and obeyed it. Till at last the time has come when He must go forth from retirement to meet a world's scorn, and to die for a world's sin.

THE LAST SUPPER.

And now is heard, "The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make His paths straight." One person had been commissioned by God to be the herald of the coming Messiah. The prophet Isaiah had sung of him long before, and Malachi, the last of a long illustrious line, had proclaimed God's promise, "Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before Me;" "behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet, etc." And then, for four hundred years, the voice of prophecy is silent. Earnestly the people looked for Him who had been promised, but no voice of inspired messenger break the almost agonizing silence, no stranger, dressed in the prophet's rude garb, greets the expectant gaze. Four silent centuries must be passed in musing upon the laws of Moses, in getting sweet counsel from the prophecies of old, in struggling against the deadly assaults of paganism, in living as captives in a strange land, teaching the heathen a knowledge of God's ways—till the silence is at last broken, and one, filled with the Holy Ghost from his mother's womb, comes forth from the desert in the spirit and power of Elias, crying—"Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." And then we read that the multitudes flock to see him; the Pharisees, the Sadducees, the soldiers and the publicans, rich and poor, high and low. It was a wonderful sight, that rough stranger, dressed in the traditional garb of the prophet, with raiment of camel's hair and coarse leathern girdle, with hair and beard unkempt, and the dust and dew of the desert clinging to his sandalled feet; confronting the lordly Pharisee and the scoffing Sadducee, the rude Roman soldiery, and the cheating publican! What had he to tell them? Had they not lived all their lives amid the throng of the city, where contending interests clash, and the mind of man is spurred on by continuous excitement? Must all the learning of their schools and synagogues go for naught, their worldly wisdom and their business tact be forgotten, and they learn anew from this untaught and almost savage man how to live and how to die? Yes, they were to be taught that, with all its learning and seeming wisdom, the age was corrupt to the very bottom, diseased at the root; that men's hearts needed cleansing, and their lives a radical change. God was coming to clean His threshing-floor, gathering the wheat into His barn but burning up the chaff with unquenchable fire. And men listened to this stern uncompromising speaker, and were baptised of him in Jordan, confessing their sins. This baptism was an expressive symbol to illustrate to the sense God's pardoning mercy, and to assure each penitent of its application to him; for the meaning of the rite was, as water washes the body from defilement, so God will wash your soul from the stains of guilt. And then the Baptist goes on to promise a much more effectual pledge of this mercy, to be vouchsafed by Jesus: "I bathe you in water as a sign of cleansing from guilt; but the Mightier than I, whose prerogative as the Messiah is to pour out God's Spirit upon all flesh, He will bathe you with that Spirit of adoption which infuses the assurance of such cleansing.' As Jesus Himself promised He would do for His followers, on the day of Pentecost: "John, indeed, baptised with water, but ye shall be baptised with the Holy Ghost not many days hence."

But now we are to gaze upon another scene, in the same place, and with the same surroundings. The waters of Jordan, which had been crowded with penitents, now look on One who has no need of repentance, yet who sees fit to partake with His countrymen of that sacred rite by which was inaugurated a new era. The Baptist had done his work. He had made his mark—a mark so deep that many "mused in their hearts whether he were not himself the Christ" whose coming he proclaimed. But no! Another Personage draws near. We see Jesus, the Nazarene workman, coming to John's baptism, to testify His expectation also of the near approach of God's kingdom. And we find this Jesus, in the very act of so giving testimony, receiving from the Father in return a testimony to Himself; hailed as the Regent in this kingdom, and filled by the Father with the spirit of faith and zeal and power for the establishment of this kingdom. "And Jesus, when He was baptised, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens were opened unto Him, and He saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon Him: And, lo, a voice from heaven saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

CHRIST BEFORE PILATE.

The Baptist was at first unwilling to baptise Jesus, saying, "I have need to be baptised of thee; and comest Thou to me?" When he first came to the banks of the Jordan he did not know Jesus, according to his own testimony, for the Messiah was not yet revealed But there must have been something in the Saviour's look and manner, in the solemn majesty of His demeanor, or in His sinless beauty, which took captive the soul of John. And when he hears the words, "Suffer it to be so now; for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness," he yields, and baptises Jesus. But why, if our Lord was sinless, did He receive baptism at the hands of John? We learn from His own words just quoted. It was to fulfill every requirement to which God's will might seem to point. He did not need to be washed from sin. He does not say, "I have need to be baptised," but "Suffer it to be." He does not say, "I must," but, "Thus it becometh us." He received baptism as setting the seal to John's mission as His forerunner, and as the inauguration of a mission whose wish was not to destroy the Law but to fulfill—to fill up that which was wanting.

Thus borne witness to by John, thus having seen the heavens rent asunder to declare God's nearness to Him, and the spirit of God descending to indicate His reception of power from God; thus having heard the voice of God commending Him as His beloved Son, He is ready to begin His work. But, in the providence of God, there must be a testing of Him first. "Immediately," we read, "the Spirit driveth Him into the wilderness, And he was there in the wilderness forty days, tempted of Satan." The story of the temptation, which occurred after the long fast of forty days, is familiar to all. But is its meaning as evident? The naturalness of such an event at the beginning of our Lord's course, seems to be involved in the very constitution of that human nature which He possessed in all its fullness. He was in all points tempted like as we are. For it is only when tested that the character becomes known. "He is the righteous man, not who is secured from doing wrong, but who, when he has the power of doing wrong, manifests no disposition towards it." The sinlessness of Jesus lay, not in His being untemptable, but in the promptitude and ease with which He repulsed temptation. The three successive temptations have been ranked as temptations to Under-confidence, Over-confidence, and Other-confidence. The first, to take things impatiently into our own hands; the second, to throw things presumptuously on God's hands; the third, to transfer things disloyally into other hands than God's. And over them all our Lord triumphs gloriously.

CRUCIFIXION

Jesus now feels that His time has really come. John the Forerunner has been cut short in his course; the fallen standard of the Kingdom of God must be seized and carried forward. Our Lord goes from the desert to the fertile and populous region of Galilee. In this country was the beautiful inland sea, called by the same name, embosomed among fruitful hills, and overshadowed on the East by high mountains, having waters clear and sweet and abounding in fish. There were many flourishing towns on its banks—such as Bethsaida at its northern extremity, Tiberias to the west, and Capernaum to the north-west. This last town was specially frequented by Jesus, and He made it the rallying-point of His missionary work. Now begins that long series of labors, of good work done to the souls and bodies of men, which was to be brought to such a tragic ending. John did no miracle, but Jesus was mighty both in word and deed. The first recorded miracle of our Lord is the changing of the water into wine, which, St. John's Gospel says, occurred at Cana of Galilee. Jesus and His disciples were invited to a wedding-feast, and the mother of Jesus was there also. During the progress of the festivities the wine was exhausted; and if we remember the lavish hospitality which was expected and exercised at those Oriental entertainments, we may imagine the discomfort and mortification which the entertainers must have experienced. How natural it was, then, for Mary who knew who her son was, to say to Him, "They have no wine." Here was a difficulty to be met; possibly the presence of Him and His disciples had partly occasioned it. At any rate, there was a kind deed to be done, and He who was in such favour with God might have the power to do it. Her faith was indeed strong, but she must be taught that from henceforth He was the Son of God, the Christ, and not the Son of Mary. So He says to her, "Woman, what have I to do with thee? Mine hour is not yet come!" The address "Woman," sounds harsh to us, but it was, in reality, a common idiom, meant to be perfectly respectful, and oftentimes addressed to the most exalted in station. And if there were any implied censure in the words, we may be sure that our Lord's loving look would take it away. Mary is evidently not disconcerted, but with full belief in her Son's power and willingness, she turns to the servants with the words—"Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it." As it is customary in eastern houses always to wash the hands before eating, water is always ready; and in this case there were standing near the door six large stone water-jars, holding two or three firkins apiece. At the Saviour's command these vessels were at once filled to the brim by the servants, and they were ordered to draw out the contents, and carry to the governor of the feast, the guest who, according to custom, had been elected to preside over the festivities. But he, not knowing what had happened, playfully remarked that the bridegroom had acted contrary to the usual manner at feasts, in thus giving the good wine last.

It is not our purpose to dwell upon this miracle, or any of the wonderful works of Christ, in a controversial spirit. This narrative of His life is addressed, as His miracles originally were, not to the curiosity of cold and skeptical cavillers, but to the faith of humble and loving hearts. And to such, this first miracle will teach its appropriate lessons. It shews us Christ, as sanctifying natural relationships and natural enjoyments. He consecrates a marriage, and the sympathies which lead to the marriage. He does not condemn what is natural, but ennobles it, as He did the water, by turning it into wine. And, moreover, He teaches us, that as the world gives its best things first, and afterwards has but the dross to offer; on the contrary God gives us His best things last, and in the end will let us drink the new wine in His kingdom, at the marriage supper of the Lamb.

Our space does not permit us to make an extended review of our Lord's work. A brief summary of St. Mark's account of His first labors at Capernaum, will give us all we need, in order that we may understand the principles which actuated Him. Christ not only rises there in the synagogue, and teaches the people so that they are astonished at His way of speaking—with an efficiency such as the tame, prosy scribe had no spirit for; but He crowns this power of speech with a still more marvellous power of action. There was a poor madman in the synagogue, and he shuddered and shrank before the holy Representative of God; but Jesus rebuked the demon who possessed him, and delivered his victim from his grasp. Then next we have recorded a similar power over more ordinary disease. Peter's mother-in-law is ill of a fever. The compassionate Master takes her by the hand, and lifts her up, and immediately the fever leaves, and she is strong enough to serve them with food and do her household work. And these are but specimens of a vast and varied display of gracious power, relieving all sorts of suffering and sorrow. The word that Jesus preached was deliverance from evil. The deeds which He did effected this deliverance. Wherever evil reigned,—in the bodies, the minds, or the hearts of his countrymen,—there he interposed, to expel it from its strongest holds. He delivered from bodily evil by recovering the sick to health, the palsied to activity, the blind to sight, the deaf to hearing, the lame to walking, the dead to life. He delivered from mental evil by rescuing the victims of lunacy and madness from their dreadful pre-possessions into a right mind. He delivered from moral evil by emancipating men from the delusions of ignorance, the disorder of sin, the burden of despair. He delivered from spiritual evil by proclaiming His Father as their Father, and replacing them in their right position towards Him. For He came expressly, as He tells us, not to call the righteous, but sinners to a new disposition and a new relation towards God. And what was the result of this uprising of the Sun of righteousness with healing in His rays? All the world was dazzled, heated, inflamed. His fame spread abroad throughout all the region round about Galilee. All men sought Him. The recipients of His mercy published it much, and blazed abroad the matter, insomuch that Jesus could no more enter into the city, but remained without in desert places; yet still they came to Him from every quarter. They brought to Him all that were diseased, and those possessed by devils. And in short, as St. Matthew states it, there was accomplished the prediction of Isaiah, "The land of Zabulon, and the land of Nephthalim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles; the people which sat in darkness saw great light; and to them which sat in the region and shadow of death light is sprung up."

And so, for about the space of three years, our Lord's wonderful work goes on. He gathers disciples about Him, men devoted to His cause, and gives them power to teach and work miracles in His name. But shadows soon begin to gather across His pathway. It could not but happen that this bold truth-teller, He who spake as never man spake before, should incur the hatred of these who could not accept the purity of His teaching, and believe in the divinity of His mission. The common people heard Him gladly; but the Scribes and Pharisees were jealous of one who had so much influence where they had utterly failed. They charged Him with staining the sanctity to be jealously preserved by every true Jew. They find Him consorting with men unfaithful to the law, who had lost caste by accepting office under the heathen government; nay, actually selecting for one of His companions and friends a man like Matthew the publican, a contractor for the heathen taxes; claiming to be a prophet of God, yet eating with custom-house officials and such outcasts! But Jesus tells them, We must not repulse these men with scorn; we must win them by kindness. We must not haughtily stand far off from them, as lepers; we must mingle with them to recover them from their leprosy. The physician shrinks from no one in disease. It is to deal with disease that he is appointed. He will do anything, therefore, to fulfil his vocation and be a healer of men. Still, He could not avail to soften the enmity of those opposed to Him, which followed Him at last to the cruel cross. The time comes at last for the Sun of righteousness to unveil Himself in noon-day splendor, and so He goes up to Jerusalem to the Feast of the Passover, though He knows that certain death at the hands of His enemies awaits Him there. When He entered, in predicted state, into the Holy City—was acclaimed not only by the disciples, but by the exulting multitude, as the King so long desired—assumed boldly His function of purifying the sons of Levi—and with a royal majesty scared His enemies and cheered His friends by the announcement of His coming triumph—the zenith of His career was reached; He shone forth in meridian splendour as the Son of God.

And yet this moment of His exaltation was also the moment of His fall! His powerful enemies, worsted in argument, took refuge in force. They determined at once to cut off this troublesome fanatic from the face of the earth. And Jesus Himself becomes painfully aware of the change which was preparing. A touching sadness takes possession of Him. It shews itself in the mournful allusion to His coming death, in Bethany; in the solemn annunciation of His betrayal, at the passover supper; in His deliberate elevation of the sacrifice therein commemorated into a symbol of Himself. It weighs upon Him in the Garden of Gethsemane with deep oppression. And it becomes intensified through each successive step of His subsequent history, by the insensibility of His bosom friends, the treachery of Judas, the disgrace of His being arrested as a thief and a robber, the accusation of blasphemy before the ecclesiastical court, and of sedition before the civil tribunal; the preference by the multitude of a murderer to Himself, whom they had so recently saluted as their King; the injustice of Pilate, the Roman governor, the mockery by the soldiers, the insults of the scribes, the strange despondency which seized Him on the cross. Cloud after cloud became heavier and more dark, till black night set upon His soul.

With the exception of the trial and the crucifixion, the most important event of the last week of our Saviour's life was the institution of what is known to us as the "Lord's Supper." While they were going on with the memorial Paschal feast, Jesus takes a loaf, and having offered the prescribed prayer over it, breaks it and gives it to His disciples, saying, Take this! it is my body! Then, taking the cup and offering the appointed thanksgiving, He gave it to them and they all drank out of it; and He said, This is my blood! —the blood of a new covenant—blood shed for the welfare of many! In the old event which we are commemorating, there was a sacrifice, a blood-shedding; but it was a sacrifice for the passing over of the destroying angel from our fore fathers—a blood-shedding for the ratifying with them a covenant of redemption from death, and consecration to God's service. And so shall it be with my death which now depresses us; painful in itself, but joyful in its results; full to us all of present sorrow, but pregnant with future blessedness. What the blood of the paschal lamb was for Israel, that will my blood be for the whole world!

THE ASCENSION.

But the Last Supper is finished, the agony in the garden is over, the kiss of the traitor Judas has been given, the trial before Herod and Pilate is concluded, the crown of thorns has been put upon His head, and the purple robe of scorn thrown over Him, and He goes forth to Golgotha bearing His cross, but so weak that his persecutors compel one of the by-standers to assist Him. Yet, even when He is nailed to the cross, their insults do not cease. Those who passed by railed at Him and wagged their heads at Him, bidding Him who saved others to come down from the cross and save Himself. They little knew that it was because He saved others that He would not come down from His cross. But the very face of nature is darkened; at noon-day the light of heaven is put out. The sufferer Himself is bowed down beneath the cruel agony of physical pain, and it is the effort to shake off this burden which wrings out the cry, "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me!" Yet even this very cry has in it an element of godly trust; it shews the whole soul still turned upwards towards God, and so this cry of seeming despondency issues at last in one of triumph: "It is finished!" "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit!" At the very moment of death Jesus triumphs over death. The dismissal of His soul is a translation to a higher region. He springs from earth to Paradise. And now an unexpected friend ventures forth; the governor is persuaded; the corpse is obtained; an unpolluted tomb is gained for it; the tender women anoint it with funeral balms. But is the work of Jesus indeed finished? No; He must rise again from the dead, as He Himself had predicted, on the third day. Consequently, in the Gospels we have set before us two objects,—the empty tomb, and the risen Jesus. The empty tomb is clearly attested by St. Mark. For the angel says to the woman, "Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: He is not here; behold the place where they laid Him." And St. Paul gives us the faith which had come down to him, not simply "He was crucified for us, and still lives!" but, "He was buried," and then "raised again;" plainly, from the grave in which He had been laid. And the testimony of the disciples as to the risen Jesus confirms this, as does the belief of the whole civilized world at this day. Wherever civilization has spread, thither has gone the missionary of Christ, and the worship of every Lord's Day bears testimony of "Christ being raised from the dead."

And now, after His resurrection Jesus appears to His disciples, tarries with them forty days, and instructs them in things pertaining to the Kingdom of God, which He came to establish on earth, and commissions certain of them to take His place and carry on His work throughout the world. Till at last the time comes, when He must depart from them forever, and send to them the promise of the Father, the Holy Ghost the Comforter. He meets the disciples at Jerusalem, and as He journeys with them towards Bethany He checks their anxious questionings in regard to the future, and bids them wait in the Holy City until the promised Spirit should be sent to them. Then bidding them farewell, He lifts His hands and blesses them, and in this act of blessing a cloud received Him out of their sight. That cloud still rolls between us and Him. But faith can pierce it; prayer can rise above it; His blessing can drop through it, like the gentle refreshing rain, upon the thirsty soil of our hearts. Though He be gone away nothing can separate us from Him; for in His Holy Spirit a sense of nearness is given to us, which those who were nearest to Him in body, while He was on earth, never could have realized, unless their heart were fully given to Him. And now the whole Christian Church is looking anxiously forward for the time when "the kingdoms of this world shall be the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ." When He, over whom sin and Satan seemed to triumph, shall come again with glory to judge both the quick and the dead. When the promise of the angel shall be fulfilled: "This same Jesus, which was taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven."

PREFACE.

THE English Version of the New Testament here presented to the reader is a Revision of the Translation published in the year of Our Lord 1611, and commonly known by the name of the Authorised Version.

That Translation was the work of many hands and of several generations. The foundation was laid by William Tyndale. His translation of the New Testament was the true primary Version. The Versions that followed were either substantially reproductions of Tyndale's translation in its final shape, or revisions of Versions that had been themselves almost entirely based on it. Three successive stages may be recognised in this continuous work of authoritative revision: first, the publication of the Great Bible of 1539–41 in the reign of Henry VIII; next, the publication of the Bishops' Bible of 1568 and 1572 in the reign of Elizabeth; and lastly, the publication of the King's Bible of 1611 in the reign of James I. Besides these, the Genevan Version of 1560, itself founded on Tyndale's translation, must here be named; which, though not put forth by authority, was widely circulated in this country, and largely used by King James' Translators. Thus the form in which the English New Testament has now been read for 270 years was the result of various revisions made between 1525 and 1611; and the present Revision is an attempt, after a long interval, to follow the example set by a succession of honoured predecessors.

I. Of the many points of interest connected with the Translation of 1611, two require special notice; first, the Greek Text which it appears to have represented; and secondly, the character of the Translation itself.

1. With regard to the Greek Text, it would appear that, if to some extent the Translators exercised an independent judgement, it was mainly in choosing amongst readings contained in the principal editions of the Greek Text that had appeared in the sixteenth century. Wherever they seem to have followed a reading which is not found in any of those editions, their rendering may probably be traced to the Latin Vulgate. Their chief guides appear to have been the later editions of Stephanus and of Beza, and also, to a certain extent, the Complutensian Polyglott. All these were founded for the most part on manuscripts of late date, few in number, and used with little critical skill. But in those days it could hardly have been otherwise. Nearly all the more ancient of the documentary authorities have become known only within the last two centuries; some of the most important of them, indeed within the last few years. Their publication has called forth not only improved editions of the Greek Text, but a succession of instructive discussions on the variations which have been brought to light, and on the best modes of distinguishing original readings from changes introduced in the course of transcription. While therefore it has long been the opinion of all scholars that the commonly received text needed thorough revision, it is but recently that materials have been acquired for executing such a work with even approximate completeness.

2. The character of the Translation itself will be best estimated by considering the leading rules under which it was made, and the extent to which these rules appear to have been observed.

The primary and fundamental rule was expressed in the following terms:—'The ordinary Bible read in the Church, commonly called the Bishops' Bible, to be followed, and as little altered as the truth of the original will permit.' There was, however, this subsequent provision:—'These Translations to be used, when they agree better with the text than the Bishops' Bible: Tindale's, Matthew's, Coverdale's, Whitchurch's, Geneva.' The first of these rules, which was substantially the same as that laid down at the revision of the Great Bible in the reign of Elizabeth, was strictly observed. The other rule was but partially followed. The Translators made much use of the Genevan Version. They do not however appear to have frequently returned to the renderings of the other Versions named in the rule, where those Versions differed from the Bishops' Bible. On the other hand, their work shews evident traces of the influence of a Version not specified in the rules, the Rhemish, made from the Latin Vulgate, but by scholars conversant with the Greek original.

Another rule, on which it is stated that those in authority laid great stress, related to the rendering of words that admitted of different interpretations. It was as follows:—'When a word hath divers significations, that to be kept which hath been most commonly used by the most of the ancient fathers, being agreeable to the propriety of the place and the analogy of the faith.' With this rule was associated the following, on which equal stress appears to have been laid:—'The old ecclesiastical words to be kept, viz. the word Church not to be translated Congregation, &c.' This latter rule was for the most part carefully observed; but it may be doubted whether, in the case of words that admitted of different meanings, the instructions were at all closely followed. In dealing with the more difficult words of this class, the Translators appear to have paid much regard to traditional interpretations, and especially to the authority of the Vulgate; but, as to the large residue of words which might properly fall under the rule, they used considerable freedom. Moreover they profess in their Preface to have studiously adopted a variety of expression which would now be deemed hardly consistent with the requirements of faithful translation. They seem to have been guided by the feeling that their Version would secure for the words they used a lasting place in the language; and they express a fear lest they should 'be charged (by scoffers) with some unequal dealing towards a great number of good English words,' which, without this liberty on their part, would not have a place in the pages of the English Bible. Still it cannot be doubted that they carried this liberty too far, and that the studied avoidance of uniformity in the rendering of the same words, even when occurring in the same context, is one of the blemishes in their work.

A third leading rule was of a negative character, but was rendered necessary by the experience derived from former Versions. The words of the rule are as follows:—'No marginal notes at all to be affixed, but only for the explanation of the Hebrew or Greek words which cannot without some circumlocution so briefly and fitly be expressed in the text.' Here again the Translators used some liberty in their application of the rule. Out of more than 760 marginal notes originally appended to the Authorized Version of the New Testament, only a seventh part consists of explanations or literal renderings; the great majority of the notes being devoted to the useful and indeed necessary purpose of placing before the reader alternative renderings which it was judged that the passage or the words would fairly admit. The notes referring to variations in the Greek Text amount to about thirty-five.

Of the remaining rules it may be sufficient to notice one, which was for the most part consistently followed:—'The names of the prophets and the holy writers, with the other names of the text, to be retained, as nigh as may be, accordingly as they were vulgarly used.' The Translators had also the liberty, in 'any place of special obscurity,' to consult those who might be qualified to give an opinion.

Passing from these fundamental rules, which should be borne in mind by any one who would rightly understand the nature and character of the Authorised Version, we must call attention to the manner in which the actual work of the translation was carried on. The New Testament was assigned to two separate Companies, the one consisting of eight members, sitting at Oxford, the other consisting of seven members, sitting at Westminster. There is no reason to believe that these Companies ever sat together. They communicated to each other, and likewise to the four Companies to which the Old Testament and the Apocrypha had been committed, the results of their labours; and perhaps afterwards reconsidered them: but the fact that the New Testament was divided between two separate bodies of men involved a grave inconvenience, and was beyond all doubt the cause of many inconsistencies. These probably would have been much more serious, had it not been provided that there should be a final supervision of the whole Bible, by selected members from Oxford, Cambridge, and Westminster, the three centres at which the work had been carried on. These supervisors are said by one authority to have been six in number, and by another twelve. When it is remembered that this supervision was completed in nine months, we may wonder that the incongruities which remain are not more numerous.

The Companies appear to have been occupied in the actual business of revision about two years and three quarters.

Such, so far as can be gathered from the rules and modes of procedure, is the character of the time-honoured Version which we have been called upon to revise. We have had to study this great Version carefully and minutely, line by line; and the longer we have been engaged upon it the more we have learned to admire its simplicity, its dignity, its power, its happy turns of expression, its general accuracy, and, we must not fail to add, the music of its cadences, and the felicities of its rhythm. To render a work that had reached this high standard of excellence still more excellent, to increase its fidelity without destroying it charm, was the task committed to us. Of that task, and of the conditions under which we have attempted its fulfilment, it will now be necessary for us to speak.

II. The present Revision had its origin in action taken by the Convocation of the Province of Canterbury in February 1870, and it has been conducted throughout on the plan laid down in Resolutions of both Houses of the Province, and, more particularly, in accordance with Principles and Rules drawn up by a special Committee of Convocation in the following May. Two Companies, the one for the revision of the Authorised Version of the Old Testament, and the other for the revision of the same Version of the New Testament, were formed in the manner specified in the Resolutions, and the work was commenced on the twenty-second day of June 1870. Shortly afterwards, steps were taken, under a resolution passed by both Houses of Convocation, for inviting the co-operation of American scholars; and eventually two Committees were formed in America, for the purpose of acting with the two English Companies, on the basis of the Principles and Rules drawn up by the Committee of Convocation.

The fundamental Resolutions adopted by the Convocation of Canterbury on the third and fifth days of May 1870 were as follows:—

'1. That it is desirable that a revision of the Authorised Version of the Holy Scriptures be undertaken.

'2. That the revision be so conducted as to comprise both marginal renderings and such emendations as it may be found necessary to insert in the text of the Authorised Version.

'3. That in the above resolutions we do not contemplate any new translation of the Bible, or any alteration of the language, except where in the judgement of the most competent scholars such change is necessary.

'4. That in such necessary changes, the style of the language employed in the existing Version be closely followed.

'5. That it is desirable that Convocation should nominate a body of its own members to undertake the work of revision, who shall be at liberty to invite the co-operation of any eminent for scholarship, to whatever nation or religious body they may belong.'

The Principles and Rules agreed to by the Committee of Convocation on the 25th day of May 1870 were as follows:—

'1. To introduce as few alterations as possible into the Text of the Authorised Version consistently with faithfulness.

'2. To limit, as far as possible, the expression of such alterations to the language of the Authorised and earlier English Versions.

'3. Each Company to go twice over the portion to be revised, once provisionally, the second time finally, and on principles of voting as hereinafter is provided.

'4. That the Text to be adopted be that for which the evidence is decidedly preponderating; and that when the Text so adopted differs from that from which the Authorised Version was made, the alteration be indicated in the margin.

'5. To make or retain no change in the Text on the second final revision by each Company, except two thirds of those present approve of the same, but on the first revision to decide by simple majorities.

'6. In every case of proposed alteration that may have given rise to discussion, to defer the voting thereupon till the next Meeting, whensoever the same shall be required by one third of those present at the Meeting, such intended vote to be announced in the notice for the next Meeting.

'7. To revise the headings of chapters and pages, paragraphs, italics, and punctuation.

'8. To refer, on the part of each Company, when considered desirable, to Divines, Scholars, and Literary Men, whether at home or abroad, for their opinions.'

These rules it has been our endeavour faithfully and consistently to follow. One only of them we found ourselves unable to observe in all particulars. In accordance with the seventh rule, we have carefully revised the paragraphs, italics, and punctuation. But the revision of the headings of chapters and pages would have involved so much of indirect, and indeed frequently of direct interpretation, that we judged it best to omit them altogether.

Our communications with the American Committee have been of the following nature. We transmitted to them from time to time each several portion of our First Revision, and received from them in return their criticisms and suggestions. These we considered with much care and attention during the time we were engaged on our Second Revision. We then sent over to them the various portions of the Second Revision as they were completed, and received further suggestions, which, like the former, were closely and carefully considered. Last of all, we forwarded to them the Revised Version in its final form; and those passages in which they desire to place on record their preference of other readings and renderings will be found at the foot of pages in which they occur. We gratefully acknowledge their care, vigilance, and accuracy, and we humbly pray that their labours and our own, thus happily united, may be permitted to bear a blessing to both countries, and to all English-speaking people throughout the world.

The whole time devoted to the work has been ten years and a half. The First Revision occupied about six years; the Second, about two years and a half. The remaining time has been spent in the consideration of the suggestions from America on the Second Revision, and of many details and reserved questions arising out of our own labours. As a rule, a session of four days has been held every month (with the exception of August and September) in each year from the commencement of the work in June 1870. The average attendance for the whole time has been sixteen each day; the whole Company consisting at first of twenty-seven, but for the greater part of the time of twenty-four members, many of them residing at great distances from London. Of the original number four have been removed from us by death.

At an early stage in our labours, we entered into an agreement with the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge for the conveyance to them of our copyright in the work. This arrangement provided for the necessary expenses of the undertaking; and procured for the Revised Version the advantage of being published by Bodies long connected with the publication of the Authorised Version.

III. We now pass onward to give a brief account of the particulars of the present work. This we propose to do under the four heads of Text, Translation, Language, and Marginal Notes.

1. A revision of the Greek text was the necessary foundation of our work; but it did not fall within our province to construct a continuous and complete Greek text. In many cases the English rendering was considered to represent correctly either of two competing readings in the Greek, and then the question of the text was usually not raised. A sufficiently laborious task remained in deciding between the rival claims of various readings which might properly affect the translation. When these were adjusted our deviations from the text presumed to underlie the Authorised Version had next to be indicated, in accordance with the fourth rule; but it proved inconvenient to record them in the margin. A better mode however of giving them publicity has been found, as the University Presses have undertaken to print them in connexion with complete Greek texts of the New Testament.

In regard of the readings thus approved, it may be observed that the fourth rule, by requiring that 'the text to be adopted' should be 'that for which the evidence is decidedly preponderating,' was in effect an instruction to follow the authority of documentary evidence without deference to any printed text of modern times, and therefore to employ the best resources of criticism for estimating the value of evidence. Textual criticism, as applied to the Greek New Testament, forms a special study of much intricacy and difficulty, and even now leaves room for considerable variety of opinion among competent critics. Different schools of criticism have been represented among us, and have together contributed to the final result. In the early part of the work every various reading requiring consideration was discussed and voted on by the Company. After a time the precedents thus established enabled the process to be safely shortened; but it was still at the option of every one to raise a full discussion on any particular reading, and the option was freely used. On the first revision, in accordance with the fifth rule, the decisions were arrived at by simple majorities. On the second revision, at which a majority of two thirds was required to retain or introduce a reading at variance with the reading presumed to underlie the Authorised Version, many readings previously adopted were brought again into debate, and either re-affirmed or set aside.

Many places still remain in which, for the present, it would not be safe to accept one reading to the absolute exclusion of others. In these cases we have given alternative readings in the margin, wherever they seem to be of sufficient importance or interest to deserve notice. In the introductory formula, the phrases 'many ancient authorities,' 'some ancient authorities,' are used with some latitude to denote a greater or lesser proportion of those authorities which have a distinctive right to be called ancient. These ancient authorities comprise not only Greek manuscripts, some of which were written in the fourth and fifth centuries, but versions of a still earlier date in different languages, and also quotations by Christian writers of the second and following centuries.

2. We pass now from the Text to the Translation. The character of the Revision was determined for us from the outset by the first rule, 'to introduce as few alterations as possible, consistently with faithfulness.' Our task was revision, not re-translation.

In the application however of this principle to the many and intricate details of our work, we have found ourselves constrained by faithfulness to introduce changes which might not at first sight appear to be included under the rule.

The alterations which we have made in the Authorised Version may be roughly grouped in five principal classes. First, alterations positively required by change of reading in the Greek Text. Secondly, alterations made where the Authorised Version appeared either to be incorrect, or to have chosen the less probable of two possible renderings. Thirdly, alterations of obscure or ambiguous renderings into such as are clear and express in their import. For it has been our principle not to leave any translation, or any arrangement of words, which could adapt itself to one or other of two interpretations, but rather to express as plainly as was possible that interpretation which seemed best to deserve a place in the text, and to put the other in the margin.

There remain yet two other classes of alterations which we have felt to be required by the same principle of faithfulness. These are,—Fourthly, alterations of the Authorised Version in cases where it was inconsistent with itself in the rendering of two or more passages confessedly alike or parallel. Fifthly, alterations rendered necessary by consequence, that is, arising out of changes already made, though not in themselves required by the general rule of faithfulness. Both these classes of alterations call for some further explanation.

The frequent inconsistencies in the Authorised Version have caused us much embarrassment from the fact already referred to, namely, that a studied variety of rendering, even in the same chapter and context, was a kind of principle with our predecessors, and was defended by them on grounds that have been mentioned above. The problem we had to solve was to discriminate between varieties of rendering which were compatible with fidelity to the true meaning of the text, and varieties which involved inconsistency, and were suggestive of differences that had no existence in the Greek. This problem we have solved to the best of our power, and for the most part in the following way.

Where there was a doubt as to the exact shade of meaning, we have looked to the context for guidance. If the meaning was fairly expressed by the word or phrase that was before us in the Authorised Version, we made no change, even where rigid adherence to the rule of translating, as far as possible, the same Greek word by the same English word might have prescribed some modification.

There are however numerous passages in the Authorised Version in which, whether regard be had to the recurrence (as in the first three Gospels) of identical clauses and sentences, to the repetition of the same word in the same passage, or to the characteristic use of particular words by the same writer, the studied variety adopted by the Translators of 1611 has produced a degree of inconsistency that cannot be reconciled with the principle of faithfulness. In such cases we have not hesitated to introduce alterations, even though the sense might not seem to the general reader to be materially affected.

The last class of alterations is that which we have described as rendered necessary by consequence; that is, by reason of some foregoing alteration. The cases in which these consequential changes have been found necessary are numerous and of very different kinds. Sometimes the change has been made to avoid tautology; sometimes to obviate an unpleasing alliteration or some other infelicity of sound; sometimes, in the case of smaller words, to preserve the familiar rhythm; sometimes for a convergence of reasons which, when explained, would at once be accepted, but until so explained might never be surmised even by intelligent readers.

This may be made plain by an example. When a particular word is found to recur with characteristic frequency in any one of the Sacred Writers, it is obviously desirable to adopt for it some uniform rendering. Again, where, as in the case of the first three Evangelists, precisely the same clauses or sentences are found in more than one of the Gospels, it is no less necessary to translate them in every place in the same way. These two principles may be illustrated by reference to a word that perpetually recurs in St. Mark's Gospel, and that may be translated either 'straightway,' 'forthwith,' or 'immediately.' Let it be supposed that the first rendering is chosen, and that the word, in accordance with the first of the above principles, is in that Gospel uniformly translated 'straightway.' Let it be further supposed that one of the passages of St. Mark in which it is so translated is found, word for word, in one of the other Gospels, but that there the rendering of the Authorised Version happens to be 'forthwith' or 'immediately.' That rendering must be changed on the second of the above principles; and yet such a change would not have been made but for this concurrence of two sound principles, and the consequent necessity of making a change on grounds extraneous to the passage itself.

This is but one of many instances of consequential alterations which might at first sight appear unnecessary, but which nevertheless have been deliberately made, and are not at variance with the rule of introducing as few changes in the Authorised Version as faithfulness would allow.

There are some other points of detail which it may be here convenient to notice. One of these, and perhaps the most important, is the rendering of the Greek aorist. There are numerous cases, especially in connexion with particles ordinarily expressive of present time, in which the use of the indefinite past tense in Greek and English is altogether different; and in such instances we have not attempted to violate the idiom of our language by forms of expression which it could not bear. But we have often ventured to represent the Greek aorist by the English preterite, even where the reader may find some passing difficulty in such a rendering, because we have felt convinced that the true meaning of the original was obscured by the presence of the familiar auxiliary. A remarkable illustration may be found in the seventeenth chapter of St. John's Gospel, where the combination of the aorist and the perfect shews, beyond all reasonable doubt, that different relations of time were intended to be expressed.

Changes of translation will also be found in connexion with the aorist participle, arising from the fact that the usual periphrasis of this participle in the Vulgate, which was rendered necessary by Latin idiom, has been largely reproduced in the Authorised Version by 'when' with the past tense (as for example in the second chapter of St. Matthew's Gospel), even where the ordinary participial rendering would have been easier and more natural in English.

In reference to the perfect and the imperfect tenses but little needs to be said. The correct translation of the former has been for the most part, though with some striking exceptions, maintained in the Authorised Version: while with regard to the imperfect, clear as its meaning may be in the Greek, the power of expressing it is so limited in English, that we have been frequently compelled to leave the force of the tense to be inferred from the context. In a few instances, where faithfulness imperatively required it, and especially where, in the Greek, the significance of the imperfect tense seemed to be additionally marked by the use of the participle with the auxiliary verb, we have introduced the corresponding form in English. Still, in the great majority of cases we have been obliged to retain the English preterite, and to rely either on slight changes in the order of the words, or on prominence given to the accompanying temporal particles, for the indication of the meaning which, in the Greek, the imperfect tense was designed to convey.

On other points of grammar it may be sufficient to speak more briefly.

Many changes, as might be anticipated, have been made in the case of the definite article. Here again it was necessary to consider the peculiarities of English idiom, as well as the general tenor of each passage. Sometimes we have felt it enough to prefix the article to the first of a series of words to all of which it is prefixed in the Greek, and thus, as it were, to impart the idea of definiteness to the whole series, without running the risk of overloading the sentence. Sometimes, conversely, we have had to tolerate the presence of the definite article in our Version, when it is absent from the Greek, and perhaps not even grammatically latent; simply because English idiom would not allow the noun to stand alone, and because the introduction of the indefinite article might have introduced an idea of oneness or individuality, which was not in any degree traceable in the original. In a word, we have been careful to observe the use of the article wherever it seemed to be idiomatically possible: where it did not seem to be possible, we have yielded to necessity.

As to the pronouns and the place they occupy in the sentence, a subject often overlooked by our predecessors, we have been particularly careful; but here again we have frequently been baffled by structural or idiomatical peculiarities of the English language which precluded changes otherwise desirable.

In the case of the particles we have met with less difficulty, and have been able to maintain a reasonable amount of consistency. The particles in the Greek Testament are, as is well known, comparatively few, and they are commonly used with precision. It has therefore been the more necessary here to preserve a general uniformity of rendering, especially in the case of the particles of causality and inference, so far as English idiom would allow.

Lastly, many changes have been introduced in the rendering of the prepositions, especially where ideas of instrumentality or of mediate agency, distinctly marked in the original, had been confused or obscured in the translation. We have however borne in mind the comprehensive character of such prepositions as 'of' and 'by,' the one in reference to agency and the other in reference to means, especially in the English of the seventeenth century; and have rarely made any change where the true meaning of the original as expressed in the Authorised Version would be apparent to a reader of ordinary intelligence.

3. We now come to the subject of Language.

The second of the rules, by which the work has been governed, prescribed that the alterations to be introduced should be expressed, as far as possible, in the language of the Authorised Version or of the Versions that preceded it.

To this rule we have faithfully adhered. We have habitually consulted the earlier Versions; and in our sparing introduction of words not found in them or in the Authorised Version we have usually satisfied ourselves that such words were employed by standard writers of nearly the same date, and had also that general hue which justified their introduction into a Version which has held the highest place in the classical literature of our language. We have never removed any archaisms, whether in structure or in words, except where we were persuaded either that the meaning of the words was not generally understood, or that the nature of the expression led to some misconception of the true sense of the passage. The frequent inversions of the strict order of the words, which add much to the strength and variety of the Authorised Version, and give an archaic colour to many felicities of diction, have been seldom modified. Indeed, we have often adopted the same arrangement in our own alterations; and in this, as in other particulars, we have sought to assimilate the new work to the old.

In a few exceptional cases we have failed to find any word in the older stratum of our language that appeared to convey the precise meaning of the original. There, and there only, we have used words of a later date; but not without having first assured ourselves that they are to be found in the writings of the best authors of the period to which they belong.

In regard of Proper Names no rule was prescribed to us. In the case of names of frequent occurrence we have deemed it best to follow generally the rule laid down for our predecessors. That rule, it may be remembered, was to this effect, 'The names of the prophets and the holy writers, with the other names of the text, to be retained, as nigh as may be, accordingly as they were vulgarly used.' Some difficulty has been felt in dealing with names less familiarly known. Here our general practice has been to follow the Greek form of names, except in the case of persons and places mentioned in the Old Testament: in this case we have followed the Hebrew.

4. The subject of the Marginal Notes deserves special attention. They represent the results of a large amount of careful and elaborate discussion, and will, perhaps, by their very presence, indicate to some extent the intricacy of many of the questions that have almost daily come before us for decision. These Notes fall into four main groups: first, notes specifying such differences of reading as were judged to be of sufficient importance to require a particular notice; secondly, notes indicating the exact rendering of words to which, for the sake of English idiom, we were obliged to give a less exact rendering in the text; thirdly, notes, very few in number, affording some explanation which the original appeared to require; fourthly, alternative renderings in difficult or debateable passages. The notes of this last group are numerous, and largely in excess of those which were admitted by our predecessors. In the 270 years that have passed away since their labors were concluded, the Sacred Text has been minutely examined, discussed in every detail, and analysed with a grammatical precision unknown in the days of the last Revision. There has thus been accumulated a large amount of materials that have prepared the way for different renderings, which necessarily came under discussion. We have therefore placed before the reader in the margin other renderings than those which were adopted in the text, wherever such renderings seemed to deserve consideration. The rendering in the text, where it agrees with the Authorised Version, was supported by at least one third, and, where it differs from the Authorised Version, by at least two thirds of those who were present at the second revision of the passage in question.

A few supplementary matters have yet to be mentioned. These may be thus enumerated,—the use of Italics, the arrangement in Paragraphs, the mode of printing Quotations from the Poetical Books of the Old Testament, the Punctuation, and, last of all, the Titles of the different Books that make up the New Testament,—all of them particulars on which it seems desirable to add a few explanatory remarks.

(a) The determination, in each place, of the words to be printed in italics has not been by any means easy; nor can we hope to be found in all cases perfectly consistent. In the earliest editions of the Authorised Version the use of a different type to indicate supplementary words not contained in the original was not very frequent, and cannot easily be reconciled with any settled principle. A review of the words so printed was made, after a lapse of some years, for the editions of the Authorised Version published at Cambridge in 1629 and 1638. Further, though slight, modifications were introduced at intervals between 1638 and the more systematic revisions undertaken respectively by Dr. Paris in the Cambridge Edition of 1762, and by Dr. Blayney in the Oxford Edition of 1769. None of them however rest on any higher authority than that of the persons who from time to time superintended the publication. The last attempt to bring the use of italics into uniformity and consistency was made by Dr. Scrivener in the Paragraph Bible published at Cambridge in 1870–73. In succeeding to these labours, we have acted on the general principle of printing in italics words which did not appear to be necessarily involved in the Greek. Our tendency has been to diminish rather than to increase the amount of italic printing; though, in the case of difference of readings, we have usually marked the absence of any words in the original which the sense might nevertheless require to be present in the Version; and again, in the case of inserted pronouns, where the reference did not appear to be perfectly certain, we have similarly had recourse to italics. Some of these cases, especially when there are slight differences of reading, are of singular intricacy, and make it impossible to maintain rigid uniformity.

(b) We have arranged the Sacred Text in paragraphs, after the precedent of the earliest English Versions, so as to assist the general reader in following the current of narrative or argument. The present arrangement will be found, we trust, to have preserved the due mean between a system of long portions which must often include several separate topics, and a system of frequent breaks which, though they may correctly indicate the separate movements of thought in the writer, often seriously impede a just perception of the true continuity of the passage. The traditional division into chapters, which the Authorised Version inherited from Latin Bibles of the later middle ages, is an illustration of the former method. These paragraphs, for such in fact they are, frequently include several distinct subjects. Moreover they sometimes, though rarely, end where there is no sufficient break in the sense. The division of chapters into verses, which was introduced into the New Testament for the first time in 1551, is an exaggeration of the latter method, with its accompanying inconveniences. The serious obstacles to the right understanding of Holy Scripture, which are interposed by minute subdivision, are often overlooked; but if any one will consider for a moment the injurious effect that would be produced by breaking up a portion of some great standard work into separate verses, he will at once perceive how necessary has been an alteration in this particular. The arrangement by chapters and verses undoubtedly affords facilities for reference: but this advantage we have been able to retain by placing the numerals on the margins of each page.

(c) A few words will suffice as to the mode of printing quotations from the Poetical Books of the Old Testament. Wherever the quotation extends to two or more lines, our practice has been to recognise the parallelism of their structure by arranging the lines in a manner that appears to agree with the metrical divisions of the Hebrew original. Such an arrangement will be found helpful to the reader; not only as directing his attention to the poetical character of the quotation, but as also tending to make its force and pertinence more fully felt. We have treated in the same way the hymns in the first two chapters of the Gospel according to St. Luke.

(d) Great care has been bestowed on the punctuation. Our practice has been to maintain what is sometimes called the heavier system of stopping, or, in other words, that system which, especially for convenience in reading aloud, suggests such pauses as will best ensure a clear and intelligent setting forth of the true meaning of the words. This course has rendered necessary, especially in the Epistles, a larger use of colons and semicolons than is customary in modern English printing.

(e) We may in the last place notice one particular to which we were not expressly directed to extend our revision, namely, the titles of the Books of the New Testament. These titles are no part of the original text; and the titles found in the most ancient manuscripts are of too short a form to be convenient for use. Under these circumstances, we have deemed it best to leave unchanged the titles which are given in the Authorised Version as printed in 1611.

We now conclude, humbly commending our labours to Almighty God, and praying that his favour and blessing may be vouchsafed to that which has been done in his name. We recognised from the first the responsibility of the undertaking; and through our manifold experience of its abounding difficulties we have felt more and more, as we went onward, that such a work can never be accomplished by organised efforts of scholarship and criticism, unless assisted by Divine help.

We know full well that defects must have their place in a work so long and so arduous as this which has now come to an end. Blemishes and imperfections there are in the noble Translation which we have been called upon to revise; blemishes and imperfections will assuredly be found in our own Revision. All endeavours to translate the Holy Scriptures into another tongue must fall short of their aim, when the obligation is imposed of producing a version that shall be alike literal and idiomatic, faithful to each thought of the original, and yet, in the expression of it, harmonious and free. While we dare to hope that in places not a few of the New Testament the introduction of slight changes has cast a new light upon much that was difficult and obscure, we cannot forget how often we have failed in expressing some finer shade of meaning which we recognised in the original, how often idiom has stood in the way of a perfect rendering, and how often the attempt to preserve a familiar form of words, or even a familiar cadence, has only added another perplexity to those which already beset us.

Thus, in the review of the work which we have been permitted to complete, our closing words must be words of mingled thanksgiving, humility, and prayer. Of thanksgiving, for the many blessings vouchsafed to us throughout the unbroken progress of our corporate labours; of humility, for our failings and imperfections in the fulfilment of our task; and of prayer to Almighty God, that the Gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ may be more clearly and more freshly shewn forth to all who shall be readers of this Book.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO

S. MATTHEW.

CHAP. I.

THE book of the [a] generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham.

2 [b] Abraham begat Isaac, and [c] Isaac begat Jacob, and [d] Jacob begat Judas and his brethren.

3 And [e] Judas begat Phares and Zara of Thamar, and [f] Phares begat Esrom, and Esrom begat Aram.

4 And Aram begat Aminadab, and Aminadab begat Naasson, and Naasson begat Salmon.

5 And Salmon begat Booz of Rachab, and Booz begat Obed of Ruth, and Obed begat Jesse.

6 And [g] Jesse begat David the King, and [h] David the King begat Solomon of her that had been the wife of Urias.

7 And [i] Solomon begat Roboam, and Roboam begat Abia, and Abia begat Asa.

8 And Asa begat Josaphat, and Josaphat begat Joram, and Joram begat Ozias.

9 And Ozias begat Joatham, and Joatham begat Achaz, and Achaz begat Ezekias.

10 And [k] Ezekias begat Manasses, and Manasses begat Amon, and Amon begat Josias.

11 And || Josias begat Jechonias and his brethren, about the time they were carried away to Babylon.

12 And after they were brought to Babylon, [l] Jechonias begat Salathiel, and Salathiel begat Zorobabel.

13 And Zorobabel begat Abiud, and Abiud begat Eliakim, and Eliakim begat Azor.

14 And Azor begat Sadoc, and Sadoc begat Achim, and Achim begat Eliud.

15 And Eliud begat Eleazar, and Eleazar begat Matthan, and Matthan begat Jacob.

16 And Jacob begat Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ.

17 So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations: and from David until the carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations: and from the carrying away into Babylon unto Christ are fourteen generations.

18 ¶ Now the [m] birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph (before they came together) she was found with child of the holy Ghost.

19 Then Joseph her husband being a just man, and not willing to make her a public example, was minded to put her away privily.

16 begat Jacob; and Jacob begat Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ.

17 So all the generations from Abraham unto David are fourteen generations; and from David unto the [6] carrying away to Babylon fourteen generations; and from the [6] carrying away to Babylon unto the Christ fourteen generations.

18 Now the [8] birth [9] of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When his mother Mary had been betrothed to Joseph, before they came together she was 19 found with child of the [10] Holy Ghost. And Joseph her husband, being a righteous man, and not willing to make her a public example, was minded to put her away privily.

20 But while he thought on these things, behold, the Angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife; for that which is conceived in her, is of the holy Ghost.

21 And she shall bring forth a son, [n]and thou shalt call his Name Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins.

22 (Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the Prophet, saying,

23 [o]Behold, a Virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and ‖they shall call his name Emmanuel, which, being interpreted, is God with us.)

24 Then Joseph, being raised from sleep, did as the Angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife:

25 And knew her not, till she had brought forth her firstborn son, and he called his name Jesus.

CHAP. II.

NOW when [a]Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judæa, in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came Wise men from the East to Jerusalem,

2 Saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his Star in the East, and are come to worship him.

3 When Herod the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

4 And when he had gathered all the chief Priests and Scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born.

5 And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judæa: For thus it is written by the Prophet;

6 [b]And thou Bethlehem in the land of Juda art not the least among the Princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come a Governor, that shall ‖rule my people Israel.

7 Then Herod, when he had privily called the Wise men, inquired of them diligently what time the Star appeared:

8 And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go, and search diligently for the young child, and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

9 When they had heard the King, they departed, and lo, the Star which they saw in the East, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

10 When they saw the Star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

11 ¶ And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they ‖presented unto him gifts, gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

12 And being warned of God in a dream, that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way.

13 And when they were departed, behold, the Angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream,

20 But when he thought on these things, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is [1]conceived in her is of the Holy 21 Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son; and thou shalt call his name JESUS; for it is he that 22 shall save his people from their sins. Now all this is come to pass, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Lord through the prophet, saying,

23 Behold, the virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son,
And they shall call his name [2]Immanuel;

24 which is, being interpreted, God with us. And Joseph arose from his sleep, and did as the angel of the Lord commanded him, and took unto 25 him his wife; and knew her not till she had brought forth a son: and he called his name JESUS.

2 Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judæa in the days of Herod the king, behold,
2 [3]wise men from the east came to Jerusalem, saying, [4]Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we saw his star in the east, and are
3 come to worship him. And when Herod the king heard it, he was troubled, and all Jerusa-
4 lem with him. And gathering together all the chief priests and scribes of the people, he inquired of them where the Christ should be
5 born. And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judæa: for thus it is written [5]by the prophet,

6 And thou Bethlehem, land of Judah,
Art in no wise least among the princes of Judah:
For out of thee shall come forth a governor,
Which shall be shepherd of my people Israel.

7 Then Herod privily called the [6]wise men, and learned of them carefully [7]what time the star
8 appeared. And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search out carefully concerning the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word, that I also may come and wor-
9 ship him. And they, having heard the king, went their way; and lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.
10 And when they saw the star, they rejoiced with 11 exceeding great joy. And they came into the house and saw the young child with Mary his mother; and they fell down and worshipped him; and opening their treasures they offered unto him gifts, gold and frankincense and 12 myrrh. And being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way.

13 Now when they were departed, behold, an angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise and take the young child, and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young child, to destroy him.

14 When he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt:

15 And was there until the death of Herod, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the Prophet, saying, [c]Out of Egypt have I called my son.

16 ¶ Then Herod, when he saw that he was mocked of the Wise men, was exceeding wroth, and sent forth, and slew all the children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coasts thereof, from two years old and under, according to the time, which he had diligently inquired of the Wise men.

17 Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by [d]Jeremy the Prophet, saying, 18 In Rama was there a voice heard, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.

19 ¶ But when Herod was dead, behold, an Angel of the Lord appeareth in a dream to Joseph in Egypt, 20 Saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and go into the land of Israel: for they are dead which sought the young child's life.

21 And he arose, and took the young child and his mother, and came into the land of Israel.

22 But when he heard that Archelaus did reign in Judæa in the room of his father Herod, he was afraid to go thither: notwithstanding, being warned of God in a dream, he turned aside into the parts of Galilee:

23 And he came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophets, He shall be called a Nazarene.

IN those days came [a]John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judæa,

2 And saying, Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

3 For this is he that was spoken of by the Prophet Esaias, saying, [b]The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.

4 And the same John had his raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins, and his meat was locusts and wild honey.

5 Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judæa, and all the region round about Jordan,

6 And were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins.

7 ¶ But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees come to his Baptism, he said unto them, [c]O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?

saying, Arise and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I tell thee: for Herod will seek the 14 young child to destroy him. And he arose and took the young child and his mother by 15 night, and departed into Egypt; and was there until the death of Herod: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Lord through the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt did I call
16 my son. Then Herod, when he saw that he was mocked of the [1]wise men, was exceeding wroth, and sent forth, and slew all the male children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the borders thereof, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had carefully
17 learned of the [1]wise men. Then was fulfilled that which was spoken [2]by Jeremiah the prophet, saying,

18 A voice was heard in Ramah,
Weeping and great mourning,
Rachel weeping for her children;
And she would not be comforted, because they are not.

19 But when Herod was dead, behold, an angel of the Lord appeareth in a dream to Joseph in 20 Egypt, saying, Arise and take the young child and his mother, and go into the land of Israel: for they are dead that sought the young child's 21 life. And he arose and took the young child and his mother, and came into the land of Israel.
22 But when he heard that Archelaus was reigning over Judæa in the room of his father Herod, he was afraid to go thither; and being warned of God in a dream, he withdrew into the parts
23 of Galilee, and came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken [2]by the prophets, that he should be called a Nazarene.

3 And in those days cometh John the Baptist,
2 preaching in the wilderness of Judæa, saying, Repent ye; for the kingdom of heaven is at 3 hand. For this is he that was spoken of [2]by Isaiah the prophet, saying,

The voice of one crying in the wilderness,
Make ye ready the way of the Lord,
Make his paths straight.

4 Now John himself had his raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins; and 5 his food was locusts and wild honey. Then went out unto him Jerusalem, and all Judæa,
6 and all the region round about Jordan; and they were baptized of him in the river Jordan,
7 confessing their sins. But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to his baptism, he said unto them, Ye offspring of vipers, who warned you to flee from the wrath to come?
8 Bring forth therefore fruit worthy of [3]repentance:
9 and think not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: For I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.

10 And now also the axe is laid unto the root of the trees: [c]Therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewn down, and cast into the fire.

11 [f]I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me, is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear, he shall baptize you with the holy Ghost, and with fire.

12 Whose fan is in his hand, and he will throughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner: but will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire.

13 ¶ [g]Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan, unto John, to be baptized of him:

14 But John forbade him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me?

15 And Jesus answering, said unto him, Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness. Then he suffered him.

16 And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him.

17 And lo, a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

CHAP. IV.

THEN was [a]Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted of the devil.

2 And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, he was afterward an hungred.

3 And when the tempter came to him, he said, If thou be the son of God, command that these stones be made bread.

4 But he answered, and said, It is written, [b]Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

5 Then the devil taketh him up into the holy City, and setteth him on a pinnacle of the Temple,

6 And saith unto him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down: For it is written, [c]He shall give his Angels charge concerning thee, and in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone.

7 Jesus said unto him, It is written again, [d]Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.

have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to 10 raise up children unto Abraham. And even now is the axe laid unto the root of the trees: every tree therefore that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the 11 fire. I indeed baptize you [1]with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not [2]worthy to bear: he shall baptize you [1]with the Holy 12 Ghost and with fire: whose fan is in his hand, and he will throughly cleanse his threshing-floor; and he will gather his wheat into the garner, but the chaff he will burn up with unquenchable fire.

13 Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to the Jor-
14 dan unto John, to be baptized of him. But John would have hindered him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to 15 me? But Jesus answering said unto him, Suffer [3]it now: for thus it becometh us to fulfil all 16 righteousness. Then he suffereth him. And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway from the water: and lo, the heavens were opened [4]unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending as a dove, and coming upon him;
17 and lo, a voice out of the heavens, saying, [5]This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

4 Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the
2 wilderness to be tempted of the devil. And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights,
3 he afterward hungered. And the tempter came and said unto him, If thou art the Son of God,
4 command that these stones become [6]bread. But he answered and said, It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that 5 proceedeth out of the mouth of God. Then the devil taketh him into the holy city; and 6 he set him on the [7]pinnacle of the temple, and saith unto him, If thou art the Son of God, cast thyself down: for it is written,

> He shall give his angels charge concerning thee:
> And on their hands they shall bear thee up,

15 [g]The land of Zabulon, and the land of Nephthali, by the way of the Sea beyond Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles:
16 The people which sat in darkness, saw great light: and to them which sat in the region and shadow of death, light is sprung up.
17 ¶ [h]From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

19 And he saith unto them, Follow me: and I will make you fishers of men.
20 And they straightway left their nets, and followed him.
21 And going on from thence, he saw other two brethren, James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, in a ship with Zebedee their father, mending their nets: and he called them.
22 And they immediately left the ship and their father, and followed him.
23 ¶ And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their Synagogues, and preaching the Gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness, and all manner of disease among the people.
24 And his fame went throughout all Syria: and they brought unto him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and those which were lunatic, and those that had the palsy, and he healed them.
25 And there followed him great multitudes of people, from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Jerusalem, and from Judæa, and from beyond Jordan.

CHAP. VI.

TAKE heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them: otherwise ye have no reward ‖of your father which is in heaven.

2 Therefore, [a]when thou doest thine alms, ‖do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do, in the Synagogues, and in the streets, that they may have glory of men. Verily, I say unto you, they have their reward.

3 But when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right doeth:

4 That thine alms may be in secret: And thy father which seeth in secret, himself shall reward thee openly.

24 ¶ [g]No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and Mammon.

25 Therefore I say unto you, [h]Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on: Is not the life more than meat? and the body than raiment?

26 Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns, yet your heavenly father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?

27 Which of you by taking thought, can add one cubit unto his stature?

28 And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow: they toil not, neither do they spin.

29 And yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these.

30 Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast into the oven: shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?

31 Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, what shall we drink? or wherewithal shall we be clothed?

32 (For after all these things do the Gentiles seek:) for your heavenly father knoweth that ye have need of all these things.

33 But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you.

34 Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself: sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.

CHAP. VII.

JUDGE [a]not, that ye be not judged.

2 For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: [b]and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again.

3 [c]And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?

4 Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye, and behold, a beam is in thine own eye?

5 Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye: and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye.

6 ¶ Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine: lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you.

7 ¶ [d]Ask, and it shall be given you: seek, and ye shall find: knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

9 Or what man is there of you, whom if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone?
10 Or if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent?
11 If ye then being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven, give good things to them that ask him?

13 ¶ [f]Enter ye in at the strait gate, for wide is the gate, and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat:

17 Even so, every good tree bringeth forth good fruit: but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit.
18 A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

WHEN he was come down from the Mountain, great multitudes followed him.

2 [a]And behold, there came a leper, and worshipped him, saying, Lord, If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

3 And Jesus put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will, be thou clean. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed.

4 And Jesus saith unto him, See thou tell no man, but go thy way, shew thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that [b]Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

5 ¶ [c]And when Jesus was entered into Capernaum, there came unto him a Centurion, beseeching him,

6 And saying, Lord, my servant lieth at home sick of the palsy, grievously tormented.

7 And Jesus saith unto him, I will come, and heal him.

8 The Centurion answered, and said, Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof: but speak the word only, and my servant shall be healed.

9 For I am a man under authority, having soldiers under me: and I say to this man, Go, and he goeth: and to another, Come, and he cometh: and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

10 When Jesus heard it, he marvelled, and said to them that followed, Verily, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no not in Israel.

11 And I say unto you, that many shall come from the East and West, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven:

12 But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

13 And Jesus said unto the Centurion, Go thy way, and as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee. And his servant was healed in the selfsame hour.

14 ¶ [d]And when Jesus was come into Peter's house, he saw his wife's mother laid, and sick of a fever:

15 And he touched her hand, and the fever left her: and she arose, and ministered unto them.

16 ¶ [e]When the Even was come, they brought unto him many that were possessed with devils: and he cast out the spirits with his word, and healed all that were sick, 17 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the Prophet, saying, [f]Himself took our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses.

18 ¶ Now when Jesus saw great multitudes about him, he gave commandment to depart unto the other side.

19 [g]And a certain Scribe came, and said unto him, Master, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.

20 And Jesus saith unto him, The Foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests: but the son of man hath not where to lay his head.

27 And as Jesus passed by from thence, two blind men followed him, crying out, and saying, Have mercy on us, thou son of David.

28 And when he was come into the house, the blind men came to him: and Jesus saith unto them, Believe ye that I am able to do this? They said unto him, Yea, Lord.

29 Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you.

30 And their eyes were opened: and Jesus straitly charged them, saying, See that no man know it.

31 But they, when they were departed, spread abroad his fame in all that country.

32 ¶ [g]As they went out, behold, they brought to him a dumb man possessed with a devil.

33 And when the devil was cast out, the dumb spake, and the multitudes marvelled, saying, It was never so seen in Israel.

34 But the Pharisees said, [h]He casteth out the devils through the prince of the devils.

35 [i]And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their Synagogues, and preaching the Gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness, and every disease among the people.

36 ¶ [k]But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they ‖fainted, and were scattered abroad, [l]as sheep having no shepherd.

37 Then saith he unto his disciples, [m]The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few.

38 Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest.

AND [a]when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power ‖against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease.

2 Now the names of the twelve Apostles are these: The first, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother, James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother:

3 Philip, and Bartholomew, Thomas, and Matthew the Publican, James the son of Alphæus, and Lebbæus, whose surname was Thaddæus:

4 Simon the Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.

5 These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not:

6 [b]But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

7 And as ye go, preach, saying, [c]The kingdom of heaven is at hand:

9 [d]‖Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses:

10 Nor scrip for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves: ([e]for the workman is worthy of his meat.)

11 [f]And into whatsoever city or town ye shall enter, inquire who in it is worthy, and there abide till ye go thence.

of Sodom in the day of judgement, than for thee.

25 At that season Jesus answered and said, I [9]thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou didst hide these things from the wise and understanding, and didst reveal 26 them unto babes: yea, Father, [10]for so it was 27 well-pleasing in thy sight. All things have been delivered unto me of my Father: and no one knoweth the Son, save the Father; neither doth any know the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son willeth to reveal him.

29 laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your 30 souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.

12 At that season Jesus went on the sabbath day through the cornfields; and his disciples were an hungred, and began to pluck ears of corn, 2 and to eat. But the Pharisees, when they saw it, said unto him, Behold, thy disciples do that which it is not lawful to do upon the sabbath.

3 But he said unto them, Have ye not read [b]what David did when he was an hungred, and they that were with him,

4 How he entered into the house of God, and did eat the shewbread, which was not lawful for him to eat, neither for them which were with him, [c]but only for the Priests?

5 Or have ye not read in the [d]law, how that on the Sabbath days the Priests in the Temple profane the Sabbath, and are blameless?

6 But I say unto you, that in this place is one greater than the Temple.

7 But if ye had known what this meaneth, [e]I will have mercy, and not sacrifice, ye would not have condemned the guiltless.

8 For the son of man is Lord even of the Sabbath day.

9 [f]And when he was departed thence, he went into their Synagogue.

10 ¶ And behold, there was a man which had his hand withered, and they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath days? that they might accuse him.

11 And he said unto them, What man shall there be among you, that shall have one sheep: and if it fall into a pit on the Sabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it out?

12 How much then is a man better than a sheep? Wherefore it is lawful to do well on the Sabbath days.

13 Then saith he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand: and he stretched it forth, and it was restored whole, like as the other.

14 ¶ Then the Pharisees went out, and ‖held a council against him, how they might destroy him.

15 But when Jesus knew it, he withdrew himself from thence: and great multitudes followed him, and he healed them all,

16 And charged them that they should not make him known:

17 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the Prophet, saying,

18 [g]Behold, my servant whom I have chosen, my beloved in whom my soul is well pleased: I will put my spirit upon him, and he shall shew judgment to the Gentiles.

19 He shall not strive, nor cry, neither shall any man hear his voice in the streets.

20 A bruised reed shall he not break, and smoking flax shall he not quench, till he send forth judgment unto victory.

21 And in his name shall the Gentiles trust.

22 ¶ [h]Then was brought unto him one possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb: and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumb both spake and saw.

23 And all the people were amazed, and said, Is this the son of David?

24 [i]But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, This fellow doth not cast out devils, but by Beelzebub the prince of the devils.

6 ple profane the sabbath, and are guiltless? But I say unto you, that [2]one greater than the tem-
7 ple is here. But if ye had known what this meaneth, I desire mercy, and not sacrifice, ye 8 would not have condemned the guiltless. For the Son of man is lord of the sabbath.
9 And he departed thence, and went into their 10 synagogue: and behold, a man having a withered hand. And they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath day? that they 11 might accuse him. And he said unto them, What man shall there be of you, that shall have one sheep, and if this fall into a pit on the sabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it
12 out? How much then is a man of more value than a sheep! Wherefore it is lawful to do 13 good on the sabbath day. Then saith he to the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he stretched it forth; and it was restored whole, as the other.
14 But the Pharisees went out, and took counsel
15 against him, how they might destroy him. And Jesus perceiving it withdrew from thence: and many followed him; and he healed them all,
16 and charged them that they should not make 17 him known: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken [3]by Isaiah the prophet, saying,

18 Behold, my servant whom I have chosen;
My beloved in whom my soul is well pleased:
I will put my Spirit upon him,
And he shall declare judgement to the Gentiles.
19 He shall not strive, nor cry aloud;
Neither shall any one hear his voice in the streets.
20 A bruised reed shall he not break,
And smoking flax shall he not quench,
Till he send forth judgement unto victory.
21 And in his name shall the Gentiles hope.

22 Then was brought unto him [4]one possessed with a devil, blind and dumb: and he healed him, insomuch that the dumb
23 man spake and saw. And all the multitudes were amazed, and said, Is this the son 24 of David? But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, This man doth not cast out [5]devils, but [6]by Beelzebub the prince of the [5]devils.

25 And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself, is brought to desolation: and every city or house divided against itself, shall not stand.
26 And if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand?
27 And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? Therefore they shall be your Judges.
28 But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you.
29 Or else, how can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man, and then he will spoil his house.
30 He that is not with me, is against me: and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth abroad.
31 ¶ Wherefore I say unto you, [k] All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men: but the blasphemy against the holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men.
32 And whosoever speaketh a word against the son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but whosoever speaketh against the holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come.
33 Either make the tree good, and his fruit good: Or else make the tree corrupt, and his fruit corrupt: For the tree is known by his fruit.
34 O generation of vipers, how can ye, being evil, speak good things? [l] For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.
35 A good man out of the good treasure of the heart, bringeth forth good things: and an evil man out of the evil treasure, bringeth forth evil things.
36 But I say unto you, That every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of Judgment.
37 For by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned.
38 ¶ [m] Then certain of the Scribes, and of the Pharisees, answered, saying, Master, we would see a sign from thee.
39 But he answered, and said to them, An evil and adulterous [1] generation seeketh after a sign, and there shall no sign be given to it, but the sign of the Prophet Jonas.
40 [n] For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly: so shall the son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth.
41 The men of Nineveh shall rise in judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it, [o] because they repented at the preaching of Jonas, and behold, a greater than Jonas is here.
42 [p] The Queen of the South shall rise up in the judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for she came from the uttermost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and behold, a greater than Solomon is here.

46 ¶ While he yet talked to the people, [s]behold, his mother and his brethren stood without, desiring to speak with him.
47 Then one said unto him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to speak with thee.
48 But he answered, and said unto him that told him, Who is my mother? And who are my brethren?
49 And he stretched forth his hand toward his disciples, and said, Behold, my mother and my brethren.
50 For whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother.

CHAP. XIII.

THE same day went Jesus out of the house, [a]and sat by the sea side.
2 And great multitudes were gathered together unto him, so that he went into a ship, and sat, and the whole multitude stood on the shore.
3 And he spake many things unto them in parables, saying, [b]Behold, a sower went forth to sow.
4 And when he sowed, some seeds fell by the way side, and the fowls came, and devoured them up.
5 Some fell upon stony places, where they had not much earth: and forthwith they sprung up, because they had no deepness of earth.
6 And when the Sun was up, they were scorched: and because they had not root, they withered away.
7 And some fell among thorns: and the thorns sprung up, and choked them.
8 But other fell into good ground, and brought forth fruit, some an hundredfold, some sixtyfold, some thirtyfold.
9 Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.
10 And the disciples came, and said unto him, Why speakest thou unto them in parables?
11 He answered, and said unto them, Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given.
12 [c]For whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance: but whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken away, even that he hath.
13 Therefore speak I to them in parables: because they seeing see not: and hearing they hear not, neither do they understand.
14 And in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Esaias, which saith, [d]By hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand: and seeing ye shall see, and shall not perceive.

13 On that day went Jesus out of the house,
2 and sat by the sea side. And there were gathered unto him great multitudes, so that he entered into a boat, and sat; and all the mul-
3 titude stood on the beach. And he spake to them many things in parables, saying, Behold,
4 the sower went forth to sow; and as he sowed, some seeds fell by the way side, and the birds
5 came and devoured them: and others fell upon the rocky places, where they had not much earth: and straightway they sprang up, because 6 they had no deepness of earth: and when the sun was risen, they were scorched; and because 7 they had no root, they withered away. And others fell upon the thorns; and the thorns

[3] Some ancient authorities omit ver. 47.
[4] Some ancient authorities add here, and in ver. 43, to hear: as in Mark iv. 9; Luke viii. 8.

15 For this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed, lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them.

16 But blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your ears, for they hear.

17 For verily I say unto you, [e]that many Prophets, and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them: and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.

18 ¶ Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower.

19 When any one heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one, and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart: this is he which received seed by the way side.

20 But he that received the seed into stony places, the same is he that heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it:

21 Yet hath he not root in himself, but dureth for a while: for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended.

22 He also that received seed among the thorns, is he that heareth the word, and the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches choke the word, and he becometh unfruitful.

23 But he that received seed into the good ground, is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it, which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, some an hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty.

24 ¶ Another parable put he forth unto them, saying; The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field:

25 But while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way.

26 But when the blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also.

27 So the servants of the householder came, and said unto him, Sir, didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? from whence then hath it tares?

28 He said unto them, An enemy hath done this. The servants said unto him, Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up?

29 But he said, Nay: lest while ye gather up the tares, ye root up also the wheat with them.

30 Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of harvest, I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn.

31 ¶ Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, [f]The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and sowed in his field.

32 Which indeed is the least of all seeds: but when it is grown, it is the greatest among herbs, and becometh a tree: so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof.

15 For this people's heart is waxed gross,
And their ears are dull of hearing,
And their eyes they have closed;
Lest haply they should perceive with their eyes,
And hear with their ears,
And understand with their heart,
And should turn again,
And I should heal them.

16 But blessed are your eyes, for they see; and 17 your ears, for they hear. For verily I say unto you, that many prophets and righteous men desired to see the things which ye see, and saw them not; and to hear the things which ye 18 hear, and heard them not. Hear then ye the 19 parable of the sower. When any one heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not, then cometh the evil one, and snatcheth away that which hath been sown in his heart.
20 This is he that was sown by the way side. And he that was sown upon the rocky places, this is he that heareth the word, and straightway with 21 joy receiveth it; yet hath he not root in himself, but endureth for a while; and when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word,
22 straightway he stumbleth. And he that was sown among the thorns, this is he that heareth the word; and the care of the [1]world, and the deceitfulness of riches, choke the word, and he 23 becometh unfruitful. And he that was sown upon the good ground, this is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it; who verily beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, some a hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty.

24 Another parable set he before them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man
25 that sowed good seed in his field: but while men slept, his enemy came and sowed [2]tares also 26 among the wheat, and went away. But when the blade sprang up, and brought forth fruit, 27 then appeared the tares also. And the [3]servants of the householder came and said unto him, Sir, didst thou not sow good seed in thy 28 field? whence then hath it tares? And he said unto them, [4]An enemy hath done this. And the [3]servants say unto him, Wilt thou then that 29 we go and gather them up? But he saith, Nay; lest haply while ye gather up the tares, ye root 30 up the wheat with them. Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather up first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn.

31 Another parable set he before them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is like unto a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and sowed in 32 his field: which indeed is less than all seeds; but when it is grown, it is greater than the herbs, and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the heaven come and lodge in the branches thereof.

33 ¶ [g]Another parable spake he unto them, The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three †measures of meal, till the whole was leavened.

34 [h]All these things spake Jesus unto the multitude in parables, and without a parable spake he not unto them:

35 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophet, saying, [i]I will open my mouth in parables, I will utter things which have been kept secret from the foundation of the world.

36 Then Jesus sent the multitude away, and went into the house: and his disciples came unto him, saying, Declare unto us the parable of the tares of the field.

37 He answered, and said unto them, He that soweth the good seed is the son of man.

38 The field is the world. The good seed are the children of the kingdom: but the tares are the children of the wicked one.

39 The enemy that sowed them is the devil. [k]The harvest is the end of the world. And the reapers are the Angels.

40 As therefore the tares are gathered and burnt in the fire: so shall it be in the end of this world.

41 The Son of man shall send forth his Angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all ‖things that offend, and them which do iniquity:

42 And shall cast them into a furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

43 [l]Then shall the righteous shine forth as the Sun, in the kingdom of their father. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

44 ¶ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hid in a field: the which when a man hath found, he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field.

45 ¶ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a merchant man, seeking goodly pearls:

46 Who when he had found one pearl of great price, he went and sold all that he had, and bought it.

47 ¶ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind, 48 Which, when it was full, they drew to shore, and sat down, and gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad away.

49 So shall it be at the end of the world: the Angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from among the just,

50 And shall cast them into the furnace of fire: there shall be wailing, and gnashing of teeth.

51 Jesus saith unto them, Have ye understood all these things? They say unto him, Yea, Lord.

52 Then said he unto them, Therefore every Scribe which is instructed unto the kingdom of heaven, is like unto a man that is an householder, which bringeth forth out of his treasure things new and old.

CHAP. XIV.

AT that time [a] Herod the Tetrarch heard of the fame of Jesus,

2 And said unto his servants, This is John the Baptist, he is risen from the dead, and therefore mighty works ‖ do shew forth themselves in him.

3 ¶ [b] For Herod had laid hold on John, and bound him, and put him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife.

4 For John said unto him, [c] It is not lawful for thee to have her.

5 And when he would have put him to death, he feared the multitude, [d] because they counted him as a Prophet.

6 But when Herod's birthday was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleased Herod.

7 Whereupon he promised with an oath, to give her whatsoever she would ask.

8 And she, being before instructed of her mother, said, Give me here John Baptist's head in a charger.

9 And the king was sorry: nevertheless for the oaths' sake, and them which sat with him at meat, he commanded it to be given her:

10 And he sent, and beheaded John in the prison.

11 And his head was brought in a charger, and given to the Damsel: and she brought it to her mother.

12 And his Disciples came, and took up the body, and buried it, and went and told Jesus.

13 ¶ [e] When Jesus heard of it, he departed thence by ship, into a desert place apart: and when the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foot, out of the cities.

14 And Jesus went forth, and saw a great multitude, and was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick.

15 ¶ [f] And when it was evening, his Disciples came to him, saying, This is a desert place, and the time is now past; send the multitude away, that they may go into the villages, and buy themselves victuals.

16 But Jesus said unto them, They need not depart; give ye them to eat.

57 things? And they were [2] offended in him. But Jesus said unto them, A prophet is not without honour, save in his own country, and in his own 58 house. And he did not many [1] mighty works there because of their unbelief.

14 At that season Herod the tetrarch heard the
2 report concerning Jesus, and said unto his servants, This is John the Baptist; he is risen from the dead; and therefore do these powers work in 3 him. For Herod had laid hold on John, and bound him, and put him in prison for the sake
4 of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife. For John said unto him, It is not lawful for thee to have 5 her. And when he would have put him to death, he feared the multitude, because they 6 counted him as a prophet. But when Herod's birthday came, the daughter of Herodias danced
7 in the midst, and pleased Herod. Whereupon he promised with an oath to give her whatsoever
8 she should ask. And she, being put forward by her mother, saith, Give me here in a charger the 9 head of John the Baptist. And the king was grieved; but for the sake of his oaths, and of them which sat at meat with him, he commanded
10 it to be given; and he sent, and beheaded John 11 in the prison. And his head was brought in a charger, and given to the damsel: and she 12 brought it to her mother. And his disciples came, and took up the corpse, and buried him; and they went and told Jesus.

13 Now when Jesus heard it, he withdrew from thence in a boat, to a desert place apart: and when the multitudes heard thereof, they fol-
14 lowed him [3] on foot from the cities. And he came forth, and saw a great multitude, and he had compassion on them, and healed their sick.
15 And when even was come, the disciples came to him, saying, The place is desert, and the time is already past; send the multitudes away, that they may go into the villages, and buy them-
16 selves food. But Jesus said unto them, They have no need to go away; give ye them to eat.

17 And they say unto him, We have here but five loaves, and two fishes.
18 He said, Bring them hither to me.
19 And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the grass, and took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed, and brake, and gave the loaves to his Disciples, and the Disciples to the multitude.
20 And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the fragments that remained twelve baskets full.
21 And they that had eaten, were about five thousand men, beside women and children.
22 ¶ And straightway Jesus constrained his Disciples to get into a ship, and to go before him unto the other side, while he sent the multitudes away.
23 [g]And when he had sent the multitudes away, he went up into a mountain apart to pray: [h]and when the evening was come, he was there alone:
24 But the ship was now in the midst of the Sea, tossed with waves: for the wind was contrary.
25 And in the fourth watch of the night, Jesus went unto them, walking on the Sea.
26 And when the Disciples saw him walking on the Sea, they were troubled, saying, It is a spirit: and they cried out for fear.
27 But straightway Jesus spake unto them, saying, Be of good cheer: it is I, be not afraid.
28 And Peter answered him, and said, Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water.
29 And he said, Come. And when Peter was come down out of the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus.
30 But when he saw the wind ‖boisterous, he was afraid: and beginning to sink, he cried, saying, Lord save me.
31 And immediately Jesus stretched forth his hand, and caught him, and said unto him, O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?
32 And when they were come into the ship, the wind ceased.
33 Then they that were in the ship, came and worshipped him, saying, Of a truth thou art the son of God.
34 ¶ [i]And when they were gone over, they came into the land of Gennesaret.
35 And when the men of that place had knowledge of him, they sent out into all that country round about, and brought unto him all that were diseased, 36 And besought him, that they might only touch the hem of his garment; and as many as touched, were made perfectly whole.

THEN [a]came to Jesus Scribes and Pharisees, which were of Jerusalem, saying,
2 Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the Elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread.

15 Then there come to Jesus from Jerusalem
2 Pharisees and scribes, saying, Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when 3 they eat bread. And he answered and said unto them, Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God because of your tradition?

4 For God commanded, saying, [b]Honour thy father and mother: And [c]he that curseth father or mother, let him die the death.

5 But ye say, Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother, [d]It is a gift by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me,

6 And honour not his father or his mother, he shall be free. Thus have ye made the Commandment of God of none effect by your tradition.

7 Ye hypocrites, well did Esaias prophesy of you, saying,

8 [e]This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips: but their heart is far from me.

9 But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

10 ¶ [f]And he called the multitude, and said unto them, Hear and understand.

11 Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man: but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man.

12 Then came his disciples, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the Pharisees were offended after they heard this saying?

13 But he answered, and said, [g]Every plant which my heavenly father hath not planted, shall be rooted up.

14 Let them alone: [h]they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch.

15 [i]Then answered Peter, and said unto him, Declare unto us this parable.

16 And Jesus said, Are ye also yet without understanding?

17 Do not ye yet understand, that whatsoever entereth in at the mouth, goeth into the belly, and is cast out into the draught?

18 But those things which proceed out of the mouth, come forth from the heart, and they defile the man.

19 [k]For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies.

20 These are the things which defile a man: But to eat with unwashen hands defileth not a man.

21 ¶ [l]Then Jesus went thence, and departed into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon.

22 And behold, a woman of Canaan came out of the same coasts, and cried unto him, saying, Have mercy on me, O Lord, thou son of David, my daughter is grievously vexed with a devil.

23 But he answered her not a word. And his disciples came, and besought him, saying, Send her away, for she crieth after us.

24 But he answered, and said, [m]I am not sent, but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

25 Then came she, and worshipped him, saying, Lord, help me.

26 But he answered, and said, It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs.

27 And she said, Truth Lord: yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their masters' table.

say, Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother, That wherewith thou mightest have 6 been profited by me is given to God; he shall

21 And Jesus went out thence, and withdrew 22 into the parts of Tyre and Sidon. And behold, a Canaanitish woman came out from those borders, and cried, saying, Have mercy on me, O
Lord, thou son of David; my daughter is griev-said, It is not meet to take the children's 27 [7]bread and cast it to the dogs. But she said, Yea, Lord: for even the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their masters' table.

28 Then Jesus answered, and said unto her, O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou wilt. And her daughter was made whole from that very hour.

29 [n]And Jesus departed from thence, and came nigh unto the sea of Galilee, and went up into a mountain, and sat down there.

30 [o]And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet, and he healed them:

31 Insomuch that the multitude wondered, when they saw the dumb to speak, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see: and they glorified the God of Israel.

32 ¶ [p]Then Jesus called his disciples unto him, and said, I have compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three days, and have nothing to eat: and I will not send them away fasting, lest they faint in the way.

33 And his disciples say unto him, Whence should we have so much bread in the wilderness, as to fill so great a multitude?

34 And Jesus saith unto them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven, and a few little fishes.

35 And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the ground.

36 And he took the seven loaves and the fishes, and gave thanks, and brake them, and gave to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.

37 And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the broken meat that was left, seven baskets full.

38 And they that did eat were four thousand men, beside women and children.

39 And he sent away the multitude, and took ship, and came into the coasts of Magdala.

5 And when his disciples were come to the other side, they had forgotten to take bread.

6 ¶ Then Jesus said unto them, Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the Sadducees.

28 Then Jesus answered and said unto her, O woman, great is thy faith: be it done unto thee even as thou wilt. And her daughter was healed from that hour.

29 And Jesus departed thence, and came nigh unto the sea of Galilee; and he went up into 30 the mountain, and sat there. And there came unto him great multitudes, having with them the lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and they cast them down at his feet; and 31 he healed them: insomuch that the multitude wondered, when they saw the dumb speaking, the maimed whole, and the lame walking, and the blind seeing: and they glorified the God of Israel.

32 And Jesus called unto him his disciples, and said, I have compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three days and have nothing to eat: and I would not send them away fasting, lest haply they faint in the 33 way. And the disciples say unto him, Whence should we have so many loaves in a desert place, 34 as to fill so great a multitude? And Jesus saith unto them, How many loaves have ye? And 35 they said, Seven, and a few small fishes. And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the 36 ground; and he took the seven loaves and the fishes; and he gave thanks and brake, and gave to the disciples, and the disciples to the multi-

4 terous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given unto it, but the sign of Jonah. And he left them, and departed.

5 And the disciples came to the other side and 6 forgot to take [2]bread. And Jesus said unto them, Take heed and beware of the leaven of 7 the Pharisees and Sadducees. And they reasoned among themselves, saying, [3]We took

[1] The following words, to the end of ver. 3, are omitted by some of the most ancient and other important authorities.

1611

O ye of little faith, why reason ye among yourselves, because ye have brought no bread?

9 [b]Do ye not yet understand, neither remember the five loaves of the five thousand, and how many baskets ye took up?

10 [c]Neither the seven loaves of the four thousand, and how many baskets ye took up?

11 How is it that ye do not understand, that I spake it not to you concerning bread, that ye should beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the Sadducees?

12 Then understood they how that he bade them not beware of the leaven of bread: but of the doctrine of the Pharisees, and of the Sadducees.

13 ¶ When Jesus came into the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, [d]Whom do men say, that I, the son of man, am?

14 And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist, some Elias, and others Jeremias, or one of the Prophets.

15 He saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am?

16 And Simon Peter answered, and said, [e]Thou art Christ the son of the living God.

17 And Jesus answered, and said unto him, Blessed art thou Simon Bar-jona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven.

18 And I say also unto thee, that [f]thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church: and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.

19 [g]And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth, shall be bound in heaven: whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth, shall be loosed in heaven.

20 Then charged he his disciples that they should tell no man that he was Jesus the Christ.

21 ¶ From that time forth began Jesus to shew unto his disciples, how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the Elders and chief Priests and Scribes, and be killed, and be raised again the third day.

22 Then Peter took him, and began to rebuke him, saying, Be it far from thee Lord: This shall not be unto thee.

23 But he turned, and said unto Peter, Get thee behind me, Satan, thou art an offence unto me: for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men.

24 ¶ [h]Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

25 For whosoever will save his life, shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for my sake, shall find it.

26 For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

27 For the son of man shall come in the glory of his father, with his Angels: [i] and then he shall reward every man according to his works.

AND [a]after six days, Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into an high mountain apart,

2 And was transfigured before them, and his face did shine as the Sun, and his raiment was white as the light.

3 And behold, there appeared unto them Moses, and Elias, talking with him.

4 Then answered Peter, and said unto Jesus, Lord, it is good for us to be here: If thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles: one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

5 [b]While he yet spake, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them: and behold a voice out of the cloud, which said, This is my beloved son, in whom I am well pleased: hear ye him.

6 And when the disciples heard it, they fell on their face, and were sore afraid.

7 And Jesus came and touched them, and said, Arise, and be not afraid.

8 And when they had lift up their eyes, they saw no man, save Jesus only.

9 And as they came down from the mountain, Jesus charged them, saying, Tell the vision to no man, until the son of man be risen again from the dead.

11 Elijah must first come? And he answered and said, Elijah indeed cometh, and shall restore all 12 things: but I say unto you, that Elijah is come already, and they knew him not, but did unto him whatsoever they listed. Even so shall the 13 Son of man also suffer of them. Then understood the disciples that he spake unto them of John the Baptist.
14 And when they were come to the multitude, there came to him a man, kneeling to him, and 15 saying, Lord, have mercy on my son: for he is epileptic, and suffereth grievously: for oft-times he falleth into the fire, and oft-times into the 16 water. And I brought him to thy disciples, and 17 they could not cure him. And Jesus answered and said, O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I
18 bear with you? bring him hither to me. And Jesus rebuked him; and the [2]devil went out from him: and the boy was cured from that 19 hour. Then came the disciples to Jesus apart, 20 and said, Why could not we cast it out? And he saith unto them, Because of your little faith: for verily I say unto you, If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove, and nothing shall be impossible unto you.

21 Howbeit, this kind goeth not out, but by prayer and fasting.

22 ¶ [f]And while they abode in Galilee, Jesus said unto them, The son of man shall be betrayed into the hands of men:

23 And they shall kill him, and the third day he shall be raised again: And they were exceeding sorry.

24 ¶ And when they were come to Capernaum, they that received ‖tribute money, came to Peter, and said, Doth not your master pay tribute?

25 He saith, Yes. And when he was come into the house, Jesus prevented him, saying, What thinkest thou, Simon? of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers?

26 Peter saith unto him, Of strangers. Jesus saith unto him, Then are the children free.

27 Notwithstanding, lest we should offend them, go thou to the Sea, and cast an hook, and take up the fish that first cometh up: and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt find ‖a piece of money: that take, and give unto them for me, and thee.

CHAP. XVIII.

AT [a]the same time came the Disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the Kingdom of heaven?

2 And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them,

3 And said, Verily I say unto you, [b]Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the Kingdom of heaven.

4 Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the Kingdom of heaven.

5 And whoso shall receive one such little child in my name, receiveth me.

6 [c]But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the Sea.

7 ¶ Woe unto the world because of offences: for it must needs be that offences come: but woe to that man by whom the offence cometh.

8 [d]Wherefore if thy hand or thy foot offend thee, cut them off, and cast them from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, rather than having two hands or two feet, to be cast into everlasting fire.

9 And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire.

10 Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones: for I say unto you, that in heaven their Angels do always behold the face of my father which is in heaven.

11 [e]For the son of man is come to save that which was lost.

18 In that hour came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who then is [6]greatest in the kingdom
2 of heaven? And he called to him a little child,
3 and set him in the midst of them, and said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye turn, and become as little children, ye shall in no wise
4 enter into the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is the [6]greatest in the king-
5 dom of heaven. And whoso shall receive one
6 such little child in my name receiveth me: but whoso shall cause one of these little ones which believe on me to stumble, it is profitable for him that [7]a great millstone should be hanged about his neck, and that he should be sunk in the
7 depth of the sea. Woe unto the world because of occasions of stumbling! for it must needs be that the occasions come; but woe to that man
8 through whom the occasion cometh! And if thy hand or thy foot causeth thee to stumble, cut it off, and cast it from thee: it is good for thee to enter into life maimed or halt, rather than having two hands or two feet to be cast

12 [f]How think ye? if a man have an hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine, and goeth into the mountains, and seeketh that which is gone astray?

13 And if so be that he find it, Verily I say unto you, he rejoiceth more of that sheep, than of the ninety and nine which went not astray.

14 Even so, it is not the will of your father which is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish.

15 ¶ Moreover, [g]if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother.

16 But if he will not hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in [h]the mouth of two or three witnesses, every word may be established.

17 And if he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the Church: But if he neglect to hear the Church, let him be unto thee as an [i]heathen man, and a Publican.

18 Verily I say unto you, [k]Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth, shall be bound in heaven: and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth, shall be loosed in heaven.

19 Again I say unto you, that if two of you shall agree on earth as touching any thing that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my father which is in heaven.

26 The servant therefore fell down, and ‖worshipped him, saying, Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.

27 Then the Lord of that servant was moved with compassion, and loosed him, and forgave him the debt.

28 But the same servant went out, and found one of his fellowservants, which owed him an hundred ‖pence: and he laid hands on him, and took him by the throat, saying, Pay me that thou owest.

22 give him? until seven times? Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, Until seven times;
23 but, Until [5]seventy times seven. Therefore is the kingdom of heaven likened unto a certain king, which would make a reckoning with his
24 [6]servants. And when he had begun to reckon, one was brought unto him, which owed him
25 ten thousand [7]talents. But forasmuch as he had not wherewith to pay, his lord commanded him to be sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made.
26 The [8]servant therefore fell down and worshipped him, saying, Lord, have patience with me,
27 and I will pay thee all. And the lord of that [8]servant, being moved with compassion, released 28 him, and forgave him the [9]debt. But that [8]servant went out, and found one of his fellow-servants, which owed him a hundred [10]pence: and he laid hold on him, and took him by the 29 throat, saying, Pay what thou owest. So his fellow-servant fell down and besought him, saying, Have patience with me, and I will pay thee.

30 And he would not: but went and cast him into prison, till he should pay the debt.
31 So when his fellowservants saw what was done, they were very sorry, and came, and told unto their lord all that was done.
32 Then his lord, after that he had called him, said unto him, O thou wicked servant, I forgave thee all that debt because thou desiredst me:
33 Shouldest not thou also have had compassion on thy fellowservant, even as I had pity on thee?
34 And his lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due unto him.
35 So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses.

AND it came to pass, [a]that when Jesus had finished these sayings, he departed from Galilee, and came into the coasts of Judæa, beyond Jordan:
2 And great multitudes followed him, and he healed them there.
3 ¶ The Pharisees also came unto him, tempting him, and saying unto him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause?
4 And he answered, and said unto them, Have ye not read, [b]that he which made them at the beginning, made them male and female?
5 And said, [c]For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife: and [d]they twain shall be one flesh.
6 Wherefore they are no more twain, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.
7 They say unto him, [e]Why did Moses then command to give a writing of divorcement, and to put her away?
8 He saith unto them, Moses, because of the hardness of your hearts, suffered you to put away your wives: but from the beginning it was not so.
9 [f]And I say unto you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery: and whoso marrieth her which is put away, doth commit adultery.
10 ¶ His disciples say unto him, If the case of the man be so with his wife, it is not good to marry.
11 But he said unto them, All men cannot receive this saying, save they to whom it is given.
12 For there are some Eunuchs, which were so born from their mother's womb: and there are some Eunuchs, which were made Eunuchs of men: and there be Eunuchs, which have made themselves Eunuchs for the kingdom of heaven's sake. He that is able to receive it, let him receive it.
13 ¶ [g]Then were there brought unto him little children, that he should put his hands on them, and pray: and the disciples rebuked them.
14 But Jesus said, Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

19 Honour thy father and thy mother: and, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

20 The young man saith unto him, All these things have I kept from my youth up: what lack I yet?

21 Jesus said unto him, If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow me.

22 But when the young man heard that saying, he went away sorrowful: for he had great possessions.

23 ¶ Then said Jesus unto his disciples, Verily I say unto you, that a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven.

24 And again I say unto you, It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

12 the householder, saying, These last have spent but one hour, and thou hast made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden of the 13 day and the [2]scorching heat. But he answered and said to one of them, Friend, I do thee no wrong: didst not thou agree with me for a 14 [1]penny? Take up that which is thine, and go thy way; it is my will to give unto this last, 15 even as unto thee. Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? or is thine eye 16 evil, because I am good? So the last shall be first, and the first last.

17 And as Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took the twelve disciples apart, and in the way 18 he said unto them, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be delivered unto the chief priests and scribes; and they 19 shall condemn him to death, and shall deliver him unto the Gentiles to mock, and to scourge, and to crucify: and the third day he shall be raised up.

20 Then came to him the mother of the sons of Zebedee with her sons, worshipping him, and 21 asking a certain thing of him. And he said unto her, What wouldest thou? She saith unto him, Command that these my two sons may sit, one on thy right hand, and one on thy 22 left hand, in thy kingdom. But Jesus answered and said, Ye know not what ye ask. Are ye able to drink the cup that I am about to drink?
23 They say unto him, We are able. He saith unto them, My cup indeed ye shall drink: but to sit on my right hand, and on my left hand, is not mine to give, but it is for them for whom it hath been prepared of my Father.

24 And when the ten heard it, they were moved with indignation against the two brethren.
25 But Jesus called them unto him, and said, [e]Ye know that the princes of the Gentiles exercise dominion over them, and they that are great, exercise authority upon them.
26 But it shall not be so among you: But whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister.
27 And whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant.
28 Even as the [f]Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.
29 [g]And as they departed from Jericho, a great multitude followed him.
30 ¶And behold, two blind men sitting by the way side, when they heard that Jesus passed by, cried out, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou son of David.
31 And the multitude rebuked them, because they should hold their peace: but they cried the more, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou son of David.
32 And Jesus stood still, and called them, and said, What will ye that I shall do unto you?
33 They say unto him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened.
34 So Jesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes: and immediately their eyes received sight, and they followed him.

AND [a]when they drew nigh unto Jerusalem, and were come to Bethphage, unto the mount of Olives, then sent Jesus two Disciples,
2 Saying unto them, Go into the village over against you, and straightway ye shall find an Ass tied, and a colt with her: loose them, and bring them unto me.
3 And if any man say ought unto you, ye shall say, The Lord hath need of them, and straightway he will send them.
4 All this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophet, saying,
5 [b]Tell ye the daughter of Sion, Behold, thy king cometh unto thee, meek, and sitting upon an Ass, and a colt, the foal of an Ass.
6 [c]And the Disciples went, and did as Jesus commanded them,
7 And brought the Ass, and the colt, and put on them their clothes, and they set him thereon.
8 And a very great multitude spread their garments in the way, others cut down branches from the trees, and strewed them in the way.
9 And the multitudes that went before, and that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna to the son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the Name of the Lord, Hosanna in the highest.
10 [d]And when he was come into Jerusalem, all the city was moved, saying, Who is this?
11 And the multitude said, This is Jesus the Prophet of Nazareth of Galilee.

39 and first commandment. [4]And a second like unto it is this, Thou shalt love thy neighbour
40 as thyself. On these two commandments hangeth the whole law, and the prophets.
41 Now while the Pharisees were gathered to-42 gether, Jesus asked them a question, saying,
43 What think ye of the Christ? whose son is he? They say unto him, The son of David. He saith unto them, How then doth David in the Spirit call him Lord, saying,

44 The Lord said unto my Lord,
Sit thou on my right hand,
Till I put thine enemies underneath thy feet?

45 If David then calleth him Lord, how is he his 46 son? And no one was able to answer him a word, neither durst any man from that day forth ask him any more questions.

23 Then spake Jesus to the multitudes and to
2 his disciples, saying, The scribes and the Phari-
3 sees sit on Moses' seat: all things therefore whatsoever they bid you, these do and observe: but do not ye after their works; for they say,
4 and do not. Yea, they bind heavy burdens [5]and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders; but they themselves will not
5 move them with their finger. But all their works they do for to be seen of men: for they make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the 6 borders of their garments, and love the chief place at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues,

7 And greetings in the markets, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi.
8 [d]But be not ye called Rabbi: for one is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren.
9 And call no man your father upon the earth: [e]for one is your father which is in heaven.
10 Neither be ye called masters: for one is your Master, even Christ.
11 But he that is greatest among you, shall be your servant.
12 [f]And whosoever shall exalt himself, shall be abased: and he that shall humble himself, shall be exalted.
13 ¶ But [g]woe unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; for ye shut up the kingdom of heaven against men: For ye neither go in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that are entering, to go in.
14 Woe unto you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; [h]for ye devour widows' houses, and for a pretence make long prayer; therefore ye shall receive the greater damnation.
15 Woe unto you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; for ye compass Sea and land to make one Proselyte, and when he is made, ye make him twofold more the child of hell than yourselves.
16 Woe unto you, ye blind guides, which say, Whosoever shall swear by the Temple, it is nothing: but whosoever shall swear by the gold of the Temple, he is a debtor.
17 Ye fools and blind: for whether is greater, the gold, or the Temple that sanctifieth the gold?
18 And whosoever shall swear by the Altar, it is nothing: but whosoever sweareth by the gift that is upon it, he is ‖guilty.
19 Ye fools and blind: for whether is greater, the gift, or the Altar that sanctifieth the gift?
20 Whoso therefore shall swear by the Altar, sweareth by it, and by all things thereon.
21 And whoso shall swear by the Temple, sweareth by it, and by him that dwelleth therein.
22 And he that shall swear by heaven, sweareth by the throne of God, and by him that sitteth thereon.
23 Woe unto you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; [i]for ye pay tithe of mint, and anise, and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the Law, judgment, mercy and faith: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.
24 Ye blind guides, which strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel.
25 Woe unto you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; [k]for ye make clean the outside of the cup, and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess.
26 Thou blind Pharisee, cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be clean also.
27 Woe unto you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness.

9 Then shall they deliver you up unto tribulation, and shall kill you: and ye shall be hated of all nations for my name's sake.

10 And then shall many be offended, and shall betray one another, and shall hate one another.
11 And many false Prophets shall rise, and shall deceive many.
12 And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold.
13 But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved.
14 And this Gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world, for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come.
15 [d]When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by [e]Daniel the Prophet, stand in the holy place, (whoso readeth, let him understand,)

17 Let him which is on the housetop, not come down, to take any thing out of his house:
18 Neither let him which is in the field, return back to take his clothes.

32 Now from the fig tree learn her parable: when her branch is now become tender, and putteth forth its leaves, ye know that the summer
33 is nigh; even so ye also, when ye see all these things, know ye that [1]he is nigh, even at the 34 doors. Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass away, till all these things be ac-

38 For as in those days which were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah 39 entered into the ark, and they knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall 40 be the [3]coming of the Son of man. Then shall two men be in the field; one is taken, and one 41 is left: two women shall be grinding at the mill;
42 one is taken, and one is left. Watch therefore: for ye know not on what day your Lord com-
43 eth. [4]But know this, that if the master of the house had known in what watch the thief was coming, he would have watched, and would not have suffered his house to be [5]broken through.
44 Therefore be ye also ready: for in an hour that 45 ye think not the Son of man cometh. Who then is the faithful and wise [6]servant, whom his lord hath set over his household, to give them
46 their food in due season? Blessed is that [6]servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find 47 so doing. Verily I say unto you, that he will 48 set him over all that he hath. But if that evil [6]servant shall say in his heart, My lord tar-
49 rieth; and shall begin to beat his fellow-servants, and shall eat and drink with the drunken;
50 the lord of that [6]servant shall come in a day when he expecteth not, and in an hour when 51 he knoweth not, and shall [7]cut him asunder, and appoint his portion with the hypocrites: there shall be the weeping and gnashing of teeth.

25 Then shall the kingdom of heaven be liken-ed unto ten virgins, which took their [8]lamps,
2 and went forth to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were foolish, and five were wise.
3 For the foolish, when they took their [8]lamps,
4 took no oil with them: but the wise took oil in 5 their vessels with their [8]lamps. Now while the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept.

1611

6 And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him.
7 Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps.
8 And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil, for our lamps are ‖gone out.
9 But the wise answered, saying, Not so, lest there be not enough for us and you, but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves.
10 And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came, and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage, and the door was shut.
11 Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us.
12 But he answered, and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not.
13 [a] Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day, nor the hour, wherein the Son of man cometh.
14 ¶ [b] For the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods:
15 And unto one he gave five ‖talents, to another two, and to another one, to every man according to his several ability, and straightway took his journey.
16 Then he that had received the five talents, went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents.
17 And likewise he that had received two, he also gained other two.
18 But he that had received one, went and digged in the earth, and hid his lord's money.
19 After a long time, the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them.
20 And so he that had received five talents, came and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents, behold, I have gained besides them, five talents more.
21 His lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.
22 He also that had received two talents, came and said, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me two talents: behold, I have gained two other talents besides them.
23 His lord said unto him, Well done, good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.
24 Then he which had received the one talent, came and said, Lord, I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strewed:
25 And I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast that is thine.
26 His lord answered, and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I have not strewed:
27 Thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury.

15 unto them his goods. And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, to another one; to each according to his several ability; and 16 he went on his journey. Straightway he that received the five talents went and traded with 17 them, and made other five talents. In like manner he also that received the two gained 18 other two. But he that received the one went away and digged in the earth, and hid his lord's 19 money. Now after a long time the lord of those [2]servants cometh, and maketh a reckoning with 20 them. And he that received the five talents came and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents: lo,
21 I have gained other five talents. His lord said unto him, Well done, good and faithful [3]servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many things: enter thou
22 into the joy of thy lord. And he also that received the two talents came and said, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me two talents: lo, I have gain-
23 ed other two talents. His lord said unto him, Well done, good and faithful [3]servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many things: enter thou into the joy
24 of thy lord. And he also that had received the one talent came and said, Lord, I knew thee that thou art a hard man, reaping where thou didst not sow, and gathering where thou didst
25 not scatter: and I was afraid, and went away and hid thy talent in the earth: lo, thou hast
26 thine own. But his lord answered and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful [3]servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not,
27 and gather where I did not scatter; thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the bankers, and at my coming I should have received back mine own with interest.

28 Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents.
29 [c]For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not, shall be taken away, even that which he hath.
30 And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness, there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.
31 ¶ When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy Angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory:
32 And before him shall be gathered all nations, and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats.
33 And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left.
34 Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.
35 [d]For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in:
36 Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me.
37 Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink?
38 When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee?
39 Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee?
40 And the King shall answer, and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.
41 Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, [e]Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels.
42 For I was an hungred, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink:
43 I was a stranger, and ye took me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not.
44 Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee?
45 Then shall he answer them, saying, Verily, I say unto you, inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me.
46 And [f]these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal.

26 And it came to pass, when Jesus had finished
2 all these words, he said unto his disciples, Ye know that after two days the passover cometh, and the Son of man is delivered up to be cruci-3 fied. Then were gathered together the chief priests, and the elders of the people, unto the palace of the high Priest, who was called Caiaphas, 4 And consulted that they might take Jesus by subtilty, and kill him.

5 But they said, Not on the feast day, lest there be an uproar among the people.
6 ¶ [c]Now when Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper,
7 There came unto him a woman, having an alabaster box of very precious ointment, and poured it on his head, as he sat at meat.
8 But when his disciples saw it, they had indignation, saying, To what purpose is this waste?
9 For this ointment might have been sold for much, and given to the poor.
10 When Jesus understood it, he said unto them, Why trouble ye the woman? for she hath wrought a good work upon me.
11 [d]For ye have the poor always with you, but me ye have not always.
12 For in that she hath poured this ointment on my body, she did it for my burial.
13 Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this Gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman hath done, be told for a memorial of her.
14 ¶ [e]Then one of the twelve, called Judas Iscariot, went unto the chief Priests, 15 And said unto them, What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? and they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver.
16 And from that time he sought opportunity to betray him.
17 ¶ [f]Now the first day of the feast of unleavened bread, the disciples came to Jesus, saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the Passover?
18 And he said, Go into the city to such a man, and say unto him, The Master saith, My time is at hand, I will keep the Passover at thy house with my disciples.
19 And the disciples did, as Jesus had appointed them, and they made ready the Passover.
20 [g]Now when the even was come, he sat down with the twelve.
21 And as they did eat, he said, Verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.
22 And they were exceeding sorrowful, and began every one of them to say unto him, Lord, Is it I?
23 And he answered and said, [h]He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish, the same shall betray me.
24 The son of man goeth as it is written of him: but woe unto that man by whom the son of man is betrayed: It had been good for that man, if he had not been born.
25 Then Judas, which betrayed him, answered, and said, Master, Is it I? He said unto him, Thou hast said.
26 ¶ And as they were eating, [i]Jesus took bread, and ‖blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the Disciples, and said, Take, eat, this is my body.

saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he, hold him fast.

49 And forthwith he came to Jesus, and said, Hail master, and kissed him.

50 And Jesus said unto him, Friend, Wherefore art thou come? Then came they, and laid hands on Jesus, and took him.

51 And behold, one of them which were with Jesus, stretched out his hand, and drew his sword, and struck a servant of the high Priest's, and smote off his ear.

52 Then said Jesus unto him, Put up again thy sword into his place: [q]for all they that take the sword, shall perish with the sword.

53 Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my father, and he shall presently give me more than twelve legions of Angels?

54 But how then shall the Scriptures be fulfilled, [r]that thus it must be?

CHAP. XXVII.

WHEN the morning was come, [a]all the chief Priests and Elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death.

2 And when they had bound him, they led him away, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate the governor.

3 ¶ Then Judas, which had betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented himself, and brought again the thirty pieces of silver to the chief Priests and Elders,

4 Saying, I have sinned, in that I have betrayed the innocent blood. And they said, What is that to us? see thou to that.

5 And he cast down the pieces of silver in the Temple, [b]and departed, and went and hanged himself.

6 And the chief Priests took the silver pieces, and said, It is not lawful for to put them into the treasury, because it is the price of blood.

7 And they took counsel, and bought with them the potter's field, to bury strangers in.

8 Wherefore that field was called, [c]The field of blood unto this day.

9 (Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the Prophet, saying, [d]And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him that was valued, ‖whom they of the children of Israel did value:

10 And gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord appointed me.)

11 And Jesus stood before the governor, and the governor asked him, saying; Art thou the King of the Jews? And Jesus said unto him, Thou sayest.

12 And when he was accused of the chief Priests and Elders, he answered nothing.

13 Then saith Pilate unto him, Hearest thou not how many things they witness against thee?

14 And he answered him to never a word: insomuch that the Governor marvelled greatly.

27 Now when morning was come, all the chief priests and the elders of the people took coun-
2 sel against Jesus to put him to death: and they bound him, and led him away, and delivered him up to Pilate the governor.

3 Then Judas, which betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented himself, and brought back the thirty pieces of silver to 4 the chief priests and elders, saying, I have sinned in that I betrayed [1]innocent blood. But they said, What is that to us? see thou
5 to it. And he cast down the pieces of silver into the sanctuary, and departed; and he went
6 away and hanged himself. And the chief priests took the pieces of silver, and said, It is not lawful to put them into the [2]treasury,
7 since it is the price of blood. And they took counsel, and bought with them the potter's field,
8 to bury strangers in. Wherefore that field was 9 called, The field of blood, unto this day. Then was fulfilled that which was spoken [3]by Jeremiah the prophet, saying, And [4]they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him that was priced, [5]whom certain of the children of 10 Israel did price; and [6]they gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord appointed me.

11 Now Jesus stood before the governor: and the governor asked him, saying, Art thou the King of the Jews? And Jesus said unto him, 12 Thou sayest. And when he was accused by the chief priests and elders, he answered nothing.
13 Then saith Pilate unto him, Hearest thou not 14 how many things they witness against thee? And he gave him no answer, not even to one word: insomuch that the governor marvelled greatly.

15 [e]Now at that feast the Governor was wont to release unto the people a prisoner, whom they would.

16 And they had then a notable prisoner, called Barabbas.

17 Therefore when they were gathered together, Pilate said unto them, Whom will ye that I release unto you? Barabbas, or Jesus, which is called Christ?

18 For he knew that for envy they had delivered him.

19 ¶ When he was set down on the Judgment seat, his wife sent unto him, saying, Have thou nothing to do with that just man: for I have suffered many things this day in a dream, because of him.

20 [f]But the chief Priests and Elders persuaded the multitude that they should ask Barabbas, and destroy Jesus.

21 The Governor answered, and said unto them, Whether of the twain will ye that I release unto you? They said, Barabbas.

22 Pilate said unto them, What shall I do then with Jesus, which is called Christ? They all said unto him, Let him be crucified.

23 And the Governor said, Why, what evil hath he done? But they cried out the more, saying, Let him be crucified.

24 ¶ When Pilate saw that he could prevail nothing, but that rather a tumult was made, he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just person: see ye to it.

25 Then answered all the people, and said, His blood be on us, and on our children.

26 ¶ Then released he Barabbas unto them, and when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered him to be crucified.

27 [g]Then the soldiers of the Governor took Jesus into the ‖common hall, and gathered unto him the whole band of soldiers.

28 And they stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe.

29 ¶ And when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand: and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, saying, Hail king of the Jews.

30 And they spit upon him, and took the reed, and smote him on the head.

31 And after that they had mocked him, they took the robe off from him, and put his own raiment on him, and led him away to crucify him.

32 [h]And as they came out, they found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name: him they compelled to bear his Cross.

15 Now at [1]the feast the governor was wont to release unto the multitude one prisoner, 16 whom they would. And they had then a not-
17 able prisoner, called Barabbas. When therefore they were gathered together, Pilate said unto them, Whom will ye that I release unto you? Barabbas, or Jesus which is called Christ?
18 For he knew that for envy they had delivered 19 him up. And while he was sitting on the judgement-seat, his wife sent unto him, saying, Have thou nothing to do with that righteous man: for I have suffered many things this 20 day in a dream because of him. Now the chief priests and the elders persuaded the multitudes that they should ask for Barabbas, and destroy 21 Jesus. But the governor answered and said unto them, Whether of the twain will ye that I release unto you? And they said, Barabbas.
22 Pilate saith unto them, What then shall I do unto Jesus which is called Christ? They all
23 say, Let him be crucified. And he said, Why, what evil hath he done? But they cried out
24 exceedingly, saying, Let him be crucified. So when Pilate saw that he prevailed nothing, but rather that a tumult was arising, he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent [2]of the blood of this 25 righteous man: see ye to it. And all the people answered and said, His blood be on us, 26 and on our children. Then released he unto them Barabbas: but Jesus he scourged and delivered to be crucified.
27 Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the [3]palace, and gathered unto him the 28 whole [4]band. And they [5]stripped him, and 29 put on him a scarlet robe. And they plaited a crown of thorns and put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand; and they kneeled down before him, and mocked him, saying, Hail,
30 King of the Jews! And they spat upon him, and took the reed and smote him on the head.
31 And when they had mocked him, they took off from him the robe, and put on him his garments, and led him away to crucify him.
32 And as they came out, they found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name: him they [6]compelled to go with them, that he might bear his cross.
33 And when they were come unto a place called Golgotha, that is to say, The place of a skull, 34 they gave him wine to drink mingled with gall: and when he had tasted it, he would not drink.
35 And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, casting lots: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophet, [k]They parted my garments among them, and upon my vesture did they cast lots.

36 And sitting down, they watched him there:

37 And set up over his head, his accusation written, THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

38 Then were there two thieves crucified with him: one on the right hand, and another on the left.

39 ¶And they that passed by, reviled him, wagging their heads,

40 And saying, Thou that destroyest the Temple, and buildest it in three days, save thyself: If thou be the Son of God, come down from the Cross.

41 Likewise also the chief Priests mocking him, with the Scribes and Elders, said, 42 He saved others, himself he cannot save: If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the Cross, and we will believe him.

43 [l]He trusted in God, let him deliver him now if he will have him: for he said, I am the Son of God.

44 The thieves also which were crucified with him, cast the same in his teeth.

45 Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour.

46 And about the ninth hour, Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani, that is to say, [m]My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?

47 Some of them that stood there, when they heard that, said, This man calleth for Elias.

48 And straightway one of them ran, and took a sponge, [n]and filled it with vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink.

49 The rest said, Let be, let us see whether Elias will come to save him.

50 ¶ Jesus, when he had cried again with a loud voice, yielded up the ghost.

51 And behold, the veil of the Temple was rent in twain, from the top to the bottom, and the earth did quake, and the rocks rent.

52 And the graves were opened, and many bodies of Saints which slept, arose, 53 And came out of the graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many.

54 Now when the Centurion, and they that were with him, watching Jesus, saw the earthquake, and those things that were done, they feared greatly, saying, Truly this was the Son of God.

55 And many women were there (beholding afar off) which followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering unto him.

56 Among which was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joses, and the mother of Zebedee's children.

40 heads, and saying, Thou that destroyest the [1]temple, and buildest it in three days, save thyself: If thou art the Son of God, come down
41 from the cross. In like manner also the chief priests mocking him, with the scribes and elders, said, He saved others; [2]himself he cannot 42 save. He is the King of Israel; let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe 43 on him. He trusteth on God; let him deliver him now, if he desireth him: for he said, I am 44 the Son of God. And the robbers also that were crucified with him cast upon him the same reproach.

51 And behold, the veil of the [1]temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom; and the earth did quake; and the rocks were rent;
52 and the tombs were opened; and many bodies of the saints that had fallen asleep were raised;
53 and coming forth out of the tombs after his resurrection they entered into the holy city and 54 appeared unto many. Now the centurion, and they that were with him watching Jesus, when they saw the earthquake, and the things that were done, feared exceedingly, saying, Truly, man of Arimathæa, named Joseph, who also himself was Jesus' disciple:

58 He went to Pilate, and begged the body of Jesus: then Pilate commanded the body to be delivered.

59 And when Joseph had taken the body, he wrapped it in a clean linen cloth, 60 And laid it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn out in the rock: and he rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre, and departed.

61 And there was Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, sitting over against the sepulchre.

62 ¶ Now the next day that followed the day of the preparation, the chief Priests and Pharisees came together unto Pilate, 63 Saying, Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, After three days I will rise again.

64 Command therefore that the sepulchre be made sure, until the third day, lest his disciples come by night, and steal him away, and say unto the people, He is risen from the dead: so the last error shall be worse than the first.

65 Pilate said unto them, Ye have a watch, go your way, make it as sure as you can.

66 So they went, and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, and setting a watch.

CHAP. XXVIII.

IN the [a] end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn towards the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, to see the sepulchre.

2 And behold, there ‖ was a great earthquake, for the Angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

3 His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow.

4 And for fear of him, the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.

5 And the Angel answered, and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified.

6 He is not here: for he is risen, as he said: Come, see the place where the Lord lay.

7 And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead. And behold, he goeth before you into Galilee, there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you.

8 And they departed quickly from the sepulchre, with fear and great joy, and did run to bring his disciples word.

9 ¶ And as they went to tell his disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came, and held him by the feet, and worshipped him.

10 Then said Jesus unto them, Be not afraid: Go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me.

11 ¶ Now when they were going, behold, some of the watch came into the city, and shewed unto the chief Priests all the things that were done.

12 And when they were assembled with the El-man from Arimathæa, named Joseph, who also 58 himself was Jesus' disciple: this man went to Pilate, and asked for the body of Jesus. Then 59 Pilate commanded it to be given up. And Joseph took the body, and wrapped it in a 60 clean linen cloth, and laid it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn out in the rock: and he rolled a great stone to the door of the tomb, 61 and departed. And Mary Magdalene was there, and the other Mary, sitting over against the sepulchre.

62 Now on the morrow, which is the day after the Preparation, the chief priests and the Phari-63 sees were gathered together unto Pilate, saying, Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, After three days I rise again.
64 Command therefore that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day, lest haply his disciples come and steal him away, and say unto the people, He is risen from the dead: and the last 65 error will be worse than the first. Pilate said unto them, [1]Ye have a guard: go your way, [2]make it as sure as ye can. So they went, and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, the guard being with them.

28 Now late on the sabbath day, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the 2 sepulchre. And behold, there was a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled away the stone, and 3 sat upon it. His appearance was as lightning, 4 and his raiment white as snow: and for fear of him the watchers did quake, and became as dead 5 men. And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye 6 seek Jesus, which hath been crucified. He is not here; for he is risen, even as he said. Come, 7 see the place [3]where the Lord lay. And go quickly, and tell his disciples, He is risen from the dead; and lo, he goeth before you into Galilee; 8 there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you. And they departed quickly from the tomb with fear and great joy, and ran to bring his disciples 9 word. And behold, Jesus met them, saying,
All hail. And they came and took hold of his 10 feet, and worshipped him. Then saith Jesus unto them, Fear not: go tell my brethren that they depart into Galilee, and there shall they see me.

11 Now while they were going, behold, some of the guard came into the city, and told unto the chief priests all the things that were come to 12 pass. And when they were assembled with the elders, and had taken counsel, they gave large money unto the soldiers, 13 Saying, Say ye, His disciples came by night, and stole him away while we slept.

14 And if this come to the governor's ears, we will persuade him, and secure you.

15 So they took the money, and did as they were taught. And this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.

16 ¶ Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them.

17 And when they saw him, they worshipped him: but some doubted.

18 And Jesus came, and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.

19 ¶ [b]Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the holy Ghost:

1 THE beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, [1]the Son of God.

2 Even as it is written [2]in Isaiah the prophet,
Behold, I send my messenger before thy face,
Who shall prepare thy way;
3 The voice of one crying in the wilderness,
Make ye ready the way of the Lord,
Make his paths straight;

4 John came, who baptized in the wilderness and preached the baptism of repentance unto remis-
5 sion of sins. And there went out unto him all the country of Judæa, and all they of Jerusalem; and they were baptized of him in the 6 river Jordan, confessing their sins. And John was clothed with camel's hair, and had a leathern girdle about his loins, and did eat locusts and 7 wild honey. And he preached, saying, There cometh after me he that is mightier than I, the latchet of whose shoes I am not [3]worthy to 8 stoop down and unloose. I baptize you [4]with water; but he shall baptize you [4]with the [5]Holy Ghost.

9 And it came to pass in those days, that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and 10 was baptized of John [6]in the Jordan. And straightway coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens ‖opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him.

11 And there came a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

12 [g]And immediately the Spirit driveth him into the wilderness.

13 And he was there in the wilderness forty days tempted of Satan, and was with the wild beasts, and the Angels ministered unto him.

14 Now after that John was put in prison, [h]Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the Gospel of the kingdom of God, 15 And saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the Gospel.

16 [i]Now as he walked by the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the Sea (for they were fishers.)

17 And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me; and I will make you to become fishers of men.

18 And straightway they forsook their nets, and followed him.

19 And when he had gone a little further thence, he saw James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, who also were in the ship mending their nets.

20 And straightway he called them: and they left their father Zebedee in the ship with the hired servants, and went after him.

21 [k]And they went into Capernaum, and straightway on the Sabbath day he entered into the Synagogue, and taught.

22 [l]And they were astonished at his doctrine: for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the Scribes.

23 [m]And there was in their Synagogue a man with an unclean spirit, and he cried out,

24 Saying, Let us alone, what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? Art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the holy One of God.

25 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him.

26 And when the unclean spirit had torn him, and cried with a loud voice, he came out of him.

27 And they were all amazed, insomuch that they questioned among themselves, saying, What thing is this? What new doctrine is this? For with authority commandeth he even the unclean spirits, and they do obey him.

28 And immediately his fame spread abroad throughout all the region round about Galilee.

29 [n]And forthwith, when they were come out of the Synagogue, they entered into the house of Simon, and Andrew, with James and John.

30 But Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever: and anon they tell him of her.

31 And he came and took her by the hand, and lift her up, and immediately the fever left her, and she ministered unto them.

32 And at even, when the Sun did set, they

14 Now after that John was delivered up, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of God,
15 and saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe in the gospel.
16 And passing along by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew the brother of Simon casting a net in the sea: for they were fishers.

26 and come out of him. And the unclean spirit, [2]tearing him and crying with a loud voice, came 27 out of him. And they were all amazed, insomuch that they questioned among themselves, saying, What is this? a new teaching! with authority he commandeth even the unclean spirits, 28 and they obey him. And the report of him went out straightway everywhere into all the region of Galilee round about.
29 And straightway, [3]when they were come out of the synagogue, they came into the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John.
30 Now Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever;
31 and straightway they tell him of her: and he came and took her by the hand, and raised her up; and the fever left her, and she ministered unto them.
32 And at even, when the sun did set, they brought unto him all that were diseased, and them that were possessed with devils:

33 And all the city was gathered together at the door.

34 And he healed many that were sick of divers diseases, and cast out many devils, and suffered not the devils ‖to speak, because they knew him.

35 And in the morning, rising up a great while before day, he went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed.

36 And Simon, and they that were with him, followed after him:

37 And when they had found him, they said unto him, All men seek for thee.

38 And he said unto them, Let us go into the next towns, that I may preach there also: for therefore came I forth.

39 And he preached in their Synagogues throughout all Galilee, and cast out devils.

40 °And there came a leper to him, beseeching him, and kneeling down to him, and saying unto him, If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

41 And Jesus moved with compassion, put forth his hand, and touched him, and saith unto him, I will, be thou clean.

42 And as soon as he had spoken, immediately the leprosy departed from him, and he was cleansed.

43 And he straitly charged him, and forthwith sent him away,

44 And saith unto him, See thou say nothing to any man: but go thy way, shew thyself to the Priest, and offer for thy cleansing those things which Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

45 ᵖBut he went out, and began to publish it much, and to blaze abroad the matter: insomuch that Jesus could no more openly enter into the city, but was without in desert places: and they came to him from every quarter.

2 And straightway many were gathered together, insomuch that there was no room to receive them, no not so much as about the door: and he preached the word unto them.

3 And they come unto him, bringing one sick of the palsy, which was borne of four.

4 And when they could not come nigh unto him for press, they uncovered the roof where he was: and when they had broken it up, they let down the bed wherein the sick of the palsy lay.

5 When Jesus saw their faith, he said unto the sick of the palsy, Son, thy sins be forgiven thee.

6 But there were certain of the Scribes sitting there, and reasoning in their hearts,

7 Why doth this man thus speak blasphemies? ᵇWho can forgive sins but God only?

4 And it came to pass as he sowed, some fell by the way side, and the fowls of the air came, and devoured it up.
5 And some fell on stony ground, where it had not much earth: and immediately it sprang up, because it had no depth of earth.
6 But when the Sun was up, it was scorched, and because it had no root, it withered away.
7 And some fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up, and choked it, and it yielded no fruit.
8 And other fell on good ground, and did yield fruit that sprang up, and increased, and brought forth some thirty, and some sixty, and some an hundred.

12 [b]That seeing they may see, and not perceive, and hearing they may hear, and not understand, lest at any time they should be converted, and their sins should be forgiven them.

13 And he said unto them, Know ye not this parable? And how then will you know all parables?

14 ¶ The Sower soweth the word.

15 And these are they by the way side, where the word is sown, but when they have heard, Satan cometh immediately, and taketh away the word that was sown in their hearts.

16 And these are they likewise which are sown on stony ground, who when they have heard the word, immediately receive it with gladness:

17 And have no root in themselves, and so endure but for a time: afterward when affliction or persecution ariseth for the word's sake, immediately they are offended.

18 And these are they which are sown among thorns: such as hear the word, 19 And the cares of this world, [c]and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful.

20 And these are they which are sown on good ground, such as hear the word, and receive it, and bring forth fruit, some thirtyfold, some sixty, and some an hundred.

32 But when it is sown, it groweth up, and becometh greater than all herbs, and shooteth out great branches, so that the fowls of the air may lodge under the shadow of it.

33 [i]And with many such parables spake he the word unto them, as they were able to hear it.

34 But without a parable spake he not unto them, and when they were alone, he expounded all things to his disciples.

35 [k]And the same day, when the Even was come, he saith unto them, Let us pass over unto the other side.

36 And when they had sent away the multitude, they took him, even as he was in the ship, and there were also with him other little ships.

37 And there arose a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the ship, so that it was now full.

38 And he was in the hinder part of the ship asleep on a pillow: and they awake him, and say unto him, Master, carest thou not that we perish?

39 And he arose, and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still: and the wind ceased, and there was a great calm.

40 And he said unto them, Why are ye so fearful? How is it that you have no faith?

41 And they feared exceedingly, and said one to another, What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?

CHAP. V.

AND [a]they came over unto the other side of the sea, into the country of the Gadarenes.

2 And when he was come out of the ship, immediately there met him out of the tombs a man with an unclean spirit,

3 Who had his dwelling among the tombs, and no man could bind him, no not with chains:

4 Because that he had been often bound with fetters and chains, and the chains had been plucked asunder by him, and the fetters broken in pieces: neither could any man tame him.

5 And always night and day, he was in the mountains, and in the tombs, crying, and cutting himself with stones.

6 But when he saw Jesus afar off, he came and worshipped him,

7 And cried with a loud voice, and said, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of the most high God? I adjure thee by God, that thou torment me not.

8 (For he said unto him, Come out of the man, thou unclean spirit.)

9 And he asked him, What is thy name? And he answered, saying, My name is Legion: for we are many.

10 And he besought him much, that he would not send them away out of the country.

11 Now there was there nigh unto the mountains a great herd of swine, feeding.

12 And all the devils besought him, saying, Send us into the swine, that we may enter into them.

it is sown upon the earth, though it be less than 32 all the seeds that are upon the earth, yet when it is sown, groweth up, and becometh greater than all the herbs, and putteth out great branches; so that the birds of the heaven can lodge under the shadow thereof.
33 And with many such parables spake he the word unto them, as they were able to hear it:
34 and without a parable spake he not unto them: but privately to his own disciples he expounded all things.
35 And on that day, when even was come, he saith unto them, Let us go over unto the other side.
36 And leaving the multitude, they take him with them, even as he was, in the boat. And other
37 boats were with him. And there ariseth a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the boat,
38 insomuch that the boat was now filling. And he himself was in the stern, asleep on the cushion: and they awake him, and say unto him, [1]Master,
39 carest thou not that we perish? And he awoke, and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there
40 was a great calm. And he said unto them, Why
41 are ye fearful? have ye not yet faith? And they feared exceedingly, and said one to another, Who then is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?

5 And they came to the other side of the sea,
2 into the country of the Gerasenes. And when he was come out of the boat, straightway there met him out of the tombs a man with an unclean
3 spirit, who had his dwelling in the tombs: and no man could any more bind him, no, not with 4 a chain; because that he had been often bound with fetters and chains, and the chains had been rent asunder by him, and the fetters broken in pieces: and no man had strength to tame him.
5 And always, night and day, in the tombs and in the mountains, he was crying out, and cut-
6 ting himself with stones. And when he saw Jesus from afar, he ran and worshipped him;
7 and crying out with a loud voice, he saith, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of the Most High God? I adjure thee by God, tor-
8 ment me not. For he said unto him, Come forth, thou unclean spirit, out of the man.
9 And he asked him, What is thy name? And he saith unto him, My name is Legion;
10 for we are many. And he besought him much that he would not send them away
11 out of the country. Now there was there on the mountain side a great herd of swine feed-
12 ing. And they besought him, saying, Send us into the swine, that we may enter into them.

13 And forthwith Jesus gave them leave. And the unclean spirits went out, and entered into the swine, and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the sea (they were about two thousand) and were choked in the sea.

14 And they that fed the swine fled, and told it in the city, and in the country. And they went out to see what it was that was done.

15 And they come to Jesus, and see him that was possessed with the devil, and had the Legion, sitting, and clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid.

16 And they that saw it told them how it befell to him that was possessed with the devil, and also concerning the swine.

17 And they began to pray him to depart out of their coasts.

18 And when he was come into the ship, he that had been possessed with the devil prayed him that he might be with him.

19 Howbeit Jesus suffered him not, but saith unto him, Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had compassion on thee.

20 And he departed, and began to publish in Decapolis, how great things Jesus had done for him: and all men did marvel.

21 And when Jesus was passed over again by ship unto the other side, much people gathered unto him, and he was nigh unto the Sea.

22 [b]And behold, there cometh one of the Rulers of the Synagogue, Jairus by name, and when he saw him, he fell at his feet, 23 And besought him greatly, saying, My little daughter lieth at the point of death, I pray thee come and lay thy hands on her, that she may be healed, and she shall live.

24 And Jesus went with him, and much people followed him, and thronged him.

25 And a certain woman which had an issue of blood twelve years,

26 And had suffered many things of many Physicians, and had spent all that she had, and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worse,

27 When she had heard of Jesus, came in the press behind, and touched his garment.

28 For she said, If I may touch but his clothes, I shall be whole.

29 And straightway the fountain of her blood was dried up: and she felt in her body that she was healed of that plague.

CHAP. VII.

THEN [a]came together unto him the Pharisees, and certain of the Scribes, which came from Jerusalem.

2 And when they saw some of his disciples eat bread with ‖defiled (that is to say, with unwashen) hands, they found fault.

3 For the Pharisees and all the Jews, except they wash their hands ‖oft, eat not, holding the tradition of the elders.

4 And when they come from the market, except they wash, they eat not. And many other things there be, which they have received to hold, as the washing of cups and ‖pots, brasen vessels, and of ‖tables.

5 Then the Pharisees and Scribes asked him, Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the Elders, but eat bread with unwashen hands?

6 He answered and said unto them, Well hath Esaias prophesied of you Hypocrites, as it is written, [b]This people honoureth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me.

7 Howbeit in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

8 For laying aside the Commandment of God, ye hold the tradition of men, as the washing of pots, and cups: and many other such like things ye do.

9 And he said unto them, Full well ye ‖reject the Commandment of God, that ye may keep your own tradition.

10 For Moses said, Honour thy father and thy mother: and whoso curseth father or mother, let him die the death.

11 But ye say, If a man shall say to his father or mother, It is [c]Corban, that is to say, a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me: he shall be free.

12 And ye suffer him no more to do ought for his father, or his mother:

13 Making the word of God of none effect through your tradition, which ye have delivered: And many such like things do ye.

14 ¶ [d]And when he had called all the people unto him, he said unto them, Hearken unto me every one of you, and understand.

15 There is nothing from without a man that entering into him, can defile him: but the things which come out of him, those are they that defile the man.

16 If any man have ears to hear, let him hear.

52 for they understood not concerning the loaves, but their heart was hardened.

53 And when they had [1]crossed over, they came to the land unto Gennesaret, and moored to the 54 shore. And when they were come out of the 55 boat, straightway the people knew him, and ran round about that whole region, and began to carry about on their beds those that were sick, 56 where they heard he was. And wheresoever he entered, into villages, or into cities, or into the country, they laid the sick in the marketplaces, and besought him that they might touch if it were but the border of his garment: and as many as touched [2]him were made whole.

7 And there are gathered together unto him the Pharisees, and certain of the scribes, which 2 had come from Jerusalem, and had seen that some of his disciples ate their bread with [3]de-3 filed, that is, unwashen, hands. For the Pharisees, and all the Jews, except they wash their hands [4]diligently, eat not, holding the tradition 4 of the elders: and when they come from the marketplace, except they [5]wash themselves, they eat not: and many other things there be, which they have received to hold, [6]washings of cups, 5 and pots, and brasen vessels[7]. And the Pharisees and the scribes ask him, Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, 6 but eat their bread with [3]defiled hands. And he said unto them, Well did Isaiah prophesy of you hypocrites, as it is written,

This people honoureth me with their lips,
But their heart is far from me.
7 But in vain do they worship me,
Teaching as their doctrines the precepts of men.

8 Ye leave the commandment of God, and hold 9 fast the tradition of men. And he said unto them, Full well do ye reject the commandment of God, that ye may keep your tradi-10 tion. For Moses said, Honour thy father and thy mother; and, He that speaketh evil 11 of father or mother, let him [8]die the death: but ye say, If a man shall say to his father or his mother, That wherewith thou mightest have been profited by me is Corban, that is to say, 12 Given to God; ye no longer suffer him to do 13 aught for his father or his mother; making void the word of God by your tradition, which ye have delivered: and many such like things 14 ye do. And he called to him the multitude again, and said unto them, Hear me all of 15 you, and understand: there is nothing from without the man, that going into him can defile him: but the things which proceed out of the man are those that defile the man.[9]

17 And when he was entered into the house from the people, his disciples asked him concerning the parable.

18 And he saith unto them, Are ye so without understanding also? Do ye not perceive that whatsoever thing from without entereth into the man, it cannot defile him, 19 Because it entereth not into his heart, but into the belly, and goeth out into the draught, purging all meats?

20 And he said, That which cometh out of the man, that defileth the man.

21 [e]For from within, out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders,

22 Thefts, covetousness, wickedness, deceit, lasciviousness, an evil eye, blasphemy, pride, foolishness:

23 All these evil things come from within, and defile the man.

24 ¶[f]And from thence he arose, and went into the borders of Tyre and Sidon, and entered into an house, and would have no man know it, but he could not be hid.

25 For a certain woman, whose young daughter had an unclean spirit, heard of him, and came and fell at his feet.

26 (The woman was a ‖Greek, a Syrophenician by nation:) and she besought him that he would cast forth the devil out of her daughter.

27 But Jesus said unto her, Let the children first be filled: for it is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it unto the dogs.

28 And she answered and said unto him, Yes Lord, yet the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs.

29 And he said unto her, For this saying, go thy way, the devil is gone out of thy daughter.

30 And when she was come to her house, she found the devil gone out, and her daughter laid upon the bed.

31 ¶And again departing from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, he came unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the coasts of Decapolis.

32 And they bring unto him one that was deaf, and had an impediment in his speech: and they beseech him to put his hand upon him.

33 And he took him aside from the multitude, and put his fingers into his ears, and he spit, and touched his tongue, 34 And looking up to heaven, he sighed, and saith unto him, Ephphatha, that is, Be opened.

35 And straightway his ears were opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed, and he spake plain.

36 And he charged them that they should tell no man: but the more he charged them, so much the more a great deal they published it,

37 And were beyond measure astonished, saying, He hath done all things well: he maketh both the deaf to hear, and the dumb to speak.

6 And he commanded the people to sit down on the ground: and he took the seven loaves, and gave thanks, and brake, and gave to his disciples to set before them: and they did set them before the people.
7 And they had a few small fishes: and he blessed, and commanded to set them also before them.
8 So they did eat, and were filled: and they took up, of the broken meat that was left, seven baskets.

8 And suddenly when they had looked round about, they saw no man any more, save Jesus only with themselves.
9 And as they came down from the mountain, he charged them that they should tell no man, what things they had seen, till the Son of man were risen from the dead.
10 And they kept that saying with themselves, questioning one with another, what the rising from the dead should mean.

26 And having cried out, and [1]torn him much, he came out: and the child became as one dead; insomuch that the more part said, He 27 is dead. But Jesus took him by the hand,
28 and raised him up; and he arose. And when he was come into the house, his disciples asked him privately, [2]saying, We could not cast it out.
29 And he said unto them, This kind can come out by nothing, save by prayer[3].
30 And they went forth from thence, and passed through Galilee; and he would not that any 31 man should know it. For he taught his disciples, and said unto them, The Son of man is delivered up into the hands of men, and they shall kill him; and when he is killed, after 32 three days he shall rise again. But they understood not the saying, and were afraid to ask him.
33 And they came to Capernaum: and when he was in the house he asked them, What were ye
34 reasoning in the way? But they held their peace: for they had disputed one with another 35 in the way, who was the [4]greatest. And he sat down, and called the twelve; and he saith unto them, If any man would be first, he shall 36 be last of all, and minister of all. And he took a little child, and set him in the midst of them: and taking him in his arms, he said unto 37 them, Whosoever shall receive one of such little children in my name, receiveth me: and whosoever receiveth me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me.
38 John said unto him, [5]Master, we saw one casting out [6]devils in thy name: and we for-39 bade him, because he followed not us. But Jesus said, Forbid him not: for there is no man which shall do a [7]mighty work in my name, and be able quickly to speak evil of 40 me. For he that is not against us is for us.
41 For whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink, [8]because ye are Christ's, verily I say unto 42 you, he shall in no wise lose his reward. And whosoever shall cause one of these little ones that believe [9]on me to stumble, it were better for him if [10]a great millstone were hanged about 43 his neck, and he were cast into the sea. And if thy hand cause thee to stumble, cut it off: it is good for thee to enter into life maimed, rather than having thy two hands to go into 45 [11]hell, into the unquenchable fire.[12] And if thy foot cause thee to stumble, cut it off: it is good for thee to enter into life halt, rather than having thy two feet to be cast into [11]hell.

49 For every one shall be salted with fire, [n]and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt.

CHAP. X.

AND [a]he rose from thence, and cometh into the coasts of Judæa by the farther side of Jordan: and the people resort unto him again, and as he was wont, he taught them again.
2 ¶ And the Pharisees came to him, and asked him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife? tempting him.
3 And he answered, and said unto them, What did Moses command you?
4 And they said, Moses suffered to write a bill of divorcement, and to put her away.
5 And Jesus answered, and said unto them, For the hardness of your heart he wrote you this precept.
6 But from the beginning of the creation, God made them male, and female.
7 For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife,
8 And they twain shall be one flesh: so then they are no more twain, but one flesh.
9 What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.
10 And in the house his disciples asked him again of the same matter.
11 And he saith unto them, [b]Whosoever shall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her.
12 And if a woman shall put away her husband, and be married to another, she committeth adultery.
13 ¶ [c]And they brought young children to him, that he should touch them, and his disciples rebuked those that brought them.
14 But when Jesus saw it, he was much displeased, and said unto them, Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God.
15 Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein.
16 And he took them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and blessed them.
17 ¶ [d]And when he was gone forth into the way, there came one running, and kneeled to him, and asked him, Good master, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?
18 And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? There is no man good, but one, that is God.
19 Thou knowest the Commandments, Do not commit adultery, Do not kill, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Defraud not, Honour thy father, and mother.

40 But to sit on my right hand and on my left hand, is not mine to give, but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared.

41 And when the ten heard it, they began to be much displeased with James and John.

43 But so shall it not be among you: but whosoever will be great among you, shall be your minister:

46 ¶ [k]And they came to Jericho: and as he went out of Jericho with his disciples, and a great number of people; blind Bartimæus, the son of Timæus, sat by the highway side, begging.

47 And when he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to cry out, and say, Jesus thou Son of David, have mercy on me.

48 And many charged him, that he should hold his peace: But he cried the more a great deal, Thou Son of David, have mercy on me.

49 And Jesus stood still, and commanded him to be called: and they call the blind man, saying unto him, Be of good comfort, rise, he calleth thee.

50 And he casting away his garment, rose, and came to Jesus.

CHAP. XII.

AND [a]he began to speak unto them by parables. A certain man planted a vineyard, and set an hedge about it, and digged a place for the winefat, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country.

2 And at the season, he sent to the husbandmen a servant, that he might receive from the husbandmen of the fruit of the vineyard.

3 And they caught him, and beat him, and sent him away empty.

4 And again, he sent unto them another servant; and at him they cast stones, and wounded him in the head, and sent him away shamefully handled.

5 And again, he sent another, and him they killed: and many others, beating some, and killing some.

6 Having yet therefore one son his well-beloved, he sent him also last unto them, saying, They will reverence my son.

7 But those husbandmen said amongst themselves, This is the heir, come, let us kill him, and the inheritance shall be ours.

8 And they took him, and killed him, and cast him out of the vineyard.

9 What shall therefore the Lord of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy the husbandmen, and will give the vineyard unto others.

30 by what authority I do these things. The baptism of John, was it from heaven, or from men?
31 answer me. And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say, Why then did ye not believe him?
32 [2]But should we say, From men—they feared the people: [3]for all verily held John to be a 33 prophet. And they answered Jesus and say, We know not. And Jesus saith unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.

12 And he began to speak unto them in parables. A man planted a vineyard, and set a hedge about it, and digged a pit for the wine-press, and built a tower, and let it out to hus-
2 bandmen, and went into another country. And at the season he sent to the husbandmen a [4]servant, that he might receive from the husband-
3 men of the fruits of the vineyard. And they took him, and beat him, and sent him away
4 empty. And again he sent unto them another [4]servant; and him they wounded in the head,
5 and handled shamefully. And he sent another; and him they killed: and many others; beating
6 some, and killing some. He had yet one, a beloved son: he sent him last unto them, say-
7 ing, They will reverence my son. But those husbandmen said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and the inheritance
8 shall be ours. And they took him, and killed him, and cast him forth out of the vineyard.
9 What therefore will the lord of the vineyard do? he will come and destroy the husbandmen,
10 and will give the vineyard unto others. Have ye not read even this scripture;

> The stone which the builders rejected,
> The same was made the head of the corner:
> 11 This was from the Lord,
> And it is marvellous in our eyes?

12 And they sought to lay hold on him; and they feared the multitude; for they perceived that he spake the parable against them: and they left him, and went away.

13 And they send unto him certain of the Pharisees and of the Herodians, that they might catch
14 him in talk. And when they were come, they say unto him, [5]Master, we know that thou art true, and carest not for any one: for thou regardest not the person of men, but of a truth

17 And Jesus answering, said unto them, Render to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's: and to God the things that are God's. And they marvelled at him.

18 ¶ [d]Then come unto him the Sadducees, which say there is no resurrection, and they asked him, saying,

19 Master, Moses wrote unto us, If a man's brother die, and leave his wife behind him, and leave no children, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother.

20 Now there were seven brethren: and the first took a wife, and dying left no seed.

21 And the second took her, and died, neither left he any seed, and the third likewise.

22 And the seven had her, and left no seed: last of all the woman died also.

23 In the resurrection therefore, when they shall rise, whose wife shall she be of them? for the seven had her to wife.

24 And Jesus answering, said unto them, Do ye not therefore err, because ye know not the scriptures, neither the power of God?

25 For when they shall rise from the dead, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage: but are as the Angels which are in heaven.

26 And as touching the dead, that they rise: have ye not read in the book of Moses, how in the bush God spake unto him, saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?

27 He is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living: ye therefore do greatly err.

28 ¶ [e]And one of the Scribes came, and having heard them reasoning together, and perceiving that he had answered them well, asked him which is the first commandment of all.

29 And Jesus answered him, The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord:

30 And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: This is the first commandment.

31 And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself: there is none other commandment greater than these.

gogues ye shall be beaten, and ye shall be brought before rulers and kings for my sake, for a testimony against them.

10 And the Gospel must first be published among all nations.

11 [c]But when they shall lead you, and deliver you up, take no thought beforehand what ye shall speak, neither do ye premeditate: but whatsoever shall be given you in that hour, that speak ye: for it is not ye that speak, but the holy Ghost.

12 Now the brother shall betray the brother to death, and the father the son: and children shall rise up against their parents, and shall cause them to be put to death.

13 And ye shall be hated of all men for my Name's sake: but he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved.

14 ¶ [d]But when ye shall see the abomination of desolation spoken of by Daniel the Prophet, standing where it ought not (let him that readeth understand) then let them that be in Judæa, flee to the mountains:

15 And let him that is on the housetop not go down into the house, neither enter therein, to take any thing out of his house.

16 And let him that is in the field not turn back again for to take up his garment.

17 But woe to them that are with child, and to them that give suck in those days.

18 And pray ye that your flight be not in the winter.

19 For in those days shall be affliction, such as was not from the beginning of the creation which God created, unto this time, neither shall be.

20 And except that the Lord had shortened those days, no flesh should be saved: but for the elect's sake whom he hath chosen, he hath shortened the days.

21 [e]And then, if any man shall say to you, Lo, here is Christ, or lo, he is there: believe him not.

22 For false Christs and false prophets shall rise, and shall shew signs and wonders, to seduce, if it were possible, even the elect.

23 But take ye heed: behold, I have foretold you all things.

24 ¶ [f]But in those days, after that tribulation, the Sun shall be darkened, and the Moon shall not give her light.

23 And he took a cup, and when he had given thanks, he gave to them: and they all drank
24 of it. And he said unto them, This is my blood of [5]the [6]covenant, which is shed for 25 many. Verily I say unto you, I will no more drink of the fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new in the kingdom of God.
26 And when they had sung a hymn, they went out unto the mount of Olives.
27 And Jesus saith unto them, All ye shall be [7]offended: for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered 28 abroad. Howbeit, after I am raised up, I will 29 go before you into Galilee. But Peter said unto him, Although all shall be [7]offended, yet will 30 not I. And Jesus saith unto him, Verily I say unto thee, that thou to-day, even this night, before the cock crow twice, shalt deny me thrice.
31 But he spake exceeding vehemently, If I must die with thee, I will not deny thee. And in like manner also said they all.
32 And they come unto [8]a place which was named Gethsemane: and he saith unto his dis-
33 ciples, Sit ye here, while I pray. And he taketh with him Peter and James and John, and began to be greatly amazed, and sore
34 troubled. And he saith unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful even unto death: abide ye 35 here, and watch. And he went forward a little, and fell on the ground, and prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass away from 36 him. And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible unto thee; remove this cup from me: howbeit not what I will, but what thou wilt.

37 And he cometh, and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter, Simon, sleepest thou? Couldest not thou watch one hour?
38 Watch ye and pray, lest ye enter into temptation: The spirit truly is ready, but the flesh is weak.
39 And again he went away, and prayed, and spake the same words.
40 And when he returned, he found them asleep again, (for their eyes were heavy) neither wist they what to answer him.
41 And he cometh the third time, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest: it is enough, the hour is come, behold, the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.
42 Rise up, let us go, Lo, he that betrayeth me is at hand.
43 ¶ [k]And immediately, while he yet spake, cometh Judas, one of the twelve, and with him a great multitude with swords, and staves, from the chief Priests, and the Scribes, and the Elders.
44 And he that betrayed him had given them a token, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he; take him, and lead him away safely.
45 And as soon as he was come, he goeth straightway to him, and saith, Master, Master, and kissed him.
46 ¶ And they laid their hands on him, and took him.
47 And one of them that stood by, drew a sword, and smote a servant of the high Priest, and cut off his ear.
48 And Jesus answered, and said unto them, Are ye come out as against a thief, with swords, and with staves to take me?
49 I was daily with you in the Temple, teaching, and ye took me not; but the Scriptures must be fulfilled.
50 And they all forsook him, and fled.
51 And there followed him a certain young man, having a linen cloth cast about his naked body, and the young men laid hold on him.
52 And he left the linen cloth, and fled from them naked.
53 ¶ [l]And they led Jesus away to the high Priest, and with him were assembled all the chief Priests, and the Elders, and the Scribes.

58 We heard him say, I will destroy this Temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands.
59 But neither so did their witness agree together.

37 And he cometh, and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter, Simon, sleepest thou?
38 couldest thou not watch one hour? [1]Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is 39 weak. And again he went away, and prayed,
40 saying the same words. And again he came, and found them sleeping, for their eyes were very heavy; and they wist not what to answer

43 And straightway, while he yet spake, cometh Judas, one of the twelve, and with him a multitude with swords and staves, from the chief 44 priests and the scribes and the elders. Now he that betrayed him had given them a token, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that is he; take 45 him, and lead him away safely. And when he was come, straightway he came to him, and 46 saith, Rabbi; and [2]kissed him. And they laid

63 Then the high Priest rent his clothes, and saith, What need we any further witnesses?

64 Ye have heard the blasphemy: what think ye? And they all condemned him to be guilty of death.

65 And some began to spit on him, and to cover his face, and to buffet him, and to say unto him, Prophesy: And the servants did strike him with the palms of their hands.

69 And a maid saw him again, and began to say to them that stood by, This is one of them.

6 Now at [7]the feast he used to release unto them
7 one prisoner, whom they asked of him. And there was one called Barabbas, lying bound with them that had made insurrection, men who in 8 the insurrection had committed murder. And the multitude went up and began to ask him
9 to do as he was wont to do unto them. And Pilate answered them, saying, Will ye that I release unto you the King of the Jews?

10 (For he knew that the chief Priests had delivered him for envy.)
11 But the chief Priests moved the people, that he should rather release Barabbas unto them.
12 And Pilate answered, and said again unto them, What will ye then that I shall do unto him whom ye call the King of the Jews?
13 And they cried out again, Crucify him.
14 Then Pilate said unto them, Why, what evil hath he done? And they cried out the more exceedingly, Crucify him.
15 ¶ And so Pilate, willing to content the people, released Barabbas unto them, and delivered Jesus, when he had scourged him, to be crucified.
16 And the soldiers led him away into the hall, called Prætorium, and they call together the whole band.
17 And they clothed him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns, and put it about his head, 18 And began to salute him, Hail King of the Jews.
19 And they smote him on the head with a reed, and did spit upon him, and bowing their knees, worshipped him.

44 And Pilate marvelled if he were already dead, and calling unto him the Centurion, he asked him whether he had been any while dead.
45 And when he knew it of the Centurion, he gave the body to Joseph.

1 FORASMUCH as many have taken in hand to draw up a narrative concerning those matters
2 which have been [1]fulfilled among us, even as they delivered them unto us, which from the beginning were eyewitnesses and ministers of
3 the word, it seemed good to me also, having traced the course of all things accurately from the first, to write unto thee in order, most ex-
4 cellent Theophilus; that thou mightest know the certainty concerning the [2]things [3]wherein thou wast instructed.

5 THERE was in the days of Herod, king of Judæa, a certain priest named Zacharias, of the course of Abia, and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elisabeth.

6 And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the Commandments and ordinances of the Lord, blameless.

7 And they had no child, because that Elisabeth was barren, and they both were now well stricken in years.

8 And it came to pass, that while he executed the Priest's office before God in the order of his course, 9 According to the custom of the Priest's office, his lot was to burn incense when he went into the Temple of the Lord.

10 [a]And the whole multitude of the people were praying without, at the time of incense.

11 And there appeared unto him an Angel of the Lord, standing on the right side of the Altar of incense.

12 And when Zacharias saw him, he was troubled, and fear fell upon him.

13 But the Angel said unto him, Fear not, Zacharias, for thy prayer is heard, and thy wife Elisabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John.

14 And thou shalt have joy and gladness, and many shall rejoice at his birth:

15 For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine, nor strong drink, and he shall be filled with the holy Ghost, even from his mother's womb.

16 [b]And many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God.

17 And he shall go before him in the spirit and power of Elias, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient ||to the wisdom of the just, to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.

18 And Zacharias said unto the Angel, Whereby shall I know this? For I am an old man, and my wife well stricken in years.

19 And the Angel answering, said unto him, I am Gabriel that stand in the presence of God, and am sent to speak unto thee, and to shew thee these glad tidings.

20 And behold, thou shalt be dumb, and not able to speak, until the day that these things shall be performed, because thou believest not my words, which shall be fulfilled in their season.

21 And the people waited for Zacharias, and marvelled that he tarried so long in the temple.

22 And when he came out, he could not speak unto them: and they perceived that he had seen a vision in the temple: for he beckoned unto them, and remained speechless.

23 And it came to pass, that as soon as the days of his ministration were accomplished, he departed to his own house.

24 And after those days his wife Elisabeth conceived, and hid herself five months, saying, 25 Thus hath the Lord dealt with me in the days wherein he looked on me, to take away my reproach among men.

24 And after these days Elisabeth his wife conceived; and she hid herself five months, saying,
25 Thus hath the Lord done unto me in the days wherein he looked upon me, to take away my reproach among men.

26 And in the sixth month, the Angel Gabriel was sent from God, unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, 27 To a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David, and the virgin's name was Mary.

28 And the Angel came in unto her, and said, Hail thou that art ‖highly favoured, the Lord is with thee: Blessed art thou among women.

29 And when she saw him, she was troubled at his saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be.

30 And the Angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary, for thou hast found favour with God.

31 [c]And behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus.

32 He shall be great, and shall be called the son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David.

33 [d]And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end.

34 Then said Mary unto the Angel, How shall this be, seeing I know not a man?

35 And the Angel answered and said unto her, The holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee. Therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee, shall be called the son of God.

36 And behold, thy cousin Elisabeth, she hath also conceived a son in her old age, and this is the sixth month with her, who was called barren.

37 For with God nothing shall be impossible.

38 And Mary said, Behold the handmaid of the Lord, be it unto me according to thy word: and the Angel departed from her.

39 And Mary arose in those days, and went into the hill country with haste, into a city of Juda, 40 And entered into the house of Zacharias, and saluted Elisabeth.

41 And it came to pass that when Elisabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb, and Elisabeth was filled with the holy Ghost.

42 And she spake out with a loud voice, and said, Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb.

43 And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

44 For lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy.

45 And blessed is she ‖that believed, for there shall be a performance of those things, which were told her from the Lord.

46 And Mary said, My soul doth magnify the Lord,

47 And my spirit hath rejoiced in God my saviour.

26 Now in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named 27 Nazareth, to a virgin betrothed to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and 28 the virgin's name was Mary. And he came in unto her, and said, Hail, thou that art [1]highly 29 favoured, the Lord is with thee[2]. But she was greatly troubled at the saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this might be.
30 And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary:
31 for thou hast found [3]favour with God. And behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS.
32 He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Most High: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David:
33 and he shall reign over the house of Jacob [4]for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no 34 end. And Mary said unto the angel, How 35 shall this be, seeing I know not a man? And the angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Most High shall overshadow thee:
wherefore also [5]that which [6]is to be born [7]shall 36 be called holy, the Son of God. And behold, Elisabeth thy kinswoman, she also hath conceived a son in her old age: and this is the sixth month with her that [8]was called barren.
37 For no word from God shall be void of power.
38 And Mary said, Behold, the [9]handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to thy word.
And the angel departed from her.
39 And Mary arose in these days and went into the hill country with haste, into a city of Judah;
40 and entered into the house of Zacharias and 41 saluted Elisabeth. And it came to pass, when Elisabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb; and Elisabeth was 42 filled with the Holy Ghost; and she lifted up her voice with a loud cry, and said, Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of 43 thy womb. And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come unto me?
44 For behold, when the voice of thy salutation came into mine ears, the babe leaped in my 45 womb for joy. And blessed is she that [10]believed; for there shall be a fulfilment of the things which have been spoken to her from the 46 Lord. And Mary said,

My soul doth magnify the Lord,
47 And my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour.
48 For he hath looked upon the low estate of his [11]handmaiden:
For behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed.
49 For he that is mighty hath done to me great things;
And holy is his name.

50 And his mercy is on them that fear him, from generation to generation.

51 [e]He hath shewed strength with his arm, [f]he hath scattered the proud, in the imagination of their hearts.

52 [g]He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree.

53 [h]He hath filled the hungry with good things, and the rich he hath sent empty away.

54 He hath holpen his servant Israel, [i]in remembrance of his mercy, 55 [k]As he spake to our fathers, to Abraham, and to his seed for ever.

56 And Mary abode with her about three months, and returned to her own house.

57 Now Elisabeth's full time came, that she should be delivered, and she brought forth a son.

58 And her neighbours and her cousins heard how the Lord had shewed great mercy upon her, and they rejoiced with her.

59 And it came to pass that on the eighth day they came to circumcise the child, and they called him Zacharias, after the name of his father.

60 And his mother answered, and said, Not so, but he shall be called John.

61 And they said unto her, There is none of thy kindred that is called by this name.

62 And they made signs to his father, how he would have him called.

63 And he asked for a writing table, and wrote, saying, His name is John: and they marvelled all.

64 And his mouth was opened immediately, and his tongue loosed, and he spake, and praised God.

65 And fear came on all that dwelt round about them, and all these ‖sayings were noised abroad throughout all the hill country of Judæa.

66 And all they that had heard them, laid them up in their hearts, saying, What manner of child shall this be? And the hand of the Lord was with him.

67 And his father Zacharias was filled with the holy Ghost, and prophesied, saying,

68 Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people,

69 [l]And hath raised up an horn of salvation for us, in the house of his servant David,

70 [m]As he spake by the mouth of his holy Prophets, which have been since the world began:

AND it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Cæsar Augustus, that all the world should be ‖taxed.

2 (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)

3 And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

4 And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judæa, unto [a]the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, (because he was of the house and lineage of David,)

5 To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

6 And so it was, that while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

7 And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the Inn.

8 And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping ‖watch over their flock by night.

15 And it came to pass, as the Angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

16 And they came with haste, and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

17 And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying, which was told them, concerning this child.

18 And all they that heard it, wondered at those things, which were told them by the shepherds.

19 But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

20 And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

21 [b]And when eight days were accomplished for the circumcising of the child, his name was called [c]Jesus, which was so named of the Angel before he was conceived in the womb.

22 And when the days of her purification according to the law of Moses, were accomplished, they brought him to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord, 26 And it was revealed unto him by the holy Ghost, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Lord's Christ.

27 And he came by the spirit into the Temple: and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him after the custom of the Law,

28 Then took he him up in his arms, and blessed God, and said, 29 Lord now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word.

30 For mine eyes have seen thy salvation,

31 Which thou hast prepared before the face of all people.

41 Now his parents went to Jerusalem [g]every year, at the feast of the Passover.
42 And when he was twelve years old, they went up to Jerusalem, after the custom of the feast.
43 And when they had fulfilled the days, as they returned, the child Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem, and Joseph and his mother knew not of it.
44 But they supposing him to have been in the company, went a day's journey, and they sought him among their kinsfolk and acquaintance.
45 And when they found him not, they turned back again to Jerusalem, seeking him.
46 And it came to pass, that after three days they found him in the Temple, sitting in the midst of the Doctors, both hearing them, and asking them questions.
47 And all that heard him were astonished at his understanding, and answers.
48 And when they saw him, they were amazed: and his mother said unto him, Son, why hast thou thus dealt with us? Behold, thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing.
49 And he said unto them, How is it that ye sought me? Wist ye not that I must be about my father's business?
50 And they understood not the saying which he spake unto them.
51 And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them: But his mother kept all these sayings in her heart.
52 And Jesus increased in wisdom and ||stature, and in favour with God and man.

CHAP. III.

NOW in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cæsar, Pontius Pilate being Governor of Judæa, and Herod being Tetrarch of Galilee, and his brother Philip Tetrarch of Ituræa, and of the region of Trachonitis, and Lysanias the Tetrarch of Abilene,
2 Annas and Caiaphas being the high Priests, the word of God came unto John the son of Zacharias, in the wilderness.
3 [a]And he came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance, for the remission of sins,
4 As it is written in the book of the words of Esaias the Prophet, saying, [b]The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye way of the Lord, make his paths straight.
5 Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low, and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough ways shall be made smooth.
6 And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.

39 And when they had accomplished all things that were according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee, to their own city Nazareth.
40 And the child grew, and waxed strong, [1]filled with wisdom: and the grace of God was upon him.
41 And his parents went every year to Jerusa-
42 lem at the feast of the passover. And when he was twelve years old, they went up after the 43 custom of the feast; and when they had fulfilled the days, as they were returning, the boy Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem; and his 44 parents knew it not; but supposing him to be in the company, they went a day's journey; and they sought for him among their kinsfolk
45 and acquaintance: and when they found him not, they returned to Jerusalem, seeking for him.
46 And it came to pass, after three days they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the [2]doctors, both hearing them, and asking them
47 questions: and all that heard him were amazed
48 at his understanding and his answers. And when they saw him, they were astonished: and his mother said unto him, [3]Son, why hast thou thus dealt with us? behold, thy father and I
49 sought thee sorrowing. And he said unto them, How is it that ye sought me? wist ye not that I
50 must be [4]in my Father's house? And they understood not the saying which he spake unto 51 them. And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth; and he was subject unto them: and his mother kept all these [5]sayings in her heart.
52 And Jesus advanced in wisdom and [6]stature, and in [7]favour with God and men.

3 Now in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cæsar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judæa, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, and his brother Philip tetrarch of the region of Ituræa and Trachonitis, and Lysanias
2 tetrarch of Abilene, in the high-priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas, the word of God came unto John the son of Zacharias in the wilder-
3 ness. And he came into all the region round about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance unto remission of sins;
4 as it is written in the book of the words of Isaiah the prophet,

The voice of one crying in the wilderness,
Make ye ready the way of the Lord,
Make his paths straight.

5 Every valley shall be filled,
And every mountain and hill shall be brought low;
And the crooked shall become straight,
And the rough ways smooth;
6 And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.

7 Then said he to the multitude that came forth to be baptized of him, [c]O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?
8 Bring forth therefore fruits ||worthy of repentance, and begin not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: For I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.
9 And now also the axe is laid unto the root of the trees: Every tree therefore which bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewn down, and cast into the fire.
10 And the people asked him, saying, What shall we do then?
11 He answereth, and saith unto them, [d]He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none, and he that hath meat, let him do likewise.
12 Then came also Publicans to be baptized, and said unto him, Master, what shall we do?
13 And he said unto them, Exact no more than that which is appointed you.
14 And the soldiers likewise demanded of him, saying, And what shall we do? And he said unto them, ||Do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely, and be content with your ||wages.
15 And as the people were ||in expectation, and all men ||mused in their hearts of John, whether he were the Christ or not:
16 John answered, saying unto them all, [e]I indeed baptize you with water, but one mightier than I cometh, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose, he shall baptize you with the holy Ghost, and with fire.
17 Whose fan is in his hand, and he will throughly purge his floor, and will gather the wheat into his garner, but the chaff he will burn with fire unquenchable.
18 And many other things in his exhortation preached he unto the people.
19 [f]But Herod the Tetrarch being reproved by him for Herodias his brother Philip's wife, and for all the evils which Herod had done, 20 Added yet this above all, that he shut up John in prison.
21 Now when all the people were baptized, [g]and it came to pass that Jesus also being baptized, and praying, the heaven was opened:
22 And the holy Ghost descended in a bodily shape like a Dove upon him, and a voice came from heaven, which said, Thou art my beloved son, in thee I am well pleased.
23 And Jesus himself began to be about thirty years of age, being (as was supposed) the son of Joseph, which was the son of Heli,

2 in the wilderness during forty days, being tempted of the devil. And he did eat nothing in those days: and when they were com-
3 pleted, he hungered. And the devil said unto him, If thou art the Son of God, command
4 this stone that it become [6]bread. And Jesus answered unto him, It is written, Man shall 5 not live by bread alone. And he led him up, and shewed him all the kingdoms of [7]the 6 world in a moment of time. And the devil said unto him, To thee will I give all this authority, and the glory of them: for it hath been delivered unto me; and to whomsoever
7 I will I give it. If thou therefore wilt worship
8 before me, it shall all be thine. And Jesus answered and said unto him, It is written, Thou 19 To preach the acceptable year of the Lord.

20 And he closed the book, and he gave it again to the minister, and sat down: and the eyes of all them that were in the Synagogue were fastened on him.

21 And he began to say unto them, This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears.

22 And all bare him witness, and wondered at the gracious words, which proceeded out of his mouth. And they said, Is not this Joseph's son?

23 And he said unto them, Ye will surely say unto me this proverb, Physician, heal thyself: Whatsoever we have heard done in Capernaum, do also here in thy country.

24 And he said, Verily I say unto you, no [d]Prophet is accepted in his own country.

25 But I tell you of a truth, [e]many widows were in Israel in the days of Elias, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months: when great famine was throughout all the land:

26 But unto none of them was Elias sent, save unto Sarepta a city of Sidon, unto a woman that was a widow.

27 [f]And many lepers were in Israel in the time of Eliseus the Prophet: and none of them was cleansed, saving Naaman the Syrian.

28 And all they in the Synagogue, when they heard these things, were filled with wrath,

29 And rose up, and thrust him out of the city,

30 But he passing through the midst of them, went his way:

31 And came down to Capernaum, a city of Galilee, and taught them on the Sabbath days.

32 And they were astonished at his doctrine: [g] for his word was with power.

33 ¶ [h] And in the Synagogue there was a man which had a spirit of an unclean devil, and cried out with a loud voice,

34 Saying, ||Let us alone, what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the Holy One of God.

35 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. And when the devil had thrown him in the midst, he came out of him, and hurt him not.

36 And they were all amazed, and spake among themselves, saying, What a word is this? for with authority and power he commandeth the unclean spirits, and they come out.

37 And the fame of him went out into every place of the country round about.

38 ¶ [i] And he arose out of the Synagogue, and entered into Simon's house: and Simon's wife's mother was taken with a great fever, and they besought him for her.

39 And he stood over her, and rebuked the fever, and it left her. And immediately she arose, and ministered unto them.

40 ¶ Now when the Sun was setting, all they that had any sick with divers diseases, brought them unto him: and he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them.

41 [k] And devils also came out of many, crying out, and saying, Thou art Christ the Son of God. And he rebuking them, suffered them not ||to speak: for they knew that he was Christ.

42 And when it was day, he departed, and went into a desert place: and the people sought him, and came unto him, and stayed him, that he should not depart from them.

Simon, Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught.

5 And Simon answering, said unto him, Master, we have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing: nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net.

6 And when they had this done, they inclosed a great multitude of fishes, and their net brake:

7 And they beckoned unto their partners, which were in the other ship, that they should come and help them. And they came, and filled both the ships, so that they began to sink.

8 When Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord.

9 For he was astonished, and all that were with him, at the draught of the fishes which they had taken.

10 And so was also James, and John the sons of Zebedee, which were partners with Simon. And Jesus said unto Simon, Fear not, from henceforth thou shalt catch men.

11 And when they had brought their ships to land, they forsook all, and followed him.

12 ¶ [b]And it came to pass, when he was in a certain city, behold a man full of leprosy: who seeing Jesus, fell on his face, and besought him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

13 And he put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will: be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him.

14 And he charged him to tell no man: but, Go, and shew thyself to the Priest, and offer for thy cleansing, according as Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

15 But so much the more went there a fame abroad of him, and great multitudes came together to hear, and to be healed by him of their infirmities.

16 ¶ And he withdrew himself into the wilderness, and prayed.

17 And it came to pass on a certain day, as he was teaching, that there were Pharisees and Doctors of the Law sitting by, which were come out of every town of Galilee, and Judæa, and Jerusalem: and the power of the Lord was present to heal them.

18 ¶ [c]And behold, men brought in a bed a man which was taken with a palsy: and they sought means to bring him in, and to lay him before him.

19 And when they could not find by what way they might bring him in, because of the multitude, they went upon the housetop, and let him down through the tiling with his couch, into the midst before Jesus.

20 And when he saw their faith, he said unto him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee.

21 And the Scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this which speaketh blasphemies? Who can forgive sins, but God alone?

22 But when Jesus perceived their thoughts, he answering, said unto them, What reason ye in your hearts?

23 Whether is easier to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee: or to say, Rise up and walk?

24 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins (he said unto the sick of the palsy,) I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine house.
25 And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God.
26 And they were all amazed, and they glorified God, and were filled with fear, saying, We have seen strange things to day.
27 ¶ [d]And after these things he went forth, and saw a Publican, named Levi, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he said unto him, Follow me.

31 And Jesus answering, said unto them, They that are whole need not a physician: but they that are sick.

35 But the days will come, when the Bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those days.
36 ¶ And he spake also a parable unto them, No man putteth a piece of a new garment upon an old: if otherwise, then both the new maketh a rent, and the piece that was taken out of the new, agreeth not with the old.
37 And no man putteth new wine into old bottles: else the new wine will burst the bottles, and be spilled, and the bottles shall perish.
38 But new wine must be put into new bottles, and both are preserved.
39 No man also having drunk old wine, straightway desireth new: for he saith, The old is better.

27 And after these things he went forth, and beheld a publican, named Levi, sitting at the place

29 And Levi made him a great feast in his house: and there was a great multitude of publicans and of others that were sitting at meat with that were with him, which it is not lawful to eat but for the Priests alone?

5 And he said unto them, That the son of man is Lord also of the Sabbath.

6 [b]And it came to pass also on another Sabbath, that he entered into the Synagogue, and taught: and there was a man whose right hand was withered.

7 And the Scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal on the Sabbath day: that they might find an accusation against him.

8 But he knew their thoughts, and said to the man which had the withered hand, Rise up, and stand forth in the midst. And he arose, and stood forth.

9 Then said Jesus unto them, I will ask you one thing, Is it lawful on the Sabbath days to do good, or to do evil? to save life, or to destroy it?

10 And looking round about upon them all, he said unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he did so: and his hand was restored whole as the other.

11 And they were filled with madness, and communed one with another what they might do to Jesus.

12 And it came to pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God.

13 ¶ And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples: [c]and of them he chose twelve; whom also he named Apostles:

15 Matthew and Thomas, James the son of Alphæus, and Simon, called Zelotes, 16 And Judas [d]the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, which also was the traitor.

18 And they that were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed.

19 And the whole multitude sought to touch him: for there went virtue out of him, and healed them all.

20 ¶ And he lifted up his eyes on his disciples, and said, [e]Blessed be ye poor: for yours is the kingdom of God.

21 Blessed are ye that hunger now: for ye shall be filled. Blessed are ye that weep now, for ye shall laugh.

22 Blessed are ye when men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of man's sake.

CHAP. VII.

NOW when he had ended all his sayings in the audience of the people, [a]he entered into Capernaum.

2 And a certain Centurion's servant, who was dear unto him, was sick and ready to die.

3 And when he heard of Jesus, he sent unto him the Elders of the Jews, beseeching him that he would come and heal his servant.

4 And when they came to Jesus, they besought him instantly, saying, that he was worthy for whom he should do this.

5 For he loveth our nation, and he hath built us a Synagogue.

6 Then Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the Centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thyself: for I am not worthy that thou shouldest enter under my roof.

7 Wherefore neither thought I myself worthy to come unto thee: but say in a word, and my servant shall be healed.

8 For I also am a man set under authority, having under me soldiers: and I say unto one, Go, and he goeth: and to another, Come, and he cometh: and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

9 When Jesus heard these things, he marvelled at him, and turned him about, and said unto the people that followed him, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.

10 And they that were sent, returning to the house, found the servant whole that had been sick.

11 ¶ And it came to pass the day after, that he went into a city called Nain: and many of his disciples went with him, and much people.

12 Now when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold, there was a dead man carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow: and much people of the city was with her.

49 been well builded. But he that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man that built a house upon the earth without a foundation; against which the stream brake, and straightway it fell in; and the ruin of that house was great.

7 After he had ended all his sayings in the ears of the people, he entered into Capernaum.

2 And a certain centurion's [2]servant, who was [3]dear unto him, was sick and at the point of
3 death. And when he heard concerning Jesus, he sent unto him elders of the Jews, asking him
4 that he would come and save his [2]servant. And they, when they came to Jesus, besought him earnestly, saying, He is worthy that thou
5 shouldest do this for him: for he loveth our nation, and himself built us our synagogue.
6 And Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thyself: for I am not [4]worthy that thou shouldthat bare him, stood still.) And he said, Young man, I say unto thee, Arise.

15 And he that was dead, sat up, and began to speak: and he delivered him to his mother.

16 And there came a fear on all, and they glorified God, saying, that a great Prophet is risen up among us, and that God hath visited his people.

17 And this rumour of him went forth throughout all Judæa, and throughout all the region round about.

18 [b]And the disciples of John shewed him of all these things.

19 ¶And John calling unto him two of his disciples, sent them to Jesus, saying, Art thou he that should come, or look we for another?

20 When the men were come unto him, they said, John Baptist hath sent us unto thee, saying, Art thou he that should come, or look we for another?

21 And in that same hour he cured many of their infirmities and plagues, and of evil spirits, and unto many that were blind, he gave sight.

22 Then Jesus answering, said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard, how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the Gospel is preached.

23 And blessed is he whosoever shall not be offended in me.

24 ¶And when the messengers of John were departed, he began to speak unto the people concerning John: What went ye out into the wilderness for to see? A reed shaken with the wind?

25 But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? Behold, they which are gorgeously apparelled, and live delicately, are in kings' courts.

26 But what went ye out for to see? A Prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and much more than a Prophet.

36 ¶ [d]And one of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with him. And he went into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat.
37 And behold, a woman in the city which was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at meat in the Pharisee's house, brought an Alabaster box of ointment,
38 And stood at his feet behind him, weeping, and began to wash his feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment.
39 Now when the Pharisee which had bidden him, saw it, he spake within himself, saying, This man, if he were a Prophet, would have known who, and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him: for she is a sinner.
40 And Jesus answering, said unto him, Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And he saith, Master, say on.

43 Simon answered, and said, I suppose, that he to whom he forgave most. And he said unto him, Thou hast rightly judged.
44 And he turned to the woman, and said unto Simon, Seest thou this woman? I entered into thine house, thou gavest me no water for my feet: but she hath washed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head.
45 Thou gavest me no kiss: but this woman, since the time I came in, hath not ceased to kiss my feet.
46 Mine head with oil thou didst not anoint: but this woman hath anointed my feet with ointment.

38 alabaster cruse of ointment, and standing behind at his feet, weeping, she began to wet his feet with her tears, and wiped them with the hair of her head, and [3]kissed his feet, and gether, and were come to him out of every city, he spake by a parable:

5 A Sower went out to sow his seed: and as he sowed, some fell by the way side, and it was trodden down, and the fowls of the air devoured it.

6 And some fell upon a rock, and as soon as it was sprung up, it withered away, because it lacked moisture.

7 And some fell among thorns, and the thorns sprang up with it, and choked it.

8 And other fell on good ground, and sprang up, and bare fruit an hundredfold. And when he said these things, he cried, He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

9 And his disciples asked him, saying, What might this parable be?

10 And he said, Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God: but to others in parables, that seeing, they might not see, and hearing, they might not understand.

11 [c]Now the parable is this: The seed is the word of God.

12 Those by the way side, are they that hear: then cometh the devil, and taketh away the word out of their hearts, lest they should believe, and be saved.

13 They on the rock, are they which when they hear, receive the word with joy; and these have no root, which for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away.

14 And that which fell among thorns, are they, which when they have heard, go forth, and are choked with cares and riches, and pleasures of this life, and bring no fruit to perfection.

15 But that on the good ground, are they, which in an honest and good heart having heard the word, keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience.

16 ¶ [d]No man when he hath lighted a candle, covereth it with a vessel, or putteth it under a bed: but setteth it on a candlestick, that they which enter in, may see the light.

17 [e]For nothing is secret, that shall not be made manifest: neither any thing hid, that shall not be known, and come abroad.

18 Take heed therefore how ye hear: [f]for whosoever hath, to him shall be given; and whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken, even that which he ‖seemeth to have.

19 ¶ [g]Then came to him his mother and his brethren, and could not come at him for the press.

20 And it was told him by certain which said, Thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to see thee.

21 And he answered and said unto them, My mother and my brethren are these which hear the word of God, and do it.

22 ¶ [h]Now it came to pass on a certain day, that he went into a ship, with his disciples: and he said unto them, Let us go over unto the other side of the lake, and they launched forth.

10 able might be. And he said, Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God: but to the rest in parables; that seeing they may not see, and hearing they may not

16 And no man, when he hath lighted a lamp, covereth it with a vessel, or putteth it under a bed; but putteth it on a stand, that they which enter
17 in may see the light. For nothing is hid, that shall not be made manifest; nor anything secret, that shall not be known and come to light.
18 Take heed therefore how ye hear: for whosoever hath, to him shall be given; and whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken away even that which he [1]thinketh he hath.

came down a storm of wind on the lake, and they were filled with water, and were in jeopardy.

24 And they came to him, and awoke him, saying, Master, master, we perish. Then he rose, and rebuked the wind, and the raging of the water: and they ceased, and there was a calm.

25 And he said unto them, Where is your faith? And they being afraid wondered, saying one to another, What manner of man is this? For he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him.

26 ¶ [t]And they arrived at the country of the Gadarenes, which is over against Galilee.

27 And when he went forth to land, there met him out of the city a certain man which had devils long time, and ware no clothes, neither abode in any house, but in the tombs.

28 When he saw Jesus, he cried out, and fell down before him, and with a loud voice said, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou son of God most high? I beseech thee torment me not.

29 (For he had commanded the unclean spirit to come out of the man: For oftentimes it had caught him, and he was kept bound with chains, and in fetters: and he brake the bands, and was driven of the devil into the wilderness.)

30 And Jesus asked him, saying, What is thy name? And he said, Legion: because many devils were entered into him.

31 And they besought him that he would not command them to go out into the deep.

32 And there was there an herd of many swine feeding on the mountain: and they besought him that he would suffer them to enter into them: and he suffered them.

33 Then went the devils out of the man, and entered into the swine: and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the lake, and were choked.

34 When they that fed them saw what was done, they fled, and went, and told it in the city, and in the country.

35 Then they went out to see what was done, and came to Jesus, and found the man, out of whom the devils were departed, sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid.

36 They also which saw it, told them by what means he that was possessed of the devils, was healed.

37 ¶ Then the whole multitude of the country of the Gadarenes round about, besought him to depart from them, for they were taken with great fear: and he went up into the ship, and returned back again.

38 Now the man, out of whom the devils were departed, besought him that he might be with him: but Jesus sent him away, saying, 39 Return to thine own house, and shew how great things God hath done unto thee. And he went his way, and published throughout the whole city how great things Jesus had done unto him.

40 And it came to pass, that when Jesus was returned, the people gladly received him: for they were all waiting for him.

7 ¶ [b]Now Herod the Tetrarch heard of all that was done by him: and he was perplexed, because that it was said of some, that John was risen from the dead:

8 And of some, that Elias had appeared: and of others, that one of the old Prophets was risen again.

9 And Herod said, John have I beheaded: but who is this of whom I hear such things? And he desired to see him.

11 And the people when they knew it, followed him, and he received them, and spake unto them of the kingdom of God, and healed them that had need of healing.

12 [d]And when the day began to wear away, then came the twelve, and said unto him, Send the multitude away, that they may go into the towns and country round about, and lodge, and get victuals: for we are here in a desert place.

13 But he said unto them, Give ye them to eat. And they said, We have no more but five loaves and two fishes, except we should go and buy meat for all this people.

14 For they were about five thousand men. And he said to his disciples, Make them sit down by fifties in a company.

15 And they did so, and made them all sit down.

16 Then he took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed them, and brake, and gave to the disciples to set before the multitude.

17 And they did eat, and were all filled. And there was taken up of fragments that remained to them, twelve baskets.

7 Now Herod the tetrarch heard of all that was done: and he was much perplexed, because that it was said by some, that John was risen from 8 the dead; and by some, that Elijah had appeared; and by others, that one of the old
9 prophets was risen again. And Herod said, John I beheaded: but who is this, about whom I hear such things? And he sought to see him.

10 And the apostles, when they were returned, declared unto him what things they had done. And he took them, and withdrew apart to a 11 city called Bethsaida. But the multitudes perceiving it followed him: and he welcomed them, and spake to them of the kingdom of God, and 12 them that had need of healing he healed. And the day began to wear away; and the twelve came, and said unto him, Send the multitude away, that they may go into the villages and country round about, and lodge, and get vic-
13 tuals: for we are here in a desert place. But he said unto them, Give ye them to eat. And they said, We have no more than five loaves and two fishes; except we should go and buy
14 food for all this people. For they were about five thousand men. And he said unto his disciples, Make them [1]sit down in companies, about 15 fifty each. And they did so, and made them all
16 [1]sit down. And he took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed them, and brake; and gave to the disciples to 17 set before the multitude. And they did eat, and were all filled: and there was taken up that which remained over to them of broken pieces, twelve baskets.

18 And it came to pass, as he was praying alone, the disciples were with him: and he asked them, saying, Who do the multitudes say that I am?
19 And they answering said, John the Baptist; but others say, Elijah; and others, that one of the 20 old prophets is risen again. And he said unto them, But who say ye that I am? And Peter 21 answering said, The Christ of God. But he charged them, and commanded them to tell this 22 to no man; saying, The Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and 23 the third day be raised up. And he said unto all, If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and 24 follow me. For whosoever would save his [2]life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his [2]life
25 for my sake, the same shall save it. For what is a man profited, if he gain the whole world, 26 and lose or forfeit his own self? For whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he shall come in his own glory, and in his Father's, and of the holy Angels.

27 [k]But I tell you of a truth, there be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the kingdom of God.

28 ¶ [l]And it came to pass, about an eight days after these ‖sayings, he took Peter, and John, and James, and went up into a mountain to pray:

29 And as he prayed, the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment was white and glistering.

30 And behold, there talked with him two men, which were Moses and Elias, 31 Who appeared in glory, and spake of his decease, which he should accomplish at Jerusalem.

32 But Peter, and they that were with him, were heavy with sleep: and when they were awake, they saw his glory, and the two men that stood with him.

33 And it came to pass, as they departed from him, Peter said unto Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here, and let us make three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias: not knowing what he said.

34 While he thus spake, there came a cloud, and overshadowed them, and they feared, as they entered into the cloud.

35 And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son, hear him.

36 And when the voice was past, Jesus was found alone, and they kept it close, and told no man in those days any of those things which they had seen.

37 ¶ [m]And it came to pass, that on the next day, when they were come down from the hill, much people met him.

38 And behold, a man of the company cried out, saying, Master, I beseech thee look upon my son, for he is mine only child.

39 And lo, a spirit taketh him, and he suddenly crieth out, and it teareth him that he foameth again, and bruising him, hardly departeth from him.

40 And I besought thy disciples to cast him out, and they could not.

41 And Jesus answering, said, O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you, and suffer you? bring thy son hither.

42 And as he was yet a coming, the devil threw him down, and tare him: and Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, and healed the child, and delivered him again to his father.

43 ¶ And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God: But while they wondered every one at all things which Jesus did, he said unto his disciples, 44 [n]Let these sayings sink down into your ears: for the Son of man shall be delivered into the hands of men.

45 But they understood not this saying, and it was hid from them, that they perceived it not: and they feared to ask him of that saying.

46 ¶ [o]Then there arose a reasoning among them, which of them should be greatest.

47 And Jesus perceiving the thought of their heart, took a child, and set him by him,

28 And it came to pass about eight days after these sayings, he took with him Peter and John and James, and went up into the mountain to 29 pray. And as he was praying, the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment
30 became white and dazzling. And behold, there talked with him two men, which were Moses 31 and Elijah; who appeared in glory, and spake of his [1]decease which he was about to accom-
32 plish at Jerusalem. Now Peter and they that were with him were heavy with sleep: but [2]when they were fully awake, they saw his glory, and the two men that stood with him.
33 And it came to pass, as they were parting from him, Peter said unto Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three [3]tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah: not knowing what he said.
34 And while he said these things, there came a cloud, and overshadowed them: and they feared
35 as they entered into the cloud. And a voice came out of the cloud, saying, This is [4]my Son, 36 my chosen: hear ye him. And when the voice [5]came, Jesus was found alone. And they held their peace, and told no man in those days any of the things which they had seen.

37 And it came to pass, on the next day, when they were come down from the mountain, a
38 great multitude met him. And behold, a man from the multitude cried, saying, [6]Master, I beseech thee to look upon my son; for he is mine 39 only child: and behold, a spirit taketh him, and he suddenly crieth out; and it [7]teareth him that he foameth, and it hardly departeth from him,
40 bruising him sorely. And I besought thy dis-
41 ciples to cast it out; and they could not. And Jesus answered and said, O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you, 42 and bear with you? bring hither thy son. And as he was yet a coming, the [8]devil [9]dashed him down, and [10]tare him grievously. But Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, and healed the boy, 43 and gave him back to his father. And they were all astonished at the majesty of God.

But while all were marvelling at all the things
44 which he did, he said unto his disciples, Let these words sink into your ears: for the Son of man shall be delivered up into the hands of 45 men. But they understood not this saying, and it was concealed from them, that they should not perceive it: and they were afraid to ask him about this saying.

46 And there arose a reasoning among them,
47 which of them should be [11]greatest. But when Jesus saw the reasoning of their heart, he took a little child, and set him by his side,

48 And said unto them, Whosoever shall receive this child in my Name, receiveth me: and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth him that sent me: For he that is least among you all, the same shall be great.

49 ¶ [p]And John answered, and said, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy Name, and we forbade him, because he followeth not with us.

50 And Jesus said unto him, Forbid him not: for he that is not against us, is for us.

51 ¶ And it came to pass, when the time was come that he should be received up, he stedfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem, 52 And sent messengers before his face, and they went and entered into a village of the Samaritans to make ready for him.

53 And they did not receive him, because his face was as though he would go to Jerusalem.

54 And when his disciples, James and John saw this, they said, Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven, and consume them, even as [q]Elias did?

55 But he turned, and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner spirit ye are of.

56 For the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them. And they went to another village.

57 ¶ [r]And it came to pass that as they went in the way, a certain man said unto him, Lord, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.

58 And Jesus said unto him, Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.

59 [s]And he said unto another, Follow me: But he said, Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father.

60 Jesus said unto him, Let the dead bury their dead: but go thou and preach the kingdom of God.

61 And another also said, Lord, I will follow thee: but let me first go bid them farewell which are at home at my house.

62 And Jesus said unto him, No man having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.

Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbour as thyself.

28 And he said unto him, Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt live.

29 But he willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, And who is my neighbour?

30 And Jesus answering, said, A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, which stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead.

31 And by chance there came down a certain Priest that way, and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side.

32 And likewise a Levite, when he was at the place, came and looked on him, and passed by on the other side.

33 But a certain Samaritan as he journeyed, came where he was; and when he saw him, he had compassion on him,

34 And went to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and set him on his own beast, and brought him to an Inn, and took care of him.

35 And on the morrow when he departed, he took out two ‖ pence, and gave them to the host, and said unto him, Take care of him, and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again I will repay thee.

36 Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbour unto him that fell among the thieves?

37 And he said, He that shewed mercy on him. Then said Jesus unto him, Go, and do thou likewise.

38 ¶ Now it came to pass, as they went, that he entered into a certain village: and a certain woman named Martha received him into her house.

39 And she had a sister called Mary, which also sat at Jesus' feet, and heard his word:

40 But Martha was cumbered about much serving, and came to him, and said, Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? Bid her therefore that she help me.

41 And Jesus answered, and said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful, and troubled about many things:

42 But one thing is needful, and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her.

28 And he said unto him, Thou hast answered
29 right: this do, and thou shalt live. But he, desiring to justify himself, said unto Jesus,
30 And who is my neighbour? Jesus made answer and said, A certain man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho; and he fell among robbers, which both stripped him and beat him, 31 and departed, leaving him half dead. And by chance a certain priest was going down that way: and when he saw him, he passed by on 32 the other side. And in like manner a Levite also, when he came to the place, and saw him, 33 passed by on the other side. But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was: and when he saw him, he was moved 34 with compassion, and came to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring on them oil and wine; and he set him on his own beast, and brought 35 him to an inn, and took care of him. And on the morrow he took out two [2]pence, and gave them to the host, and said, Take care of him; and whatsoever thou spendest more, I, when I
36 come back again, will repay thee. Which of these three, thinkest thou, proved neighbour
37 unto him that fell among the robbers? And he said, He that shewed mercy on him. And Jesus said unto him, Go, and do thou likewise.

38 Now as they went on their way, he entered into a certain village: and a certain woman named Martha received him into her house.

6 For a friend of mine ‖in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him,

7 And he from within shall answer and say, Trouble me not, the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed: I cannot rise and give thee.

8 I say unto you, Though he will not rise, and give him, because he is his friend: yet because of his importunity, he will rise and give him as many as he needeth.

9 [b]And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you: seek, and ye shall find: knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

10 For every one that asketh, receiveth: and he that seeketh, findeth: and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened.

13 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children: how much more shall your heavenly Father give the holy Spirit to them that ask him?

14 ¶ And he was casting out a devil, and it was dumb. And it came to pass, when the devil was gone out, the dumb spake: and the people wondered.

15 But some of them said, [d]He casteth out devils through Beelzebub the chief of the devils.

16 And other, tempting him, sought of him a sign from heaven.

17 But he knowing their thoughts, said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself, is brought to desolation: and a house divided against a house, falleth.

18 If Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? Because ye say that I cast out devils through Beelzebub.

19 And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your sons cast them out? therefore shall they be your judges.

20 But if I with the finger of God cast out devils, no doubt the kingdom of God is come upon you.

21 When a strong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace:

22 But when a stronger than he shall come upon him, and overcome him, he taketh from him all his armour wherein he trusted, and divideth his spoils.

23 He that is not with me, is against me: and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth.

24 [e]When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest: and finding none, he saith, I will return unto my house whence I came out.

25 And when he cometh, he findeth it swept and garnished.

26 Then goeth he, and taketh to him seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in, and dwell there, and the last state of that man is worse than the first.

27 ¶ And it came to pass as he spake these things, a certain woman of the company lift up her voice, and said unto him, Blessed is the womb that bare thee, and the paps which thou hast sucked.

28 But he said, Yea, rather blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it.

29 ¶ [f]And when the people were gathered thick together, he began to say, This is an evil generation, they seek a sign, and there shall no sign be given it, but the sign of Jonas the Prophet:

30 For as Jonas was a sign unto the Ninevites, so shall also the Son of man be to this generation.

31 The Queen of the South shall rise up in the judgment with the men of this generation, and condemn them: for she came from the utmost parts of the earth, to hear the wisdom of Solomon: and behold, a greater than Solomon is here.

32 The men of Nineveh shall rise up in the judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for they repented at the preaching of Jonas, and behold, a greater than Jonas is here.

28 thou didst suck. But he said, Yea rather, blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it.

29 And when the multitudes were gathering together unto him, he began to say, This generation is an evil generation: it seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given to it but 30 the sign of Jonah. For even as Jonah became a sign unto the Ninevites, so shall also the Son
31 of man be to this generation. The queen of the south shall rise up in the judgement with the men of this generation, and shall condemn them: for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and behold,

47 [m]Woe unto you: for ye build the sepulchres of the Prophets, and your fathers killed them.

48 Truly ye bear witness that ye allow the deeds of your fathers: for they indeed killed them, and ye build their sepulchres.

49 Therefore also said the wisdom of God, I will send them Prophets and Apostles, and some of them they shall slay and persecute:

50 That the blood of all the Prophets, which was shed from the foundation of the world, may be required of this generation, 51 [n]From the blood of Abel unto the blood of Zacharias, which perished between the Altar and the Temple: Verily I say unto you, it shall be required of this generation.

52 [o]Woe unto you Lawyers: for ye have taken away the key of knowledge: ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in, ye ||hindered.

3 Therefore, whatsoever ye have spoken in darkness, shall be heard in the light: and that which ye have spoken in the ear, in closets, shall be proclaimed upon the housetops.

4 [c]And I say unto you my friends, Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that, have no more that they can do.

5 But I will forewarn you whom you shall fear: Fear him, which after he hath killed, hath power to cast into hell, yea, I say unto you, Fear him.

7 Then said he unto the dresser of his Vineyard, Behold, these three years I come seeking fruit on this fig tree, and find none: cut it down, why cumbereth it the ground?

13 Now there were some present at that very season which told him of the Galilæans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices.
2 And he answered and said unto them, Think ye that these Galilæans were sinners above all the Galilæans, because they have suffered these 3 things? I tell you, Nay: but, except ye 4 repent, ye shall all in like manner perish. Or those eighteen, upon whom the tower in Siloam fell, and killed them, think ye that they were [4]offenders above all the men that dwell in Jeru-
5 salem? I tell you, Nay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

6 And he spake this parable; A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard; and he came seeking fruit thereon, and found none.
7 And he said unto the vinedresser, Behold, these three years I come seeking fruit on this fig tree, and find none: cut it down; why doth it also 8 cumber the ground? And he answering saith fruit thenceforth, well; but if not, thou shalt therefore come and be healed, and not on the Sabbath day.

15 The Lord then answered him, and said, Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the Sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to watering?

16 And ought not this woman being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the Sabbath day?

17 And when he had said these things, all his adversaries were ashamed: and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him.

18 ¶ [a]Then said he, Unto what is the kingdom of God like? and whereunto shall I resemble it?

19 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and cast into his garden, and it grew, and waxed a great tree: and the fowls of the air lodged in the branches of it.

20 And again he said, Whereunto shall I liken the kingdom of God?

21 It is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three ‖measures of meal, till the whole was leavened.

22 [b]And he went through the cities and villages, teaching and journeying towards Jerusalem.

23 Then said one unto him, Lord, are there few that be saved? And he said unto them, 24 ¶ [c]Strive to enter in at the strait gate: for many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able.

25 When once the master of the house is risen up, and hath shut to the door, and ye begin to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us, and he shall answer, and say unto you, I know you not whence you are:

26 Then shall ye begin to say, We have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets.

27 [d]But he shall say, I tell you, I know you not whence you are; depart from me all ye workers of iniquity.

28 There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the Prophets in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out.

29 And they shall come from the East, and from the West, and from the North, and from the South, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God.

30 [e]And behold, there are last, which shall be first; and there are first, which shall be last.

31 ¶ The same day there came certain of the Pharisees, saying unto him, Get thee out, and depart hence; for Herod will kill thee.

32 And he said unto them, Go ye and tell that Fox, behold, I cast out devils, and I do cures to day and to morrow, and the third day I shall be perfected.

AND it came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the Sabbath day, that they watched him.

2 And behold, there was a certain man before him, which had the dropsy.

3 And Jesus answering, spake unto the Lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath day?

4 And they held their peace. And he took him, and healed him, and let him go,

5 And answered them, saying, Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the Sabbath day?

6 And they could not answer him again to these things.

7 ¶ And he put forth a parable to those which were bidden, when he marked how they chose out the chief rooms, saying unto them,

8 When thou art bidden of any man to a wedding, sit not down in the highest room: lest a more honourable man than thou be bidden of him,

9 And he that bade thee and him, come, and say to thee, Give this man place: and thou begin with shame to take the lowest room.

12 ¶ Then said he also to him that bade him, When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbours, lest they also bid thee again, and a recompense be made thee.

13 But when thou makest a feast, call [c]the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind, 14 And thou shalt be blessed, for they cannot recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just.

19 And another said, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them: I pray thee have me excused.

20 And another said, I have married a wife: and therefore I cannot come.

21 So that servant came, and shewed his lord these things. Then the master of the house being angry, said to his servant, Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind.

22 And the servant said, Lord, it is done as thou hast commanded, and yet there is room.

23 And the lord said unto the servant, Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled.

24 For I say unto you, that none of those men which were bidden, shall taste of my supper.

25 ¶ And there went great multitudes with him: and he turned, and said unto them,

14 And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land, and he began to be in want.
15 And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country, and he sent him into his fields to feed swine.
16 And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat: and no man gave unto him.

AND he said also unto his disciples, There was a certain rich man which had a Steward, and the same was accused unto him that he had wasted his goods.

2 And he called him, and said unto him, How is it that I hear this of thee? Give an account of thy stewardship: for thou mayest be no longer Steward.

3 Then the Steward said within himself, What shall I do, for my lord taketh away from me the stewardship? I cannot dig, to beg I am ashamed.

is come; and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, because he hath received him safe and 28 sound. But he was angry, and would not go in: and his father came out, and intreated him.
29 But he answered and said to his father, Lo, these many years do I serve thee, and I never transgressed a commandment of thine: and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might make 30 merry with my friends: but when this thy son came, which hath devoured thy living with harlots, thou killedst for him the fatted calf.
31 And he said unto him, [2]Son, thou art ever with 32 me, and all that is mine is thine. But it was meet to make merry and be glad: for this thy brother was dead, and is alive again; and was lost, and is found.

16 And he said also unto the disciples, There was a certain rich man, which had a steward; and the same was accused unto him that he was 2 wasting his goods. And he called him, and said unto him, What is this that I hear of thee?
render the account of thy stewardship; for thou 3 canst be no longer steward. And the steward said within himself, What shall I do, seeing that my lord taketh away the stewardship from me?
I have not strength to dig; to beg I am ashamed.
4 I am resolved what to do, that, when I am put out of the stewardship, they may receive me 5 into their houses. And calling to him each one of his lord's debtors, he said to the first, How 6 much owest thou unto my lord? And he said,
A hundred [3]measures of oil. And he said unto him, Take thy [4]bond, and sit down quickly and 7 write fifty. Then said he to another, And how much owest thou? And he said, A hundred [5]measures of wheat. He saith unto him, Take 8 thy [4]bond, and write fourscore. And his lord commended [6]the unrighteous steward because he had done wisely: for the sons of this [7]world are for their own generation wiser than the sons 9 of the light. And I say unto you, Make to yourselves friends [8]by means of the mammon of unrighteousness; that, when it shall fail, they may receive you into the eternal taber-10 nacles. He that is faithful in a very little is faithful also in much: and he that is unrighteous in a very little is unrighteous also 11 in much. If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will com-
12 mit to your trust the true riches? And 13 ¶ [a]No servant can serve two masters, for either he will hate the one, and love the other: or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other: ye cannot serve God and Mammon.

14 And the Pharisees also who were covetous, heard all these things: and they derided him.

15 And he said unto them, Ye are they which justify yourselves before men, but God knoweth your hearts: for that which is highly esteemed amongst men, is abomination in the sight of God.

22 And it came to pass that the beggar died, and was carried by the Angels into Abraham's bosom: the rich man also died, and was buried.

23 And in hell he lift up his eyes being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom:

24 And he cried, and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame.

25 But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things, but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented.

26 And besides all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed, so that they which would pass from hence to you, cannot, neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence.

27 Then he said, I pray thee therefore father, that thou wouldest send him to my father's house:

28 For I have five brethren, that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment.

29 Abraham saith unto him, They have Moses and the Prophets, let them hear them.

30 And he said, Nay, father Abraham: but if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent.

31 And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the Prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead.

9 And he spake also this parable unto certain which trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and set [10]all others at nought:

10 Two men went up into the Temple to pray, the one a Pharisee, and the other a Publican.
11 The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this Publican.
12 I fast twice in the week, I give tithes of all that I possess.
13 And the Publican standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven: but smote upon his breast, saying, God be merciful to me a sinner.
14 I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the other: [b] For every one that exalteth himself, shall be abased: and he that humbleth himself, shall be exalted.
15 And they brought unto him also infants, that he would touch them: but when his disciples saw it, they rebuked them.
16 But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God.
17 Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, shall in no wise enter therein.
18 [c] And a certain ruler asked him, saying, Good master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?
19 And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? None is good save one, that is God.
20 Thou knowest the commandments, Do not commit adultery, Do not kill, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Honour thy father and thy mother.
21 And he said, All these have I kept from my youth up.
22 Now when Jesus heard these things, he said unto him, Yet lackest thou one thing: Sell all that thou hast, and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven, and come, follow me.

all things that are written by the Prophets concerning the son of man, shall be accomplished.
32 For he shall be delivered unto the Gentiles, and shall be mocked, and spitefully entreated, and spitted on:
33 And they shall scourge him, and put him to death, and the third day he shall rise again.
34 And they understood none of these things: and this saying was hid from them, neither knew they the things which were spoken.
35 ¶ [f]And it came to pass, that as he was come nigh unto Jericho, a certain blind man sat by the way side, begging, 36 And hearing the multitude pass by, he asked what it meant.
37 And they told him that Jesus of Nazareth passeth by.
38 And he cried, saying, Jesus thou son of David, have mercy on me.
39 And they which went before, rebuked him, that he should hold his peace: but he cried so much the more, Thou son of David, have mercy on me.
40 And Jesus stood and commanded him to be brought unto him: and when he was come near, he asked him, 41 Saying, What wilt thou that I shall do unto thee? And he said, Lord, that I may receive my sight.
42 And Jesus said unto him, Receive thy sight, thy faith hath saved thee.
43 And immediately he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God: and all the people when they saw it, gave praise unto God.

CHAP. XIX.

AND Jesus entered, and passed through Jericho.
2 And behold, there was a man named Zacchæus, which was the chief among the Publicans, and he was rich.
3 And he sought to see Jesus who he was, and could not for the press, because he was little of stature.
4 And he ran before, and climbed up into a sycomore tree to see him, for he was to pass that way.
5 And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up and saw him, and said unto him, Zacchæus, make haste, and come down, for to day I must abide at thy house.
6 And he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully.
7 And when they saw it, they all murmured, saying, That he was gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner.
8 And Zacchæus stood, and said unto the Lord, Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor, and if I have taken any thing from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold.
9 And Jesus said unto him, This day is salvation come to this house, forsomuch as he also is the son of Abraham.
10 [a]For the son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.

32 For he shall be delivered up unto the Gentiles, and shall be mocked, and shamefully entreated, 33 and spit upon: and they shall scourge and kill him: and the third day he shall rise again.
34 And they understood none of these things; and this saying was hid from them, and they perceived not the things that were said.
35 And it came to pass, as he drew nigh unto Jericho, a certain blind man sat by the way side 36 begging: and hearing a multitude going by,
37 he inquired what this meant. And they told 38 him, that Jesus of Nazareth passeth by. And he cried, saying, Jesus, thou son of David, have 39 mercy on me. And they that went before rebuked him, that he should hold his peace: but he cried out the more a great deal, Thou son of 40 David, have mercy on me. And Jesus stood, and commanded him to be brought unto him: and when he was come near, he asked him, 41 What wilt thou that I should do unto thee? And he said, Lord, that I may receive my 42 sight. And Jesus said unto him, Receive thy 43 sight: thy faith hath [2]made thee whole. And immediately he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God: and all the people, when they saw it, gave praise unto God.
19 And he entered and was passing through
2 Jericho. And behold, a man called by name Zacchæus; and he was a chief publican, and 3 he was rich. And he sought to see Jesus who he was; and could not for the crowd, because 4 he was little of stature. And he ran on before, and climbed up into a sycomore tree to see him:
5 for he was to pass that way. And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up, and said unto him, Zacchæus, make haste, and come down; for 6 to-day I must abide at thy house. And he made haste, and came down, and received him
7 joyfully. And when they saw it, they all murmured, saying, He is gone in to lodge with a
8 man that is a sinner. And Zacchæus stood, and said unto the Lord, Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have wrongfully exacted aught of any man, I restore 9 fourfold. And Jesus said unto him, To-day is salvation come to this house, forasmuch as he 10 also is a son of Abraham. For the Son of man came to seek and to save that which was lost.

11 And as they heard these things, he added, and spake a parable, because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear.

12 [b]He said therefore, A certain nobleman went into a far country, to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return.

13 And he called his ten servants, and delivered them ten ‖pounds, and said unto them, Occupy till I come.

14 But his citizens hated him, and sent a message after him, saying, We will not have this man to reign over us.

15 And it came to pass, that when he was returned, having received the kingdom, then he commanded these servants to be called unto him, to whom he had given the money, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading.

16 Then came the first, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds.

17 And he said unto him, Well, thou good servant: because thou hast been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities.

18 And the second came, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds.

19 And he said likewise to him, Be thou also over five cities.

20 And another came, saying, Lord, behold, here is thy pound which I have kept laid up in a napkin:

21 For I feared thee, because thou art an austere man: thou takest up that thou layedst not down, and reapest that thou didst not sow.

22 And he saith unto him, Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked servant: Thou knewest that I was an austere man, taking up that I laid not down, and reaping that I did not sow.

23 Wherefore then gavest not thou my money into the bank, that at my coming I might have required mine own with usury?

24 And he said unto them that stood by, Take from him the pound, and give it to him that hath ten pounds.

25 And they said unto him, Lord, he hath ten pounds.

26 For I say unto you, [c]That unto every one which hath, shall be given, and from him that hath not, even that he hath shall be taken away from him.

27 But those mine enemies which would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me.

28 ¶ And when he had thus spoken, he went before, ascending up to Jerusalem.

29 [d]And it came to pass when he was come nigh to Bethphage and Bethany, at the mount called the mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples, 30 Saying, Go ye into the village over against you, in the which at your entering ye shall find a Colt tied, whereon yet never man sat: loose him, and bring him hither.

11 And again he sent another servant, and they beat him also, and entreated him shamefully, and sent him away empty.

12 And again he sent the third, and they wounded him also, and cast him out.

13 Then said the lord of the vineyard, What shall I do? I will send my beloved son: it may be they will reverence him when they see him.

14 But when the husbandmen saw him, they reasoned among themselves, saying, This is the heir, come, let us kill him, that the inheritance may be ours.

15 So they cast him out of the vineyard, and killed him. What therefore shall the lord of the vineyard do unto them?

16 He shall come and destroy these husbandmen, and shall give the vineyard to others. And when they heard it, they said, God forbid.

17 And he beheld them, and said, What is this then that is written, [c]The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner?

18 Whosoever shall fall upon that stone, shall be broken: but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder.

19 ¶ And the chief Priests and the Scribes the same hour sought to lay hands on him, and they feared the people: for they perceived that he had spoken this parable against them.

26 And they could not take hold of his words before the people, and they marvelled at his answer, and held their peace.

27 ¶ [e]Then came to him certain of the Sadducees (which deny that there is any resurrection) and they asked him, 28 Saying, Master, Moses wrote unto us, If any man's brother die, having a wife, and he die without children, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother.

29 There were therefore seven brethren, and the first took a wife, and died without children.

30 And the second took her to wife, and he died childless.

31 And the third took her, and in like manner the seven also. And they left no children, and died.

32 Last of all the woman died also.

33 Therefore in the resurrection, whose wife of them is she? for seven had her to wife.

34 And Jesus answering, said unto them, The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage:

35 But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage.

36 Neither can they die any more; for they are equal unto the Angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection.

37 Now that the dead are raised, [f]even Moses shewed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.

38 For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living; for all live unto him.

39 ¶ Then certain of the Scribes answering, said, Master, Thou hast well said.

40 And after that, they durst not ask him any question at all.

41 And he said unto them, [g]How say they that Christ is David's son?

42 And David himself saith in the book of Psalms, The Lord said to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, 43 Till I make thine enemies thy footstool.

30 took a wife, and died childless; and the second;

31 and the third took her; and likewise the seven

32 also left no children, and died. Afterward the

NOW [a]the feast of unleavened bread drew nigh, which is called the Passover.
2 And the chief Priests and Scribes sought how they might kill him; for they feared the people.
3 ¶ [b]Then entered Satan into Judas surnamed Iscariot, being of the number of the twelve.
4 And he went his way, and communed with the chief Priests and captains, how he might betray him unto them.
5 And they were glad, and covenanted to give him money.
6 And he promised, and sought opportunity to betray him unto them ‖ in the absence of the multitude.
7 ¶ [c]Then came the day of unleavened bread, when the Passover must be killed.
8 And he sent Peter and John, saying, Go and prepare us the Passover, that we may eat.

25 Then he said unto them, O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the Prophets have spoken:

26 Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?

27 And beginning at Moses, and all the Prophets, he expounded unto them in all the Scriptures, the things concerning himself.

28 And they drew nigh unto the village, whither they went, and he made as though he would have gone further.

29 But they constrained him, saying, Abide with us, for it is towards evening, and the day is far spent: And he went in, to tarry with them.

2 [a]The same was in the beginning with God.
3 [b]All things were made by him, and without him was not any thing made that was made.

13 Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

14 [e]And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth.

15 ¶John bare witness of him, and cried, saying, This was he of whom I spake, He that cometh after me, is preferred before me, for he was before me.

16 And of his [f]fulness have all we received, and grace for grace.

17 For the Law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ.

18 [g]No man hath seen God at any time: the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him.

19 ¶And this is the record of John, when the Jews sent Priests and Levites from Jerusalem, to ask him, Who art thou?

20 And he confessed, and denied not: but confessed, I am not the Christ.

21 And they asked him, What then? Art thou Elias? And he saith, I am not. Art thou ‖ that Prophet? And he answered, No.

22 Then said they unto him, Who art thou, that we may give an answer to them that sent us? What sayest thou of thyself?

23 [h]He said, I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness: Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the Prophet Esaias.

24 And they which were sent were of the Pharisees.

25 And they asked him, and said unto him, Why baptizest thou then, if thou be not that Christ, nor Elias, neither that Prophet?

26 John answered them, saying, I baptize with water, but there standeth one among you, whom ye know not,

27 [i]He it is, who coming after me, is preferred before me, whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose.

28 These things were done in Bethabara beyond Jordan, where John was baptizing.

29 ¶The next day, John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, which ‖ taketh away the sin of the world.

30 This is he of whom I said, After me cometh a man which is preferred before me: for he was before me.

31 And I knew him not: but that he should be made manifest to Israel, therefore am I come baptizing with water.

32 [k]And John bare record saying, I saw the Spirit descending from heaven, like a Dove, and it abode upon him.

33 And I knew him not: but he that sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining on him, the same is he which baptizeth with the holy Ghost.

34 And I saw, and bare record, that this is the son of God.

THE TAKING DOWN FROM THE CROSS.—MARK XV. 47.

35 ¶ Again the next day after, John stood, and two of his disciples.
36 And looking upon Jesus as he walked, he saith, Behold the Lamb of God.
37 And the two disciples heard him speak, and they followed Jesus.
38 Then Jesus turned, and saw them following, and saith unto them, What seek ye? They said unto him, Rabbi, (which is to say, being interpreted, Master) where ‖ dwellest thou?
39 He saith unto them, Come and see. They came and saw where he dwelt, and abode with him that day: for it was ‖ about the tenth hour.
40 One of the two which heard John speak, and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother.
41 He first findeth his own brother Simon, and saith unto him, We have found the Messias, which is, being interpreted, ‖ the Christ.
42 And he brought him to Jesus. And when Jesus beheld him, he said, Thou art Simon the son of Jona, thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, ‖ a stone.
43 ¶ The day following, Jesus would go forth into Galilee, and findeth Philip, and saith unto him, Follow me.
44 Now Philip was of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter.
45 Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith unto him, We have found him of whom [l] Moses in the Law, and the [m] Prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth the son of Joseph.
46 And Nathanael said unto him, Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip saith unto him, Come and see.
47 Jesus saw Nathanael coming to him, and saith of him, Behold an Israelite indeed in whom is no guile.
48 Nathanael saith unto him, Whence knowest thou me? Jesus answered, and said unto him, Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee.
49 Nathanael answered, and saith unto him, Rabbi, thou art the Son of God, thou art the king of Israel.
50 Jesus answered, and said unto him, Because I said unto thee, I saw thee under the fig tree, believest thou? thou shalt see greater things than these.
51 And he saith unto him, Verily, verily I say unto you, hereafter ye shall see heaven open, and the Angels of God ascending, and descending upon the son of man.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there.
2 And both Jesus was called, and his disciples, to the marriage.
3 And when they wanted wine, the mother of Jesus saith unto him, They have no wine.
4 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, what have I to do with thee? mine hour is not yet come.
5 His mother saith unto the servants, Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it.

35 Again on the morrow John was standing,
36 and two of his disciples; and he looked upon Jesus as he walked, and saith, Behold, the 37 Lamb of God! And the two disciples heard 38 him speak, and they followed Jesus. And Jesus turned, and beheld them following, and saith unto them, What seek ye? And they said unto him, Rabbi (which is to say, being 39 interpreted, [1] Master), where abidest thou? He saith unto them, Come, and ye shall see. They came therefore and saw where he abode; and they abode with him that day: it was about the 40 tenth hour. One of the two that heard John speak, and followed him, was Andrew, Simon
41 Peter's brother. He findeth first his own brother Simon, and saith unto him, We have found the Messiah (which is, being interpreted, [2] Christ).
42 He brought him unto Jesus. Jesus looked upon him and said, Thou art Simon the son of [3] John: thou shalt be called Cephas (which is by interpretation, [4] Peter).
43 On the morrow he was minded to go forth into Galilee, and he findeth Philip: and Jesus
44 saith unto him, Follow me. Now Philip was from Bethsaida, of the city of Andrew and Pe-
45 ter. Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith unto him, We have found him, of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets, did write, Jesus of 46 Nazareth, the son of Joseph. And Nathanael said unto him, Can any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip saith unto him, Come and 47 see. Jesus saw Nathanael coming to him, and saith of him, Behold, an Israelite indeed, in

2 And the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

6 And there were set there six waterpots of stone, after the manner of the purifying of the Jews, containing two or three firkins apiece.
7 Jesus saith unto them, Fill the waterpots with water. And they filled them up to the brim.
8 And he saith unto them, Draw out now, and bear unto the governor of the feast. And they bare it.
9 When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was, (but the servants which drew the water knew) the governor of the feast called the bridegroom,
10 And saith unto him, Every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine, and when men have well drunk, then that which is worse: but thou hast kept the good wine until now.
11 This beginning of miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested forth his glory, and his disciples believed on him.
12 ¶ After this he went down to Capernaum, he and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples, and they continued there not many days.
13 ¶ And the Jews' Passover was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem, 14 And found in the Temple those that sold oxen, and sheep, and doves, and the changers of money, sitting.
15 And when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the Temple, and the sheep and the oxen, and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables,
16 And said unto them that sold doves, Take these things hence, make not my father's house an house of merchandise.
17 And his disciples remembered that it was written, [a] The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up.
18 ¶ Then answered the Jews, and said unto him, What sign shewest thou unto us, seeing that thou doest these things?
19 Jesus answered, and said unto them, [b] Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.
20 Then said the Jews, Forty and six years was this Temple in building, and wilt thou rear it up in three days?
21 But he spake of the temple of his body.
22 When therefore he was risen from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this unto them: and they believed the Scripture, and the word which Jesus had said.
23 ¶ Now when he was in Jerusalem at the Passover, in the feast day, many believed in his Name, when they saw the miracles which he did.
24 But Jesus did not commit himself unto them, because he knew all men,
25 And needed not that any should testify of man: for he knew what was in man.

10 ruler of the feast calleth the bridegroom, and saith unto him, Every man setteth on first the good wine; and when men have drunk freely, then that which is worse: thou hast kept the 11 good wine until now. This beginning of his signs did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested his glory; and his disciples believed on him.
12 After this he went down to Capernaum, he, and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples: and there they abode not many days.
13 And the passover of the Jews was at hand, from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him.

3 Jesus answered, and said unto him, Verily, verily I say unto thee, except a man be born ‖again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.

4 Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born?

5 Jesus answered, Verily, verily I say unto thee, except a man be born of water and of the spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.

6 That which is born of the flesh, is flesh, and that which is born of the spirit, is spirit.

7 Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born ‖again.

8 The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: So is every one that is born of the Spirit.

9 Nicodemus answered, and said unto him, How can these things be?

10 Jesus answered, and said unto him, Art thou a master of Israel, and knowest not these things?

11 Verily, verily I say unto thee, We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen; and ye receive not our witness.

12 If I have told you earthly things, and ye believe not: how shall ye believe if I tell you of heavenly things?

13 And no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven.

14 ¶ [a]And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness: even so must the Son of man be lifted up:

15 That whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life.

16 ¶ [b]For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son: that whosoever believeth in him, should not perish, but have everlasting life.

17 [c]For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world: but that the world through him might be saved.

18 ¶ He that believeth on him, is not condemned: but he that believeth not, is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the Name of the only begotten Son of God.

19 And this is the condemnation, [d]that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil.

20 For every one that doeth evil, hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be ‖reproved.

21 But he that doeth truth, cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God.

22 ¶ After these things, came Jesus and his disciples into the land of Judæa, and there he tarried with them, [e]and baptized.

I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the king-6 dom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is 7 spirit. Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye 8 must be born [1]anew. [2]The wind bloweth where 14 [3]which is in heaven. And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the 15 Son of man be lifted up: that whosoever [4]believeth may in him have eternal life.

16 For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life.
17 For God sent not the Son into the world to judge the world; but that the world should be 18 saved through him. He that believeth on him is not judged: he that believeth not hath been judged already, because he hath not believed on the name of the only begotten Son of God.
19 And this is the judgement, that the light is come into the world, and men loved the darkness rather than the light; for their works were 20 evil. For every one that [5]doeth ill hateth the light, and cometh not to the light, lest his works 21 should be [6]reproved. But he that doeth the truth cometh to the light, that his works may be made manifest, [7]that they have been wrought in God.

15 The woman saith unto him, Sir, give me this water, that I thirst not, neither come hither to draw.

18 For thou hast had five husbands, and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband: In that saidst thou truly.

19 The woman saith unto him, Sir, I perceive that thou art a Prophet.

20 Our fathers worshipped in this mountain, and ye say, that [b]in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship.

21 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, believe me, the hour cometh when ye shall neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jerusalem, worship the Father.

22 Ye worship ye know not what: we know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews.

23 But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit, and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him.

28 The woman then left her waterpot, and went her way into the city, and saith to the men, 29 Come, see a man which told me all things that ever I did: Is not this the Christ?

30 Then they went out of the city, and came unto him.

31 ¶ In the mean while his disciples prayed him, saying, Master, eat.

32 But he said unto them, I have meat to eat that ye know not of.

33 Therefore said the disciples one to another, Hath any man brought him ought to eat?

34 Jesus saith unto them, My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work.

36 And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal: that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together.
37 And herein is that saying true: One soweth, and another reapeth.
38 I sent you to reap that whereon ye bestowed no labour: other men laboured, and ye are entered into their labours.
39 ¶ And many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him, for the saying of the woman, which testified, He told me all that ever I did.
40 So when the Samaritans were come unto him, they besought him that he would tarry with them, and he abode there two days.
41 And many more believed, because of his own word:
42 And said unto the woman, Now we believe, not because of thy saying, for we have heard him ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world.
43 ¶ Now after two days he departed thence, and went into Galilee:
44 For [e]Jesus himself testified, that a Prophet hath no honour in his own country.
45 Then when he was come into Galilee, the Galilæans received him, having seen all the things that he did at Jerusalem at the Feast: for they also went unto the Feast.
46 So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, [f]where he made the water wine. And there was a certain ‖nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum.
47 When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judæa into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son: for he was at the point of death.
48 Then said Jesus unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe.
49 The nobleman saith unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die.
50 Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way, thy son liveth. And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way.
51 And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, Thy son liveth.
52 Then inquired he of them the hour when he began to amend: and they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him.
53 So the father knew that it was at the same hour, in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth, and himself believed, and his whole house.
54 This is again the second miracle that Jesus did, when he was come out of Judæa into Galilee.

36 He that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal; that he that soweth and 37 he that reapeth may rejoice together. For herein is the saying true, One soweth, and another 38 reapeth. I sent you to reap that whereon ye have not laboured: others have laboured, and ye are entered into their labour.
39 And from that city many of the Samaritans believed on him because of the word of the woman, who testified, He told me all things
40 that ever I did. So when the Samaritans came unto him, they besought him to abide with 41 them; and he abode there two days. And 42 many more believed because of his word; and they said to the woman, Now we believe, not because of thy speaking: for we have heard for ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Saviour of the world.
43 And after the two days he went forth from 44 thence into Galilee. For Jesus himself testified, that a prophet hath no honour in his own 45 country. So when he came into Galilee, the Galilæans received him, having seen all the things that he did in Jerusalem at the feast: for they also went unto the feast.
46 He came therefore again unto Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain [1]nobleman, whose son was sick at 47 Capernaum. When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judæa into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son; for he was at the point
48 of death. Jesus therefore said unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will in no
49 wise believe. The [1]nobleman saith unto him,
50 [2]Sir, come down ere my child die. Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. The man believed the word that Jesus spake unto 51 him, and he went his way. And as he was now going down, his [3]servants met him, say-
52 ing, that his son lived. So he inquired of them the hour when he began to amend. They said therefore unto him, Yesterday at the seventh 53 hour the fever left him. So the father knew that it was at that hour in which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth: and himself be-54 lieved, and his whole house. This is again the second sign that Jesus did, having come out of Judæa into Galilee.

5 After these things there was [4]a feast of the Jews; and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.
2 Now there is in Jerusalem by the sheep gate a pool, which is called in Hebrew [5]Bethesda,
3 having five porches. In these lay a multitude of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water.

4 For an Angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: whosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in, was made whole of whatsoever disease he had.

5 And a certain man was there, which had an infirmity thirty and eight years.

6 When Jesus saw him lie, and knew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole?

7 The impotent man answered him, Sir, I have no man when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another steppeth down before me.

8 Jesus saith unto him, Rise, take up thy bed, and walk.

9 And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked: And on the same day was the Sabbath.

10 ¶ The Jews therefore said unto him that was cured, It is the Sabbath day, [b] it is not lawful for thee to carry thy bed.

11 He answered them, He that made me whole, the same said unto me, Take up thy bed, and walk.

12 Then asked they him, What man is that which said unto thee, Take up thy bed, and walk?

13 And he that was healed wist not who it was: for Jesus had conveyed himself away, ‖ a multitude being in that place.

14 Afterward Jesus findeth him in the Temple, and said unto him, Behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee.

15 The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus which had made him whole.

16 And therefore did the Jews persecute Jesus, and sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the Sabbath day.

17 ¶ But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work.

18 Therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, not only because he had broken the Sabbath, but said also, that God was his father, making himself equal with God.

19 Then answered Jesus, and said unto them, Verily, verily I say unto you, The son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do: for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the son likewise.

20 For the father loveth the son, and sheweth him all things that himself doeth: and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may marvel.

21 For as the Father raiseth up the dead, and quickeneth them: even so the Son quickeneth whom he will.

22 For the Father judgeth no man: but hath committed all judgment unto the Son:

23 That all men should honour the Son, even as they honour the Father. He that honoureth not the Son, honoureth not the Father which hath sent him.

of them that were sick, blind, halt, withered[1].

5 And a certain man was there, which had been
6 thirty and eight years in his infirmity. When Jesus saw him lying, and knew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith
7 unto him, Wouldest thou be made whole? The sick man answered him, [2]Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another steppeth
8 down before me. Jesus saith unto him, Arise,
9 take up thy bed, and walk. And straightway the man was made whole, and took up his bed and walked.

10 Now it was the sabbath on that day. So the Jews said unto him that was cured, It is the sabbath, and it is not lawful for thee to take 11 up thy bed. But he answered them, He that made me whole, the same said unto me, Take 12 up thy bed, and walk. They asked him, Who is the man that said unto thee, Take up thy

14 Afterward Jesus findeth him in the temple, and said unto him, Behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing befall
15 thee. The man went away, and told the Jews that it was Jesus which had made him whole.
16 And for this cause did the Jews persecute Jesus, because he did these things on the sabbath.
17 But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh
18 even until now, and I work. For this cause therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he not only brake the sabbath, but also called God his own Father, making himself equal with God.

19 Jesus therefore answered and said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father doing: for what things soever he doeth,
20 these the Son also doeth in like manner. For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that himself doeth: and greater works than these will he shew him, that ye may mar-
21 vel. For as the Father raiseth the dead and quickeneth them, even so the Son also quick-
22 eneth whom he will. For neither doth the Father judge any man, but he hath given 23 all judgement unto the Son; that all may honour the Son, even as they honour the Father. He that honoureth not the Son honoureth not the Father which sent him.

24 Verily, verily I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation: but is passed from death unto life.
25 Verily, verily I say unto you, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God: and they that hear shall live.
26 For as the Father hath life in himself: so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself:
27 And hath given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of man.
28 Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice,
29 And shall come forth, [c]they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation.
30 I can of mine own self do nothing: as I hear, I judge: and my judgment is just, because I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father, which hath sent me.
31 [d]If I bear witness of myself, my witness is not true.
32 ¶ [e]There is another that beareth witness of me, and I know that the witness which he witnesseth of me, is true.
33 Ye sent unto John, [f]and he bare witness unto the truth.
34 But I receive not testimony from man: but these things I say, that ye might be saved.
35 He was a burning and a shining light: and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light.
36 ¶ But I have greater witness than that of John: for the works which the Father hath given me to finish, the same works that I do, bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me.
37 And the Father himself which hath sent me, [g]hath borne witness of me. Ye have neither heard his voice at any time, [h]nor seen his shape.
38 And ye have not his word abiding in you: for whom he hath sent, him ye believe not.
39 ¶ Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me.
40 And ye will not come to me, that ye might have life.
41 I receive not honour from men.
42 But I know you, that ye have not the love of God in you.
43 I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not: if another shall come in his own Name, him ye will receive.
44 [i]How can ye believe, which receive honour one of another, and seek not the honour that cometh from God only?
45 Do not think that I will accuse you to the Father: there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust.
46 For had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me: [k]for he wrote of me.

24 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth him that sent me, hath eternal life, and cometh not into judgement, but 25 hath passed out of death into life. Verily, verily, I say unto you, The hour cometh, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of 26 God; and they that hear shall live. For as the Father hath life in himself, even so gave he to the 27 Son also to have life in himself: and he gave him authority to execute judgement, because he 28 is [1]the Son of man. Marvel not at this: for the hour cometh, in which all that are in the tombs

30 I can of myself do nothing: as I hear, I judge: and my judgement is righteous; because I seek not mine own will, but the will of him

35 ye may be saved. He was the lamp that burneth and shineth: and ye were willing to rejoice for 36 a season in his light. But the witness which I have is greater than that of John: for the works which the Father hath given me to accomplish, the very works that I do, bear witness of me, 37 that the Father hath sent me. And the Father which sent me, he hath borne witness of me. Ye have neither heard his voice at any time,

CHAP. VI.

AFTER these things Jesus went over the sea of Galilee, which is the sea of Tiberias:
2 And a great multitude followed him, because they saw his miracles which he did on them that were diseased.
3 And Jesus went up into a mountain, and there he sat with his disciples.
4 [a]And the Passover, a feast of the Jews, was nigh.
5 ¶ [b]When Jesus then lift up his eyes, and saw a great company come unto him, he saith unto Philip, Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat?
6 (And this he said to prove him: for he himself knew what he would do.)
7 Philip answered him, Two hundred pennyworth of bread is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little.
8 One of his disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, saith unto him, 9 There is a lad here, which hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes: but what are they among so many?
10 And Jesus said, Make the men sit down. Now there was much grass in the place. So the men sat down, in number about five thousand.
11 And Jesus took the loaves, and when he had given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down, and likewise of the fishes, as much as they would.
12 When they were filled, he said unto his disciples, Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost.
13 Therefore they gathered them together, and filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves, which remained over and above, unto them that had eaten.
14 Then those men, when they had seen the miracle that Jesus did, said, This is of a truth that Prophet that should come into the world.
15 ¶ When Jesus therefore perceived that they would come and take him by force, to make him a King, he departed again into a mountain, himself alone.
16 [c]And when even was now come, his disciples went down unto the sea,
17 And entered into a ship, and went over the sea towards Capernaum: and it was now dark, and Jesus was not come to them.
18 And the sea arose, by reason of a great wind that blew.
19 So when they had rowed about five and twenty or thirty furlongs they see Jesus walking on the sea, and drawing nigh unto the ship: and they were afraid.
20 But he saith unto them, It is I, be not afraid.
21 Then they willingly received him into the ship, and immediately the ship was at the land whither they went.
22 ¶ The day following, when the people which stood on the other side of the sea, saw that there was none other boat there, save that one whereinto

6 After these things Jesus went away to the other side of the sea of Galilee, which is the sea
2 of Tiberias. And a great multitude followed him, because they beheld the signs which he did
3 on them that were sick. And Jesus went up into the mountain, and there he sat with his 4 disciples. Now the passover, the feast of the 5 Jews, was at hand. Jesus therefore lifting up his eyes, and seeing that a great multitude cometh unto him, saith unto Philip, Whence are we
6 to buy [1]bread, that these may eat? And this he said to prove him: for he himself knew what 7 he would do. Philip answered him, Two hundred [2]pennyworth of [1]bread is not sufficient for 12 of the fishes as much they would. And when they were filled, he saith unto his disciples, Gather up the broken pieces which remain

13 over, that nothing be lost. So they gathered them up, and filled twelve baskets with broken pieces from the five barley loaves, which re-
14 mained over unto them that had eaten. When therefore the people saw the [3]sign which he did, they said, This is of a truth the prophet that cometh into the world.
15 Jesus therefore perceiving that they were about to come and take him by force, to make him king, withdrew again into the mountain himself alone.
16 And when evening came, his disciples went 17 down unto the sea; and they entered into a boat, and were going over the sea unto Capernaum. And it was now dark, and Jesus had 18 not yet come to them. And the sea was rising
19 by reason of a great wind that blew. When therefore they had rowed about five and twenty or thirty furlongs, they behold Jesus walking on the sea, and drawing nigh unto the boat:

his disciples were entered, and that Jesus went not with his disciples into the boat, but that his disciples were gone away alone:

23 Howbeit there came other boats from Tiberias, nigh unto the place where they did eat bread, after that the Lord had given thanks:

24 When the people therefore saw that Jesus was not there, neither his disciples, they also took shipping, and came to Capernaum, seeking for Jesus.

25 And when they had found him on the other side of the sea, they said unto him, Rabbi, when camest thou hither?

26 Jesus answered them, and said, Verily, verily I say unto you, Ye seek me, not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves, and were filled.

27 ‖Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: [d]for him hath God the Father sealed.

28 Then said they unto him, What shall we do, that we might work the works of God?

29 Jesus answered, and said unto them, [e]This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent.

30 They said therefore unto him, What sign shewest thou then, that we may see, and believe thee? What dost thou work?

31 [f]Our fathers did eat Manna in the desert, as it is written, [g]He gave them bread from heaven to eat.

32 Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily I say unto you, Moses gave you not that bread from heaven, but my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven.

33 For the bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world.

34 Then said they unto him, Lord, evermore give us this bread.

35 And Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me, shall never hunger: and he that believeth on me, shall never thirst.

36 But I said unto you, that ye also have seen me, and believe not.

37 All that the Father giveth me, shall come to me; and him that cometh to me, I will in no wise cast out.

38 For I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me.

39 And this is the Father's will which hath sent me, that of all which he hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day.

40 And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day.

41 The Jews then murmured at him, because he said, I am the bread which came down from heaven.

42 And they said, [h]Is not this Jesus the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How is it then that he saith, I came down from heaven?

entered not with his disciples into the boat, but 23 that his disciples went away alone (howbeit there came [1]boats from Tiberias nigh unto the place where they ate the bread after the Lord had 25 came to Capernaum, seeking Jesus. And when they found him on the other side of the sea, they said unto him, Rabbi, when camest thou hither?

26 Jesus answered them and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Ye seek me, not because ye saw signs, but because ye ate of the loaves, and were 27 filled. Work not for the meat which perisheth, but for the meat which abideth unto eternal life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: for 28 him the Father, even God, hath sealed. They said therefore unto him, What must we do, that

32 Jesus therefore said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, It was not Moses that gave you the bread out of heaven; but my Father giveth

39 of him that sent me. And this is the will of him that sent me, that of all that which he hath given me I should lose nothing, but 40 should raise it up at the last day. For this is the will of my Father, that every one that beholdeth the Son, and believeth on him, should have eternal life; and [3]I will raise him up at the last day.
41 The Jews therefore murmured concerning him, because he said, I am the bread which 42 came down out of heaven. And they said, Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? how doth he now say, I am come down out of heaven?

43 Jesus therefore answered, and said unto them, Murmur not among yourselves.
44 No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him: and I will raise him up at the last day.
45 [i]It is written in the Prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me.
46 Not that any man hath seen the Father; [k]save he which is of God, he hath seen the Father.
47 Verily, verily I say unto you, He that believeth on me, hath everlasting life.
48 I am that bread of life.
49 Your fathers did eat Manna in the wilderness, and are dead.
50 This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.
51 I am the living bread, which came down from heaven. If any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever: and the bread that I will give, is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.
52 The Jews therefore strove amongst themselves, saying, How can this man give us his flesh to eat?
53 Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you.
54 Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day.
55 For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed.
56 He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him.
57 As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father: so, he that eateth me, even he shall live by me.
58 This is that bread which came down from heaven: not as your fathers did eat Manna, and are dead: he that eateth of this bread shall live for ever.
59 These things said he in the Synagogue, as he taught in Capernaum.
60 Many therefore of his disciples, when they had heard this, said, This is an hard saying, who can hear it?

48 hath eternal life. I am the bread of life.
49 Your fathers did eat the manna in the wilder-
50 ness, and they died. This is the bread which cometh down out of heaven, that a man may 51 eat thereof, and not die. I am the living bread which came down out of heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever: yea and the bread which I will give is my flesh, for the life of the world.
52 The Jews therefore strove one with another, saying, How can this man give us his flesh to 53 eat? Jesus therefore said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man and drink his blood, ye have 54 not life in yourselves. He that eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood hath eternal life; and I
55 will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is [1]meat indeed, and my blood is [2]drink indeed.
56 He that eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood
57 abideth in me, and I in him. As the living Father sent me, and I live because of the Father; so he that eateth me, he also shall live
58 because of me. This is the bread which came down out of heaven: not as the fathers did eat, and died: he that eateth this bread shall live 59 for ever. These things said he in [3]the synagogue, as he taught in Capernaum.
60 Many therefore of his disciples, when they heard this, said, This is a hard saying; who can 61 hear [4]it? But Jesus knowing in himself that his disciples murmured at this, said unto them,
62 Doth this cause you to stumble? What then if ye should behold the Son of man ascending
63 where he was before? It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I have spoken unto you are spirit,
64 and are life. But there are some of you that believe not. For Jesus knew from the beginning who they were that believed not, and who 65 it was that should betray him. And he said, For this cause have I said unto you, that no man can come unto me, except it be given unto him of the Father.

66 ¶ From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him.

67 Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away?

68 Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life.

69 [m] And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God.

70 Jesus answered them, Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil?

71 He spake of Judas Iscariot the son of Simon: for he it was that should betray him, being one of the twelve.

CHAP. VII.

AFTER these things, Jesus walked in Galilee: for he would not walk in Jewry, because the Jews sought to kill him.

2 [a] Now the Jews' feast of Tabernacles was at hand.

3 His brethren therefore said unto him, Depart hence, and go into Judæa, that thy disciples also may see the works that thou doest.

4 For there is no man that doeth any thing in secret, and he himself seeketh to be known openly: If thou do these things, shew thyself to the world.

5 For neither did his brethren believe in him.

6 Then Jesus said unto them, My time is not yet come: but your time is alway ready.

7 The world cannot hate you, but me it hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil.

8 Go ye up unto this feast: I go not up yet unto this feast, [b] for my time is not yet full come.

9 When he had said these words unto them, he abode still in Galilee.

10 ¶ But when his brethren were gone up, then went he also up unto the feast, not openly, but as it were in secret.

11 Then the Jews sought him at the feast, and said, Where is he?

12 And there was much murmuring among the people concerning him: For some said, He is a good man: Others said, Nay, but he deceiveth the people.

13 Howbeit, no man spake openly of him, for fear of the Jews.

14 ¶ Now about the midst of the feast, Jesus went up into the Temple, and taught.

15 And the Jews marvelled, saying, How knoweth this man ‖letters, having never learned?

16 Jesus answered them, My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me.

17 If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself.

18 He that speaketh of himself, seeketh his own glory: but he that seeketh his glory that sent him, the same is true, and no unrighteousness is in him.

19 [c] Did not Moses give you the Law, and yet none of you keepeth the Law? [d] Why go ye about to kill me?

66 Upon this many of his disciples went back, 67 and walked no more with him. Jesus said therefore unto the twelve, Would ye also go 68 away? Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? thou [1]hast the words of 69 eternal life. And we have believed and know
70 that thou art the Holy One of God. Jesus answered them, Did not I choose you the twelve, 71 and one of you is a devil? Now he spake of Judas the son of Simon Iscariot, for he it was that should betray him, being one of the twelve.

7 And after these things Jesus walked in Galilee: for he would not walk in Judæa, because 2 the Jews sought to kill him. Now the feast of the Jews, the feast of tabernacles, was at hand.
3 His brethren therefore said unto him, Depart hence, and go into Judæa, that thy disciples also may behold thy works which thou doest.
4 For no man doeth anything in secret, [2]and himself seeketh to be known openly. If thou doest
5 these things, manifest thyself to the world. For 6 even his brethren did not believe on him. Jesus therefore saith unto them, My time is not yet 7 come; but your time is alway ready. The world cannot hate you; but me it hateth, be-8 cause I testify of it, that its works are evil. Go ye up unto the feast: I go not up [3]yet unto this 9 feast; because my time is not yet fulfilled. And having said these things unto them, he abode still in Galilee.
10 But when his brethren were gone up unto the feast, then went he also up, not publicly, but as 11 it were in secret. The Jews therefore sought 12 him at the feast, and said, Where is he? And there was much murmuring among the multitudes concerning him: some said, He is a good man; others said, Not so, but he leadeth the 13 multitude astray. Howbeit no man spake openly of him for fear of the Jews.
14 But when it was now the midst of the feast
Jesus went up into the temple, and taught.
15 The Jews therefore marvelled, saying, How knoweth this man letters, having never 16 learned? Jesus therefore answered them, and said, My teaching is not mine, but his that sent 17 me. If any man willeth to do his will, he shall know of the teaching, whether it be of God, or 18 whether I speak from myself. He that speaketh from himself seeketh his own glory: but he that seeketh the glory of him that sent him, the same is true, and no unrighteousness is in him.
19 Did not Moses give you the law, and yet none of you doeth the law? Why seek ye to kill me?

20 The people answered, and said, Thou hast a devil: Who goeth about to kill thee?
21 Jesus answered, and said unto them, I have done one work, and ye all marvel.
22 [e]Moses therefore gave unto you Circumcision (not because it is of Moses, [f]but of the fathers;) and ye on the Sabbath day circumcise a man.
23 If a man on the Sabbath day receive circumcision, ‖that the Law of Moses should not be broken; are ye angry at me, because I have made a man every whit whole on the Sabbath day?
24 [g]Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment.
25 Then said some of them of Jerusalem, Is not this he whom they seek to kill?
26 But lo, he speaketh boldly, and they say nothing unto him: Do the rulers know indeed that this is the very Christ?
27 Howbeit we know this man whence he is: but when Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence he is.
28 Then cried Jesus in the Temple as he taught, saying, Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am, and I am not come of myself, but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not.
29 But I know him, for I am from him, and he hath sent me.
30 Then they sought to take him: but no man laid hands on him, because his hour was not yet come.
31 And many of the people believed on him, and said, When Christ cometh, will he do more miracles than these which this man hath done?
32 ¶ The Pharisees heard that the people murmured such things concerning him: And the Pharisees and the chief Priests sent officers to take him.
33 Then said Jesus unto them, Yet a little while am I with you, and then I go unto him that sent me.
34 [h]Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come.
35 Then said the Jews among themselves, Whither will he go, that we shall not find him? will he go unto the dispersed among the ‖Gentiles, and teach the Gentiles?
36 What manner of saying is this that he said, Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me? and where I am, thither ye cannot come?
37 [i]In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood, and cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink.
38 [k]He that believeth on me, as the Scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water.
39 ([l]But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive. For the holy Ghost was not yet given, because that Jesus was not yet glorified.)
40 ¶ Many of the people therefore, when they heard this saying, said, Of a truth this is the Prophet.
41 Others said, This is the Christ. But some said, Shall Christ come out of Galilee?
42 [m]Hath not the Scripture said, that Christ cometh of the seed of David, and out of the town of Bethlehem, where David was?

20 The multitude answered, Thou hast a [1]devil:
21 who seeketh to kill thee? Jesus answered and said unto them, I did one work, and 22 ye all [2]marvel. For this cause hath Moses given you circumcision (not that it is of Moses, but of the fathers); and on the sabbath ye cir-
23 cumcise a man. If a man receiveth circumcision on the sabbath, that the law of Moses may not be broken; are ye wroth with me, because I made a man every whit whole on the sab-

25 Some therefore of them of Jerusalem said, Is

27 that this is the Christ? Howbeit we know this man whence he is: but when the Christ com-
28 eth, no one knoweth whence he is. Jesus therefore cried in the temple, teaching and saying, Ye both know me, and know whence I am; and I am not come of myself, but he

30 sent me. They sought therefore to take him: and no man laid his hand on him, because his 31 hour was not yet come. But of the multitude many believed on him; and they said, When the Christ shall come, will he do more signs
32 than those which this man hath done? The Pharisees heard the multitude murmuring these things concerning him; and the chief priests and the Pharisees sent officers to take him.
33 Jesus therefore said, Yet a little while am I with you, and I go unto him that sent me.
34 Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and 35 where I am, ye cannot come. The Jews therefore said among themselves, Whither will this man go that we shall not find him? will he go unto the Dispersion [3]among the Greeks, and 36 teach the Greeks? What is this word that he said, Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, ye cannot come?

43 So there was a division among the people because of him.
44 And some of them would have taken him, but no man laid hands on him.
45 ¶ Then came the officers to the chief Priests and Pharisees, and they said unto them, Why have ye not brought him?
46 The officers answered, Never man spake like this man.
47 Then answered them the Pharisees, Are ye also deceived?
48 Have any of the rulers, or of the Pharisees believed on him?
49 But this people who knoweth not the Law, are cursed.

51 [o]Doth our Law judge any man before it hear him, and know what he doeth?
52 They answered, and said unto him, Art thou also of Galilee? Search, and look: for out of Galilee ariseth no Prophet.
53 And every man went unto his own house.

CHAP. VIII.

JESUS went unto the Mount of Olives:
2 And early in the morning he came again into the Temple, and all the people came unto him, and he sat down, and taught them.
3 And the Scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery, and when they had set her in the midst,
4 They say unto him, Master, this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act.
5 [a]Now Moses in the Law commanded us, that such should be stoned: but what sayest thou?
6 This they said, tempting him, that they might have to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground as though he heard them not.
7 So when they continued asking him, he lift up himself, and said unto them, [b]He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her.
8 And again, he stooped down, and wrote on the ground.
9 And they which heard it, being convicted by their own conscience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldest, even unto the last: and Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst.
10 When Jesus had lift up himself, and saw none but the woman, he said unto her, Woman, where are those thine accusers? Hath no man condemned thee?
11 She said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said unto her, Neither do I condemn thee: Go, and sin no more.
12 ¶ Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, [c]I am the light of the world: he that followeth me, shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.
13 The Pharisees therefore said unto him, Thou bearest record of thyself, thy record is not true.
14 Jesus answered, and said unto them, [d]Though I bear record of myself, yet my record is true: for I

43 So there arose a division in the multitude be-44 cause of him. And some of them would have taken him; but no man laid hands on him.
45 The officers therefore came to the chief priests and Pharisees; and they said unto them, Why
46 did ye not bring him? The officers answered, 47 Never man so spake. The Pharisees therefore 48 answered them, Are ye also led astray? Hath any of the rulers believed on him, or of the 49 Pharisees? But this multitude which knoweth

52 doeth? They answered and said unto him, Art thou also of Galilee? Search, and [1]see that out of Galilee ariseth no prophet.

53 [2][And they went every man unto his own
8 house: but Jesus went unto the mount of Olives.
2 And early in the morning he came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him;
3 and he sat down, and taught them. And the scribes and the Pharisees bring a woman taken in adultery; and having set her in the midst,
4 they say unto him, [3]Master, this woman hath 5 been taken in adultery, in the very act. Now in the law Moses commanded us to stone such:

11 man condemn thee? And she said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said, Neither do I condemn thee: go thy way; from henceforth sin no more.]

12 Again therefore Jesus spake unto them, saying, I am the light of the world: he that follo-
13 weth me shall not walk in the darkness, but shall have the light of life. The Pharisees therefore said unto him, Thou bearest witness
14 of thyself; thy witness is not true. Jesus answered and said unto them, Even if I bear witness of myself, my witness is true; for I know whence I came, and whither I go: but ye cannot tell whence I come, and whither I go.

15 Ye judge after the flesh, I judge no man.

16 And yet if I judge, my judgment is true: for I am not alone, but I and the Father that sent me.

17 [e] It is also written in your Law, that the testimony of two men is true.

18 I am one that bear witness of myself, and the Father that sent me beareth witness of me.

19 Then said they unto him, Where is thy Father? Jesus answered, Ye neither know me, nor my Father: if ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also.

20 These words spake Jesus in the treasury, as he taught in the Temple: and no man laid hands on him, for his hour was not yet come.

21 Then said Jesus again unto them, I go my way, and ye shall seek me, and shall die in your sins: Whither I go, ye cannot come.

22 Then said the Jews, Will he kill himself? because he saith, Whither I go, ye cannot come.

23 And he said unto them, Ye are from beneath, I am from above: Ye are of this world, I am not of this world.

24 I said therefore unto you, that ye shall die in your sins. For if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins.

25 Then said they unto him, Who art thou? And Jesus saith unto them, Even the same that I said unto you from the beginning.

26 I have many things to say, and to judge of you: But he that sent me is true, and I speak to the world those things which I have heard of him.

27 They understood not that he spake to them of the Father.

28 Then said Jesus unto them, When ye have lift up the Son of man, then shall ye know that I am he, and that I do nothing of myself: but as my Father hath taught me, I speak these things.

29 And he that sent me is with me: the Father hath not left me alone: for I do always those things that please him.

30 As he spake those words, many believed on him.

31 Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed.

32 And ye shall know the Truth, and the Truth shall make you free.

33 ¶ They answered him, We be Abraham's seed, and were never in bondage to any man: how sayest thou, Ye shall be made free?

34 Jesus answered them, Verily, verily I say unto you, [f] Whosoever committeth sin, is the servant of sin.

35 And the servant abideth not in the house for ever: but the Son abideth ever.

36 If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.

37 I know that ye are Abraham's seed, but ye seek to kill me, because my word hath no place in you.

38 I speak that which I have seen with my Father: and ye do that which ye have seen with your father.

know whence I came, and whither I go; but ye 15 know not whence I come, or whither I go. Ye
16 judge after the flesh; I judge no man. Yea and if I judge, my judgement is true; for I am not alone, but I and the Father that sent me.
17 Yea and in your law it is written, that the wit-

25 am he, ye shall die in your sins. They said therefore unto him, Who art thou? Jesus said unto them, [2] Even that which I have also spoken
26 unto you from the beginning. I have many things to speak and to judge concerning you: howbeit he that sent me is true; and the things which I heard from him, these speak I [3] unto 35 vant of sin. And the bondservant abideth not in the house for ever: the son abideth for ever.

36 If therefore the Son shall make you free, ye
37 shall be free indeed. I know that ye are Abraham's seed; yet ye seek to kill me, because my word

39 They answered, and said unto him, Abraham is our father. Jesus saith unto them, If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham.
40 But now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of God: this did not Abraham.
41 Ye do the deeds of your father. Then said they to him, We be not born of fornication, we have one Father, even God.
42 Jesus said unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me, for I proceeded forth, and came from God: neither came I of myself, but he sent me.
43 Why do ye not understand my speech? even because ye cannot hear my word.
44 [g] Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do: he was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it.
45 And because I tell you the truth, ye believe me not.
46 Which of you convinceth me of sin? And if I say the truth, why do ye not believe me?
47 [h] He that is of God, heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God.
48 Then answered the Jews, and said unto him, Say we not well that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a devil?
49 Jesus answered, I have not a devil: but I honour my Father, and ye do dishonour me.
50 And I seek not mine own glory, there is one that seeketh and judgeth.
51 Verily, verily I say unto you, If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death.
52 Then said the Jews unto him, Now we know that thou hast a devil. Abraham is dead, and the Prophets: and thou sayest, If a man keep my saying, he shall never taste of death.
53 Art thou greater than our father Abraham, which is dead? and the Prophets are dead: whom makest thou thyself?
54 Jesus answered, If I honour myself, my honour is nothing: it is my Father that honoureth me, of whom ye say, that he is your God:
55 Yet ye have not known him, but I know him: and if I should say, I know him not, I shall be a liar like unto you: but I know him, and keep his saying.
56 Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day: and he saw it, and was glad.
57 Then said the Jews unto him, Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham?
58 Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily I say unto you, Before Abraham was, I am.

45 thereof. But because I say the truth, ye be-46 lieve me not. Which of you convicteth me of sin? If I say truth, why do ye not believe 47 me? He that is of God heareth the words of God: for this cause ye hear them not, because 48 ye are not of God. The Jews answered and said unto him, Say we not well that thou art a 49 Samaritan, and hast a [6]devil? Jesus answered, I have not a [6]devil; but I honour my Father,
50 and ye dishonour me. But I seek not mine own glory: there is one that seeketh and judg-
51 eth. Verily, verily, I say unto you, If a man
52 keep my word, he shall never see death. The Jews said unto him, Now we know that thou hast a [6]devil. Abraham is dead, and the prophets; and thou sayest, If a man keep my 53 word, he shall never taste of death. Art thou greater than our father Abraham, which is dead? and the prophets are dead: whom mak-
54 est thou thyself? Jesus answered, If I glorify myself, my glory is nothing: it is my Father that glorifieth me; of whom ye say, that he is 55 your God; and ye have not known him: but I know him; and if I should say, I know him not, I shall be like unto you, a liar: but I know
56 him, and keep his word. Your father Abraham rejoiced [7]to see my day; and he saw it, 57 and was glad. The Jews therefore said unto him, Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast
58 thou seen Abraham? Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Before Abraham 59 [8]was, I am. They took up stones therefore to cast at him: but Jesus [9]hid himself, and went out of the temple[10].

CHAP. IX.

AND as Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blind from his birth.

2 And his disciples asked him, saying, Master, who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?

3 Jesus answered, Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents: but that the works of God should be made manifest in him.

4 I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh when no man can work.

5 As long as I am in the world, [a] I am the light of the world.

6 When he had thus spoken, he spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and he ‖anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay,

7 And said unto him, Go wash in the pool of Siloam (which is by interpretation, Sent.) He went his way therefore, and washed, and came seeing.

8 ¶ The neighbours therefore, and they which before had seen him, that he was blind, said, Is not this he that sat and begged?

9 Some said, This is he: others said, He is like him: but he said, I am he.

10 Therefore said they unto him, How were thine eyes opened?

11 He answered and said, A man that is called Jesus, made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me, Go to the pool of Siloam, and wash: and I went and washed, and I received sight.

12 Then said they unto him, Where is he? He said, I know not.

13 ¶ They brought to the Pharisees him that aforetime was blind.

14 And it was the Sabbath day when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes.

15 Then again the Pharisees also asked him how he had received his sight. He said unto them, He put clay upon mine eyes, and I washed, and do see.

16 Therefore said some of the Pharisees, This man is not of God, because he keepeth not the Sabbath day. Others said, How can a man that is a sinner, do such miracles? and there was a division among them.

17 They say unto the blind man again, What sayest thou of him, that he hath opened thine eyes? He said, He is a Prophet.

18 But the Jews did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind, and received his sight, until they called the parents of him that had received his sight.

19 And they asked them, saying, Is this your son, who ye say was born blind? how then doth he now see?

20 His parents answered them, and said, We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind:

21 But by what means he now seeth, we know not, or who hath opened his eyes we know not: he is of age, ask him, he shall speak for himself.

22 These words spake his parents, because they

9 And as he passed by, he saw a man blind
2 from his birth. And his disciples asked him, saying, Rabbi, who did sin, this man, or his 3 parents, that he should be born blind? Jesus answered, Neither did this man sin, nor his parents: but that the works of God should be 4 made manifest in him. We must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the 5 night cometh, when no man can work. When I am in the world, I am the light of the world.
6 When he had thus spoken, he spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, [1] and an-7 ointed his eyes with the clay, and said unto him, Go, wash in the pool of Siloam (which is by interpretation, Sent). He went away there-8 fore, and washed, and came seeing. The neighbours therefore, and they which saw him afore-time, that he was a beggar, said, Is not this he 9 that sat and begged? Others said, It is he:
others said, No, but he is like him. He said, I 10 am he. They said therefore unto him, How 11 then were thine eyes opened? He answered,
The man that is called Jesus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me, Go to Siloam, and wash: so I went away and washed,
12 and I received sight. And they said unto him,
Where is he? He saith, I know not.
13 They bring to the Pharisees him that aforetime 14 was blind. Now it was the sabbath on the day when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes.
15 Again therefore the Pharisees also asked him how he received his sight. And he said unto them, He put clay upon mine eyes, and I wash-16 ed, and do see. Some therefore of the Pharisees said, This man is not from God, because he keepeth not the sabbath. But others said, How can a man that is a sinner do such signs? And 17 there was a division among them. They say therefore unto the blind man again, What say-est thou of him, in that he opened thine eyes?
18 And he said, He is a prophet. The Jews therefore did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind, and had received his sight, until they called the parents of him that had received 19 his sight, and asked them, saying, Is this your son, who ye say was born blind? how then doth 20 he now see? His parents answered and said,
We know that this is our son, and that he was 21 born blind: but how he now seeth, we know not; or who opened his eyes, we know not: ask him; he is of age; he shall speak for himself.
22 These things said his parents, because they feared the Jews: for the Jews had agreed already, that if any man did confess that he was Christ, he should be put out of the Synagogue.

23 Therefore said his parents, He is of age, ask him.

24 Then again called they the man that was blind, and said unto him, Give God the praise, we know that this man is a sinner.

25 He answered, and said, Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not: One thing I know, that whereas I was blind, now I see.

26 Then said they to him again, What did he to thee? How opened he thine eyes?

27 He answered them, I have told you already, and ye did not hear: wherefore would you hear it again? Will ye also be his disciples?

28 Then they reviled him, and said, Thou art his disciple, but we are Moses' disciples.

29 We know that God spake unto Moses: as for this fellow, we know not from whence he is.

30 The man answered, and said unto them, Why herein is a marvellous thing, that ye know not from whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes.

31 Now we know that God heareth not sinners: but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth.

32 Since the world began was it not heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind:

33 If this man were not of God, he could do nothing.

34 They answered, and said unto him, Thou wast altogether born in sins, and dost thou teach us? And they ‖cast him out.

35 Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and when he had found him, he said unto him, Dost thou believe on the Son of God?

36 He answered and said, Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him?

37 And Jesus said unto him, Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee.

38 And he said, Lord, I believe: and he worshipped him.

39 ¶ And Jesus said, For judgment I am come into this world, that they which see not, might see, and that they which see, might be made blind.

40 And some of the Pharisees which were with him, heard these words, and said unto him, Are we blind also?

41 Jesus said unto them, If ye were blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see, therefore your sin remaineth.

feared the Jews: for the Jews had agreed already, that if any man should confess him to be Christ, he should be put out of the syna-23 gogue. Therefore said his parents, He is of 24 age; ask him. So they called a second time the man that was blind, and said unto him, Give glory to God: we know that this man
25 is a sinner. He therefore answered, Whether he be a sinner, I know not: one thing I know, 26 that, whereas I was blind, now I see. They said therefore unto him, What did he to thee?
27 how opened he thine eyes? He answered them, I told you even now, and ye did not hear: wherefore would ye hear it again? would ye 28 also become his disciples? And they reviled him, and said, Thou art his disciple; but we are 29 disciples of Moses. We know that God hath spoken unto Moses: but as for this man, we 30 know not whence he is. The man answered and said unto them, Why, herein is the marvel, that ye know not whence he is, and yet he 31 opened mine eyes. We know that God heareth not sinners: but if any man be a worshipper of God, and do his will, him he heareth.
32 Since the world began it was never heard that any one opened the eyes of a man born blind.
33 If this man were not from God, he could do
34 nothing. They answered and said unto him, Thou wast altogether born in sins, and dost thou teach us? And they cast him out.

35 Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and finding him, he said, Dost thou believe on [1]the 36 Son of God? He answered and said, And who is 37 he, Lord, that I may believe on him? Jesus said unto him, Thou hast both seen him, and he it is 38 that speaketh with thee. And he said, Lord, I 39 believe. And he worshipped him. And Jesus said, For judgement came I into this world, that they which see not may see; and that they which 40 see may become blind. Those of the Pharisees which were with him heard these things, and said
41 unto him, Are we also blind? Jesus said unto them, If ye were blind, ye would have no sin: but now ye say, We see: your sin remaineth.

10 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the fold of the sheep, but climbeth up some other way, the
2 same is a thief and a robber. But he that entereth in by the door is [2]the shepherd
3 of the sheep. To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice: and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.

4 And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice.
5 And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him, for they know not the voice of strangers.
6 This parable spake Jesus unto them: but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them.
7 Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep.
8 All that ever came before me, are thieves and robbers: but the sheep did not hear them.
9 I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture.
10 The thief cometh not, but for to steal and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.
11 [a]I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.
12 But he that is an hireling and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth: and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep.
13 The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep.
14 I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine.
15 As the father knoweth me, even so know I the father: and I lay down my life for the sheep.
16 And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; [b]and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd.
17 Therefore doth my father love me, [c]because I lay down my life that I might take it again.
18 No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself: I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. [d]This commandment have I received of my father.
19 ¶There was a division therefore again among the Jews for these sayings.
20 And many of them said, He hath a devil, and is mad, why hear ye him?
21 Others said, These are not the words of him that hath a devil. Can a devil open the eyes of the blind?
22 ¶And it was at Jerusalem the [e]feast of the dedication, and it was winter.
23 And Jesus walked in the temple in Solomon's porch.
24 Then came the Jews round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou ||make us to doubt? If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly.
25 Jesus answered them, I told you, and ye believed not: the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me.
26 But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep, as I said unto you.

18 that I may take it again. No one [5]taketh it away from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have [6]power to lay it down, and I have [6]power to take it again. This commandment received I from my Father.
19 There arose a division again among the Jews
20 because of these words. And many of them said, He hath a [7]devil, and is mad; why hear 21 ye him? Others said, These are not the sayings of one possessed with a [7]devil. Can a [7]devil open the eyes of the blind?
22 [8]And it was the feast of the dedication at 23 Jerusalem: it was winter; and Jesus was walking in the temple in Solomon's porch.
24 The Jews therefore came round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou hold us in suspense? If thou art the Christ, tell us
25 plainly. Jesus answered them, I told you, and ye believe not: the works that I do in my 26 Father's name, these bear witness of me. But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep.

27 My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me.
28 And I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand.
29 My father which gave them me, is greater than all: and no man is able to pluck them out of my father's hand.
30 I and my father are one.
31 Then the Jews took up stones again to stone him.
32 Jesus answered them, Many good works have I shewed you from my Father; for which of those works do ye stone me?
33 The Jews answered him, saying, For a good work we stone thee not, but for blasphemy, and because that thou, being a man, makest thyself God.
34 Jesus answered them, [f]Is it not written in your law, I said, ye are gods?
35 If he called them gods, unto whom the word of God came, and the Scripture cannot be broken:
36 Say ye of him, whom the father hath sanctified and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest; because I said, I am the Son of God?
37 If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not.
38 But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the works: that ye may know and believe that the Father is in me, and I in him.
39 Therefore they sought again to take him: but he escaped out of their hand,
40 And went away again beyond Jordan, into the place where John at first baptized: and there he abode.
41 And many resorted unto him, and said, John did no miracle: but all things that John spake of this man, were true.
42 And many believed on him there.

36 scripture cannot be broken), say ye of him, whom the Father [3]sanctified and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest; because I said, I am
37 the Son of God? If I do not the works of my 38 Father, believe me not. But if I do them, though ye believe not me, believe the works: that ye may know and understand that the 39 Father is in me, and I in the Father. They sought again to take him: and he went forth out of their hand.

41 and there he abode. And many came unto him; and they said, John indeed did no sign: but all things whatsoever John spake of this 42 man were true. And many believed on him there.
11 Now a certain man was sick, Lazarus of Bethany, of the village of Mary and her sister Martha. And it was that Mary which anointed the day? If any man walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth the light of this world.

10 But if a man walk in the night, he stumbleth, because there is no light in him.
11 These things said he, and after that, he saith unto them, Our friend Lazarus sleepeth, but I go, that I may awake him out of sleep.
12 Then said his disciples, Lord, if he sleep, he shall do well.
13 Howbeit Jesus spake of his death: but they thought that he had spoken of taking of rest in sleep.
14 Then said Jesus unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead:
15 And I am glad for your sakes, that I was not there (to the intent ye may believe:) Nevertheless, let us go unto him.
16 Then said Thomas, which is called Didymus, unto his fellowdisciples, Let us also go, that we may die with him.
17 Then when Jesus came, he found that he had lain in the grave four days already.
18 (Now Bethany was nigh unto Jerusalem, ‖about fifteen furlongs off:)
19 And many of the Jews came to Martha and Mary, to comfort them concerning their brother.
20 Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met him: but Mary sat still in the house.
21 Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.
22 But I know, that even now, whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee.
23 Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again.
24 Martha saith unto him, [b]I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day.
25 Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the [c]life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live.
26 And whosoever liveth, and believeth in me, shall never die. Believest thou this?
27 She saith unto him, Yea Lord, I believe that thou art the Christ the Son of God, which should come into the world.
28 And when she had so said, she went her way, and called Mary her sister secretly, saying, The Master is come, and calleth for thee.
29 As soon as she heard that, she arose quickly, and came unto him.
30 Now Jesus was not yet come into the town, but was in that place where Martha met him.
31 The Jews then which were with her in the house, and comforted her, when they saw Mary that she rose up hastily, and went out, followed her, saying, She goeth unto the grave, to weep there.
32 Then when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell down at his feet, saying unto him, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

day? If a man walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth the light of this world.
10 But if a man walk in the night, he stumbleth,
11 because the light is not in him. These things spake he: and after this he saith unto them, Our friend Lazarus is fallen asleep; but I go, 12 that I may awake him out of sleep. The disciples therefore said unto him, Lord, if he is 13 fallen asleep, he will [1]recover. Now Jesus had spoken of his death: but they thought that he 14 spake of taking rest in sleep. Then Jesus therefore said unto them plainly, Lazarus is 15 dead. And I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, to the intent ye may believe;
16 nevertheless let us go unto him. Thomas therefore, who is called [2]Didymus, said unto his fellow-disciples, Let us also go, that we may die with him.
17 So when Jesus came, he found that he had 18 been in the tomb four days already. Now Bethany was nigh unto Jerusalem, about fifteen 19 furlongs off; and many of the Jews had come to Martha and Mary, to console them concern-
20 ing their brother. Martha therefore, when she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met
21 him: but Mary still sat in the house. Martha therefore said unto Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst 22 been here, my brother had not died. And even now I know that, whatsoever thou shalt ask of 23 God, God will give thee. Jesus saith unto her,
24 Thy brother shall rise again. Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in the res-
25 urrection at the last day. Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live:
26 and whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall
27 never die. Believest thou this? She saith unto him, Yea, Lord: I have believed that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, even he that cometh
28 into the world. And when she had said this, she went away, and called Mary [3]her sister secretly, saying, The [4]Master is here, and calleth
29 thee. And she, when she heard it, arose quick-30 ly, and went unto him. (Now Jesus was not yet come into the village, but was still in the 31 place where Martha met him.) The Jews then which were with her in the house, and were comforting her, when they saw Mary, that she rose up quickly and went out, followed her, supposing that she was going unto the tomb to 32 [5]weep there. Mary therefore, when she came where Jesus was, and saw him, fell down at his feet, saying unto him, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

33 When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping which came with her, he groaned in the Spirit, and †was troubled,

34 And said, Where have ye laid him? They say unto him, Lord, come, and see.

35 Jesus wept.

36 Then said the Jews, Behold, how he loved him.

37 And some of them said, Could not this man, [d]which opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that even this man should not have died?

38 Jesus therefore again groaning in himself, cometh to the grave. It was a cave, and a stone lay upon it.

39 Jesus said, Take ye away the stone. Martha, the sister of him that was dead, saith unto him, Lord, by this time he stinketh: for he hath been dead four days.

40 Jesus saith unto her, Said I not unto thee, that if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God?

41 Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lift up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee, that thou hast heard me.

42 And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by, I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.

43 And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth.

44 And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with graveclothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go.

45 Then many of the Jews which came to Mary, and had seen the things which Jesus did, believed on him.

46 But some of them went their ways to the Pharisees, and told them what things Jesus had done.

47 ¶Then gathered the chief Priests and the Pharisees a council, and said, What do we? for this man doeth many miracles.

48 If we let him thus alone, all men will believe on him, and the Romans shall come, and take away both our place and nation.

49 And one of them named Caiaphas, being the high Priest that same year, said unto them, Ye know nothing at all,

50 [e]Nor consider that it is expedient for us that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not.

51 And this spake he not of himself: but being high Priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus should die for that nation:

52 And not for that nation only, but that also he should gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad.

53 Then from that day forth they took counsel together for to put him to death.

54 Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews: but went thence unto a country near to the wilderness, into a city called Ephraim, and there continued with his disciples.

33 When Jesus therefore saw her [1]weeping, and the Jews also [1]weeping which came with her, he [2]groaned in the spirit, and [3]was troubled, and said,

34 Where have ye laid him? They say unto him,

35,36 Lord, come and see. Jesus wept. The Jews

37 therefore said, Behold how he loved him! But some of them said, Could not this man, which opened the eyes of him that was blind, have caused 38 that this man also should not die? Jesus therefore again [4]groaning in himself cometh to the tomb. Now it was a cave, and a stone lay [5]against it.

39 Jesus saith, Take ye away the stone. Martha, the sister of him that was dead, saith unto him, Lord, by this time he stinketh: for he hath

40 been dead four days. Jesus saith unto her, Said I not unto thee, that, if thou believedst,

41 thou shouldest see the glory of God? So they took away the stone. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou

42 heardest me. And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the multitude which standeth around I said it, that they may be-

43 lieve that thou didst send me. And when he had thus spoken, he cried with a loud voice, 44 Lazarus, come forth. He that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with [6]grave-clothes; and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go.

45 Many therefore of the Jews, which came to Mary and beheld [7]that which he did, believed 46 on him. But some of them went away to the Pharisees, and told them the things which Jesus had done.

47 The chief priests therefore and the Pharisees gathered a council, and said, What do we? for 48 this man doeth many signs. If we let him thus alone, all men will believe on him: and the Romans will come and take away both our

49 place and our nation. But a certain one of them, Caiaphas, being high priest that year,

50 said unto them, Ye know nothing at all, nor do ye take account that it is expedient for you that one man should die for the people, and that the 51 whole nation perish not. Now this he said not of himself: but being high priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus should die for the nation;

52 and not for the nation only, but that he might also gather together into one the children of 53 God that are scattered abroad. So from that day forth they took counsel that they might put him to death.

54 Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews, but departed thence into the country near to the wilderness, into a city called Ephraim; and there he tarried with the disciples.

55 ¶ And the Jews' Passover was nigh at hand, and many went out of the country up to Jerusalem before the Passover to purify themselves.

56 Then sought they for Jesus, and spake among themselves, as they stood in the Temple, What think ye, that he will not come to the feast?

57 Now both the chief Priests and the Pharisees had given a commandment, that if any man knew where he were, he should shew it, that they might take him.

CHAP. XII.

THEN Jesus, six days before the Passover, came to Bethany, where Lazarus was, which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead.

2 There they made him a supper, and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.

3 Then took Mary a pound of ointment, of Spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment.

4 Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him,

5 Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor?

6 This he said, not that he cared for the poor: but because he was a thief, and [a] had the bag, and bare what was put therein.

7 Then said Jesus, Let her alone, against the day of my burying hath she kept this.

8 For the poor always ye have with you: but me ye have not always.

9 Much people of the Jews therefore knew that he was there: and they came, not for Jesus' sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the dead.

10 ¶ But the chief Priests consulted, that they might put Lazarus also to death, 11 Because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away and believed on Jesus.

12 ¶ [b] On the next day, much people that were come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, 13 Took branches of Palm trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried, Hosanna, blessed is the king of Israel that cometh in the Name of the Lord.

14 And Jesus, when he had found a young ass, sat thereon, as it is written,

15 [c] Fear not, daughter of Sion, behold, thy King cometh, sitting on an ass's colt.

16 These things understood not his disciples at the first: but when Jesus was glorified, then remembered they that these things were written of him, and that they had done these things unto him.

17 The people therefore that was with him, when he called Lazarus out of his grave, and raised him from the dead, bare record.

18 For this cause the people also met him, for that they heard that he had done this miracle.

19 The Pharisees therefore said among themselves, Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing? Behold, the world is gone after him.

55 Now the passover of the Jews was at hand: and many went up to Jerusalem out of the country before the passover, to purify themselves. 56 They sought therefore for Jesus, and spake one with another, as they stood in the temple, What think ye? That he will not come to the feast? 57 Now the chief priests and the Pharisees had given commandment, that, if any man knew where he was, he should shew it, that they might take him.

12 Jesus therefore six days before the passover came to Bethany, where Lazarus was, whom 2 Jesus raised from the dead. So they made him a supper there: and Martha served; but Lazarus was one of them that sat at meat with 3 him. Mary therefore took a pound of ointment of [1] spikenard, very precious, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odour of the 4 ointment. But Judas Iscariot, one of his dis- 5 ciples, which should betray him, saith, Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred 6 [2] pence, and given to the poor? Now this he said, not because he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and having the [3] bag 7 [4] took away what was put therein. Jesus therefore said, [5] Suffer her to keep it against the day 8 of my burying. For the poor ye have always with you; but me ye have not always.

9 The common people therefore of the Jews learned that he was there: and they came, not for Jesus' sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the 10 dead. But the chief priests took counsel that 11 they might put Lazarus also to death; because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away, and believed on Jesus.

12 On the morrow [6] a great multitude that had come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus 13 was coming to Jerusalem, took the branches of the palm trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried out, Hosanna: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord, even the King of 14 Israel. And Jesus, having found a young ass, 15 sat thereon; as it is written, Fear not, daughter of Zion: behold, thy King cometh, sitting on 16 an ass's colt. These things understood not his disciples at the first: but when Jesus was glorified, then remembered they that these things were written of him, and that they had done 17 these things unto him. The multitude therefore that was with him when he called Lazarus out of the tomb, and raised him from the dead, 18 bare witness. For this cause also the multitude went and met him, for that they heard that he 19 had done this sign. The Pharisees therefore said among themselves, [7] Behold how ye prevail nothing: lo, the world is gone after him.

20 ¶ And there were certain Greeks among them that came up to worship at the feast:
21 The same came therefore to Philip which was of Bethsaida of Galilee, and desired him, saying, Sir, we would see Jesus.
22 Philip cometh and telleth Andrew: and again Andrew and Philip told Jesus.
23 ¶ And Jesus answered them, saying, The hour is come, that the Son of man should be glorified.
24 Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground, and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.
25 [d] He that loveth his life, shall lose it: and he that hateth his life in this world, shall keep it unto life eternal.
26 If any man serve me, let him follow me, and where I am, there shall also my servant be: If any man serve me, him will my father honour.
27 Now is my soul troubled, and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour, but for this cause came I unto this hour.
28 Father, glorify thy Name. Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again.
29 The people therefore that stood by, and heard it, said, that it thundered: others said, An Angel spake to him.
30 Jesus answered, and said, This voice came not because of me, but for your sakes.
31 Now is the judgment of this world: now shall the prince of this world be cast out.
32 And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me.
33 (This he said, signifying what death he should die.)
34 The people answered him, [e] We have heard out of the Law, that Christ abideth for ever: and how sayest thou, The Son of man must be lift up? Who is this Son of man?
35 Then Jesus said unto them, Yet a little while is the light with you: walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you: For he that walketh in darkness, knoweth not whither he goeth.
36 While ye have light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light. These things spake Jesus, and departed, and did hide himself from them.
37 ¶ But though he had done so many miracles before them, yet they believed not on him:
38 That the saying of Esaias the Prophet might be fulfilled, which he spake, [f] Lord, who hath believed our report? and to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed?
39 Therefore they could not believe, because that Esaias said again,
40 [g] He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart, that they should not see with their eyes, nor understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them.

20 Now there were certain Greeks among those 21 that went up to worship at the feast: these therefore came to Philip, which was of Bethsaida of Galilee, and asked him, saying, Sir, 22 we would see Jesus. Philip cometh and telleth Andrew: Andrew cometh, and Philip, and they 23 tell Jesus. And Jesus answereth them, saying, The hour is come, that the Son of man should 24 be glorified. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a grain of wheat fall into the earth and die, it abideth by itself alone; but if it die, 26 world shall keep it unto life eternal. If any man serve me, let him follow me; and where I am, there shall also my servant be: if any man serve me, him will the Father honour.

27 Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this [2] hour. But 28 for this cause came I unto this hour. Father, glorify thy name. There came therefore a voice out of heaven, saying, I have both glori-
29 fied it, and will glorify it again. The multitude therefore, that stood by, and heard it, said that it had thundered: others said, An angel hath 30 spoken to him. Jesus answered and said, This voice hath not come for my sake, but for your 31 sakes. Now is [3] the judgement of this world: now shall the prince of this world be cast out.
32 And I, if I be lifted up [4] from the earth, will 33 draw all men unto myself. But this he said, signifying by what manner of death he should 34 die. The multitude therefore answered him, We have heard out of the law that the Christ abideth for ever: and how sayest thou, The Son of man must be lifted up? who is this Son
35 of man? Jesus therefore said unto them, Yet a little while is the light [5] among you. Walk while ye have the light, that darkness overtake you not: and he that walketh in the darkness
36 knoweth not whither he goeth. While ye have the light, believe on the light, that ye may become sons of light.

These things spake Jesus, and he departed
37 and [6] hid himself from them. But though he had done so many signs before them, yet they 38 believed not on him: that the word of Isaiah the prophet might be fulfilled, which he spake,

Lord, who hath believed our report?
And to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed?

39 For this cause they could not believe, for that Isaiah said again,
40 He hath blinded their eyes, and he hardened their heart;
Lest they should see with their eyes, and perceive with their heart,
And should turn,
And I should heal them.

41 These things said Esaias, when he saw his glory, and spake of him.

42 ¶ Nevertheless, among the chief rulers also, many believed on him; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess him, lest they should be put out of the Synagogue.

43 [h]For they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God.

44 ¶ Jesus cried, and said, He that believeth on me, believeth not on me, but on him that sent me.

45 And he that seeth me, seeth him that sent me.

46 [i]I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me, should not abide in darkness.

47 [k]And if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not; For I came not to judge the world, but to save the world.

48 He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: [l]the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day.

49 For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment what I should say, and what I should speak.

50 And I know that his commandment is life everlasting: whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak.

CHAP. XIII.

NOW [m]before the feast of the Passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come, that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end.

2 And supper being ended (the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot Simon's son to betray him,)

3 Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God:

4 He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments, and took a towel, and girded himself.

5 After that, he poureth water into a basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?

7 Jesus answered, and said unto him, What I do, thou knowest not now: but thou shalt know hereafter.

8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.

9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands, and my head.

10 Jesus saith to him, He that is washed, needeth not, save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.

11 For he knew who should betray him, therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.

12 So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?

41 These things said Isaiah, because he saw his 43 they should be put out of the synagogue: for they loved the glory of men more than the glory of God.

44 And Jesus cried and said, He that believeth on me, believeth not on me, but on him that 45 sent me. And he that beholdeth me beholdeth
46 him that sent me. I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me may not 47 abide in the darkness. And if any man hear my sayings, and keep them not, I judge him not: for I came not to judge the world, but to 48 save the world. He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my sayings, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I spake, the same shall 50 and what I should speak. And I know that his commandment is life eternal: the things therefore which I speak, even as the Father hath said unto me, so I speak.

13 Now before the feast of the passover, Jesus knowing that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved
2 them [2]unto the end. And during supper, the devil having already put into the heart of Judas
3 Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him, Jesus, knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he came forth from God, and
4 goeth unto God, riseth from supper, and layeth aside his garments; and he took a towel, and 5 girded himself. Then he poureth water into the basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he 6 was girded. So he cometh to Simon Peter. He saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?
7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt under-
8 stand hereafter. Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.
9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet
10 only, but also my hands and my head. Jesus saith to him, He that is bathed needeth not [3]save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and 11 ye are clean, but not all. For he knew him that should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.

12 So when he had washed their feet, and taken his garments, and [4]sat down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?

13 Ye call me Master and Lord, and ye say well: for so I am.
14 If I then your Lord and Master have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet.
15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.
16 [b]Verily, verily I say unto you, the servant is not greater than his lord, neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.
17 If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.
18 ¶ I speak not of you all, I know whom I have chosen: but that the Scripture may be fulfilled, [c]He that eateth bread with me, hath lift up his heel against me.
19 ‖Now I tell you before it come, that when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he.
20 [d]Verily, verily I say unto you, he that receiveth whomsoever I send, receiveth me: and he that receiveth me, receiveth him that sent me.
21 [e]When Jesus had thus said, he was troubled in spirit, and testified, and said, Verily, verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.
22 Then the disciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he spake.
23 Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved.
24 Simon Peter therefore beckoned to him, that he should ask who it should be of whom he spake.
25 He then lying on Jesus' breast, saith unto him, Lord, who is it?
26 Jesus answered, He it is to whom I shall give a ‖sop, when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot the son of Simon.
27 And after the sop, Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, That thou doest, do quickly.
28 Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him.
29 For some of them thought, because Judas had the bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those things that we have need of against the feast: or that he should give something to the poor.
30 He then having received the sop, went immediately out: and it was night.
31 ¶ Therefore when he was gone out, Jesus said, Now is the Son of man glorified: and God is glorified in him.
32 If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and shall straightway glorify him.
33 Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me, [f]and as I said unto the Jews, whither I go, ye cannot come: so now I say to you.

3 And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also.

4 And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.

5 Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest: and how can we know the way?

6 Jesus saith unto him, I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life: no man cometh unto the Father but by me.

7 If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.

8 Philip saith unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us.

9 Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the father, and how sayest thou then, Shew us the father?

10 Believest thou not that I am in the father, and the father in me? The words that I speak unto you, I speak not of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.

11 Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works' sake.

12 Verily, verily I say unto you, he that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also, and greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto my Father.

13 [a]And whatsoever ye shall ask in my Name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son.

14 If ye shall ask any thing in my Name, I will do it.

15 ¶ If ye love me, keep my commandments.

16 And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever, 17 Even the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him, for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you, will think that he doeth God service.

4 But these things have I told you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them. And these things I said not unto you at the beginning, because I was with you.

5 But now I go my way to him that sent me, and none of you asketh me, Whither goest thou?

6 But because I have said these things unto you, sorrow hath filled your heart.

7 Nevertheless, I tell you the truth, it is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you: but if I depart, I will send him unto you.

8 And when he is come, he will ‖reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment.

9 Of sin, because they believe not on me.

10 Of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more.

11 Of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged.

12 I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now:

20 Verily, verily I say unto you, that ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice: And ye shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy.

21 A woman, when she is in travail, hath sorrow, because her hour is come: but as soon as she is delivered of the child, she remembereth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world.

22 And ye now therefore have sorrow: but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you.

Holy Father, keep through thine own Name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are.

12 While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy Name: those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is lost, but the son of perdition: [c]that the Scripture might be fulfilled.

13 And now come I to thee, and these things I speak in the world, that they might have my joy fulfilled in themselves.

14 I have given them thy word, and the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

15 I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil.

16 They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

17 Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth.

18 As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world.

19 And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be ‖sanctified through the truth.

21 That they all may be one, as thou Father art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.

22 And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them: that they may be one, even as we are one:

23 I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one, and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me.

24 [d]Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

25 O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee, but I have known thee, and these have known that thou hast sent me.

26 And I have declared unto them thy Name, and will declare it: that the love wherewith thou hast loved me may be in them, and I in them.

Holy Father, keep them in thy name which thou hast given me, that they may be one,
12 even as we are. While I was with them, I kept them in thy name which thou hast given me: and I guarded them, and not one of them perished, but the son of perdition; that the scrip-
13 ture might be fulfilled. But now I come to thee; and these things I speak in the world, that they may have my joy fulfilled in them-
14 selves. I have given them thy word; and the world hated them, because they are not of the 15 world, even as I am not of the world. I [1]pray not that thou shouldest take them [2]from the world, but that thou shouldest keep them [2]from 16 [3]the evil one. They are not of the world, even 17 as I am not of the world. [4]Sanctify them in 18 the truth: thy word is truth. As thou didst send me into the world, even so sent I them 19 into the world. And for their sakes I [4]sanctify myself, that they themselves also may be 20 sanctified in truth. Neither for these only do I [1]pray, but for them also that believe on me
21 through their word; that they may all be one; even as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be in us: that the world
22 may believe that thou didst send me. And the glory which thou hast given me I have given unto them; that they may be one, even as we
23 are one; I in them, and thou in me, that they may be perfected into one; that the world may know that thou didst send me, and lovedst
24 them, even as thou lovedst me. Father, [5]that which thou hast given me, I will that, where I am, they also may be with me; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of 25 the world. O righteous Father, the world knew thee not, but I knew thee; and these 26 knew that thou didst send me; and I made known unto them thy name, and will make it known; that the love wherewith thou lovedst me may be in them, and I in them.

18 When Jesus had spoken these words, he went forth with his disciples over the [6]brook [7]Kidron, where was a garden, into the which he entered,
2 himself and his disciples. Now Judas also, which betrayed him, knew the place: for Jesus
3 ofttimes resorted thither with his disciples. Judas then, having received the [8]band of soldiers, and officers from the chief priests and the Pharisees, cometh thither with lanterns and torches
4 and weapons. Jesus therefore, knowing all the things that were coming upon him, went forth, and saith unto them, Whom seek ye?
5 They answered him, Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus saith unto them, I am he. And Judas also which betrayed him, stood with them.

6 As soon then as he had said unto them, I am he, they went backward, and fell to the ground.

7 Then asked he them again, Whom seek ye? And they said, Jesus of Nazareth.

8 Jesus answered, I have told you that I am he: If therefore ye seek me, let these go their way:

9 That the saying might be fulfilled which he spake, [c]Of them which thou gavest me, have I lost none.

10 Then Simon Peter having a sword, drew it, and smote the high Priest's servant, and cut off his right ear: The servant's name was Malchus.

11 Then said Jesus unto Peter, Put up thy sword into the sheath: the cup which my father hath given me, shall I not drink it?

12 Then the band and the captain, and officers of the Jews, took Jesus, and bound him,

13 And led him away to Annas first; for he was father in law to Caiaphas, which was the high Priest that same year. ‖

14 [d]Now Caiaphas was he which gave counsel to the Jews, that it was expedient that one man should die for the people.

15 ¶ [e]And Simon Peter followed Jesus, and so did another disciple: that disciple was known unto the high Priest, and went in with Jesus into the palace of the high Priest.

16 But Peter stood at the door without. Then went out that other disciple, which was known unto the high Priest, and spake unto her that kept the door, and brought in Peter.

17 Then saith the damsel that kept the door unto Peter, Art not thou also one of this man's disciples? He saith, I am not.

18 And the servants and officers stood there, who had made a fire of coals, (for it was cold) and they warmed themselves: and Peter stood with them, and warmed himself.

19 ¶ The high Priest then asked Jesus of his disciples, and of his doctrine.

20 Jesus answered him, I spake openly to the world, I ever taught in the Synagogue, and in the Temple, whither the Jews always resort, and in secret have I said nothing:

21 Why askest thou me? Ask them which heard me, what I have said unto them: behold, they know what I said.

22 And when he had thus spoken, one of the officers which stood by, struck Jesus ‖with the palm of his hand, saying, Answerest thou the high priest so?

23 Jesus answered him, If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil: but if well, why smitest thou me?

24 [f]Now Annas had sent him bound unto Caiaphas the high Priest.

25 And Simon Peter stood and warmed himself: [g]They said therefore unto him, Art not thou therefore he said unto them, I am he, they went 8 said, Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus answered, I told you that I am he: if therefore ye seek me, let 9 these go their way: that the word might be fulfilled which he spake, Of those whom thou hast

10 given me I lost not one. Simon Peter therefore having a sword drew it, and struck the high priest's [1]servant, and cut off his right ear. Now
11 the [1]servant's name was Malchus. Jesus therefore said unto Peter, Put up the sword into the sheath: the cup which the Father hath given me, shall I not drink it?

12 So the [2]band and the [3]chief captain, and the officers of the Jews, seized Jesus and bound him, 13 and led him to Annas first; for he was father in law to Caiaphas, which was high priest that 14 year. Now Caiaphas was he which gave counsel to the Jews, that it was expedient that one man should die for the people.

15 And Simon Peter followed Jesus, and so did another disciple. Now that disciple was known unto the high priest, and entered in with Jesus
16 into the court of the high priest; but Peter was standing at the door without. So the other disciple, which was known unto the high priest, went out and spake unto her that kept the 18 I am not. Now the [4]servants and the officers were standing there, having made [5]a fire of coals; for it was cold; and they were warming themselves: and Peter also was with them, standing and warming himself.

19 The high priest therefore asked Jesus of his 20 disciples, and of his teaching. Jesus answered him, I have spoken openly to the world; I ever taught in [6]synagogues, and in the temple, where all the Jews come together; and in secret spake
21 I nothing. Why askest thou me? ask them that have heard me, what I spake unto them: behold, these know the things which I said.
22 And when he had said this, one of the officers standing by struck Jesus [7]with his hand, saying,
23 Answerest thou the high priest so? Jesus answered him, If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil: but if well, why smitest thou me?
24 Annas therefore sent him bound unto Caiaphas the high priest.

25 Now Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They said therefore unto him, Art thou also one of his disciples? He denied it, and said, I am not.

26 One of the servants of the high Priest (being his kinsman whose ear Peter cut off) saith, Did not I see thee in the garden with him?

27 Peter then denied again, and immediately the cock crew.

28 ¶ [h]Then led they Jesus from Caiaphas unto ‖the hall of Judgment: And it was early, [i]and they themselves went not into the Judgment hall, lest they should be defiled: but that they might eat the Passover.

29 Pilate then went out unto them, and said, What accusation bring you against this man?

30 They answered, and said unto him, If he were not a malefactor, we would not have delivered him up unto thee.

31 Then said Pilate unto them, Take ye him, and judge him according to your law. The Jews therefore said unto him, It is not lawful for us to put any man to death:

32 [k]That the saying of Jesus might be fulfilled, which he spake, signifying what death he should die.

33 [l]Then Pilate entered into the Judgment hall again, and called Jesus, and said unto him, Art thou the King of the Jews?

34 Jesus answered him, Sayest thou this thing of thyself? or did others tell it thee of me?

35 Pilate answered, Am I a Jew? Thine own nation, and the chief Priests have delivered thee unto me: What hast thou done?

36 Jesus answered, My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence.

37 Pilate therefore said unto him, Art thou a King then? Jesus answered, Thou sayest that I am a King. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth: every one that is of the truth heareth my voice.

38 Pilate saith unto him, What is truth? And when he had said this, he went out again unto the Jews, and saith unto them, I find in him no fault at all.

39 [m]But ye have a custom that I should release unto you one at the Passover: will ye therefore that I release unto you the king of the Jews?

40 [n]Then cried they all again, saying, Not this man, but Barabbas. Now Barabbas was a robber.

And when he had said this, he went out again unto the Jews, and saith unto them, 39 I find no crime in him. But ye have a custom, that I should release unto you one at the passover: will ye therefore that I release unto you 40 the King of the Jews? They cried out therefore again, saying, Not this man, but Barabbas. Now Barabbas was a robber.

19 Then Pilate therefore took Jesus, and scourged
2 him. And the soldiers plaited a crown of thorns, and put it on his head, and arrayed him in a purple
3 garment; and they came unto him, and said, Hail, King of the Jews! and they struck him [5]with 4 their hands. And Pilate went out again, and saith unto them, Behold, I bring him forth to you, that ye may know that I find no fault in him.

5 Then came Jesus forth, wearing the crown of thorns, and the purple robe: and Pilate saith unto them, Behold the man.

6 When the chief Priests therefore and officers saw him, they cried out, saying, Crucify him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Take ye him, and crucify him: for I find no fault in him.

7 The Jews answered him, We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.

8 ¶ When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he was the more afraid,

9 And went again into the judgment hall, and saith unto Jesus, Whence art thou? But Jesus gave him no answer.

10 Then saith Pilate unto him, Speakest thou not unto me? Knowest thou not that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to release thee?

11 Jesus answered, Thou couldest have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above: therefore he that delivered me unto thee hath the greater sin.

12 And from thenceforth Pilate sought to release him: but the Jews cried out, saying, If thou let this man go, thou art not Cæsar's friend: whosoever maketh himself a king, speaketh against Cæsar.

13 ¶ When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus forth, and sat down in the judgment seat, in a place that is called the pavement, but in the Hebrew, Gabbatha.

14 And it was the preparation of the Passover, and about the sixth hour: and he saith unto the Jews, Behold your King.

15 But they cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Shall I crucify your King? The chief Priests answered, We have no king but Cæsar.

16 [b] Then delivered he him therefore unto them to be crucified: and they took Jesus, and led him away.

17 And he bearing his cross, went forth into a place called the place of a skull, which is called in Hebrew, Golgotha:

18 Where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst.

19 ¶ And Pilate wrote a title, and put it on the cross. And the writing was, JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

20 This title then read many of the Jews: for the place where Jesus was crucified was nigh to the city, and it was written in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin.

21 Then said the chief Priests of the Jews to Pilate, Write not, The king of the Jews: but that he said, I am King of the Jews.

22 Pilate answered, What I have written, I have written.

23 ¶ [c] Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments, (and made four parts, to unto them, Behold, I bring him out to you, that ye may know that I find no crime in 6 man! When therefore the chief priests and the officers saw him, they cried out, saying, Crucify him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Take him yourselves, and crucify him:

7 for I find no crime in him. The Jews answered him, We have a law, and by that law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.
8 When Pilate therefore heard this saying, he was 9 the more afraid; and he entered into the [1] palace again, and saith unto Jesus, Whence art thou?
10 But Jesus gave him no answer. Pilate therefore saith unto him, Speakest thou not unto me? knowest thou not that I have [2] power to release
11 thee, and have [2] power to crucify thee? Jesus answered him, Thou wouldest have no [2] power against me, except it were given thee from above: therefore he that delivered me unto thee hath 12 greater sin. Upon this Pilate sought to release him: but the Jews cried out, saying, If thou release this man, thou art not Cæsar's friend: every one that maketh himself a king [3] speaketh
13 against Cæsar. When Pilate therefore heard these words, he brought Jesus out, and sat down on the judgement-seat at a place called 14 The Pavement, but in Hebrew, Gabbatha. Now it was the Preparation of the passover: it was about the sixth hour. And he saith unto the 15 Jews, Behold, your King! They therefore cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Shall I crucify your King? The chief priests an-16 swered, We have no king but Cæsar. Then therefore he delivered him unto them to be crucified.

17 They took Jesus therefore: and he went out, bearing the cross for himself, unto the place called The place of a skull, which is called in 18 Hebrew Golgotha: where they crucified him, and with him two others, on either side one, and 19 Jesus in the midst. And Pilate wrote a title also, and put it on the cross. And there was written, JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE 20 JEWS. This title therefore read many of the Jews: [4] for the place where Jesus was crucified was nigh to the city: and it was written in Hebrew,
21 and in Latin, and in Greek. The chief priests of the Jews therefore said to Pilate, Write not, The King of the Jews; but, that he said, I am 22 King of the Jews. Pilate answered, What I have written I have written.

24 They said therefore among themselves, Let not us rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be: that the Scripture might be fulfilled, which saith, [d] They parted my raiment among them, and for my vesture they did cast lots. These things therefore the soldiers did.

25 ¶ Now there stood by the cross of Jesus, his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of ‖ Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.

26 When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the disciple standing by, whom he loved, he saith unto his mother, Woman, behold thy son.

27 Then saith he to the disciple, Behold thy mother. And from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home.

28 ¶ After this, Jesus knowing that all things were now accomplished, [e] that the Scripture might be fulfilled, saith, I thirst.

29 Now there was set a vessel, full of vinegar: And they filled a spunge with vinegar, and put it upon hyssop, and put it to his mouth.

30 When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished, and he bowed his head, and gave up the ghost.

31 The Jews therefore, because it was the preparation, that the bodies should not remain upon the Cross on the Sabbath day (for that Sabbath day was an high day) besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away.

32 Then came the soldiers, and brake the legs of the first, and of the other, which was crucified with him.

33 But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs.

34 But one of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side, and forthwith came there out blood and water.

35 And he that saw it, bare record, and his record is true, and he knoweth that he saith true, that ye might believe.

36 For these things were done, [f] that the Scripture should be fulfilled, [g] A bone of him shall not be broken.

37 And again another Scripture saith, [h] They shall look on him whom they pierced.

38 ¶ [i] And after this, Joseph of Arimathæa (being a disciple of Jesus, but secretly for fear of the Jews) besought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jesus, and Pilate gave him leave: he came therefore, and took the body of Jesus.

39 And there came also Nicodemus, which at the first came to Jesus by night, and brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about an hundred pound weight.

30 to his mouth. When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished: and he bowed his head, and gave up his spirit.

31 The Jews therefore, because it was the Preparation, that the bodies should not remain on the cross upon the sabbath (for the day of that sabbath was a high day), asked of Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be 32 taken away. The soldiers therefore came, and brake the legs of the first, and of the other 33 which was crucified with him: but when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was dead already, was a garden, and in the garden a new Sepulchre, wherein was never man yet laid.

42 There laid they Jesus therefore, because of the Jews' preparation day, for the Sepulchre was nigh at hand.

CHAP. XX.

THE [a]first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the Sepulchre, and seeth the stone taken away from the Sepulchre.

2 Then she runneth and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the [b]other disciple whom Jesus loved, and saith unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the Sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him.

3 Peter therefore went forth, and that other disciple, and came to the Sepulchre.

4 So they ran both together, and the other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to the Sepulchre.

5 And he stooping down and looking in, saw the linen clothes lying, yet went he not in.

6 Then cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the Sepulchre, and seeth the linen clothes lie,

7 And the napkin that was about his head, not lying with the linen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by itself.

8 Then went in also that other disciple which came first to the Sepulchre, and he saw, and believed.

9 For as yet they knew not the Scripture, that he must rise again from the dead.

10 Then the disciples went away again unto their own home.

11 ¶ But Mary stood without at the Sepulchre, weeping: and as she wept, she stooped down, and looked into the Sepulchre,

12 And seeth two Angels in white, sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain:

13 And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

14 And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

15 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

16 Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni, which is to say, Master.

17 Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not: for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father, and to my God, and your God.

18 Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her.

was a garden; and in the garden a new tomb
42 wherein was never man yet laid. There then because of the Jews' Preparation (for the tomb was nigh at hand) they laid Jesus.

20 Now on the first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, while it was yet dark, unto the tomb, and seeth the stone taken away
2 from the tomb. She runneth therefore, and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple, whom Jesus loved, and saith unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the tomb, and we know not where they have laid
3 him. Peter therefore went forth, and the other
4 disciple, and they went toward the tomb. And they ran both together: and the other disciple
5 outran Peter, and came first to the tomb; and stooping and looking in, he seeth the linen cloths
6 lying; yet entered he not in. Simon Peter therefore also cometh, following him, and entered into the tomb; and he beholdeth the linen
7 cloths lying, and the napkin, that was upon his head, not lying with the linen cloths, but rolled 8 up in a place by itself. Then entered in therefore the other disciple also, which came first to 9 the tomb, and he saw, and believed. For as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise
10 again from the dead. So the disciples went away again unto their own home.
11 But Mary was standing without at the tomb weeping: so, as she wept, she stooped and 12 looked into the tomb; and she beholdeth two angels in white sitting, one at the head, and one at the feet, where the body of Jesus had 13 lain. And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know
14 not where they have laid him. When she had thus said, she turned herself back, and beholdeth Jesus standing, and knew not that it was 15 Jesus. Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou hast borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him
16 away. Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turneth herself, and saith unto him in Hebrew, 17 Rabboni; which is to say, [1]Master. Jesus saith to her, [2]Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended unto the Father: but go unto my brethren, and say to them, I ascend unto my Father and your Father, and my God and your 18 God. Mary Magdalene cometh and telleth the disciples, I have seen the Lord; and how that he had said these things unto her.

19 ¶ [c]Then the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus, and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you.

20 And when he had so said, he shewed unto them his hands and his side. Then were the disciples glad, when they saw the Lord.

21 Then said Jesus to them again, Peace be unto you: As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you.

22 And when he had said this, he breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the holy Ghost.

23 [d]Whose soever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them, and whose soever sins ye retain, they are retained.

24 ¶ But Thomas one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came.

25 The other disciples therefore said unto him, We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.

26 ¶ And after eight days, again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them: Then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you.

27 Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands, and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side, and be not faithless, but believing.

28 And Thomas answered, and said unto him, My Lord, and my God.

29 Jesus saith unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed.

30 ¶ [e]And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book:

31 But these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ the Son of God, and that believing ye might have life through his Name.

CHAP. XXI.

AFTER these things Jesus shewed himself again to his disciples at the sea of Tiberias, and on this wise shewed he himself.

2 There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two other of his disciples.

3 Simon Peter saith unto them, I go a fishing. They say unto him, We also go with thee. They went forth and entered into a ship immediately, and that night they caught nothing.

4 But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore: but the disciples knew not that it was Jesus.

5 Then Jesus saith unto them, ‖Children, have ye any meat? They answered him, No.

19 When therefore it was evening, on that day, the first day of the week, and when the doors were shut where the disciples were, for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in the midst,
20 and saith unto them, Peace be unto you. And when he had said this, he shewed unto them his hands and his side. The disciples therefore were 21 glad, when they saw the Lord. Jesus therefore said to them again, Peace be unto you: as the 22 Father hath sent me, even so send I you. And when he had said this, he breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the [1]Holy Ghost:
23 whose soever sins ye forgive, they are forgiven unto them; whose soever sins ye retain, they are retained.

24 But Thomas, one of the twelve, called [2]Didy-
25 mus, was not with them when Jesus came. The other disciples therefore said unto him, We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and put my hand into his side, I will not believe.

26 And after eight days again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them. Jesus cometh, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, 27 and said, Peace be unto you. Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and see my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and put it into my side: and be not faithless, but 28 believing. Thomas answered and said unto 29 him, My Lord and my God. Jesus saith unto him, Because thou hast seen me, [3]thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed.

30 Many other signs therefore did Jesus in the presence of the disciples, which are not written 31 in this book: but these are written, that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye may have life in his name.

21 After these things Jesus manifested himself again to the disciples at the sea of Tiberias;
2 and he manifested himself on this wise. There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called [2]Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two other of his
3 disciples. Simon Peter saith unto them, I go a fishing. They say unto him, We also come with thee. They went forth, and entered into the boat; and that night they 4 took nothing. But when day was now breaking, Jesus stood on the beach: howbeit the 5 disciples knew not that it was Jesus. Jesus therefore saith unto them, Children, have ye aught to eat? They answered him, No.

6 And he said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes.

7 Therefore that disciple whom Jesus loved saith unto Peter, It is the Lord. Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girt his fisher's coat unto him, (for he was naked) and did cast himself into the sea.

8 And the other disciples came in a little ship (for they were not far from land, but as it were two hundred cubits) dragging the net with fishes.

9 As soon then as they were come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread.

10 Jesus saith unto them, Bring of the fish, which ye have now caught.

11 Simon Peter went up, and drew the net to land full of great fishes, an hundred and fifty and three: and for all there were so many, yet was not the net broken.

12 Jesus saith unto them, Come, and dine. And none of the disciples durst ask him, Who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord.

13 Jesus then cometh, and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fish likewise.

14 This is now the third time that Jesus shewed himself to his disciples, after that he was risen from the dead.

15 ¶So when they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs.

16 He saith to him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

17 He said unto him the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter was grieved, because he said unto him the third time, Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things, thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

18 Verily, verily I say unto thee, when thou wast young, thou girdedst thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldest: but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not.

19 This spake he, signifying by what death he should glorify God. And when he had spoken this, he saith unto him, Follow me.

20 Then Peter turning about, seeth the disciple [a]whom Jesus loved, following, which also leaned on his breast at supper, and said, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee?

21 Peter seeing him, saith to Jesus, Lord, and what shall this man do?

22 Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? Follow thou me.

23 Then went this saying abroad among the brethren, that that disciple should not die: yet Jesus said

6 And he said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the boat, and ye shall find. They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it
7 for the multitude of fishes. That disciple therefore whom Jesus loved saith unto Peter, It is the Lord. So when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girt his coat about him (for he was 8 naked), and cast himself into the sea. But the other disciples came in the little boat (for they were not far from the land, but about two hun-
9 dred cubits off), dragging the net full of fishes. So when they got out upon the land, they see [1]a fire of coals there, and [2]fish laid thereon,
10 and [3]bread. Jesus saith unto them, Bring of 11 the fish which ye have now taken. Simon Peter therefore went [4]up, and drew the net to land, full of great fishes, a hundred and fifty and three: and for all there were so many, the net
12 was not rent. Jesus saith unto them, Come and break your fast. And none of the disciples durst inquire of him, Who art thou?
13 knowing that it was the Lord. Jesus cometh, and taketh the [5]bread, and giveth them, and the 14 fish likewise. This is now the third time that Jesus was manifested to the disciples, after that he was risen from the dead.

15 So when they had broken their fast, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of [6]John, [7]lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I [8]love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my 16 lambs. He saith to him again a second time, Simon, son of [6]John, [7]lovest thou me? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I [8]love thee. He saith unto him, Tend my 17 sheep. He saith unto him the third time, Simon, son of [6]John, [8]lovest thou me? Peter was grieved because he said unto him the third time, [8]Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things; thou [9]knowest that I [8]love thee. Jesus saith unto 18 him, Feed my sheep. Verily, verily, I say unto thee, When thou wast young, thou girdedst thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldest: but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee,
19 and carry thee whither thou wouldest not. Now this he spake, signifying by what manner of death he should glorify God. And when he had spoken this, he saith unto him, Follow me.
20 Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple whom Jesus loved following; which also leaned back on his breast at the supper, and said, Lord, who 21 is he that betrayeth thee? Peter therefore seeing him saith to Jesus, Lord, [10]and what shall 22 this man do? Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that 23 to thee? follow thou me. This saying therefore went forth among the brethren, that that disciple should not die: yet Jesus said

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

CHAP. I.

ANNO DOMINI 33.

THE former treatise have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach,

2 Until the day in which he was taken up, after that he through the holy Ghost had given commandments unto the Apostles, whom he had chosen.

3 To whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion, by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God:

4 And ‖being assembled together with them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, [a]which, saith he, ye have heard of me.

5 [b]For John truly baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the holy Ghost, not many days hence.

6 When they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?

7 And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power.

8 [c]But ye shall receive ‖power after that the holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me, both in Jerusalem, and in all Judæa, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

9 [d]And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up, and a cloud received him out of their sight.

10 And while they looked stedfastly toward heaven, as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel,

11 Which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come, in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.

12 Then returned they unto Jerusalem, from the mount called Olivet, which is from Jerusalem a sabbath day's journey.

1 THE [1]former treatise I made, O Theophilus, concerning all that Jesus began both to do and
2 to teach, until the day in which he was received up, after that he had given commandment through the [2]Holy Ghost unto the apostles whom he had
3 chosen: to whom he also [3]shewed himself alive after his passion by many proofs, appearing unto them by the space of forty days, and speaking the things concerning the kingdom of God:
4 and, [4]being assembled together with them, he charged them not to depart from Jerusalem, but to wait for the promise of the Father, which,
5 said he, ye heard from me: for John indeed baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized [5]with the Holy Ghost not many days hence.
6 They therefore, when they were come together, asked him, saying, Lord, dost thou at 7 this time restore the kingdom to Israel? And he said unto them, It is not for you to know times or seasons, which the Father hath [6]set
8 within his own authority. But ye shall receive power, when the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be my witnesses both in Jerusalem, and in all Judæa and Samaria, and unto the 9 uttermost part of the earth. And when he had said these things, as they were looking, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their
10 sight. And while they were looking stedfastly into heaven as he went, behold, two men stood 11 by them in white apparel; which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye looking into heaven? this Jesus, which was received up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye beheld him going into heaven.
12 Then returned they unto Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is nigh unto 13 Jerusalem, a sabbath day's journey off. And when they were come in, they went up into an upper room, where abode both Peter and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew, and Matthew, James the son of Alphæus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas the brother of James.

14 These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.

15 ¶ And in those days Peter stood up in the midst of the disciples, and said, (The number of names together were about an hundred and twenty)

16 Men and brethren, This Scripture must needs have been fulfilled, [e]which the holy Ghost by the mouth of David spake before concerning Judas, which was guide to them that took Jesus.

17 For he was numbered with us, and had obtained part of this ministry.

18 [f]Now this man purchased a field with the reward of iniquity, and falling headlong, he burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out.

19 And it was known unto all the dwellers at Jerusalem, insomuch as that field is called in their proper tongue, Aceldama, that is to say, The field of blood.

20 [g]For it is written in the book of Psalms, Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein: [h]And his ‖Bishopric let another take.

21 Wherefore of these men which have companied with us all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us, 22 Beginning from the baptism of John, unto that same day that he was taken up from us, must one be ordained to be a witness with us of his resurrection.

23 And they appointed two, Joseph called Barsabas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias.

24 And they prayed, and said, Thou Lord, which knowest the hearts of all men, shew whether of these two thou hast chosen, 25 That he may take part of this ministry and Apostleship, from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place.

26 And they gave forth their lots, and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven Apostles.

CHAP. II.

AND when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place.

15 And in these days Peter stood up in the midst of the brethren, and said (and there was a multitude of [3]persons gathered together, about 16 a hundred and twenty), Brethren, it was needful that the scripture should be fulfilled, which the Holy Ghost spake before by the mouth of David concerning Judas, who was guide to 17 them that took Jesus. For he was numbered among us, and received his [4]portion in this 18 ministry. (Now this man obtained a field with the reward of his iniquity; and falling headlong, he burst asunder in the midst, and 19 all his bowels gushed out. And it became known to all the dwellers at Jerusalem; insomuch that in their language that field was called Akeldama, that is, The field of blood.)
20 For it is written in the book of Psalms,

Let his habitation be made desolate,
And let no man dwell therein:

and,

His [5]office let another take.

21 Of the men therefore which have companied with us all the time that the Lord Jesus went 22 in and went out [6]among us, beginning from the baptism of John, unto the day that he was received up from us, of these must one become 23 a witness with us of his resurrection. And they put forward two, Joseph called Barsabbas, 24 who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias. And they prayed, and said, Thou, Lord, which knowest the hearts of all men, shew of these two the 25 one whom thou hast chosen, to take the place in this ministry and apostleship, from which Judas fell away, that he might go to his own
26 place. And they gave lots [7]for them; and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

2 And when the day of Pentecost [8]was now come, they were all together in one place.
2 And suddenly there came from heaven a sound as of the rushing of a mighty wind, and it filled
3 all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them tongues [9]parting asunder, like as of fire; and it sat upon each
4 one of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

5 Now there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, devout men, from every nation under heaven.
6 And when this sound was heard, the multitude came together, and were confounded, because that every man heard them speak in his own language.

7 And they were all amazed, and marvelled, saying one to another, Behold, are not all these which speak Galilæans?

8 And how hear we every man in our own tongue, wherein we were born?

9 Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia, and in Judæa, and Cappadocia, in Pontus, and Asia,

10 Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and strangers of Rome, Jews and Proselytes, 11 Cretes, and Arabians, we do hear them speak in our tongues the wonderful works of God.

12 And they were all amazed, and were in doubt, saying one to another, What meaneth this?

13 Others mocking said, These men are full of new wine.

14 ¶ But Peter, standing up with the eleven, lift up his voice, and said unto them, Ye men of Judæa, and all ye that dwell at Jerusalem, be this known unto you, and hearken to my words:

15 For these are not drunken, as ye suppose, seeing it is but the third hour of the day.

16 But this is that which was spoken by the Prophet Joel,

17 [a]And it shall come to pass in the last days (saith God) I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams:

18 And on my servants, and on my handmaidens, I will pour out in those days of my Spirit, and they shall prophesy:

19 And I will shew wonders in heaven above, and signs in the earth beneath: blood, and fire, and vapour of smoke.

20 [b]The Sun shall be turned into darkness, and the Moon into blood, before that great and notable day of the Lord come.

21 And it shall come to pass, that [c]whosoever shall call on the Name of the Lord, shall be saved.

22 Ye men of Israel, hear these words, Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you, by miracles, wonders, and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know:

23 Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain:

24 Whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death: because it was not possible that he should be holden of it.

25 For David speaketh concerning him, [d]I foresaw the Lord always before my face, for he is on my right hand, that I should not be moved.

26 Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad: Moreover also, my flesh shall rest in hope,

21 And it shall be, that whosoever shall call

22 Ye men of Israel, hear these words: Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God unto you by God did by him in the midst of you, even as ye

24 cify and slay: whom God raised up, having loosed the pangs of death: because it was not 25 possible that he should be holden of it. For David saith concerning him,

I beheld the Lord always before my face;

rejoiced;

27 Because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy one to see corruption.

28 Thou hast made known to me the ways of life, thou shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance.

29 Men and brethren, ‖ let me freely speak unto you [e] of the Patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day:

30 Therefore being a Prophet, [f] and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne:

31 He seeing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ, [g] that his soul was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption.

32 This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses.

33 Therefore being by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise of the holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this, which ye now see and hear.

34 For David is not ascended into the heavens, but he saith himself, [h] The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, 35 Until I make thy foes thy footstool.

36 Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ.

37 ¶ Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter, and to the rest of the Apostles, Men and brethren, What shall we do?

38 Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the Name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the holy Ghost.

39 For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call.

40 And with many other words did he testify and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation.

41 ¶ Then they that gladly received his word, were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls.

42 And they continued stedfastly in the Apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers.

43 And fear came upon every soul: and many wonders and signs were done by the Apostles.

44 And all that believed were together, and had all things common,

45 And sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need.

46 And they continuing daily with one accord in the Temple, and breaking bread ‖ from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart, 47 Praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord added to the Church daily such as should be saved.

29 Brethren, I may say unto you freely of the patriarch David, that he both died and was buried, and his tomb is with us unto this day.

30 Being therefore a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins [2] he would set one upon his

31 throne; he foreseeing this spake of the resurrection of the Christ, that neither was he left in

32 Hades, nor did his flesh see corruption. This Jesus did God raise up, [3] whereof we all are wit-

33 nesses. Being therefore [4] by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he hath poured 34 forth this, which ye see and hear. For David ascended not into the heavens: but he saith himself,

The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand,

35 Till I make thine enemies the footstool of thy feet.

36 Let [5] all the house of Israel therefore know assuredly, that God hath made him both Lord and Christ, this Jesus whom ye crucified.

37 Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles, Brethren, what shall we do?

38 And Peter said unto them, Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins; and ye

39 shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For to you is the promise, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord

42 that day about three thousand souls. And they continued stedfastly in the apostles' teaching and [7] fellowship, in the breaking of bread and the prayers.

43 And fear came upon every soul: and many wonders and signs were done [8] by the apostles [9].

44 And all that believed were together, and had all

45 things common; and they sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all, according as

46 any man had need. And day by day, continuing stedfastly with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread at home, they did take their food

47 with gladness and singleness of heart, praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord added [10] to them day by day those that were being saved.

NOW Peter and John went up together into the Temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour.

2 And a certain man lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the Temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the Temple.

3 Who, seeing Peter and John about to go into the Temple, asked an alms.

4 And Peter, fastening his eyes upon him, with John, said, Look on us.

5 And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something of them.

6 Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have, give I thee: In the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk.

7 And he took him by the right hand, and lift him up: and immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength.

8 And he leaping up, stood, and walked, and entered with them into the Temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God.

9 And all the people saw him walking, and praising God.

10 And they knew that it was he which sat for alms at the beautiful gate of the Temple: and they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened unto him.

11 And as the lame man which was healed held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch that is called Solomon's, greatly wondering.

12 ¶ And when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power or holiness we had made this man to walk?

13 The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his son Jesus, whom ye delivered up, and denied him in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let him go.

14 [a]But ye denied the Holy one, and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you, 15 And killed the ‖Prince of life, whom God hath raised from the dead, whereof we are witnesses.

16 And his Name through faith in his Name hath made this man strong, whom ye see and know: yea, the faith which is by him hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all.

17 And now, brethren, I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers.

18 But those things which God before had shewed by the mouth of all his Prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled.

19 ¶ Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord.

16 Saying, What shall we do to these men? for that indeed a notable miracle hath been done by them, is manifest to all them that dwell in Jerusalem, and we cannot deny it.

17 But that it spread no further among the people, let us straitly threaten them, that they speak henceforth to no man in this Name.

18 And they called them, and commanded them, not to speak at all, nor teach in the Name of Jesus.

19 But Peter and John answered, and said unto them, Whether it be right in the sight of God, to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye.

20 For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.

21 So when they had further threatened them, they let them go, finding nothing how they might punish them, because of the people: for all men glorified God for that which was done.

22 For the man was above forty years old, on whom this miracle of healing was shewed.

23 ¶ And being let go, they went to their own company, and reported all that the chief Priests and Elders had said unto them.

24 And when they heard that, they lift up their voice to God with one accord, and said, Lord, thou art God which hast made heaven and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is,

25 Who by the mouth of thy servant David hast said, [b] Why did the heathen rage, and the people imagine vain things?

26 The Kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord, and against his Christ.

16 There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed every one.

17 ¶ Then the high Priest rose up, and all they that were with him, (which is the sect of the Sadducees) and were filled with ||indignation,

18 And laid their hands on the Apostles, and put them in the common prison.

19 But the Angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors, and brought them forth, and said, 20 Go, stand and speak in the Temple to the people all the words of this life.

21 And when they heard that, they entered into the Temple early in the morning, and taught: but the high Priest came, and they that were with him, and called the Council together, and all the Senate of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought.

22 But when the officers came, and found them not in the prison, they returned, and told,

23 Saying, The prison truly found we shut with all safety, and the keepers standing without before the doors, but when we had opened, we found no man within.

24 Now when the high Priest, and the captain of the Temple, and the chief Priests heard these things, they doubted of them whereunto this would grow.

25 Then came one, and told them, saying, Behold, the men whom ye put in prison are standing in the Temple, and teaching the people.

26 Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence: (For they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned.)

27 And when they had brought them, they set them before the Council, and the high Priest asked them, 28 Saying, [a]Did not we straitly command you, that you should not teach in this Name? And behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring this man's blood upon us.

29 ¶ Then Peter, and the other Apostles answered, and said, We ought to obey God rather than men.

30 The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree.

31 Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins.

32 And we are his witnesses of these things, and so is also the holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him.

33 ¶ When they heard that, they were cut to the heart, and took counsel to slay them.

34 Then stood there up one in the Council, a Pharisee, named Gamaliel, a doctor of Law, had in reputation among all the people, and commanded to put the Apostles forth a little space, 35 And said unto them, Ye men of Israel, take heed to yourselves, what ye intend to do as touching these men.

16 And there also came together the multitude from the cities round about Jerusalem, bringing sick folk, and them that were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed every one.

17 But the high priest rose up, and all they that were with him (which is the sect of the Sadducees), and they were filled with jealousy,

18 and laid hands on the apostles, and put them

19 in public ward. But an angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors, and brought

20 them out, and said, Go ye, and stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words of this

21 Life. And when they heard this, they entered into the temple about daybreak, and taught. But the high priest came, and they that were with him, and called the council together, and all the senate of the children of Israel, and sent

22 to the prison-house to have them brought. But the officers that came found them not in the

23 prison; and they returned, and told, saying, The prison-house we found shut in all safety, and the keepers standing at the doors: but when

24 we had opened, we found no man within. Now when the captain of the temple and the chief priests heard these words, they were much perplexed concerning them whereunto this would

25 grow. And there came one and told them, Behold, the men whom ye put in the prison are in the

26 temple standing and teaching the people. Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them, but without violence; for they feared the 27 people, lest they should be stoned. And when they had brought them, they set them before the council. And the high priest asked them,

28 saying, We straitly charged you not to teach in this name: and behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your teaching, and intend to bring this

29 man's blood upon us. But Peter and the apostles answered and said, We must obey God

30 rather than men. The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom ye slew, hanging him

31 on a tree. Him did God exalt [1]with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and remission of sins.

32 And we are witnesses[2] of these [3]things; [4]and so is the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him.

33 But they, when they heard this, were cut to 34 the heart, and were minded to slay them. But there stood up one in the council, a Pharisee, named Gamaliel, a doctor of the law, had in honour of all the people, and commanded to put

THEN said the high Priest, Are these things so?

2 And he said, Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken: The God of glory appeared unto our father Abraham, when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran,

3 And said unto him, [a]Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I shall shew thee.

4 Then came he out of the land of the Chaldæans, and dwelt in Charran: and from thence, when his father was dead, he removed him into this land wherein ye now dwell.

5 And he gave him none inheritance in it, no not so much as to set his foot on: yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child.

6 And God spake on this wise, that his seed should sojourn in a strange land, and that they should bring them into bondage, and entreat them evil four hundred years.

7 And the nation to whom they shall be in bondage will I judge, said God: And after that shall they come forth, and serve me in this place.

8 [b]And he gave him the covenant of Circumcision: [c]and so Abraham begat Isaac, and circumcised him the eighth day: [d]and Isaac begat Jacob, [e]and Jacob begat the twelve Patriarchs.

9 [f]And the Patriarchs, moved with envy, sold Joseph into Egypt: but God was with him,

10 And delivered him out of all his afflictions, [g]and gave him favour and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh king of Egypt: and he made him governor over Egypt and all his house.

23 And when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brethren the children of Israel.

24 [o]And seeing one of them suffer wrong, he defended him, and avenged him that was oppressed, and smote the Egyptian:

25 For he supposed his brethren would have understood, how that God by his hand would deliver them, but they understood not.

28 Wilt thou kill me, as thou diddest the Egyptian yesterday?

29 Then fled Moses at this saying, and was a stranger in the land of Madian, where he begat two sons.

30 [q]And when forty years were expired, there appeared to him in the wilderness of mount Sina, an Angel of the Lord in a flame of fire in a bush.

39 To whom our fathers would not obey, but thrust him from them, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt, 40 [x]Saying unto Aaron, Make us gods to go before us. For as for this Moses, which brought us out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

41 And they made a calf in those days, and offered sacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their own hands.

42 Then God turned, and gave them up to worship the host of heaven, as it is written in the book of the Prophets, [y]O ye house of Israel, have ye offered to me slain beasts, and sacrifices, by the space of forty years in the wilderness?

43 Yea, ye took up the Tabernacle of Moloch, and the star of your God Remphan, figures which ye made, to worship them: and I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

44 Our fathers had the Tabernacle of witness in the wilderness, as he had appointed, speaking unto Moses, [z]that he should make it according to the fashion that he had seen.

45 Which also our fathers that came after, brought in with Jesus into the possession of the Gentiles, whom God drave out before the face of our fathers, unto the days of David, 46 Who found favour before God, and desired to find a Tabernacle for the God of Jacob.

And I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

44 Our fathers had the tabernacle of the testimony in the wilderness, even as he appointed who spake unto Moses, that he should make it ac-

AND Saul was consenting unto his death. And at that time there was a great persecution against the Church which was at Jerusalem, and they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judæa, and Samaria, except the Apostles.
2 And devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and made great lamentation over him.
3 As for Saul, he made havoc of the Church, entering into every house, and haling men and women committed them to prison.
4 Therefore they that were scattered abroad, went every where preaching the word.
5 Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them.
6 And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did.
7 For unclean spirits, crying with loud voice, came out of many that were possessed with them: and many taken with palsies, and that were lame, were healed.
8 And there was great joy in that city.
9 But there was a certain man called Simon, which beforetime in the same city used sorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himself was some great one.
10 To whom they all gave heed from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is the great power of God.
11 And to him they had regard, because that of long time he had bewitched them with sorceries.
12 But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the Name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.
13 Then Simon himself believed also: and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the miracles and signs which were done.
14 Now when the Apostles which were at Jerusalem, heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John.
15 Who when they were come down, prayed for them that they might receive the holy Ghost.
16 (For as yet he was fallen upon none of them: only they were baptized in the Name of the Lord Jesus.)
17 Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the holy Ghost.

8 healed. And there was much joy in that city.
9 But there was a certain man, Simon by name, which beforetime in the city used sorcery, and amazed the [2]people of Samaria, giving out that 10 himself was some great one: to whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is that power of God which is 11 called Great. And they gave heed to him, because that of long time he had amazed them
12 with his sorceries. But when they believed Philip preaching good tidings concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, 13 they were baptized, both men and women. And Simon also himself believed: and being baptized, he continued with Philip; and beholding signs and great [3]miracles wrought, he was amazed.
14 Now when the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John:
15 who, when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost:
16 for as yet he was fallen upon none of them: only they had been baptized into the name of 17 the Lord Jesus. Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost.

18 And when Simon saw that through laying on of the Apostles' hands the holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, 19 Saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands, he may receive the holy Ghost.
20 But Peter said unto him, Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money.
21 Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter, for thy heart is not right in the sight of God.
22 Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee.
23 For I perceive that thou art in the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity.
24 Then answered Simon, and said, Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of these things which ye have spoken, come upon me.
25 And they, when they had testified and preached the word of the Lord, returned to Jerusalem, and preached the Gospel in many villages of the Samaritans.
26 And the Angel of the Lord spake unto Philip, saying, Arise, and go toward the South, unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza, which is desert.
27 And he arose, and went: and behold, a man of Ethiopia, an Eunuch of great authority under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, and had come to Jerusalem for to worship, 28 Was returning, and sitting in his chariot, read Esaias the Prophet.
29 Then the Spirit said unto Philip, Go near, and join thyself to this chariot.
30 And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him read the Prophet Esaias, and said, Understandest thou what thou readest?
31 And he said, How can I, except some man should guide me? And he desired Philip, that he would come up, and sit with him.
32 The place of the Scripture, which he read, was this, [a]He was led as a sheep to the slaughter, and like a Lamb dumb before the shearer, so opened he not his mouth:
33 In his humiliation, his Judgment was taken away: and who shall declare his generation? For his life is taken from the earth.
34 And the Eunuch answered Philip, and said, I pray thee, of whom speaketh the Prophet this? of himself, or of some other man?
35 Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same Scripture, and preached unto him Jesus.
36 And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water: and the Eunuch said, See, here is water, what doth hinder me to be baptized?
37 And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered, and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.
38 And he commanded the chariot to stand still:

18 Now when Simon saw that through the laying on of the apostles' hands the [1]Holy Ghost was 19 given, he offered them money, saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay my 20 hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost. But Peter said unto him, Thy silver perish with thee, because thou hast thought to obtain the 21 gift of God with money. Thou hast neither part nor lot in this [2]matter: for thy heart is 22 not right before God. Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray the Lord, if perhaps the thought of thy heart shall be forgiven thee.
23 For I see that thou [3]art in the gall of bitterness
24 and in the bond of iniquity. And Simon answered and said, Pray ye for me to the Lord, that none of the things which ye have spoken come upon me.
25 They therefore, when they had testified and spoken the word of the Lord, returned to Jerusalem, and preached the gospel to many villages of the Samaritans.
26 But an angel of the Lord spake unto Philip, saying, Arise, and go [4]toward the south unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto

28 had come to Jerusalem for to worship; and he was returning and sitting in his chariot, and 29 was reading the prophet Isaiah. And the Spirit said unto Philip, Go near, and join thy-30 self to this chariot. And Philip ran to him, and heard him reading Isaiah the prophet, and said, Understandest thou what thou readest?
31 And he said, How can I, except some one shall guide me? And he besought Philip to come 32 up and sit with him. Now the place of the scripture which he was reading was this,

He was led as a sheep to the slaughter;
And as a lamb before his shearer is dumb,
So he openeth not his mouth:
33 In his humiliation his judgement was taken away:
His generation who shall declare?
For his life is taken from the earth.

34 And the eunuch answered Philip, and said, I pray thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this?
35 of himself, or of some other? And Philip opened his mouth, and beginning from this 36 scripture, preached unto him Jesus. And as they went on the way, they came unto a certain water; and the eunuch saith, Behold, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?[5] and they went down both into the water, both Philip, and the Eunuch, and he baptized him.

39 And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the Eunuch saw him no more: and he went on his way rejoicing.

40 But Philip was found at Azotus: and passing through he preached in all the cities, till he came to Cæsarea.

CHAP. IX.

AND Saul, yet breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, went unto the high Priest,

2 And desired of him letters to Damascus, to the Synagogues, that if he found any of this way, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound unto Jerusalem.

3 And as he journeyed he came near Damascus, and suddenly there shined round about him a light from heaven.

4 And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

5 And he said, Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest: It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks.

6 And he trembling and astonished, said, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do.

7 And the men which journeyed with him, stood speechless, hearing a voice, but seeing no man.

8 And Saul arose from the earth, and when his eyes were opened, he saw no man: but they led him by the hand, and brought him into Damascus.

9 And he was three days without sight, and neither did eat, nor drink.

10 ¶ And there was a certain disciple at Damascus, named Ananias, and to him said the Lord in a vision, Ananias. And he said, Behold, I am here, Lord.

11 And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the street, which is called Straight, and inquire in the house of Judas, for one called Saul of Tarsus: for behold, he prayeth, 12 And hath seen in a vision a man named Ananias, coming in, and putting his hand on him, that he might receive his sight.

13 Then Ananias answered, Lord, I have heard by many of this man, how much evil he hath done to thy Saints at Jerusalem:

14 And here he hath authority from the chief Priests, to bind all that call on thy Name.

15 But the Lord said unto him, Go thy way: for he is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my Name before the Gentiles, and Kings, and the children of Israel.

16 For I will shew him how great things he must suffer for my Name's sake.

17 And Ananias went his way, and entered into the house, and putting his hands on him, said, Brother Saul, the Lord (even Jesus that appeared unto thee in

9 But Saul, yet breathing threatening and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord,

2 went unto the high priest, and asked of him letters to Damascus unto the synagogues, that if he found any that were of the Way, whether men or women, he might bring them bound to

3 Jerusalem. And as he journeyed, it came to pass that he drew nigh unto Damascus: and suddenly there shone round about him a light

4 out of heaven: and he fell upon the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why

5 persecutest thou me? And he said, Who art thou, Lord? And he said, I am Jesus whom

6 thou persecutest: but rise, and enter into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must

8 holding no man. And Saul arose from the earth; and when his eyes were opened, he saw nothing; and they led him by the hand, and

18 And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been scales, and he received sight forthwith, and arose, and was baptized.

19 And when he had received meat, he was strengthened. Then was Saul certain days with the disciples which were at Damascus.

20 And straightway he preached Christ in the Synagogues, that he is the Son of God.

21 But all that heard him, were amazed, and said, Is not this he that destroyed them which called on this Name in Jerusalem, and came hither for that intent that he might bring them bound unto the chief Priests?

22 But Saul increased the more in strength, and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damascus, proving that this is very Christ.

23 ¶ And after that many days were fulfilled, the Jews took counsel to kill him.

24 [a]But their laying await was known of Saul: and they watched the gates day and night to kill him.

25 Then the disciples took him by night, and let him down by the wall in a basket.

26 And when Saul was come to Jerusalem, he assayed to join himself to the disciples, but they were all afraid of him, and believed not that he was a disciple.

27 But Barnabas took him, and brought him to the Apostles, and declared unto them how he had seen the Lord in the way, and that he had spoken to him, and how he had preached boldly at Damascus in the Name of Jesus.

28 And he was with them coming in and going out at Jerusalem.

29 And he spake boldly in the Name of the Lord Jesus, and disputed against the Grecians: but they went about to slay him.

30 Which when the brethren knew, they brought him down to Cæsarea, and sent him forth to Tarsus.

31 Then had the Churches rest throughout all Judæa, and Galilee, and Samaria, and were edified, and walking in the fear of the Lord, and in the comfort of the holy Ghost, were multiplied.

32 ¶ And it came to pass, as Peter passed throughout all quarters, he came down also to the Saints which dwelt at Lydda.

33 And there he found a certain man named Æneas, which had kept his bed eight years, and was sick of the palsy.

34 And Peter said unto him, Æneas, Jesus Christ maketh thee whole: arise, and make thy bed. And he arose immediately.

35 And all that dwelt at Lydda, and Saron, saw him, and turned to the Lord.

And he was certain days with the disciples 20 which were at Damascus. And straightway in the synagogues he proclaimed Jesus, that he is 22 priests. But Saul increased the more in strength, and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damascus, proving that this is the Christ.

23 And when many days were fulfilled, the Jews
24 took counsel together to kill him: but their plot became known to Saul. And they watched the gates also day and night that they might kill 25 him: but his disciples took him by night, and let him down through the wall, lowering him in a basket.

26 And when he was come to Jerusalem, he assayed to join himself to the disciples: and they were all afraid of him, not believing that 27 he was a disciple. But Barnabas took him, and brought him to the apostles, and declared unto them how he had seen the Lord in the way, and that he had spoken to him, and how at Damascus he had preached boldly in the name of

29 going out at Jerusalem, preaching boldly in the name of the Lord: and he spake and disputed against the [1]Grecian Jews; but they went about 30 to kill him. And when the brethren knew it, they brought him down to Cæsarea, and sent him forth to Tarsus.

31 So the church throughout all Judæa and Galilee and Samaria had peace, being [2]edified; and, walking [3]in the fear of the Lord and [3]in the comfort of the Holy Ghost, was multiplied.

32 And it came to pass, as Peter went throughout all parts, he came down also to the saints

36 Now there was at Joppa a certain disciple named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called [4]Dorcas: this woman was full of good 37 works and almsdeeds which she did. And it came to pass in those days, that she fell sick, and died: whom when they had washed, they laid her in an upper chamber.

38 And forasmuch as Lydda was nigh to Joppa, and the disciples had heard that Peter was there, they sent unto him two men, desiring him that he would not ‖delay to come to them.

39 Then Peter arose and went with them: when he was come, they brought him into the upper chamber: And all the widows stood by him weeping, and shewing the coats and garments which Dorcas made, while she was with them.

40 But Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down, and prayed, and turning him to the body, said, Tabitha, arise. And she opened her eyes, and when she saw Peter, she sat up.

41 And he gave her his hand, and lift her up: and when he had called the Saints and widows, presented her alive.

42 And it was known throughout all Joppa, and many believed in the Lord.

43 And it came to pass, that he tarried many days in Joppa, with one Simon a Tanner.

CHAP. X.

THERE was a certain man in Cæsarea, called Cornelius, a Centurion of the band called the Italian band,

2 A devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God alway.

3 He saw in a vision evidently, about the ninth hour of the day, an Angel of God coming in to him, and saying unto him, Cornelius.

4 And when he looked on him, he was afraid, and said, What is it, Lord? And he said unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God.

5 And now send men to Joppa, and call for one Simon, whose surname is Peter.

6 He lodgeth with one Simon a Tanner, whose house is by the Sea side; he shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do.

7 And when the Angel which spake unto Cornelius was departed, he called two of his household servants, and a devout soldier of them that waited on him continually.

8 And when he had declared all these things unto them, he sent them to Joppa.

9 ¶ On the morrow as they went on their journey, and drew nigh unto the city, Peter went up upon the house to pray, about the sixth hour.

10 And he became very hungry, and would have eaten: But while they made ready, he fell into a trance,

11 And saw heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending unto him, as it had been a great sheet, knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth:

12 Wherein were all manner of four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.

sick, and died: and when they had washed her,
38 they laid her in an upper chamber. And as Lydda was nigh unto Joppa, the disciples, hearing that Peter was there, sent two men unto him, intreat-
39 ing him, Delay not to come on unto us. And Peter arose and went with them. And when he was come, they brought him into the upper chamber: and all the widows stood by him weeping, and shewing the coats and garments which 40 Dorcas made, while she was with them. But Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down, and prayed; and turning to the body, he said, Tabitha, arise. And she opened her eyes; and

42 And it became known throughout all Joppa:
43 and many believed on the Lord. And it came to pass, that he abode many days in Joppa with one Simon a tanner.

10 Now there was a certain man in Cæsarea, Cornelius by name, a centurion of the band called
2 the Italian [1]band, a devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, who gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God alway.
3 He saw in a vision openly, as it were about the ninth hour of the day, an angel of God coming
4 in unto him, and saying to him, Cornelius. And he, fastening his eyes upon him, and being affrighted, said, What is it, Lord? And he said unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are gone
5 up for a memorial before God. And now send men to Joppa, and fetch one Simon, who is sur-
6 named Peter: he lodgeth with one Simon a
7 tanner, whose house is by the sea side. And when the angel that spake unto him was departed, he called two of his household-servants, and a devout soldier of them that waited on him
8 continually; and having rehearsed all things unto them, he sent them to Joppa.

9 Now on the morrow, as they were on their journey, and drew nigh unto the city, Peter went up upon the housetop to pray, about the sixth
10 hour: and he became hungry, and desired to eat: but while they made ready, he fell into a 11 trance; and he beholdeth the heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending, as it were a great sheet, let down by four corners upon 12 the earth: wherein were all manner of four-footed beasts and creeping things of the 13 earth and fowls of the heaven. And there came a voice to him, Rise, Peter; kill and eat.

14 But Peter said, Not so, Lord; for I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean.
15 And the voice spake unto him again the second time, What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common.
16 This was done thrice: and the vessel was received up again into heaven.
17 Now while Peter doubted in himself what this vision which he had seen, should mean: behold, the men which were sent from Cornelius, had made inquiry for Simon's house, and stood before the gate,
18 And called, and asked whether Simon, which was surnamed Peter, were lodged there.
19 ¶ While Peter thought on the vision, the spirit said unto him, Behold, three men seek thee.
20 Arise therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, doubting nothing: for I have sent them.
21 Then Peter went down to the men, which were sent unto him from Cornelius, and said, Behold, I am he whom ye seek: what is the cause wherefore ye are come?
22 And they said, Cornelius the Centurion, a just man, and one that feareth God, and of good report among all the nation of the Jews, was warned from God by an holy Angel, to send for thee into his house, and to hear words of thee.
23 Then called he them in, and lodged them: And on the morrow Peter went away with them, and certain brethren from Joppa accompanied him.
24 And the morrow after they entered into Cæsarea: and Cornelius waited for them, and had called together his kinsmen and near friends.
25 And as Peter was coming in, Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and worshipped him.
26 But Peter took him up, saying, Stand up, I myself also am a man.
27 And as he talked with him, he went in, and found many that were come together.
28 And he said unto them, Ye know how that it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew, to keep company or come unto one of another nation: but God hath shewed me, that I should not call any man common or unclean.
29 Therefore came I unto you without gainsaying, as soon as I was sent for. I ask therefore, for what intent ye have sent for me.
30 And Cornelius said, Four days ago I was fasting until this hour, and at the ninth hour I prayed in my house, and behold, a man stood before me in bright clothing,
31 And said, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the sight of God.
32 Send therefore to Joppa, and call hither Simon, whose surname is Peter; he is lodged in the house of one Simon a Tanner, by the Sea side, who when he cometh, shall speak unto thee.

17 Now while Peter was much perplexed in himself what the vision which he had seen might mean, behold, the men that were sent by Cornelius, having made inquiry for Simon's
18 house, stood before the gate, and called and asked whether Simon, which was surnamed
19 Peter, were lodging there. And while Peter thought on the vision, the Spirit said unto him, 20 Behold, three men seek thee. But arise, and get thee down, and go with them, nothing

23 words from thee. So he called them in and lodged them.

And on the morrow he arose and went forth with them, and certain of the brethren from 25 his kinsmen and his near friends. And when it came to pass that Peter entered, Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and wor-

26 shipped him. But Peter raised him up, say-
27 ing, Stand up; I myself also am a man. And as he talked with him, he went in, and findeth
28 many come together: and he said unto them, Ye yourselves know [2]how that it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew to join himself or come unto one of another nation; and yet unto me hath God shewed that I should 29 not call any man common or unclean: wherefore also I came without gainsaying, when I was sent for. I ask therefore with what in-30 tent ye sent for me. And Cornelius said, Four days ago, until this hour, I was keeping the ninth hour of prayer in my house; and behold, 31 a man stood before me in bright apparel, and saith, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the sight of 32 God. Send therefore to Joppa, and call unto thee Simon, who is surnamed Peter; he lodgeth in the house of Simon a tanner, by the sea
33 side. Forthwith therefore I sent to thee; and thou hast well done that thou art come. Now therefore we are all here present in the sight of God, to hear all things that have been com-34 manded thee of the Lord. And Peter opened his mouth, and said, ᵃOf a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons:

35 But in every nation, he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.
36 The word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ (he is Lord of all.)
37 That word (I say) you know which was published throughout all Judæa, and began from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached:
38 How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the holy Ghost, and with power, who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil: for God was with him.
39 And we are witnesses of all things which he did both in the land of the Jews, and in Jerusalem, whom they slew and hanged on a tree:
40 Him God raised up the third day, and shewed him openly,
41 Not to all the people, but unto witnesses, chosen before of God, even to us who did eat and drink with him after he rose from the dead.
42 And he commanded us to preach unto the people, and to testify that it is he which was ordained of God to be the Judge of quick and dead.
43 ᵇTo him give all the Prophets witness, that through his Name whosoever believeth in him, shall receive remission of sins.
44 ¶ While Peter yet spake these words, the holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the word.
45 And they of the circumcision which believed, were astonished, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the holy Ghost.
46 For they heard them speak with tongues, and magnify God. Then answered Peter, 47 Can any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized, which have received the holy Ghost, as well as we?
48 And he commanded them to be baptized in the Name of the Lord. Then prayed they him to tarry certain days.

CHAP. XI.

AND the Apostles, and brethren that were in Judæa, heard that the Gentiles had also received the word of God.
2 And when Peter was come up to Jerusalem, they that were of the circumcision contended with him,
3 Saying, Thou wentest in to men uncircumcised, and didst eat with them.
4 But Peter rehearsed the matter from the beginning, and expounded it by order unto them, saying,
5 I was in the city of Joppa praying, and in a trance I saw a vision, a certain vessel descend, as it had been a great sheet, let down from heaven by four corners, and it came even to me.
6 Upon the which when I had fastened mine eyes, I considered, and saw four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.

Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter 35 of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is acceptable to 36 him. [1]The word which he sent unto the children of Israel, preaching [2]good tidings of peace
37 by Jesus Christ (he is Lord of all)—that saying ye yourselves know, which was published throughout all Judæa, beginning from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached; even 38 Jesus of Nazareth, how that God anointed him with the Holy Ghost and with power: who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil; for God was with him.
39 And we are witnesses of all things which he did both in the country of the Jews, and in Jerusalem; whom also they slew, hanging him
40 on a tree. Him God raised up the third day,
41 and gave him to be made manifest, not to all the people, but unto witnesses that were chosen before of God, even to us, who did eat and drink with him after he rose from the dead.
42 And he charged us to preach unto the people, and to testify that this is he which is ordained 43 of God to be the Judge of quick and dead. To him bear all the prophets witness, that through his name every one that believeth on him shall receive remission of sins.
44 While Peter yet spake these words, the Holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the word.
45 And they of the circumcision which believed were amazed, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out
46 the gift of the Holy Ghost. For they heard them speak with tongues, and magnify God.
47 Then answered Peter, Can any man forbid the water, that these should not be baptized, which have received the Holy Ghost as well as we?
48 And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. Then prayed they him to tarry certain days.

11 Now the apostles and the brethren that were in Judæa heard that the Gentiles also had re-
2 ceived the word of God. And when Peter was come up to Jerusalem, they that were of the 3 circumcision contended with him, saying, Thou wentest in to men uncircumcised, and didst eat
4 with them. But Peter began, and expounded
5 the matter unto them in order, saying, I was in the city of Joppa praying: and in a trance I saw a vision, a certain vessel descending, as it were a great sheet let down from heaven by four cor-
6 ners; and it came even unto me: upon the which when I had fastened mine eyes, I considered, and saw the fourfooted beasts of the earth and wild beasts and creeping things and fowls of the heaven.

7 And I heard a voice, saying unto me, Arise Peter, slay, and eat.
8 But I said, Not so, Lord: for nothing common or unclean hath at any time entered into my mouth.
9 But the voice answered me again from heaven, What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common.
10 And this was done three times: and all were drawn up again into heaven.
11 And behold, immediately there were three men already come unto the house where I was, sent from Cæsarea unto me.
12 And the spirit bade me go with them, nothing doubting: Moreover, these six brethren accompanied me, and we entered into the man's house:
13 And he shewed us how he had seen an Angel in his house, which stood and said unto him, Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter:
14 Who shall tell thee words, whereby thou, and all thy house shall be saved.
15 And as I began to speak, the holy Ghost fell on them, [a]as on us at the beginning.
16 Then remembered I the word of the Lord, how that he said, [b]John indeed baptized with water: but ye shall be baptized with the holy Ghost.
17 Forasmuch then as God gave them the like gift as he did unto us, who believed on the Lord Jesus Christ: what was I that I could withstand God?
18 When they heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life.
19 ¶ [c]Now they which were scattered abroad upon the persecution that arose about Stephen, travelled as far as Phenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to none, but unto the Jews only.
20 And some of them were men of Cyprus, and Cyrene, which when they were come to Antioch, spake unto the Grecians, preaching the Lord Jesus.
21 And the hand of the Lord was with them: and a great number believed, and turned unto the Lord.
22 ¶ Then tidings of these things came unto the ears of the Church, which was in Jerusalem: and they sent forth Barnabas, that he should go as far as Antioch.
23 Who when he came, and had seen the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted them all, that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord.
24 For he was a good man, and full of the holy Ghost, and of faith: and much people was added unto the Lord.
25 Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus, for to seek Saul.
26 And when he had found him, he brought him unto Antioch. And it came to pass, that a whole year they assembled themselves ‖with the Church, and taught much people, and the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch.

7 And I heard also a voice saying unto me, Rise,

10 And this was done thrice: and all were drawn

12 And the Spirit bade me go with them, making no distinction. And these six brethren also accompanied me; and we entered into the man's 13 house: and he told us how he had seen the angel standing in his house, and saying, Send to Joppa, and fetch Simon, whose surname is 14 Peter; who shall speak unto thee words, whereby

34 And as concerning that he raised him up from the dead, now no more to return to corruption, he hath spoken on this wise, I will give you the 35 holy and sure blessings of David. Because he saith also in another psalm, Thou wilt not give 36 thy Holy One to see corruption. For David, after he had [1]in his own generation served the counsel of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto 37 his fathers, and saw corruption: but he whom 38 God raised up saw no corruption. Be it known unto you therefore, brethren, that through this man is proclaimed unto you remission of sins:
39 and by him every one that believeth is justified from all things, from which ye could not be 40 justified by the law of Moses. Beware therefore, lest that come upon you, which is spoken in the prophets;

41 Behold, ye despisers, and wonder, and
[2]perish;
For I work a work in your days,
A work which ye shall in no wise believe,
if one declare it unto you.

42 And as they went out, they besought that these words might be spoken to them the next
43 sabbath. Now when the synagogue broke up, many of the Jews and of the devout proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas: who, speaking to them, urged them to continue in the grace of God.
44 And the next sabbath almost the whole city was gathered together to hear the word of 45 [3]God. But when the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with jealousy, and contradicted the things which were spoken by Paul, and 46 [4]blasphemed. And Paul and Barnabas spake out boldly, and said, It was necessary that the word of God should first be spoken to you. Seeing ye thrust it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, lo, we turn to 47 the Gentiles. For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying,

1611

'I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be for salvation unto the ends of the earth.

48 And when the Gentiles heard this, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord: and as many as were ordained to eternal life, believed.

49 And the word of the Lord was published throughout all the region.

50 But the Jews stirred up the devout and honourable women, and the chief men of the city, and raised persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coasts.

51 [v]But they shook off the dust of their feet against them, and came unto Iconium.

52 And the disciples were filled with joy, and with the holy Ghost.

CHAP. XIV.

AND it came to pass in Iconium, that they went both together into the synagogue of the Jews, and so spake, that a great multitude both of the Jews, and also of the Greeks, believed.

2 But the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles, and made their minds evil affected against the brethren.

3 Long time therefore abode they speaking boldly in the Lord, which gave testimony unto the word of his grace, and granted signs and wonders to be done by their hands.

4 But the multitude of the city was divided: and part held with the Jews, and part with the Apostles.

5 And when there was an assault made both of the Gentiles, and also of the Jews, with their rulers, to use them despitefully, and to stone them,

6 They were ware of it, and fled unto Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the region that lieth round about.

7 And there they preached the Gospel.

8 ¶And there sat a certain man at Lystra, impotent in his feet, being a cripple from his mother's womb, who never had walked.

9 The same heard Paul speak: who stedfastly beholding him, and perceiving that he had faith to be healed,

10 Said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet; And he leaped and walked.

11 And when the people saw what Paul had done, they lift up their voices, saying in the speech of Lycaonia, The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men.

12 And they called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul Mercurius, because he was the chief speaker.

13 Then the priest of Jupiter, which was before their city, brought oxen, and garlands unto the gates, and would have done sacrifice with the people.

14 Which when the Apostles, Barnabas and Paul, heard of, they rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying out,

15 And saying, Sirs, Why do ye these things? We also are men of like passions with you, and preach unto you, that ye should turn from these vanities, unto the living God, [a]which made heaven

I have set thee for a light of the Gentiles,
That thou shouldest be for salvation unto the uttermost part of the earth.

48 And as the Gentiles heard this, they were glad, and glorified the word of [1]God: and as many 49 as were ordained to eternal life believed. And the word of the Lord was spread abroad through-
50 out all the region. But the Jews urged on the devout women of honourable estate, and the chief men of the city, and stirred up a persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and cast them out 51 of their borders. But they shook off the dust of their feet against them, and came unto Ico-
52 nium. And the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Ghost.

14 And it came to pass in Iconium, that they entered together into the synagogue of the Jews, and so spake, that a great multitude both
2 of Jews and of Greeks believed. But the Jews that were disobedient stirred up the souls of the Gentiles, and made them evil affected against
3 the brethren. Long time therefore they tarried there speaking boldly in the Lord, which bare witness unto the word of his grace, granting signs and wonders to be done by their 4 hands. But the multitude of the city was divided; and part held with the Jews, and part
5 with the apostles. And when there was made an onset both of the Gentiles and of the Jews with their rulers, to entreat them shamefully,
6 and to stone them, they became aware of it, and fled unto the cities of Lycaonia, Lystra
7 and Derbe, and the region round about: and there they preached the gospel.

8 And at Lystra there sat a certain man, impotent in his feet, a cripple from his mother's 9 womb, who never had walked. The same heard Paul speaking: who, fastening his eyes upon him, and seeing that he had faith to be 10 [2]made whole, said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet. And he leaped up and 11 walked. And when the multitudes saw what Paul had done, they lifted up their voice, saying in the speech of Lycaonia, The gods are 12 come down to us in the likeness of men. And they called Barnabas, [3]Jupiter; and Paul, [4]Mer-
13 cury, because he was the chief speaker. And the priest of [3]Jupiter whose temple was before the city, brought oxen and garlands unto the gates, and would have done sacrifice with the 14 multitudes. But when the apostles, Barnabas and Paul, heard of it, they rent their garments, and sprang forth among the multi-15 tude, crying out and saying, Sirs, why do ye these things? We also are men of like [5]passions with you, and bring you good tidings, that ye should turn from these vain things unto the living God, who made the heaven and earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein.

16 [b] Who in times past suffered all nations to walk in their own ways.

17 Nevertheless, he left not himself without witness, in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness.

18 And with these sayings scarce restrained they the people, that they had not done sacrifice unto them.

19 ¶ And there came thither certain Jews from Antioch and Iconium, who persuaded the people, [c] and having stoned Paul, drew him out of the city, supposing he had been dead.

20 Howbeit, as the disciples stood round about him, he rose up, and came into the city, and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe.

21 And when they had preached the Gospel to that city, and had taught many, they returned again to Lystra, and to Iconium, and Antioch, 22 Confirming the souls of the disciples, and exhorting them to continue in the faith, and that we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God.

23 And when they had ordained them Elders in every Church, and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed.

24 And after they had passed throughout Pisidia, they came to Pamphylia.

25 And when they had preached the word in Perga, they went down into Attalia, 26 And thence sailed to Antioch, from whence they had been recommended to the grace of God, for the work which they fulfilled.

27 And when they were come, and had gathered the Church together, they rehearsed all that God had done with them, and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles.

28 And there they abode long time with the disciples.

19 But there came Jews thither from Antioch and Iconium: and having persuaded the multitudes, they stoned Paul, and dragged him out
20 of the city, supposing that he was dead. But as the disciples stood round about him, he rose up, and entered into the city: and on the morrow he went forth with Barnabas to Derbe.
21 And when they had preached the gospel to that city, and had made many disciples, they returned to Lystra, and to Iconium, and to Antioch,
22 confirming the souls of the disciples, exhorting them to continue in the faith, and that through many tribulations we must enter into the king-
23 dom of God. And when they had appointed for them elders in every church, and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the 24 Lord, on whom they had believed. And they passed through Pisidia, and came to Pamphylia.
25 And when they had spoken the word in Perga,

27 which they had fulfilled. And when they were come, and had gathered the church together, they rehearsed all things that God had done with them, and how that he had opened a door
28 of faith unto the Gentiles. And they tarried no little time with the disciples.

15 And certain men came down from Judæa and taught the brethren, saying, Except ye be circumcised after the custom of Moses, ye can-
2 not be saved. And when Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and questioning with them, the brethren appointed that Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto the apostles and elders
3 about this question. They therefore, being brought on their way by the church, passed through both Phœnicia and Samaria, declaring the conversion of the Gentiles: and they caused
4 great joy unto all the brethren. And when they were come to Jerusalem, they were received of the church and the apostles and the elders, and they rehearsed all things that God had done with 5 them. But there rose up certain of the sect of the Pharisees which believed, saying, that it was needful to circumcise them, and to command them to keep the Law of Moses.

1611

6 ¶ And the Apostles and Elders came together for to consider of this matter.

7 And when there had been much disputing, Peter rose up, and said unto them, [b]Men and brethren, ye know how that a good while ago, God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the Gospel, and believe.

8 And God which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, giving them the holy Ghost, even as he did unto us, 9 [c]And put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith.

10 Now therefore why tempt ye God, [d]to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?

11 But we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved even as they.

12 ¶ Then all the multitude kept silence, and gave audience to Barnabas and Paul, declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them.

13 ¶ And after they had held their peace, James answered, saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me.

14 Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his Name.

15 And to this agree the words of the Prophets, as it is written,

16 [e]After this I will return, and will build again the Tabernacle of David, which is fallen down: and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up:

17 That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my Name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things.

18 Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world.

19 Wherefore my sentence is, that we trouble not them which from among the Gentiles are turned to God:

20 But that we write unto them, that they abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood.

21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the Synagogues every Sabbath day.

22 Then pleased it the Apostles and Elders with the whole Church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch, with Paul and Barnabas: namely, Judas surnamed Barsabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren, 23 And wrote letters by them after this manner, The Apostles and Elders, and brethren, send greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles, in Antioch, and Syria, and Cilicia.

24 Forasmuch as we have heard, that certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, Pharisees who believed, saying, It is needful to circumcise them, and to charge them to keep the law of Moses.

6 And the apostles and the elders were gath-
7 ered together to consider of this matter. And when there had been much questioning, Peter rose up, and said unto them,

Brethren, ye know how that [1]a good while ago God made choice among you, that by my mouth the Gentiles should hear the word of 8 the gospel, and believe. And God, which knoweth the heart, bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as he did unto us;
9 and he made no distinction between us and 10 them, cleansing their hearts by faith. Now therefore why tempt ye God, that ye should put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able 11 to bear? But we believe that we shall be saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus, in like manner as they.

12 And all the multitude kept silence; and they hearkened unto Barnabas and Paul rehearsing what signs and wonders God had wrought
13 among the Gentiles by them. And after they had held their peace, James answered, saying, 14 Brethren, hearken unto me: Symeon hath rehearsed how first God did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name.

15 And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written,

16 After these things I will return,
And I will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen;
And I will build again the ruins thereof,
And I will set it up:
17 That the residue of men may seek after the Lord,
And all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called,
18 Saith the Lord, [2]who maketh these things known from the beginning of the world.

19 Wherefore my judgement is, that we trouble not them which from among the Gentiles turn to 20 God; but that we [3]write unto them, that they abstain from the pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from what is strangled, and 21 from blood. For Moses from generations of old hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the synagogues every sabbath.

22 Then it seemed good to the apostles and the elders, with the whole church, to choose men out of their company, and send them to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas; namely, Judas called Barsabbas, and Silas, chief men among the 23 brethren: and they wrote thus by them, The apostles and the elder brethren unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in An-
24 tioch and Syria and Cilicia, greeting: Forasmuch as we have heard that certain [4]which went out from us have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, saying, Ye must be circumcised, and keep the Law, to whom we gave no such commandment:

25 It seemed good unto us, being assembled with one accord, to send chosen men unto you, with our beloved Barnabas and Paul,

26 Men that have hazarded their lives for the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

27 We have sent therefore Judas and Silas, who shall also tell you the same things by mouth.

28 For it seemed good to the holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things;

29 That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well.

30 So when they were dismissed, they came to Antioch: and when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the Epistle.

31 Which when they had read, they rejoiced for the || consolation.

32 And Judas and Silas, being Prophets also themselves, exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them:

33 And after they had tarried there a space, they were let go in peace from the brethren unto the Apostles.

34 Notwithstanding it pleased Silas to abide there still.

35 Paul also and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also.

36 ¶ And some days after, Paul said unto Barnabas, Let us go again and visit our brethren, in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they do.

37 And Barnabas determined to take with them John, whose surname was Mark.

38 But Paul thought not good to take him with them, who departed from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work.

39 And the contention was so sharp between them, that they departed asunder one from the other: and so Barnabas took Mark, and sailed unto Cyprus.

40 And Paul chose Silas, and departed, being recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God.

41 And he went through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the Churches.

CHAP. XVI.

THEN came he to Derbe, and Lystra: and behold, a certain disciple was there, [a] named Timotheus, the son of a certain woman which was a Jewess, and believed: but his father was a Greek:

2 Which was well reported of by the brethren that were at Lystra and Iconium.

3 Him would Paul have to go forth with him, and took, and circumcised him, because of the Jews which were in those quarters: for they knew all, that his father was a Greek.

We have sent therefore Judas and Silas, who themselves also shall tell you the same things by word of mouth. So they, when they were dismissed, came down to Antioch; and having gathered the multitude together, they delivered the epistle. And when they had read it, they rejoiced for the [1] consolation. And Judas and Silas, being themselves also prophets, [2] exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them. And after they had spent some time there, they were dismissed in peace from the brethren unto those that had sent them forth.[3] But Paul and Barnabas tarried in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also.

And after some days Paul said unto Barnabas, Let us return now and visit the brethren in every city wherein we proclaimed the word of the Lord, and see how they fare. And Barnabas was minded to take with them John also, who was called Mark. But Paul thought not good to take with them him who withdrew from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work. And there arose a sharp contention, so that they parted asunder one from the other, and Barnabas took Mark with him, and sailed away unto Cyprus; but Paul chose Silas, and went forth, being commended by the brethren to the grace of the Lord. And he went through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the churches.

16 And he came also to Derbe and to Lystra: and behold, a certain disciple was there, named Timothy, the son of a Jewess which believed; but his father was a Greek. The same was well reported of by the brethren that were at Lystra and Iconium. 4 And as they went through the cities, they delivered them the decrees for to keep, [b]that were ordained of the Apostles and Elders which were at Jerusalem.
5 And so were the Churches established in the faith, and increased in number daily.
6 Now when they had gone throughout Phrygia, and the region of Galatia, and were forbidden of the holy Ghost to preach the word in Asia,
7 After they were come to Mysia, they assayed to go into Bithynia: but the Spirit suffered them not.
8 And they passing by Mysia, came down to Troas.
9 And a vision appeared to Paul in the night: There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us.
10 And after he had seen the vision, immediately we endeavoured to go into Macedonia, assuredly gathering, that the Lord had called us for to preach the Gospel unto them.
11 Therefore loosing from Troas, we came with a straight course to Samothracia, and the next day to Neapolis:
12 And from thence to Philippi, which is ‖the chief city of that part of Macedonia, and a Colony: and we were in that city abiding certain days.
13 And on the Sabbath we went out of the city by a river side, where prayer was wont to be made, and we sat down, and spake unto the women which resorted thither.
14 ¶And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, which worshipped God, heard us: whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul.
15 And when she was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house, and abide there. And she constrained us.
16 ¶And it came to pass, as we went to prayer, a certain Damsel possessed with a spirit ‖of divination, met us, which brought her masters much gain by soothsaying.
17 The same followed Paul and us, and cried, saying, These men are the servants of the most high God, which shew unto us the way of salvation.
18 And this did she many days: but Paul being grieved, turned and said to the spirit, I command thee in the Name of Jesus Christ, to come out of her. And he came out the same hour.
19 ¶And when her masters saw that the hope of their gains was gone, they caught Paul and Silas, and drew them into the ‖marketplace, unto the rulers,
20 And brought them to the Magistrates, saying, These men, being Jews, do exceedingly trouble our city,

4 And as they went on their way through the cities, they delivered them the decrees for to keep, which had been ordained of the apostles
5 and elders that were at Jerusalem. So the churches were strengthened in the faith, and increased in number daily.
6 And they went through the region of Phrygia and Galatia, having been forbidden of the Holy 7 Ghost to speak the word in Asia; and when they were come over against Mysia, they assayed to go into Bithynia; and the Spirit of Jesus suf-
8 fered them not; and passing by Mysia, they came 9 down to Troas. And a vision appeared to Paul in the night; There was a man of Macedonia standing, beseeching him, and saying, Come 10 over into Macedonia, and help us. And when he had seen the vision, straightway we sought to go forth into Macedonia, concluding that God had called us for to preach the gospel unto them.
11 Setting sail therefore from Troas, we made a straight course to Samothrace, and the day fol-
12 lowing to Neapolis; and from thence to Philippi, which is a city of Macedonia, the first of the district, a Roman colony: and we were in this 13 city tarrying certain days. And on the sabbath day we went forth without the gate by a river side, where we supposed there was a place of prayer; and we sat down, and spake unto the 14 women which were come together. And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, one that worshipped God, heard us: whose heart the Lord opened, to give heed unto the things which were spoken by 15 Paul. And when she was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house, and abide there. And she constrained us.
16 And it came to pass, as we were going to the place of prayer, that a certain maid having [1]a spirit of divination met us, which brought her
17 masters much gain by soothsaying. The same following after Paul and us cried out, saying, These men are [2]servants of the Most High God, which proclaim unto you [3]the way of salvation.
18 And this she did for many days. But Paul, being sore troubled, turned and said to the spirit, I charge thee in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her. And it came out that very hour.
19 But when her masters saw that the hope of their gain was [4]gone, they laid hold on Paul and Silas, and dragged them into the market-
20 place before the rulers, and when they had brought them unto the [5]magistrates, they said, These men, being Jews, do exceedingly trouble
21 our city, and set forth customs which it is not lawful for us to receive, or to observe, being Romans.
22 And the multitude rose up together against them: and the [5]magistrates rent their garments off them, and commanded to beat them with rods.

23 And when they had laid many stripes upon them, they cast them into prison, charging the Jailor to keep them safely.

24 Who, having received such a charge, thrust them into the inner prison, and made their feet fast in the stocks.

25 ¶ And at midnight, Paul and Silas prayed, and sang praises unto God: and the prisoners heard them.

26 And suddenly there was a great earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken: and immediately all the doors were opened, and every one's bands were loosed.

27 And the keeper of the prison awaking out of his sleep, and seeing the prison doors open, he drew out his sword, and would have killed himself, supposing that the prisoners had been fled.

28 But Paul cried with a loud voice, saying, Do thyself no harm, for we are all here.

29 Then he called for a light, and sprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas, 30 And brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved?

31 And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house.

32 And they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house.

33 And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes, and was baptized, he and all his, straightway.

34 And when he had brought them into his house, he set meat before them, and rejoiced, believing in God with all his house.

35 And when it was day, the Magistrates sent the Serjeants, saying, Let those men go.

36 And the keeper of the prison told this saying to Paul, The Magistrates have sent to let you go: Now therefore depart, and go in peace.

37 But Paul said unto them, They have beaten us openly uncondemned, being Romans, and have cast us into prison, and now do they thrust us out privily? Nay verily, but let them come themselves, and fetch us out.

38 And the Serjeants told these words unto the Magistrates: and they feared when they heard that they were Romans.

39 And they came and besought them, and brought them out, and desired them to depart out of the city.

40 And they went out of the prison, [d]and entered into the house of Lydia, and when they had seen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.

CHAP. XVII.

NOW when they had passed through Amphipolis, and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where was a synagogue of the Jews.

2 And Paul, as his manner was, went in unto them, and three Sabbath days reasoned with them out of the Scriptures,

23 And when they had laid many stripes upon them, they cast them into prison, charging 24 the jailor to keep them safely: who, having received such a charge, cast them into the inner prison, and made their feet fast in the 25 stocks. But about midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns unto God, and the prisoners were listening to them;
26 and suddenly there was a great earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison-house were shaken: and immediately all the doors were opened; and every one's bands were loosed.
27 And the jailor being roused out of sleep, and seeing the prison doors open, drew his sword, and was about to kill himself, supposing that 28 the prisoners had escaped. But Paul cried with a loud voice, saying, Do thyself no harm:
29 for we are all here. And he called for lights, and sprang in, and, trembling for fear, fell 30 down before Paul and Silas, and brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved?
31 And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus, and 32 thou shalt be saved, thou and thy house. And they spake the word of [1]the Lord unto him, 33 with all that were in his house. And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and was baptized, he and all his,
34 immediately. And he brought them up into his house, and set [2]meat before them, and rejoiced greatly, with all his house, [3]having believed in God.
35 But when it was day, the [4]magistrates sent the 36 [5]serjeants, saying, Let those men go. And the jailor reported the words to Paul, saying, The [4]magistrates have sent to let you go: now there-
37 fore come forth, and go in peace. But Paul said unto them, They have beaten us publicly, uncondemned, men that are Romans, and have cast us into prison; and do they now cast us out privily? nay verily; but let them come them-
38 selves and bring us out. And the [5]serjeants reported these words unto the [4]magistrates: and they feared, when they heard that they were 39 Romans; and they came and besought them; and when they had brought them out, they 40 asked them to go away from the city. And they went out of the prison, and entered into the house of Lydia: and when they had seen the brethren, they [6]comforted them, and departed.

17 Now when they had passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessa-
2 lonica, where was a synagogue of the Jews: and Paul, as his custom was, went in unto them, and for three [7]sabbath days reasoned with them from 3 the scriptures, opening and alleging, that it behoved the Christ to suffer, and to rise again from the dead; and that this Jesus, whom, said he,
4 I proclaim unto you, is the Christ. And some of them were persuaded, and consorted with Paul and Silas: and of the devout Greeks a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few.

5 ¶ But the Jews which believed not, moved with envy, took unto them certain lewd fellows of the baser sort, and gathered a company, and set all the city on an uproar, and assaulted the house of Jason, and sought to bring them out to the people.

6 And when they found them not, they drew Jason, and certain brethren unto the rulers of the city, crying, These that have turned the world upside down, are come hither also,

7 Whom Jason hath received: and these all do contrary to the decrees of Cæsar, saying, that there is another King, one Jesus.

8 And they troubled the people, and the rulers of the city, when they heard these things.

9 And when they had taken security of Jason, and of the other, they let them go.

10 ¶ And the brethren immediately sent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea: who coming thither, went into the Synagogue of the Jews.

11 These were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so.

12 Therefore many of them believed: also of honourable women which were Greeks, and of men not a few.

13 But when the Jews of Thessalonica had knowledge that the word of God was preached of Paul at Berea, they came thither also, and stirred up the people.

14 And then immediately the brethren sent away Paul, to go as it were to the sea: but Silas and Timotheus abode there still.

15 And they that conducted Paul, brought him unto Athens, and receiving a commandment unto Silas and Timotheus, for to come to him with all speed, they departed.

16 ¶ Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, his spirit was stirred in him, when he saw the city ‖wholly given to idolatry.

17 Therefore disputed he in the Synagogue with the Jews, and with the devout persons, and in the market daily with them that met with him.

18 Then certain Philosophers of the Epicureans, and of the Stoics, encountered him: and some said, What will this ‖babbler say? Other some, He seemeth to be a setter forth of strange gods: because he preached unto them Jesus, and the resurrection.

19 And they took him, and brought him unto ‖Areopagus, saying, May we know what this new doctrine, whereof thou speakest, is?

20 For thou bringest certain strange things to our ears: we would know therefore what these things mean.

5 But the Jews, being moved with jealousy, took unto them certain vile fellows of the rabble, and gathering a crowd, set the city on an uproar; and assaulting the house of Jason, they sought

10 And the brethren immediately sent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berœa: who when they were come thither went into the 11 synagogue of the Jews. Now these were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, examining the scriptures daily, whether these 12 things were so. Many of them therefore believed; also of the Greek women of honourable 15 abode there still. But they that conducted Paul brought him as far as Athens: and receiving a commandment unto Silas and Timothy that they should come to him with all speed, they departed.

16 Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, his spirit was provoked within him, as he be-
17 held the city full of idols. So he reasoned in the synagogue with the Jews and the devout persons, and in the marketplace every day with 23 For as I passed by, and beheld your ‖devotions, I found an Altar with this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you.

24 [a]God that made the world, and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in Temples made with hands:

25 Neither is worshipped with men's hands [b]as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all, life and breath, and all things,

26 And hath made of one blood all nations of men, for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation:

27 That they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him and find him, though he be not far from every one of us.

28 For in him we live, and move, and have our being, as certain also of your own Poets have said, For we are also his offspring.

29 Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, [c]we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device.

30 And the times of this ignorance God winked at, but now commandeth all men every where to repent:

31 Because he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man whom he hath ordained, whereof he ‖hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead.

32 ¶ And when they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some mocked: and others said, We will hear thee again of this matter.

33 So Paul departed from among them.

34 Howbeit, certain men clave unto him, and believed: among the which was Dionýsius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

22 And Paul stood in the midst of the Areopagus, and said,

Ye men of Athens, in all things I perceive 23 that ye are somewhat [1]superstitious. For as I passed along, and observed the objects of your worship, I found also an altar with this inscription, [2]TO AN UNKNOWN GOD. What therefore ye worship in ignorance, this set I forth unto 24 you. The God that made the world and all things therein, he, being Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in [3]temples made with 25 hands; neither is he served by men's hands, as though he needed anything, seeing he himself giveth to all life, and breath, and all things;
26 and he made of one every nation of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, having determined their appointed seasons, and the
27 bounds of their habitation; that they should seek God, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he is not far from each
28 one of us: for in him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain even of your own poets have said, For we are also his offspring.
29 Being then the offspring of God, we ought not to think that [4]the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and device of 30 man. The times of ignorance therefore God overlooked; but now he [5]commandeth men that 31 they should all everywhere repent: inasmuch as he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge [6]the world in righteousness [7]by [8]the man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead.
32 Now when they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some mocked; but others said, We will 33 hear thee concerning this yet again. Thus Paul 34 went out from among them. But certain men clave unto him, and believed: among whom also was Dionysius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

18 After these things he departed from Athens,
2 and came to Corinth. And he found a certain Jew named Aquila, a man of Pontus by race, lately come from Italy, with his wife Priscilla, because Claudius had commanded all the Jews to depart from Rome: and he came unto them;
3 and because he was of the same trade, he abode with them, and they wrought; for by their trade
4 they were tentmakers. And he reasoned in the synagogue every sabbath, and [9]persuaded Jews and Greeks.
5 But when Silas and Timothy came down from Macedonia, Paul was constrained by the word, testifying to the Jews that Jesus was the Christ.
6 And when they opposed themselves, and [10]blasphemed, he shook out his raiment, and said unto them, Your blood be upon your own heads; I am clean: from henceforth I will go unto the Gentiles.

7 ¶ And he departed thence, and entered into a certain man's house, named Justus, one that worshipped God, whose house joined hard to the Synagogue.

8 [c]And Crispus, the chief ruler of the Synagogue, believed on the Lord, with all his house: and many of the Corinthians, hearing, believed, and were baptized.

9 Then spake the Lord to Paul in the night by a vision, Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace:

10 For I am with thee, and no man shall set on thee, to hurt thee: for I have much people in this city.

11 And he †continued there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

12 ¶ And when Gallio was the Deputy of Achaia, the Jews made insurrection with one accord against Paul, and brought him to the judgment seat, 13 Saying, This fellow persuadeth men to worship God contrary to the Law.

14 And when Paul was now about to open his mouth, Gallio said unto the Jews, If it were a matter of wrong, or wicked lewdness, O ye Jews, reason would that I should bear with you.

15 But if it be a question of words, and names, and of your law, look ye to it: for I will be no judge of such matters.

16 And he drave them from the judgment seat.

17 Then all the Greeks took Sosthenes the chief ruler of the Synagogue, and beat him before the Judgment seat: and Gallio cared for none of those things.

18 ¶ And Paul after this tarried there yet a good while, and then took his leave of the brethren, and sailed thence into Syria, and with him Priscilla and Aquila: having shorn his head in Cenchrea: for he had a vow.

19 And he came to Ephesus, and left them there: but he himself entered into the Synagogue, and reasoned with the Jews.

20 When they desired him to tarry longer time with them, he consented not:

21 But bade them farewell, saying, I must by all means keep this feast that cometh, in Jerusalem; but I will return again unto you, [d]if God will: and he sailed from Ephesus.

22 And when he had landed at Cæsarea, and gone up, and saluted the Church, he went down to Antioch.

23 And after he had spent some time there, he departed, and went over all the country of Galatia and Phrygia in order, strengthening all the disciples.

24 ¶ [e]And a certain Jew, named Apollos, born at Alexandria, an eloquent man, and mighty in the Scriptures, came to Ephesus.

25 This man was instructed in the way of the Lord, and being fervent in the spirit, he spake and taught diligently the things of the Lord, knowing only the baptism of John.

26 And he began to speak boldly in the Synagogue: whom when Aquila and Priscilla had heard, they took him unto them, and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly.

27 And when he was disposed to pass into Achaia, the brethren wrote, exhorting the disciples to receive him: who, when he was come, helped them much which had believed through grace.

28 For he mightily convinced the Jews, and that publicly, shewing by the scriptures that Jesus was Christ.

CHAP. XIX.

A. D. 57.

AND it came to pass, that while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul having passed through the upper coasts, came to Ephesus, and finding certain disciples,

2 He said unto them, Have ye received the holy Ghost since ye believed? And they said unto him, We have not so much as heard whether there be any holy Ghost.

3 And he said unto them, Unto what then were ye baptized? And they said, Unto John's Baptism.

4 [a] Then said Paul, John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people, that they should believe on him which should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus.

[a] Matt. 3. 11.

5 When they heard this, they were baptized in the Name of the Lord Jesus.

6 And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the holy Ghost came on them, and they spake with tongues, and prophesied.

7 And all the men were about twelve.

8 And he went into the Synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing and persuading the things concerning the Kingdom of God.

9 But when divers were hardened, and believed not, but spake evil of that way before the multitude, he departed from them, and separated the disciples, disputing daily in the school of one Tyrannus.

10 And this continued by the space of two years, so that all they which dwelt in Asia, heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks.

11 And God wrought special miracles by the hands of Paul:

12 So that from his body were brought unto the sick handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diseases departed from them, and the evil spirits went out of them.

13 ¶ Then certain of the vagabond Jews, exorcists, took upon them to call over them which had evil spirits the Name of the Lord Jesus, saying, We adjure you by Jesus whom Paul preacheth.

14 And there were seven sons of one Sceva, a Jew, and chief of the Priests, which did so.

15 And the evil spirit answered, and said, Jesus I know, and Paul I know, but who are ye?

27 And when he was minded to pass over into Achaia, the brethren encouraged him, and wrote to the disciples to receive him: and when he was come, he [1]helped them much which

19 And it came to pass, that, while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul having passed through the upper country came to Ephesus, and found

17 And this was known to all the Jews and Greeks also dwelling at Ephesus, and fear fell on them all, and the Name of the Lord Jesus was magnified.
18 And many that believed came, and confessed, and shewed their deeds.
19 Many also of them which used curious arts, brought their books together and burned them before all men: and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thousand pieces of silver.

21 ¶ After these things were ended, Paul purposed in the spirit, when he had passed through Macedonia and Achaia, to go to Jerusalem, saying, After I have been there, I must also see Rome.
22 So he sent into Macedonia two of them that ministered unto him, Timotheus and Erastus, but he himself stayed in Asia for a season.

32 Some therefore cried one thing, and some another: for the assembly was confused, and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together.
33 And they drew Alexander out of the multitude, the Jews putting him forward. And Alexander beckoned with the hand, and would have made his defence unto the people.

36 Seeing then that these things cannot be spoken against, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing rashly.

37 For ye have brought hither these men, which are neither robbers of Churches, nor yet blasphemers of your goddess:

38 Wherefore if Demetrius, and the craftsmen which are with him, have a matter against any man, ‖the law is open, and there are deputies: let them implead one another.

39 But if ye inquire any thing concerning other matters, it shall be determined in a ‖lawful assembly.

40 For we are in danger to be called in question for this day's uproar, there being no cause whereby we may give an account of this concourse.

41 And when he had thus spoken, he dismissed the assembly.

CHAP. XX.

AND after the uproar was ceased, Paul called unto him the disciples, and embraced them, and departed, for to go into Macedonia.

2 And when he had gone over those parts, and had given them much exhortation, he came into Greece,

3 And there abode three months: and when the Jews laid wait for him, as he was about to sail into Syria, he purposed to return through Macedonia.

4 And there accompanied him into Asia Sopater of Berea: and of the Thessalonians, Aristarchus, and Secundus, and Gaius of Derbe, and Timotheus: and of Asia Tychicus and Trophimus.

5 These going before, tarried for us at Troas:

6 And we sailed away from Philippi, after the days of unleavened bread, and came unto them to Troas in five days, where we abode seven days.

7 And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together [a]to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow, and continued his speech until midnight.

8 And there were many lights in the upper chamber where they were gathered together.

9 And there sat in a window a certain young man named Eutychus, being fallen into a deep sleep: and as Paul was long preaching, he sunk down with sleep, and fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead.

10 And Paul went down, and fell on him, and embracing him, said, Trouble not yourselves, for his life is in him.

11 When he therefore was come up again, and had broken bread, and eaten, and talked a long while, even till break of day, so he departed.

12 And they brought the young man alive, and were not a little comforted.

13 ¶ And we went before to ship, and sailed unto Assos, there intending to take in Paul: for so had he appointed, minding himself to go afoot.

the Ephesians is temple-keeper of the great [1]Diana, and of the image which fell down from 36 [2]Jupiter? Seeing then that these things cannot be gainsaid, ye ought to be quiet, and to do
37 nothing rash. For ye have brought hither these men, which are neither robbers of temples
38 nor blasphemers of our goddess. If therefore Demetrius, and the craftsmen that are with him, have a matter against any man, [3]the courts are open, and there are proconsuls: let them ac-
39 cuse one another. But if ye seek anything about other matters, it shall be settled in the 40 regular assembly. For indeed we are in danger to be [4]accused concerning this day's riot, there being no cause for it: and as touching it we shall not be able to give account of this con-
41 course. And when he had thus spoken, he dismissed the assembly.

20 And after the uproar was ceased, Paul having sent for the disciples and exhorted them, took leave of them, and departed for to go into
2 Macedonia. And when he had gone through those parts, and had given them much exhorta-
3 tion, he came into Greece. And when he had spent three months there, and a plot was laid against him by the Jews, as he was about to set sail for Syria, he determined to return through 4 Macedonia. And there accompanied him [5]as far as Asia Sopater of Berœa, the son of Pyrrhus; and of the Thessalonians, Aristarchus and Secundus; and Gaius of Derbe, and Timothy; and of Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus.
5 But these [6]had gone before, and were waiting
6 for us at Troas. And we sailed away from Philippi after the days of unleavened bread, and came unto them to Troas in five days; where we tarried seven days.

7 And upon the first day of the week, when we were gathered together to break bread, Paul discoursed with them, intending to depart on the morrow; and prolonged his speech until mid-
8 night. And there were many lights in the upper chamber, where we were gathered to-9 gether. And there sat in the window a certain young man named Eutychus, borne down with deep sleep; and as Paul discoursed yet longer, being borne down by his sleep he fell down from the third story, and was taken up dead.
10 And Paul went down, and fell on him, and embracing him said, Make ye no ado; for his life
11 is in him. And when he was gone up, and had broken the bread, and eaten, and had talked with them a long while, even till break of day, 12 so he departed. And they brought the lad alive, and were not a little comforted.

13 But we, going before to the ship, set sail for Assos, there intending to take in Paul: for so had he appointed, intending himself to go [7]by land.

14 And when he met with us at Assos, we took him in, and came to Mitylene.
15 And we sailed thence, and came the next day over against Chios, and the next day we arrived at Samos, and tarried at Trogyllium: and the next day we came to Miletus.
16 For Paul had determined to sail by Ephesus, because he would not spend the time in Asia: for he hasted, if it were possible for him, to be at Jerusalem the day of Pentecost.
17 ¶ And from Miletus he sent to Ephesus, and called the Elders of the Church.
18 And when they were come to him, he said unto them, Ye know from the first day that I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you at all seasons,
19 Serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and with many tears, and temptations, which befell me by the lying in wait of the Jews:
20 And how I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, but have shewed you, and have taught you publicly, and from house to house,
21 Testifying both to the Jews and also to the Greeks, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.
22 And now behold, I go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem, not knowing the things that shall befall me there:
23 Save that the holy Ghost witnesseth in every city, saying that bonds and afflictions ‖ abide me.
24 But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the Gospel of the grace of God.
25 And now behold, I know that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more.
26 Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men.
27 For I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God.
28 ¶ Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the Church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood.
29 For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock.
30 Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them.
31 Therefore watch, and remember that by the space of three years, I ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears.
32 And now brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified.
33 I have coveted no man's silver, or gold, or apparel.

Ye yourselves know, from the first day that I set foot in Asia, after what manner I was have ministered unto my necessities, and to them that were with me.

35 I have shewed you all things, how that so labouring, ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give, than to receive.

36 ¶ And when he had thus spoken, he kneeled down, and prayed with them all.

37 And they all wept sore, and fell on Paul's neck, and kissed him, 38 Sorrowing most of all for the words which he spake, that they should see his face no more. And they accompanied him unto the ship.

CHAP. XXI.

AND it came to pass, that after we were gotten from them, and had launched, we came with a straight course unto Coos, and the day following unto Rhodes, and from thence unto Patara.

2 And finding a ship sailing over unto Phenicia, we went aboard, and set forth.

3 Now when we had discovered Cyprus, we left it on the left hand, and sailed into Syria, and landed at Tyre: for there the ship was to unlade her burden.

4 And finding disciples, we tarried there seven days: who said to Paul through the Spirit, that he should not go up to Jerusalem.

5 And when we had accomplished those days, we departed, and went our way; and they all brought us on our way, with wives and children, till we were out of the city: and we kneeled down on the shore, and prayed.

6 And when we had taken our leave one of another, we took ship, and they returned home again.

7 And when we had finished our course from Tyre, we came to Ptolemais, and saluted the brethren, and abode with them one day.

8 And the next day we that were of Paul's company, departed, and came unto Cæsarea: and we entered into the house of Philip the Evangelist (ᵉwhich was one of the seven) and abode with him.

9 And the same man had four daughters, virgins, which did prophesy.

10 And as we tarried there many days, there came down from Judæa a certain Prophet, named Agabus.

11 And when he was come unto us, he took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and said, Thus saith the holy Ghost, So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.

12 And when we heard these things, both we and they of that place besought him not to go up to Jerusalem.

13 Then Paul answered, What mean ye to weep and to break mine heart? for I am ready, not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the Name of the Lord Jesus.

14 And when he would not be persuaded, we ceased, saying, The will of the Lord be done.

15 And after those days we took up our carriages, and went up to Jerusalem.

16 There went with us also certain of the disciples ministered unto my necessities, and to them that 35 were with me. In all things I gave you an example, how that so labouring ye ought to help the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he himself said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.

36 And when he had thus spoken, he kneeled
37 down, and prayed with them all. And they all wept sore, and fell on Paul's neck, and 38 kissed him, sorrowing most of all for the word which he had spoken, that they should behold his face no more. And they brought him on his way unto the ship.

21 And when it came to pass that we were parted from them, and had set sail, we came with a straight course unto Cos, and the next day
2 unto Rhodes, and from thence unto Patara: and having found a ship crossing over unto Phœ-
3 nicia, we went aboard, and set sail. And when we had come in sight of Cyprus, leaving it on the left hand, we sailed unto Syria, and landed at Tyre: for there the ship was to unlade her
4 burden. And having found the disciples, we tarried there seven days: and these said to Paul through the Spirit, that he should not set foot
5 in Jerusalem. And when it came to pass that we had accomplished the days, we departed and went on our journey; and they all, with wives and children, brought us on our way, till we were out of the city: and kneeling down on the 6 beach, we prayed, and bade each other farewell; and we went on board the ship, but they returned home again.

7 And when we had finished the voyage from Tyre, we arrived at Ptolemais; and we saluted the brethren, and abode with them one day.
8 And on the morrow we departed, and came unto Cæsarea: and entering into the house of Philip the evangelist, who was one of the seven,
9 we abode with him. Now this man had four 10 daughters, virgins, which did prophesy. And as we tarried there [1]many days, there came down from Judæa a certain prophet, named
11 Agabus. And coming to us, and taking Paul's girdle, he bound his own feet and hands, and said, Thus saith the Holy Ghost, So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and shall deliver him into the hands
12 of the Gentiles. And when we heard these things, both we and they of that place besought
13 him not to go up to Jerusalem. Then Paul answered, What do ye, weeping and breaking my heart? for I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name
14 of the Lord Jesus. And when he would not be persuaded, we ceased, saying, The will of the Lord be done.

15 And after these days we [2]took up our bag-
16 gage, and went up to Jerusalem. And there went with us also certain of the disciples of Cæsarea, and brought with them one Mnason of Cyprus, an old disciple, with whom we should lodge.

17 And when we were come to Jerusalem, the brethren received us gladly.

18 And the day following Paul went in with us unto James, and all the Elders were present.

19 And when he had saluted them, he declared particularly what things God had wrought among the Gentiles by his ministry.

20 And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are which believe, and they are all zealous of the Law.

21 And they are informed of thee, that thou teachest all the Jews which are among the Gentiles, to forsake Moses, saying, that they ought not to circumcise their children, neither to walk after the customs.

22 What is it therefore? the multitude must needs come together: for they will hear that thou art come.

23 Do therefore this that we say to thee: We have four men which have a vow on them, 24 Them take, and purify thyself with them, and be at charges with them, that they may [b]shave their heads: and all may know that those things, whereof they were informed concerning thee, are nothing, but that thou thyself also walkest orderly, and keepest the Law.

25 As touching the Gentiles which believe, [c]we have written and concluded, that they observe no such thing, save only that they keep themselves from things offered to idols, and from blood, and from strangled, and from fornication.

26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day purifying himself with them entered into the Temple, [d]to signify the accomplishment of the days of purification, until that an offering should be offered for every one of them:

27 And when the seven days were almost ended, the Jews which were of Asia, when they saw him in the Temple, stirred up all the people, and laid hands on him,

28 Crying out, Men of Israel, help: this is the man that teacheth all men every where against the people, and the law, and this place: and further brought Greeks also into the Temple, and hath polluted this holy place.

29 (For they had seen before with him in the city Trophimus an Ephesian, whom they supposed that Paul had brought into the Temple.)

30 And all the city was moved, and the people ran together: and they took Paul, and drew him out of the Temple: and forthwith the doors were shut.

31 And as they went about to kill him, tidings came unto the chief captain of the band, that all Jerusalem was in an uproar.

32 Who immediately took soldiers, and Centurions, and ran down unto them: and when they saw from Cæsarea, bringing with them one Mnason of Cyprus, an early disciple, with whom we should lodge.

17 And when we were come to Jerusalem, the 18 brethren received us gladly. And the day following Paul went in with us unto James; and 19 all the elders were present. And when he had saluted them, he rehearsed one by one the things which God had wrought among the Gentiles by 20 his ministry. And they, when they heard it, glorified God; and they said unto him, Thou seest, brother, how many [1]thousands there are among the Jews of them which have believed;
21 and they are all zealous for the law: and they have been informed concerning thee, that thou teachest all the Jews which are among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, telling them not to circumcise their children, neither to walk after the 22 customs. What is it therefore? they will cer-
23 tainly hear that thou art come. Do therefore this that we say to thee: We have four men
24 which have a vow on them; these take, and purify thyself with them, and be at charges for them, that they may shave their heads: and all shall know that there is no truth in the things whereof they have been informed concerning thee; but that thou thyself also walkest orderly,
25 keeping the law. But as touching the Gentiles which have believed, we [2]wrote, giving judgement that they should keep themselves from things sacrificed to idols, and from blood, and from what is strangled, and from fornication.
26 Then Paul [3]took the men, and the next day purifying himself with them went into the temple, declaring the fulfilment of the days of purification, until the offering was offered for every one of them.

27 And when the seven days were almost completed, the Jews from Asia, when they saw him in the temple, stirred up all the multitude, and laid
28 hands on him, crying out, Men of Israel, help: This is the man, that teacheth all men everywhere against the people, and the law, and this place: and moreover he brought Greeks also into the tem-
29 ple, and hath defiled this holy place. For they had before seen with him in the city Trophimus the Ephesian, whom they supposed that Paul 30 had brought into the temple. And all the city was moved, and the people ran together: and they laid hold on Paul, and dragged him out of the temple: and straightway the doors were 31 shut. And as they were seeking to kill him, tidings came up to the [4]chief captain of the 33 Then the chief captain came near, and took him, and commanded him to be bound with two chains, and demanded who he was, and what he had done.

34 And some cried one thing, some another, among the multitude: and when he could not know the certainty for the tumult, he commanded him to be carried into the castle.

35 And when he came upon the stairs, so it was that he was borne of the soldiers, for the violence of the people.

36 For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, Away with him.

37 And as Paul was to be led into the castle, he said unto the chief captain, May I speak unto thee? Who said, Canst thou speak Greek?

38 [e] Art not thou that Egyptian which before these days madest an uproar, and leddest out into the wilderness four thousand men that were murderers?

39 But Paul said, I am a man which am a Jew of Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city: and I beseech thee suffer me to speak unto the people.

40 And when he had given him license, Paul stood on the stairs, and beckoned with the hand unto the people: and when there was made a great silence, he spake unto them in the Hebrew tongue, saying,

2 (And when they heard that he spake in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kept the more silence: and he saith,)

3 [a] I am verily a man which am a Jew, born in Tarsus a city in Cilicia, yet brought up in this city at the feet of Gamaliel, and taught according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers, and was zealous towards God, as ye all are this day.

4 [b] And I persecuted this way unto the death, binding and delivering into prisons both men and women.

5 As also the high Priest doth bear me witness, and all the estate of the elders: from whom also I received letters unto the brethren, and went to Damascus, to bring them which were there, bound unto Jerusalem, for to be punished.

6 And it came to pass, that as I made my journey, and was come nigh unto Damascus about noon, suddenly there shone from heaven a great light round about me.

7 And I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice saying unto me, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

8 And I answered, Who art thou, Lord? And he said unto me, I am Jesus of Nazareth whom thou persecutest.

the chief captain and the soldiers, left off beating Paul. Then the chief captain came near, and laid hold on him, and commanded him to be bound with two chains; and inquired who he was, and what he had done. And some shouted one thing, some another, among the crowd: and when he could not know the certainty for the uproar, he commanded him to be brought into the castle. And when he came upon the stairs, so it was, that he was borne of the soldiers for the violence of the crowd; for the multitude of the people followed after, crying out, Away with him.

37 And as Paul was about to be brought into the castle, he saith unto the chief captain, May I say something unto thee? And he said, Dost thou know Greek? Art thou not then the Egyptian, which before these days stirred up to sedition and led out into the wilderness the four thousand men of the Assassins? But Paul said, I am a Jew, of Tarsus in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city: and I beseech thee, give me leave to speak unto the people. And when he had given him leave, Paul, standing on the stairs, beckoned with the hand unto the people; and when there was made a great silence, he spake unto them in the Hebrew language, saying, 22 Brethren and fathers, hear ye the defence which I now make unto you.

2 And when they heard that he spake unto them in the Hebrew language, they were the more quiet: and he saith,

3 I am a Jew, born in Tarsus of Cilicia, but brought up in this city, at the feet of Gamaliel, instructed according to the strict manner of the law of our fathers, being zealous for God, even as ye all are this day: and I persecuted this Way unto the death, binding and delivering into prisons both men and women. As also the high priest doth bear me witness, and all the estate of the elders: from whom also I received letters unto the brethren, and journeyed to Damascus, to bring them also which were there unto Jerusalem in bonds, for to be punished. And it came to pass, that, as I made my journey, and drew nigh unto Damascus, about noon, suddenly there shone from heaven a great light round about me. And I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice saying unto me, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And I answered, Who art thou, Lord? And he said unto me, I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest. And they that were with me beheld indeed the light, but they heard not the voice of him that spake to me.

10 And I said, What shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said unto me, Arise, and go into Damascus, and there it shall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do.
11 And when I could not see for the glory of that light, being led by the hand of them that were with me, I came into Damascus.
12 And one Ananias, a devout man according to the law, having a good report of all the Jews which dwelt there, 13 Came unto me, and stood, and said unto me, Brother Saul, receive thy sight. And the same hour I looked up upon him.
14 And he said, The God of our fathers hath chosen thee, that thou shouldest know his will, and see that Just one, and shouldest hear the voice of his mouth.
15 For thou shalt be his witness unto all men, of what thou hast seen and heard.
16 And now, why tarriest thou? Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord.
17 And it came to pass, that when I was come again to Jerusalem, even while I prayed in the temple, I was in a trance,
18 And saw him saying unto me, Make haste, and get thee quickly out of Jerusalem: for they will not receive thy testimony concerning me.
19 And I said, Lord, they know that I imprisoned and beat in every synagogue them that believed on thee.
20 [c]And when the blood of thy martyr Stephen was shed, I also was standing by, and consenting unto his death, and kept the raiment of them that slew him.
21 And he said unto me, Depart: for I will send thee far hence, unto the Gentiles.
22 And they gave him audience unto this word, and then lift up their voices, and said, Away with such a fellow from the earth: for it is not fit that he should live.
23 And as they cried out, and cast off their clothes, and threw dust into the air,
24 The chief captain commanded him to be brought into the castle, and bade that he should be examined by scourging: that he might know wherefore they cried so against him.
25 And as they bound him with thongs, Paul said unto the Centurion that stood by, Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman, and uncondemned?
26 When the Centurion heard that, he went and told the chief captain, saying, Take heed what thou doest, for this man is a Roman.
27 Then the chief captain came; and said unto him, Tell me, art thou a Roman? He said, Yea.
28 And the chief captain answered, With a great sum obtained I this freedom. And Paul said, But I was free born.

10 And I said, What shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said unto me, Arise, and go into Damascus; and there it shall be told thee of all
11 things which are appointed for thee to do. And when I could not see for the glory of that light, being led by the hand of them that were with 12 me, I came into Damascus. And one Ananias, a devout man according to the law, well reported
13 of by all the Jews that dwelt there, came unto me, and standing by me said unto me, Brother Saul, receive thy sight. And in that very hour
14 I [1]looked up on him. And he said, The God of our fathers hath appointed thee to know his will, and to see the Righteous One, and to hear a 15 voice from his mouth. For thou shalt be a witness for him unto all men of what thou hast
16 seen and heard. And now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins,
17 calling on his name. And it came to pass, that, when I had returned to Jerusalem, and while I
18 prayed in the temple, I fell into a trance, and saw him saying unto me, Make haste, and get thee quickly out of Jerusalem: because they will not receive of thee testimony concerning
19 me. And I said, Lord, they themselves know that I imprisoned and beat in every synagogue
20 them that believed on thee: and when the blood of Stephen thy witness was shed, I also was standing by, and consenting, and keeping the 21 garments of them that slew him. And he said unto me, Depart: for I will send thee forth far hence unto the Gentiles.
22 And they gave him audience unto this word; and they lifted up their voice, and said, Away with such a fellow from the earth: for it is not 23 fit that he should live. And as they cried out, and threw off their garments, and cast dust into 24 the air, the chief captain commanded him to be brought into the castle, bidding that he should be examined by scourging, that he might know for what cause they so shouted against him.
25 And when they had tied him up [2]with the thongs, Paul said unto the centurion that stood by, Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that
26 is a Roman, and uncondemned? And when the centurion heard it, he went to the chief captain, and told him, saying, What art thou 27 about to do? for this man is a Roman. And the chief captain came, and said unto him, Tell me, art thou a Roman? And he said, Yea.
28 And the chief captain answered, With a great sum obtained I this citizenship. And Paul 29 said, But I am a Roman born. They then which were about to examine him straightway departed from him: and the chief captain also was afraid after he knew that he was a Roman, and because he had bound him.

30 On the morrow, because he would have known the certainty wherefore he was accused of the Jews, he loosed him from his bands, and commanded the chief Priests and all their Council to appear, and brought Paul down, and set him before them.

CHAP. XXIII.

AND Paul, earnestly beholding the council, said, Men and brethren, I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day.

2 And the high Priest Ananias commanded them that stood by him to smite him on the mouth.

3 Then saith Paul unto him, God shall smite thee, thou whited wall: for sittest thou to judge me after the Law, and commandest me to be smitten contrary to the Law?

4 And they that stood by, said, Revilest thou God's high Priest?

5 Then said Paul, I wist not, brethren, that he was the high Priest: For it is written, [a]Thou shalt not speak evil of the ruler of thy people.

6 But when Paul perceived that the one part were Sadducees, and the other Pharisees, he cried out in the Council, Men and brethren, [b]I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee: [c]of the hope and resurrection of the dead I am called in question.

7 And when he had so said, there arose a dissension between the Pharisees and the Sadducees: and the multitude was divided.

8 [d]For the Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, neither Angel, nor spirit: but the Pharisees confess both.

9 And there arose a great cry: and the Scribes that were of the Pharisees' part arose, and strove, saying, We find no evil in this man: but if a spirit or an Angel hath spoken to him, let us not fight against God.

10 And when there arose a great dissension, the chief captain, fearing lest Paul should have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the soldiers to go down, and to take him by force from among them, and to bring him into the castle.

11 And the night following, the Lord stood by him, and said, Be of good cheer, Paul: for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome.

12 And when it was day, certain of the Jews banded together, and bound themselves ‖under a curse, saying that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul.

13 And they were more than forty which had made this conspiracy.

14 And they came to the chief Priests and Elders, and said, We have bound ourselves under a great curse, that we will eat nothing until we have slain Paul.

15 Now therefore ye with the Council signify to the chief captain that he bring him down unto you to morrow, as though ye would inquire something more perfectly concerning him: and we, or ever he come near, are ready to kill him.

also was afraid, when he knew that he was a Roman, and because he had bound him.

30 But on the morrow, desiring to know the certainty, wherefore he was accused of the Jews, he loosed him, and commanded the chief priests and all the council to come together, and brought Paul down, and set him before them.

23 And Paul, looking stedfastly on the council, said, Brethren, I have lived before God in all
2 good conscience until this day. And the high priest Ananias commanded them that stood by 3 him to smite him on the mouth. Then said Paul unto him, God shall smite thee, thou whited wall: and sittest thou to judge me according to the law, and commandest me to be

5 And Paul said, I wist not, brethren, that he was high priest: for it is written, Thou shalt
6 not speak evil of a ruler of thy people. But when Paul perceived that the one part were Sadducees, and the other Pharisees, he cried out in the council, Brethren, I am a Pharisee, a son of Pharisees: touching the hope and resurrec-
7 tion of the dead I am called in question. And when he had so said, there arose a dissension between the Pharisees and Sadducees: and the 8 assembly was divided. For the Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, neither angel, nor 9 spirit: but the Pharisees confess both. And there arose a great clamour: and some of the scribes of the Pharisees' part stood up, and strove, saying, We find no evil in this man: and what if a spirit hath spoken to him, or an angel?
10 And when there arose a great dissension, the chief captain, fearing lest Paul should be torn in pieces by them, commanded the soldiers to go down and take him by force from among them, and bring him into the castle.

11 And the night following the Lord stood by him, and said, Be of good cheer: for as thou hast testified concerning me at Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome.

12 And when it was day, the Jews banded together, and bound themselves under a curse, saying that they would neither eat nor drink
13 till they had killed Paul. And they were more than forty which made this conspiracy.
14 And they came to the chief priests and the elders, and said, We have bound ourselves under a great curse, to taste nothing until we 15 have killed Paul. Now therefore do ye with the council signify to the chief captain that he bring him down unto you, as though ye would judge of his case more exactly: and we, or ever he come near, are ready to slay him.

16 And when Paul's sister's son heard of their lying in wait, he went and entered into the castle, and told Paul.

17 Then Paul called one of the Centurions unto him, and said, Bring this young man unto the chief captain: for he hath a certain thing to tell him.

18 So he took him, and brought him to the chief captain, and said, Paul the prisoner called me unto him, and prayed me to bring this young man unto thee, who hath something to say unto thee.

19 Then the chief captain took him by the hand, and went with him aside privately, and asked him, What is that thou hast to tell me?

20 And he said, The Jews have agreed to desire thee, that thou wouldest bring down Paul to morrow into the Council, as though they would inquire somewhat of him more perfectly.

21 But do not thou yield unto them: for there lie in wait for him of them more than forty men, which have bound themselves with an oath, that they will neither eat nor drink, till they have killed him: and now are they ready, looking for a promise from thee.

22 So the chief captain then let the young man depart, and charged him, See thou tell no man, that thou hast shewed these things to me.

23 And he called unto him two Centurions, saying, Make ready two hundred soldiers to go to Cæsarea, and horsemen threescore and ten, and spearmen two hundred, at the third hour of the night.

24 And provide them beasts, that they may set Paul on, and bring him safe unto Felix the Governor.

25 And he wrote a letter after this manner:

26 Claudius Lysias, unto the most excellent Governor Felix, sendeth greeting.

27 This man was taken of the Jews, and should have been killed of them: Then came I with an army, and rescued him, having understood that he was a Roman.

28 And when I would have known the cause wherefore they accused him, I brought him forth into their Council.

29 Whom I perceived to be accused of questions of their law, but to have nothing laid to his charge worthy of death or of bonds.

30 And when it was told me, how that the Jews laid wait for the man, I sent straightway to thee, and gave commandment to his accusers also, to say before thee what they had against him. Farewell.

31 Then the soldiers, as it was commanded them, took Paul, and brought him by night to Antipatris.

32 On the morrow, they left the horsemen to go with him, and returned to the castle.

33 Who when they came to Cæsarea, and delivered the Epistle to the Governor, presented Paul also before him.

34 And when the Governor had read the letter, he asked of what province he was. And when he understood that he was of Cilicia:

35 I will hear thee, said he, when thine accusers are also come. And he commanded him to be kept in Herod's judgment hall.

1881

16 But Paul's sister's son heard of their lying in wait, [1]and he came and entered into the castle,
17 and told Paul. And Paul called unto him one of the centurions, and said, Bring this young man unto the chief captain: for he hath something
18 to tell him. So he took him, and brought him to the chief captain, and saith, Paul the prisoner called me unto him, and asked me to bring this young man unto thee, who hath 19 something to say to thee. And the chief captain took him by the hand, and going aside asked him privately, What is that thou hast to 20 tell me? And he said, The Jews have agreed to ask thee to bring down Paul to-morrow unto the council, as though thou wouldest inquire 21 somewhat more exactly concerning him. Do not thou therefore yield unto them: for there lie in wait for him of them more than forty men, which have bound themselves under a curse, neither to eat nor to drink till they have slain him: and now are they ready, looking for 22 the promise from thee. So the chief captain let the young man go, charging him, Tell no man that thou hast signified these things to me.
23 And he called unto him two of the centurions, and said, Make ready two hundred soldiers to go as far as Cæsarea, and horsemen threescore and ten, and spearmen two hundred, at the 24 third hour of the night: and he bade them provide beasts, that they might set Paul thereon, and bring him safe unto Felix the governor.
25 And he wrote a letter after this form:
26 Claudius Lysias unto the most excellent gov-
27 ernor Felix, greeting. This man was seized by the Jews, and was about to be slain of them, when I came upon them with the soldiers, and rescued him, having learned that he was a
28 Roman. And desiring to know the cause wherefore they accused him, [2]I brought him
29 down unto their council: whom I found to be accused about questions of their law, but to have nothing laid to his charge worthy of 30 death or of bonds. And when it was shewn to me that there would be a plot against the man, I sent him to thee forthwith, charging his accusers also to speak against him before thee.[3]
31 So the soldiers, as it was commanded them, took Paul, and brought him by night to Antipa-
32 tris. But on the morrow they left the horsemen
33 to go with him, and returned to the castle: and they, when they came to Cæsarea, and delivered the letter to the governor, presented Paul 34 also before him. And when he had read it, he asked of what province he was; and when he 35 understood that he was of Cilicia, I will hear thy cause, said he, when thine accusers also are come: and he commanded him to be kept in Herod's [4]palace.

CHAP. XXIV.

AND after five days, Ananias the high Priest descended with the Elders, and with a certain Orator named Tertullus, who informed the Governor against Paul.

2 And when he was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying, Seeing that by thee we enjoy great quietness, and that very worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence:

3 We accept it always, and in all places, most noble Felix, with all thankfulness.

4 Notwithstanding, that I be not further tedious unto thee, I pray thee, that thou wouldest hear us of thy clemency a few words.

5 For we have found this man a pestilent fellow, and a mover of sedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes.

6 Who also hath gone about to profane the Temple: whom we took, and would have judged according to our law.

7 But the chief captain Lysias came upon us, and with great violence took him away out of our hands:

8 Commanding his accusers to come unto thee, by examining of whom thyself mayest take knowledge of all these things, whereof we accuse him.

9 And the Jews also assented, saying that these things were so.

10 Then Paul, after that the Governor had beckoned unto him to speak, answered, Forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of many years a Judge unto this nation, I do the more cheerfully answer for myself:

11 Because that thou mayest understand, that there are yet but twelve days since I went up to Jerusalem for to worship.

12 And they neither found me in the Temple disputing with any man, neither raising up the people, neither in the Synagogues, nor in the city:

13 Neither can they prove the things whereof they now accuse me.

14 But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the Law and the Prophets,

15 And have hope towards God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust.

16 And herein do I exercise myself to have always a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men.

17 Now after many years, I came to bring alms to my nation, and offerings:

18 [a]Whereupon certain Jews from Asia found me purified in the Temple, neither with multitude, nor with tumult:

19 Who ought to have been here before thee, and object, if they had ought against me.

20 Or else let these same here say, if they have found any evil doing in me, while I stood before the Council,

24 And after five days the high priest Ananias came down with certain elders, and with an orator, one Tertullus; and they informed the 2 governor against Paul. And when he was called, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying,

Seeing that by thee we enjoy much peace, and that by thy providence evils are corrected 3 for this nation, we accept it in all ways and in all places, most excellent Felix, with all thank- 4 fulness. But, that I be not further tedious unto thee, I intreat thee to hear us of thy clemency 5 a few words. For we have found this man a pestilent fellow, and a mover of insurrections among all the Jews throughout [1]the world, and 6 a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes: who moreover assayed to profane the temple: on 8 whom also we laid hold:[2] from whom thou wilt be able, by examining him thyself, to take knowledge of all these things, whereof we ac- 9 cuse him. And the Jews also joined in the charge, affirming that these things were so.

10 And when the governor had beckoned unto him to speak, Paul answered,

Forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of many years a judge unto this nation, I do cheer- 11 fully make my defence: seeing that thou canst take knowledge, that it is not more than twelve days since I went up to worship at Jerusalem: 12 and neither in the temple did they find me disputing with any man or stirring up a crowd, nor 13 in the synagogues, nor in the city. Neither can they prove to thee the things whereof they now 14 accuse me. But this I confess unto thee, that after the Way which they call [3]a sect, so serve I the God of our fathers, believing all things which are according to the law, and which are 15 written in the prophets: having hope toward God, which these also themselves [4]look for, that there shall be a resurrection both of the just 16 and unjust. Herein do I also exercise myself to have a conscience void of offence toward God 17 and men alway. Now after [5]many years I came to bring alms to my nation, and offer- 18 ings: [6]amidst which they found me purified in the temple, with no crowd, nor yet with tumult: but there were certain Jews from Asia— 19 who ought to have been here before thee, and to make accusation, if they had aught against me. 20 Or else let these men themselves say what wrongdoing they found, when I stood before the council, 21 Except it be for this one voice, that I cried standing among them, [b]Touching the resurrection of the dead I am called in question by you this day.

22 And when Felix heard these things, having more perfect knowledge of that way, he deferred them and said, When Lysias the chief captain shall come down, I will know the uttermost of your matter.
23 And he commanded a Centurion to keep Paul, and to let him have liberty, and that he should forbid none of his acquaintance to minister, or come unto him.
24 And after certain days, when Felix came with his wife Drusilla, which was a Jewess, he sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith in Christ.
25 And as he reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come, Felix trembled and answered, Go thy way for this time, when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee.
26 He hoped also that money should have been given him of Paul, that he might loose him: wherefore he sent for him the oftener, and communed with him.
27 But after two years, Porcius Festus came into Felix' room: and Felix willing to shew the Jews a pleasure, left Paul bound.

CHAP. XXV.

NOW when Festus was come into the province, after three days he ascended from Cæsarea to Jerusalem.
2 Then the high Priest and the chief of the Jews informed him against Paul, and besought him,
3 And desired favour against him, that he would send for him to Jerusalem, laying wait in the way to kill him.
4 But Festus answered, that Paul should be kept at Cæsarea, and that he himself would depart shortly thither.
5 Let them therefore, said he, which among you are able, go down with me, and accuse this man, if there be any wickedness in him.
6 And when he had tarried among them ‖more than ten days, he went down unto Cæsarea; and the next day, sitting in the judgment seat, commanded Paul to be brought.
7 And when he was come, the Jews which came down from Jerusalem, stood round about, and laid many and grievous complaints against Paul, which they could not prove.
8 While he answered for himself, Neither against the law of the Jews, neither against the Temple, nor yet against Cæsar, have I offended any thing at all.
9 But Festus, willing to do the Jews a pleasure, answered Paul, and said, Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these things before me?
10 Then said Paul, I stand at Cæsar's judgment seat, where I ought to be judged; to the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knowest.
11 For if I be an offender, or have committed any thing worthy of death, I refuse not to die: but if there be none of these things whereof these accuse me,

21 except it be for this one voice, that I cried standing among them, Touching the resurrection of the dead I am called in question before you this day.
22 But Felix, having more exact knowledge concerning the Way, deferred them, saying, When Lysias the chief captain shall come down,
23 I will determine your matter. And he gave order to the centurion that he should be kept in charge, and should have indulgence; and not to forbid any of his friends to minister unto him.
24 But after certain days, Felix came with Drusilla, [1]his wife, which was a Jewess, and sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith in 25 Christ Jesus. And as he reasoned of righteousness, and [2]temperance, and the judgement to come, Felix was terrified, and answered, Go thy way for this time; and when I have a con-
26 venient season, I will call thee unto me. He hoped withal that money would be given him of Paul: wherefore also he sent for him the oft-
27 ener, and communed with him. But when two years were fulfilled, Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus; and desiring to gain favour with the Jews, Felix left Paul in bonds.
25 Festus therefore, [3]having come into the province, after three days went up to Jerusalem from 2 Cæsarea. And the chief priests and the principal men of the Jews informed him against 3 Paul; and they besought him, asking favour against him, that he would send for him to Jerusalem; laying wait to kill him on the way.
4 Howbeit Festus answered, that Paul was kept in charge at Cæsarea, and that he himself was 5 about to depart thither shortly. Let them therefore, saith he, which are of power among you, go down with me, and if there is anything amiss in the man, let them accuse him.
6 And when he had tarried among them not more than eight or ten days, he went down unto Cæsarea; and on the morrow he sat on the judgement-seat, and commanded Paul to be
7 brought. And when he was come, the Jews which had come down from Jerusalem stood round about him, bringing against him many and grievous charges, which they could not
8 prove; while Paul said in his defence, Neither against the law of the Jews, nor against the temple, nor against Cæsar, have I sinned at all.
9 But Festus, desiring to gain favour with the Jews, answered Paul, and said, Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these 10 things before me? But Paul said, I am standing before Cæsar's judgement-seat, where I ought to be judged: to the Jews have I done no wrong, 11 as thou also very well knowest. If then I am a wrong-doer, and have committed anything worthy of death, I refuse not to die: but if none of those things is true, whereof these accuse me, no man may deliver me unto them. I appeal unto Cæsar.

12 Then Festus when he had conferred with the Council, answered, Hast thou appealed unto Cæsar? unto Cæsar shalt thou go.

13 And after certain days, king Agrippa and Bernice came unto Cæsarea, to salute Festus.

14 And when they had been there many days, Festus declared Paul's cause unto the king, saying, There is a certain man left in bonds by Felix:

15 About whom, when I was at Jerusalem, the chief Priests and the Elders of the Jews informed me, desiring to have judgment against him.

16 To whom I answered, It is not the manner of the Romans to deliver any man to die, before that he which is accused, have the accusers face to face, and have license to answer for himself concerning the crime laid against him.

17 Therefore when they were come hither, without any delay on the morrow I sat on the judgment seat, and commanded the man to be brought forth.

18 Against whom when the accusers stood up, they brought none accusation of such things as I supposed:

19 But had certain questions against him of their own superstition, and of one Jesus, which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive.

20 And because ‖I doubted of such manner of questions, I asked him whether he would go to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these matters.

21 But when Paul had appealed to be reserved unto the ‖hearing of Augustus, I commanded him to be kept, till I might send him to Cæsar.

22 Then Agrippa said unto Festus, I would also hear the man myself. To morrow, said he, thou shalt hear him.

23 And on the morrow when Agrippa was come and Bernice, with great pomp, and was entered into the place of hearing, with the chief captains, and principal men of the city; at Festus' commandment Paul was brought forth.

24 And Festus said, King Agrippa, and all men which are here present with us, ye see this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews have dealt with me, both at Jerusalem, and also here, crying that he ought not to live any longer.

25 But when I found that he had committed nothing worthy of death, and that he himself hath appealed to Augustus, I have determined to send him.

26 Of whom I have no certain thing to write unto my Lord: Wherefore I have brought him forth before you, and specially before thee, O king Agrippa, that after examination had, I might have somewhat to write.

27 For it seemeth to me unreasonable, to send a prisoner, and not withal to signify the crimes laid against him.

13 Now when certain days were passed, Agrippa the king and Bernice arrived at Cæsarea, [2]and 14 saluted Festus. And as they tarried there many days, Festus laid Paul's case before the king, saying, There is a certain man left a prisoner
15 by Felix: about whom, when I was at Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews informed me, asking for sentence against him.
16 To whom I answered, that it is not the custom of the Romans to give up any man, before that the accused have the accusers face to face, and have had opportunity to make his defence con-
17 cerning the matter laid against him. When therefore they were come together here, I made no delay, but on the next day sat down on the judgement-seat, and commanded the man to be 18 brought. Concerning whom, when the accusers stood up, they brought no charge of such evil
19 things as I supposed; but had certain questions against him of their own [3]religion, and of one Jesus, who was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be 20 alive. And I, being perplexed how to inquire concerning these things, asked whether he would go to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these 21 matters. But when Paul had appealed to be kept for the decision of [4]the emperor, I commanded him to be kept till I should send him
22 to Cæsar. And Agrippa said unto Festus, I also [5]could wish to hear the man myself. To-morrow, saith he, thou shalt hear him.

23 So on the morrow, when Agrippa was come, and Bernice, with great pomp, and they were entered into the place of hearing, with the chief captains, and the principal men of the city, at the command of Festus Paul was brought in.
24 And Festus saith, King Agrippa, and all men which are here present with us, ye behold this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews made suit to me, both at Jerusalem and here, crying that he ought not to live any longer.
25 But I found that he had committed nothing worthy of death: and as he himself appealed
26 to [4]the emperor I determined to send him. Of whom I have no certain thing to write unto my lord. Wherefore I have brought him forth before you, and specially before thee, king Agrippa, that, after examination had, I may 27 have somewhat to write. For it seemeth to me unreasonable, in sending a prisoner, not withal to signify the charges against him.

26 And Agrippa said unto Paul, Thou art permitted to speak for thyself. Then Paul stretched forth his hand, and made his defence:

1611

2 I think myself happy, king Agrippa, because I shall answer for myself this day before thee touching all the things whereof I am accused of the Jews:
3 Especially, because I know thee to be expert in all customs and questions which are among the Jews: wherefore I beseech thee to hear me patiently.
4 My manner of life from my youth, which was at the first among mine own nation at Jerusalem, know all the Jews,
5 Which knew me from the beginning, (if they would testify) that after the most straitest sect of our religion, I lived a Pharisee.
6 And now I stand and am judged for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers:
7 Unto which promise our twelve tribes, instantly serving God day and night, hope to come: For which hope's sake, King Agrippa, I am accused of the Jews.
8 Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?
9 I verily thought with myself, that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth:
10 [a]Which thing I also did in Jerusalem, and many of the Saints did I shut up in prison, having received authority from the chief Priests, and when they were put to death, I gave my voice against them.
11 And I punished them oft in every Synagogue, and compelled them to blaspheme, and being exceedingly mad against them, I persecuted them even unto strange cities.
12 [b]Whereupon, as I went to Damascus, with authority and commission from the chief Priests,
13 At midday, O king, I saw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightness of the Sun, shining round about me, and them which journeyed with me.
14 And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice speaking unto me, and saying in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks.
15 And I said, Who art thou, Lord? And he said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest.
16 But rise, and stand upon thy feet, for I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, to make thee a minister and a witness, both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those things in the which I will appear unto thee,
17 Delivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom now I send thee,
18 To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins, and inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith that is in me.
19 Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision:
20 But shewed first unto them of Damascus, and

2 I think myself happy, king Agrippa, that I am to make my defence before thee this day touching all the things whereof I am accused
3 by the Jews: [1]especially because thou art expert in all customs and questions which are among the Jews: wherefore I beseech thee to hear me
4 patiently. My manner of life then from my youth up, which was from the beginning among mine own nation, and at Jerusalem, know all
5 the Jews; having knowledge of me from the first, if they be willing to testify, how that after the straitest sect of our religion I lived a Phar-
6 isee. And now I stand here to be judged for the hope of the promise made of God unto our 7 fathers; unto which promise our twelve tribes, earnestly serving God night and day, hope to attain. And concerning this hope I am accused
8 by the Jews, O king! Why is it judged incred-
9 ible with you, if God doth raise the dead? I verily thought with myself, that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of 10 Nazareth. And this I also did in Jerusalem: and I both shut up many of the saints in prisons, having received authority from the chief priests, and when they were put to death, I gave my 11 vote against them. And punishing them oftentimes in all the synagogues, I strove to make them blaspheme; and being exceedingly mad against them, I persecuted them even unto for-
12 eign cities. [2]Whereupon as I journeyed to Damascus with the authority and commission
13 of the chief priests, at midday, O king, I saw on the way a light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun, shining round about me
14 and them that journeyed with me. And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice saying unto me in the Hebrew language, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? it is hard for 15 thee to kick against [3]the goad. And I said, Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I 16 am Jesus whom thou persecutest. But arise, and stand upon thy feet: for to this end have I appeared unto thee, to appoint thee a minister and a witness both of the things [4]wherein thou hast seen me, and of the things wherein I will 17 appear unto thee; delivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom I send 18 thee, to open their eyes, [5]that they may turn from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive remission of sins and an inheritance among them that are sanctified
19 by faith in me. Wherefore, O king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision:
20 but declared both to them of Damascus first, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coasts of Judæa, and then to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance.

21 For these causes the Jews caught me in the Temple, and went about to kill me.

22 Having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, witnessing both to small and great, saying none other things than those which the Prophets and Moses did say should come:

23 That Christ should suffer, and that he should be the first that should rise from the dead, and should shew light unto the people, and to the Gentiles.

24 And as he thus spake for himself, Festus said with a loud voice, Paul, thou art beside thyself, much learning doth make thee mad.

25 But he said, I am not mad, most noble Festus, but speak forth the words of truth and soberness.

26 For the king knoweth of these things, before whom also I speak freely: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him, for this thing was not done in a corner.

27 King Agrippa, believest thou the Prophets? I know that thou believest.

28 Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian.

29 And Paul said, I would to God, that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost, and altogether such as I am, except these bonds.

30 And when he had thus spoken, the king rose up, and the governor, and Bernice, and they that sat with them.

31 And when they were gone aside, they talked between themselves, saying, This man doeth nothing worthy of death, or of bonds.

32 Then said Agrippa unto Festus, This man might have been set at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Cæsar.

CHAP. XXVII.

AND when it was determined that we should sail into Italy, they delivered Paul, and certain other prisoners, unto one named Julius, a centurion of Augustus' band.

2 And entering into a ship of Adramyttium, we launched, meaning to sail by the coasts of Asia, one Aristarchus a Macedonian, of Thessalonica, being with us.

3 And the next day we touched at Sidon: And Julius courteously entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends to refresh himself.

4 And when we had launched from thence, we sailed under Cyprus, because the winds were contrary.

5 And when we had sailed over the sea of Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came to Myra a city of Lycia.

6 And there the Centurion found a ship of Alexandria sailing into Italy, and he put us therein.

7 And when we had sailed slowly many days, and scarce were come over against Cnidus, the wind not suffering us, we sailed under ‖Crete, over against Salmone, at Jerusalem, and throughout all the country of Judæa, and also to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, doing 21 works worthy of [1]repentance. For this cause the Jews seized me in the temple, and as-

22 sayed to kill me. Having therefore obtained the help that is from God, I stand unto this day testifying both to small and great, saying nothing but what the prophets and Moses did say 23 should come; [2]how that the Christ [3]must suffer, and [2]how that he first by the resurrection of the dead should proclaim light both to the people and to the Gentiles.

24 And as he thus made his defence, Festus saith with a loud voice, Paul, thou art mad; thy much learning doth turn thee to madness.
25 But Paul saith, I am not mad, most excellent Festus; but speak forth words of truth and 26 soberness. For the king knoweth of these things, unto whom also I speak freely: for I am persuaded that none of these things is hidden from him; for this hath not been done in 27 a corner. King Agrippa, believest thou the 28 prophets? I know that thou believest. And Agrippa said unto Paul, With but little persuasion thou wouldest fain make me a Christian.
29 And Paul said, I would to God, that whether with little or with much, not thou only, but also all that hear me this day, might become such as I am, except these bonds.

30 And the king rose up, and the governor, and 31 Bernice, and they that sat with them: and when they had withdrawn, they spake one to another, saying, This man doeth nothing worthy of death
32 or of bonds. And Agrippa said unto Festus, This man might have been set at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Cæsar.

27 And when it was determined that we should sail for Italy, they delivered Paul and certain other prisoners to a centurion named Julius, of
2 the Augustan [4]band. And embarking in a ship of Adramyttium, which was about to sail unto the places on the coast of Asia, we put to sea, Aristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica,
3 being with us. And the next day we touched at Sidon: and Julius treated Paul kindly, and gave him leave to go unto his friends and [5]re-
4 fresh himself. And putting to sea from thence, we sailed under the lee of Cyprus, because the 5 winds were contrary. And when we had sailed across the sea which is off Cilicia and Pam-
6 phylia, we came to Myra, a city of Lycia. And there the centurion found a ship of Alexandria
7 sailing for Italy; and he put us therein. And when we had sailed slowly many days, and were come with difficulty over against Cnidus, the wind not [6]further suffering us, we sailed under the lee of Crete, over against Salmone;

8 And hardly passing it, came unto a place which is called the Fair havens, nigh whereunto was the city of Lasea.

9 Now when much time was spent, and when sailing was now dangerous, because the Fast was now already past, Paul admonished them,

10 And said unto them, Sirs, I perceive that this voyage will be with ||hurt and much damage, not only of the lading and ship, but also of our lives.

11 Nevertheless, the Centurion believed the master and the owner of the ship, more than those things which were spoken by Paul.

12 And because the haven was not commodious to winter in, the more part advised to depart thence also, if by any means they might attain to Phenice, and there to winter; which is an haven of Crete, and lieth toward the South west, and North west.

13 And when the South wind blew softly, supposing that they had obtained their purpose, loosing thence, they sailed close by Crete.

14 But not long after, there ||arose against it a tempestuous wind, called Euroclydon.

15 And when the ship was caught, and could not bear up into the wind, we let her drive.

16 And running under a certain island, which is called Clauda, we had much work to come by the boat:

17 Which when they had taken up, they used helps, undergirding the ship; and, fearing lest they should fall into the quicksands, strake sail, and so were driven.

18 And being exceedingly tossed with a tempest the next day, they lightened the ship.

19 And the third day we cast out with our own hands the tackling of the ship.

20 And when neither Sun nor stars in many days appeared, and no small tempest lay on us, all hope that we should be saved was then taken away.

21 But after long abstinence, Paul stood forth in the midst of them, and said, Sirs, ye should have hearkened unto me, and not have loosed from Crete, and to have gained this harm and loss.

22 And now I exhort you to be of good cheer: for there shall be no loss of any man's life among you, but of the ship.

23 For there stood by me this night the Angel of God, whose I am, and whom I serve, 24 Saying, Fear not, Paul, thou must be brought before Cæsar, and lo, God hath given thee all them that sail with thee.

25 Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer: for I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me.

26 Howbeit, we must be cast upon a certain island.

27 But when the fourteenth night was come, as we were driven up and down in Adria about midnight, the shipmen deemed that they drew near to some country:

28 And sounded, and found it twenty fathoms: and when they had gone a little further, they sounded again, and found it fifteen fathoms.

8 and with difficulty coasting along it we came unto a certain place called Fair Havens; nigh whereunto was the city of Lasea.

9 And when much time was spent, and the voyage was now dangerous, because the Fast was now already gone by, Paul admonished

10 them, and said unto them, Sirs, I perceive that the voyage will be with injury and much loss, not only of the lading and the ship, but also

11 of our lives. But the centurion gave more heed to the master and to the owner of the ship, than to those things which were spoken

12 by Paul. And because the haven was not commodious to winter in, the more part advised to put to sea from thence, if by any means they could reach Phœnix, and winter there; which is a haven of Crete, looking 13 [1]north-east and south-east. And when the south wind blew softly, supposing that they had obtained their purpose, they weighed anchor and sailed along Crete, close in shore.

14 But after no long time there beat down from it a tempestuous wind, which is called Eura-

15 quilo: and when the ship was caught, and could not face the wind, we gave way to it, and

16 were driven. And running under the lee of a small island called [2]Cauda, we were able, with 17 difficulty, to secure the boat: and when they had hoisted it up, they used helps, under-girding the ship; and, fearing lest they should be cast upon the Syrtis, they lowered the gear,

18 and so were driven. And as we laboured exceedingly with the storm, the next day they

19 began to throw the freight overboard; and the third day they cast out with their own hands

20 the [3]tackling of the ship. And when neither sun nor stars shone upon us for many days, and no small tempest lay on us, all hope that

21 we should be saved was now taken away. And when they had been long without food, then Paul stood forth in the midst of them, and said, Sirs, ye should have hearkened unto me, and not have set sail from Crete, and have got-

22 ten this injury and loss. And now I exhort you to be of good cheer: for there shall be no loss of life among you, but only of the ship.

23 For there stood by me this night an angel of 24 the God whose I am, whom also I serve, saying, Fear not, Paul; thou must stand before Cæsar: and lo, God hath granted thee all them

25 that sail with thee. Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer: for I believe God, that it shall be 26 even so as it hath been spoken unto me. Howbeit we must be cast upon a certain island.

27 But when the fourteenth night was come, as we were driven to and fro in the sea of Adria, about midnight the sailors surmised that they were draw-

28 ing near to some country; and they sounded, and found twenty fathoms: and after a little space, they sounded again, and found fifteen fathoms.

29 Then fearing lest we should have fallen upon rocks, they cast four anchors out of the stern, and wished for the day.

30 And as the shipmen were about to flee out of the ship, when they had let down the boat into the sea, under colour as though they would have cast anchors out of the foreship, 31 Paul said to the Centurion, and to the soldiers, Except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be saved.

32 Then the soldiers cut off the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off.

33 And while the day was coming on, Paul besought them all to take meat, saying, This day is the fourteenth day that ye have tarried, and continued fasting, having taken nothing.

34 Wherefore, I pray you to take some meat, for this is for your health: for there shall not an hair fall from the head of any of you.

35 And when he had thus spoken, he took bread, and gave thanks to God in presence of them all, and when he had broken it, he began to eat.

36 Then were they all of good cheer, and they also took some meat.

37 And we were in all, in the ship, two hundred threescore and sixteen souls.

38 And when they had eaten enough, they lightened the ship, and cast out the wheat into the sea.

39 And when it was day, they knew not the land: but they discovered a certain creek, with a shore, into the which they were minded, if it were possible, to thrust in the ship.

40 And when they had ‖taken up the anchors, they committed themselves unto the sea, and loosed the rudder bands, and hoised up the mainsail to the wind, and made toward shore.

41 And falling into a place where two seas met, they ran the ship aground, and the forepart stuck fast, and remained unmoveable, but the hinder part was broken with the violence of the waves.

42 And the soldiers' counsel was to kill the prisoners, lest any of them should swim out, and escape.

43 But the Centurion, willing to save Paul, kept them from their purpose, and commanded that they which could swim, should cast themselves first into the sea, and get to land:

44 And the rest, some on boards, and some on broken pieces of the ship: and so it came to pass that they escaped all safe to land.

CHAP. XXVIII.

AND when they were escaped, then they knew that the island was called Melita.

2 And the barbarous people shewed us no little kindness: for they kindled a fire, and received us every one because of the present rain, and because of the cold.

3 And when Paul had gathered a bundle of sticks, and laid them on the fire, there came a Viper out of the heat, and fastened on his hand.

29 And fearing lest haply we should be cast ashore on rocky ground, they let go four anchors from the stern, and [1]wished for the 30 day. And as the sailors were seeking to flee out of the ship, and had lowered the boat into the sea, under colour as though they 31 would lay out anchors from the foreship, Paul said to the centurion and to the soldiers, Except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be saved.
32 Then the soldiers cut away the ropes of the 34 taken nothing. Wherefore I beseech you to take some food: for this is for your safety: for there shall not a hair perish from the head of 35 any of you. And when he had said this, and had taken bread, he gave thanks to God in the presence of all: and he brake it, and began to 36 eat. Then were they all of good cheer, and 37 themselves also took food. And we were in all in the ship [2]two hundred threescore and six-

38 teen souls. And when they had eaten enough, they lightened the ship, throwing out the wheat
39 into the sea. And when it was day, they knew not the land: but they perceived a certain bay with a beach, and they took counsel whether 40 they could [3]drive the ship upon it. And casting off the anchors, they left them in the sea, at the same time loosing the bands of the rudders; and hoisting up the foresail to the wind,
41 they made for the beach. But lighting upon a place where two seas met, they ran the vessel aground; and the foreship struck and remained unmoveable, but the stern began to break up

7 In the same quarters were possessions of the chief man of the island, whose name was Publius, who received us, and lodged us three days courteously.

8 And it came to pass that the father of Publius lay sick of a fever, and of a bloody flux, to whom Paul entered in, and prayed, and laid his hands on him, and healed him.

9 So when this was done, others also which had diseases in the island, came, and were healed:

10 Who also honoured us with many honours, and when we departed, they laded us with such things as were necessary.

11 And after three months we departed in a ship of Alexandria, which had wintered in the isle, whose sign was Castor and Pollux.

12 And landing at Syracuse we tarried there three days.

13 And from thence we fetched a compass, and came to Rhegium, and after one day the South wind blew, and we came the next day to Puteoli:

14 Where we found brethren, and were desired to tarry with them seven days: and so we went toward Rome.

15 And from thence, when the brethren heard of us, they came to meet us as far as Appii forum, and the three Taverns: whom when Paul saw, he thanked God, and took courage.

16 And when we came to Rome, the Centurion delivered the prisoners to the Captain of the guard: but Paul was suffered to dwell by himself, with a soldier that kept him.

17 And it came to pass, that after three days, Paul called the chief of the Jews together. And when they were come together, he said unto them, Men and brethren, though I have committed nothing against the people, or customs of our fathers, yet was I delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans.

18 Who when they had examined me, would have let me go, because there was no cause of death in me.

19 But when the Jews spake against it, I was constrained to appeal unto Cæsar, not that I had ought to accuse my nation of.

20 For this cause therefore have I called for you, to see you, and to speak with you: because that for the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain.

21 And they said unto him, We neither received letters out of Judæa concerning thee, neither any of the brethren that came, shewed or spake any harm of thee.

‖ Or, to the obedience of faith.

1 PAUL, a [1]servant of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, separated unto the gospel of God,
2 which he promised afore [2]by his prophets in the 3 holy scriptures, concerning his Son, who was born of the seed of David according to the 4 flesh, who was [3]declared to be the Son of God [4]with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection of the dead; even Jesus
5 Christ our Lord, through whom we received grace and apostleship, unto obedience [5]of faith
6 among all the nations, for his name's sake: among whom are ye also, called to be Jesus Christ's:

7 To all that be in Rome, beloved of God, called to be Saints: Grace to you and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

8 First I thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all, that your faith is spoken of throughout the whole world.

9 For God is my witness, whom I serve ‖with my spirit in the Gospel of his Son, that without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers,

10 Making request, (if by any means now at length I might have a prosperous journey by the will of God) to come unto you.

11 For I long to see you, that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, to the end you may be established, 12 That is, that I may be comforted together ‖with you, by the mutual faith both of you and me.

13 Now I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that oftentimes I purposed to come unto you, (but was let hitherto) that I might have some fruit ‖among you also, even as among other Gentiles.

14 I am debtor both to the Greeks, and to the Barbarians, both to the wise, and to the unwise.

15 So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the Gospel to you that are at Rome also.

16 For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth, to the Jew first, and also to the Greek.

17 For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith: as it is written, [b]The just shall live by faith.

18 For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness, and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness.

19 Because that which may be known of God is manifest ‖in them, for God hath shewed it unto them.

20 For the invisible things of him from the Creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal Power and Godhead, ‖so that they are without excuse:

21 Because that when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful, but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened:

22 Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools:

23 And changed the glory of the uncorruptible [c]God into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and fourfooted beasts, and creeping things:

24 Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness, through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonour their own bodies between themselves:

25 Who changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed for ever. Amen.

26 For this cause God gave them up unto vile affections: for even their women did change the natural use into that which is against nature:

7 to all that are in Rome, beloved of God, called to be saints: Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

8 First, I thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all, [1]that your faith is proclaimed throughout 9 the whole world. For God is my witness, whom I serve in my spirit in the gospel of his Son, how unceasingly I make mention of you, always 10 in my prayers making request, if by any means now at length I may be prospered [2]by the will 11 of God to come unto you. For I long to see you, that I may impart unto you some spiritual 12 gift, to the end ye may be established; that is, that I with you may be comforted in you, each of us by the other's faith, both yours and mine.
13 And I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that oftentimes I purposed to come unto you (and was hindered hitherto), that I might have some fruit in you also, even as in the rest of the 14 Gentiles. I am debtor both to Greeks and to Barbarians, both to the wise and to the foolish.
15 So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach
16 the gospel to you also that are in Rome. For I am not ashamed of the gospel: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the 17 Greek. For therein is revealed a righteousness of God [3]by faith unto faith: as it is written, But the righteous shall live [3]by faith.

18 For [4]the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who [5]hold down the truth in unright-
19 eousness; because that which may be known of God is manifest in them; for God manifested
20 it unto them. For the invisible things of him since the creation of the world are clearly seen, being perceived through the things that are made, even his everlasting power and divinity;
21 [6]that they may be without excuse: because that, knowing God, they glorified him not as God, neither gave thanks; but became vain in their reasonings, and their senseless heart was dark-
22 ened. Professing themselves to be wise, they 23 became fools, and changed the glory of the incorruptible God for the likeness of an image of corruptible man, and of birds, and fourfooted beasts, and creeping things.

24 Wherefore God gave them up in the lusts of their hearts unto uncleanness, that their bodies
25 should be dishonoured among themselves: for that they exchanged the truth of God for a lie, and worshipped and served the creature rather than the Creator, who is blessed [7]for ever. Amen.

26 For this cause God gave them up unto [8]vile passions: for their women changed the natural use into that which is against nature:

27 And likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust one towards another, men with men working that which is unseemly, and receiving in themselves that recompense of their error which was meet.

28 And even as they did not like ‖to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to ‖a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient:

29 Being filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness, full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity, whisperers,

30 Backbiters, haters of God, despiteful, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents;

31 Without understanding, covenant-breakers, ‖without natural affection, implacable, unmerciful;

32 Who knowing the judgment of God, (that they which commit such things, are worthy of death) not only do the same, but ‖have pleasure in them that do them.

CHAP. II.

THEREFORE, thou art inexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest: for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself, for thou that judgest doest the same things.

2 But we are sure that the judgment of God is according to truth against them which commit such things.

3 And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God?

4 Or despisest thou the riches of his goodness, and forbearance, and longsuffering, not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance?

5 But after thy hardness, and impenitent heart, [a]treasurest up unto thyself wrath, against the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God:

6 [b]Who will render to every man according to his deeds:

7 To them, who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory, and honour, and immortality, eternal life:

8 But unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath,

9 Tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the †Gentile.

10 But glory, honour, and peace, to every man that worketh good, to the Jew first, and also to the †Gentile.

11 For there is no respect of persons with God.

12 For as many as have sinned without law, shall also perish without law: and as many as have sinned in the law, shall be judged by the law.

28 And even as they [1]refused to have God in their knowledge, God gave them up unto a reprobate mind, to do those things which are

29 not fitting; being filled with all unrighteousness, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness; full of envy, murder, strife, deceit, malignity;

5 but after thy hardness and impenitent heart treasurest up for thyself wrath in the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgement

6 of God; who will render to every man accord-

7 ing to his works: to them that by patience in well-doing seek for glory and honour and in-

8 corruption, eternal life: but unto them that are factious, and obey not the truth, but obey unrighteousness, shall be wrath and indignation,

9 tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that worketh evil, of the Jew first, and

10 also of the Greek; but glory and honour and peace to every man that worketh good,

11 to the Jew first, and also to the Greek: for there is no respect of persons with God.

12 For as many as have sinned without law shall also perish without law: and as many 13 as have sinned under law shall be judged by law; for not the hearers of a law are [5]just before God, but the doers of a law shall be [6]jus-

14 tified: for when Gentiles which have no law do by nature the things contained in the law, these, having not the law, are a law unto themselves,

15 Which shew the work of the law written in their hearts, ||their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts ||the mean while accusing or else excusing one another:)

16 In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ, according to my Gospel.

17 Behold, thou art called a Jew, and restest in the law, and makest thy boast of God:

18 And knowest his will, and ||approvest the things that are more excellent, being instructed out of the law,

19 And art confident that thou thyself art a guide of the blind, a light of them which are in darkness,

20 An instructor of the foolish, a teacher of babes: which hast the form of knowledge and of the truth in the law:

21 Thou therefore which teachest another, teachest thou not thyself? thou that preachest a man should not steal, dost thou steal?

22 Thou that sayest a man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, dost thou commit sacrilege?

23 Thou that makest thy boast of the law, through breaking the law dishonourest thou God?

24 For the Name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles, through you, as it is [c]written:

25 For circumcision verily profiteth if thou keep the law: but if thou be a breaker of the law, thy circumcision is made uncircumcision.

26 Therefore, if the uncircumcision keep the righteousness of the law, shall not his uncircumcision be counted for circumcision?

27 And shall not uncircumcision which is by nature, if it fulfil the law, judge thee, who by the letter, and circumcision, dost transgress the law?

28 For he is not a Jew which is one outwardly, neither is that circumcision, which is outward in the flesh:

29 But he is a Jew which is one inwardly, and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter, whose praise is not of men, but of God.

CHAP. III.

WHAT advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision?

2 Much every way: chiefly, because that unto them were committed the Oracles of God.

3 For what if some did not believe? shall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect?

4 God forbid: yea, let God be true, but every man a liar, as it is written, [a]That thou mightest be justified in thy sayings, and mightest overcome when thou art judged.

5 But if our unrighteousness commend the righteousness of God, what shall we say? is God unrighteous who taketh vengeance? (I speak as a man)

6 God forbid: for then how shall God judge the world?

7 For if the truth of God hath more abounded do by nature the things of the law, these, having no law, are a law unto themselves; in that they shew the work of the law written in their hearts, their conscience bearing witness therewith, and their [1]thoughts one with another accusing or else excusing them; in the day when God [2]shall judge the secrets of men, according to my gospel, by Jesus Christ.

17 But if thou bearest the name of a Jew, and restest upon [3]the law, and gloriest in God, and knowest [4]his will, and [5]approvest the things that are excellent, being instructed out of the law, and art confident that thou thyself art a guide of the blind, a light of them that are in darkness, [6]a corrector of the foolish, a teacher of babes, having in the law the form of knowledge and of the truth; thou therefore that teachest another, teachest thou not thyself? thou that preachest a man should not steal, dost thou steal? thou that sayest a man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, dost thou [7]rob temples? thou who gloriest in [3]the law, through thy transgression of the law dishonourest thou God? For the name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles because of you, even as it is written. For circumcision indeed profiteth, if thou be a doer of the law: but if thou be a transgressor of the law, thy circumcision is become uncircumcision. If therefore the uncircumcision keep the ordinances of the law, shall not his uncircumcision be reckoned for circumcision? and shall not the uncircumcision which is by nature, if it fulfil the law, judge thee, who with the letter and circumcision art a transgressor of the law? For he is not a Jew, which is one outwardly; neither is that circumcision, which is outward in the flesh: but he is a Jew, which is one inwardly; and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, not in the letter; whose praise is not of men, but of God.

3 What advantage then hath the Jew? or what is the profit of circumcision? Much every way: first of all, that they were intrusted with the oracles of God. For what if some were without faith? shall their want of faith make of none effect the faithfulness of God? [8]God forbid: yea, let God be found true, but every man a liar; as it is written,

That thou mightest be justified in thy words,
And mightest prevail when thou comest into judgement.

5 But if our unrighteousness commendeth the righteousness of God, what shall we say? Is God unrighteous who visiteth with wrath? (I speak after the manner of men.) God forbid: for then how shall God judge the world? [9]But if the truth of God through my lie abounded through my lie unto his glory, why yet am I also judged as a sinner?

8 And not rather as we be slanderously reported, and as some affirm that we say, Let us do evil, that good may come? whose damnation is just.

9 What then? are we better than they? No in no wise: for we have before †proved both Jews, and Gentiles, that they are all under sin,

10 As it is written, There is none righteous, no not one:

11 There is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God.

12 They are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable, there is none that doeth good, no not one.

13 Their throat is an open sepulchre, with their tongues they have used deceit, the poison of Asps is under their lips:

14 Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness:

15 Their feet are swift to shed blood.

16 Destruction and misery are in their ways:

17 And the way of peace have they not known.

18 There is no fear of God before their eyes.

19 Now we know that what things soever the law saith, it saith to them who are under the law: that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become ‖guilty before God.

20 Therefore by the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in his sight: for by the law is the knowledge of sin.

21 But now the righteousness of God without the law is manifested, being witnessed by the law and the prophets.

22 Even the righteousness of God, which is by faith of Jesus Christ unto all and upon all them that believe: for there is no difference:

23 For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God,

24 Being justified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Jesus Christ:

25 Whom God hath ‖set forth to be a propitiation, through faith in his blood, to declare his righteousness for the ‖remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God.

26 To declare, I say, at this time his righteousness: that he might be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus.

27 Where is boasting then? It is excluded. By what law? Of works? Nay: but by the law of faith.

28 Therefore we conclude, that a man is justified by faith, without the deeds of the law.

29 Is he the God of the Jews only? Is he not also of the Gentiles? Yes, of the Gentiles also:

30 Seeing it is one God which shall justify the circumcision by faith, and uncircumcision through faith.

31 Do we then make void the law through faith? God forbid: yea, we establish the law.

unto his glory, why am I also still judged as a 8 sinner? and why not (as we be slanderously reported, and as some affirm that we say), Let us do evil, that good may come? whose condemnation is just.

9 What then? [1]are we in worse case than they? No, in no wise: for we before laid to the charge both of Jews and Greeks, that they are all under 10 sin; as it is written,

There is none righteous, no, not one;
11 There is none that understandeth,
There is none that seeketh after God;
12 They have all turned aside, they are together become unprofitable;
There is none that doeth good, no, not so much as one:
13 Their throat is an open sepulchre;
With their tongues they have used deceit:
The poison of asps is under their lips:
14 Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness:
15 Their feet are swift to shed blood;
16 Destruction and misery are in their ways;
17 And the way of peace have they not known:
18 There is no fear of God before their eyes.

19 Now we know that what things soever the law saith, it speaketh to them that are under the law; that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may be brought under the judge-
20 ment of God: because [2]by [3]the works of the law shall no flesh be [4]justified in his sight: for [5]through the law cometh the knowledge of sin.
21 But now apart from the law a righteousness of God hath been manifested, being witnessed by 22 the law and the prophets; even the righteousness of God through faith [6]in Jesus Christ unto all [7]them that believe; for there is no distinc-
23 tion; for all have sinned, and fall short of the 24 glory of God; being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus:
25 whom God [8]set forth [9]to be a propitiation, through [10]faith, by his blood, to shew his righteousness, because of the passing over of the sins done aforetime, in the forbearance of God;
26 for the shewing, I say, of his righteousness at this present season: that he might himself be [11]just, and the [11]justifier of him that [12]hath faith
27 [6]in Jesus. Where then is the glorying? It is excluded. By what manner of law? of works?
28 Nay: but by a law of faith. [13]We reckon therefore that a man is justified by faith apart from 29 [3]the works of the law. Or is God the God of Jews only? is he not the God of Gentiles also?
30 Yea, of Gentiles also: if so be that God is one, and he shall justify the circumcision [2]by faith, 31 and the uncircumcision [14]through faith. Do we then make [15]the law of none effect [14]through faith? God forbid: nay, we establish [15]the law.

4 What then shall we say [16]that Abraham, our forefather according to the flesh, hath found?

1611

2 For if Abraham were justified by works, he hath whereof to glory, but not before God.
3 For what saith the Scripture? Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness.
4 Now to him that worketh, is the reward not reckoned of grace, but of debt.
5 But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness.
6 Even as David also describeth the blessedness of the man, unto whom God imputeth righteousness without works:
7 Saying, Blessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered.
8 Blessed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute sin.
9 Cometh this blessedness then upon the circumcision only, or upon the uncircumcision also? for we say that faith was reckoned to Abraham for righteousness.
10 How was it then reckoned? when he was in circumcision, or in uncircumcision? not in circumcision, but in uncircumcision.
11 And he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had yet being uncircumcised: that he might be the father of all them that believe, though they be not circumcised; that righteousness might be imputed unto them also:
12 And the father of circumcision, to them who are not of the circumcision only, but also walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham, which he had being yet uncircumcised.
13 For the promise that he should be the heir of the world, was not to Abraham, or to his seed, through the law, but through the righteousness of faith.
14 For if they which are of the law be heirs, faith is made void, and the promise made of none effect.
15 Because the law worketh wrath: for where no law is, there is no transgression.
16 Therefore it is of faith, that it might be by grace; to the end the promise might be sure to all the seed, not to that only which is of the law, but to that also which is of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all,
17 (As it is written, [a]I have made thee a father of many nations) ||before him whom he believed, even God who quickeneth the dead, and calleth those things which be not, as though they were.
18 Who against hope, believed in hope, that he might become the father of many nations: according to that which was spoken, [b]So shall thy seed be.
19 And being not weak in faith, he considered not his own body now dead, when he was about an hundred year old, neither yet the deadness of Sarah's womb.
20 He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief: but was strong in faith, giving glory to God:

2 For if Abraham was justified [1]by works, he hath whereof to glory; but not toward God.
3 For what saith the scripture? And Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned unto him for 4 righteousness. Now to him that worketh, the reward is not reckoned as of grace, but as of 5 debt. But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his 6 faith is reckoned for righteousness. Even as David also pronounceth blessing upon the man, unto whom God reckoneth righteousness apart
7 from works, saying,
Blessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven,
And whose sins are covered.
8 Blessed is the man to whom the Lord will not reckon sin.
9 Is this blessing then pronounced upon the circumcision, or upon the uncircumcision also? for we say, To Abraham his faith was reckoned
10 for righteousness. How then was it reckoned? when he was in circumcision, or in uncircumcision? Not in circumcision, but in uncircumcision: and he received the sign of circumcision,
11 a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had while he was in uncircumcision: that he might be the father of all them that believe, though they be in uncircumcision, that right-
12 eousness might be reckoned unto them; and the father of circumcision to them who not only are of the circumcision, but who also walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham which 13 he had in uncircumcision. For not [2]through the law was the promise to Abraham or to his seed, that he should be heir of the world, but through 14 the righteousness of faith. For if they which are of the law be heirs, faith is made void, and 15 the promise is made of none effect: for the law worketh wrath; but where there is no law, nei-
16 ther is there transgression. For this cause it is of faith, that it may be according to grace; to the end that the promise may be sure to all the seed; not to that only which is of the law, but to that also which is of the faith of Abraham,
17 who is the father of us all (as it is written, A father of many nations have I made thee) before him whom he believed, even God, who quickeneth the dead, and calleth the things that 18 are not, as though they were. Who in hope believed against hope, to the end that he might become a father of many nations, according to that which had been spoken, So shall thy seed
19 be. And without being weakened in faith he considered his own body [3]now as good as dead (he being about a hundred years old), and the deadness
20 of Sarah's womb: yea, looking unto the promise of God, he wavered not through unbelief, but waxed strong through faith, giving glory to God,

1611

21 And being fully persuaded, that what he had promised, he was able also to perform.
22 And therefore it was imputed to him for righteousness.
23 Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him:
24 But for us also, to whom it shall be imputed, if we believe on him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead,
25 Who was delivered for our offences, and was raised again for our justification.

CHAP. V.

THEREFORE being justified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ.
2 By whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God.
3 And not only so, but we glory in tribulations also, knowing that tribulation worketh patience:
4 And patience, experience: and experience, hope:
5 And hope maketh not ashamed, because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts, by the holy Ghost, which is given unto us.
6 For when we were yet without strength, ‖ in due time Christ died for the ungodly.
7 For scarcely for a righteous man will one die: yet peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die.
8 But God commendeth his love towards us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.
9 Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.
10 For if when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God, by the death of his son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life.
11 And not only so, but we also joy in God, through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.
12 Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin: and so death passed upon all men, ‖ for that all have sinned.
13 For until the law sin was in the world: but sin is not imputed when there is no law.
14 Nevertheless, death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over them that had not sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression, who is the figure of him that was to come:
15 But not as the offence, so also is the free gift: for if through the offence of one many be dead: much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many.
16 And not as it was by one that sinned, so is the gift: for the judgment was by one to condemnation: but the free gift is of many offences unto justification.
17 For if ‖ by one man's offence death reigned by one, much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness, shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ.

21 and being fully assured that, what he had 22 promised, he was able also to perform. Wherefore also it was reckoned unto him for righteous-
23 ness. Now it was not written for his sake alone,
24 that it was reckoned unto him; but for our sake also, unto whom it shall be reckoned, who believe on him that raised Jesus our Lord from the 25 dead, who was delivered up for our trespasses, and was raised for our justification.

5 Being therefore justified [1]by faith, [2]let us have peace with God through our Lord Jesus
2 Christ; through whom also we have had our access [3]by faith into this grace wherein we stand; and [4]let us [5]rejoice in hope of the glory
3 of God. And not only so, but [6]let us also [5]rejoice in our tribulations: knowing that tribu-
4 lation worketh patience; and patience, proba-
5 tion; and probation, hope: and hope putteth not to shame; because the love of God hath been shed abroad in our hearts through the 6 [7]Holy Ghost which was given unto us. For while we were yet weak, in due season Christ
7 died for the ungodly. For scarcely for a righteous man will one die: for peradventure for [8]the good man some one would even dare to 8 die. But God commendeth his own love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners,
9 Christ died for us. Much more then, being now justified [9]by his blood, shall we be saved
10 from the wrath of God through him. For if, while we were enemies, we were reconciled to God through the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, shall we be saved [9]by his life;
11 and not only so, [10]but we also rejoice in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received the reconciliation.
12 Therefore, as through one man sin entered into the world, and death through sin; and so death passed unto all men, for that all sinned:
13 —for until the law sin was in the world: but sin
14 is not imputed when there is no law. Nevertheless death reigned from Adam until Moses, even over them that had not sinned after the likeness of Adam's transgression, who is a figure 15 of him that was to come. But not as the trespass, so also is the free gift. For if by the trespass of the one the many died, much more did the grace of God, and the gift by the grace of the one man, Jesus Christ, abound unto the 16 many. And not as through one that sinned, so is the gift: for the judgement came of one unto condemnation, but the free gift came of many 17 trespasses unto [11]justification. For if, by the trespass of the one, death reigned through the one; much more shall they that receive the abundance of grace and [12]of the gift of righteousness reign in life through the one, even Jesus Christ.

18 Therefore as ‖by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation: even so ‖by the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life.

19 For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners: so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous.

20 Moreover, the law entered, that the offence might abound: but where sin abounded, grace did much more abound.

21 That as sin hath reigned unto death; even so might grace reign through righteousness unto eternal life, by Jesus Christ our Lord.

CHAP. VI.

WHAT shall we say then? shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound?

2 God forbid: how shall we that are dead to sin live any longer therein?

3 Know ye not, that so many of us as ‖were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into his death?

4 Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life.

5 For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection:

6 Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin.

7 For he that is dead is †freed from sin.

8 Now if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him:

9 Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more, death hath no more dominion over him.

10 For in that he died, he died unto sin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God.

11 Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

12 Let not sin reign therefore in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof.

13 Neither yield ye your members as †instruments of unrighteousness unto sin: but yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God.

14 For sin shall not have dominion over you, for ye are not under the law, but under grace.

15 What then? shall we sin, because we are not under the law, but under grace? God forbid.

16 Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey: whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?

17 But God be thanked, that ye were the servants of sin: but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine †which was delivered you.

18 Being then made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness.

19 I speak after the manner of men, because of 18 So then as through one trespass the judgement came unto all men to condemnation; even so through one act of righteousness the free gift came unto all men to justification of life.

19 For as through the one man's disobedience the many were made sinners, even so through the obedience of the one shall the many be made

20 righteous. And [1]the law came in beside, that the trespass might abound; but where sin abounded, 21 grace did abound more exceedingly: that, as sin reigned in death, even so might grace reign through righteousness unto eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

6 What shall we say then? Shall we continue

3 live therein? Or are ye ignorant that all we who were baptized into Christ Jesus were bap-

4 tized into his death? We were buried therefore with him through baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised from the dead through the glory of the Father, so we also might walk

5 in newness of life. For if we have become [2]united with him by the likeness of his death, we shall be also by the likeness of his resurrec-

6 tion; knowing this, that our old man was crucified with him, that the body of sin might be done away, that so we should no longer be in

7 bondage to sin; for he that hath died is justi-

8 fied from sin. But if we died with Christ, we be-

9 lieve that we shall also live with him; knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death no more hath dominion over him.

10 For [3]the death that he died, he died unto sin [4]once: but [3]the life that he liveth, he liveth

11 unto God. Even so reckon ye also yourselves to be dead unto sin, but alive unto God in Christ Jesus.

12 Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey the lusts thereof:

13 neither present your members unto sin as [5]instruments of unrighteousness; but present yourselves unto God, as alive from the dead, and your members as [5]instruments of righteousness

14 unto God. For sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under law, but under grace.

15 What then? shall we sin, because we are not under law, but under grace? God forbid.

16 Know ye not, that to whom ye present yourselves as [6]servants unto obedience, his [6]servants ye are whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?

17 But thanks be to God, [7]that, whereas ye were [6]servants of sin, ye became obedient from the heart to that [8]form of teaching whereunto ye

18 were delivered; and being made free from 19 sin, ye became [6]servants of righteousness. I speak after the manner of men because of the infirmity of your flesh: for as ye have yielded your members servants to uncleanness and to iniquity, unto iniquity: even so now yield your members servants to righteousness, unto holiness.

20 For when ye were the servants of sin ye were free †from righteousness.

21 What fruit had ye then in those things, whereof ye are now ashamed? for the end of those things is death.

22 But now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life.

23 For the wages of sin is death: but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

CHAP. VII.

KNOW ye not, brethren (for I speak to them that know the law) how that the law hath dominion over a man, as long as he liveth?

2 For the woman which hath an husband, is bound by the law to her husband, so long as he liveth: but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of the husband.

3 So then if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress: but if her husband be dead, she is free from that law, so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man.

4 Wherefore my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ, that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God.

5 For when we were in the flesh, the †motions of sins which were by the law did work in our members, to bring forth fruit unto death.

6 But now we are delivered from the law, ||that being dead wherein we were held, that we should serve in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter.

7 What shall we say then? is the law sin? God forbid. Nay, I had not known sin, but by the law: for I had not known ||lust, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet.

8 But sin, taking occasion by the commandment, wrought in me all manner of concupiscence. For without the law sin was dead.

9 For I was alive without the law once, but when the commandment came, sin revived, and I died.

10 And the commandment which was ordained to life, I found to be unto death.

11 For sin, taking occasion by the commandment, deceived me, and by it slew me.

12 Wherefore the law is holy, and the commandment holy, and just, and good.

13 Was that then which is good, made death unto me? God forbid. But sin, that it might appear sin, working death in me by that which is good: that sin by the commandment might become exceeding sinful.

14 For we know that the law is spiritual: but I am carnal, sold under sin.

15 For that which I do, I †allow not: for what I would, that do I not, but what I hate, that do I.

the infirmity of your flesh: for as ye presented your members as servants to uncleanness and to iniquity unto iniquity, even so now present your members as servants to righteousness unto 20 sanctification. For when ye were [1]servants of sin, ye were free in regard of righteousness.
21 What fruit then had ye at that time in the things whereof ye are now ashamed? for the end
22 of those things is death. But now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto sanctification, and the end
23 eternal life. For the wages of sin is death; but the free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord.

7 Or are ye ignorant, brethren (for I speak to men that know [2]the law), how that the law hath dominion over a man for so long time as he
2 liveth? For the woman that hath a husband is bound by law to the husband while he liveth; but if the husband die, she is discharged from
3 the law of the husband. So then if, while the husband liveth, she be joined to another man, she shall be called an adulteress: but if the husband die, she is free from the law, so that she is no adulteress, though she be joined to another
4 man. Wherefore, my brethren, ye also were made dead to the law through the body of Christ; that ye should be joined to another, even to him who was raised from the dead, that
5 we might bring forth fruit unto God. For when we were in the flesh, the [3]sinful passions, which were through the law, wrought in our
6 members to bring forth fruit unto death. But now we have been discharged from the law, having died to that wherein we were holden; so that we serve in newness of the spirit, and not in oldness of the letter.
7 What shall we say then? Is the law sin? God forbid. Howbeit, I had not known sin, except through [2]the law: for I had not known [4]coveting, except the law had said, Thou shalt 8 not [4]covet: but sin, finding occasion, wrought in me through the commandment all manner of [4]coveting: for apart from [2]the law sin is 9 dead. And I was alive apart from [2]the law once: but when the commandment came, sin
10 revived, and I died; and the commandment, which was unto life, this I found to be unto 11 death: for sin, finding occasion, through the commandment beguiled me, and through it
12 slew me. So that the law is holy, and the commandment holy, and righteous, and good.
13 Did then that which is good become death unto me? God forbid. But sin, that it might be shewn to be sin, by working death to me through that which is good;—that through the commandment sin might become exceeding sin-
14 ful. For we know that the law is spiritual:
15 but I am carnal, sold under sin. For that which I [5]do I know not: for not what I would, that do I practise; but what I hate, that I do.

1611

16 If then I do that which I would not, I consent unto the law, that it is good.
17 Now then, it is no more I that do it: but sin that dwelleth in me.
18 For I know, that in me (that is, in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing. For to will is present with me: but how to perform that which is good, I find not.
19 For the good that I would, I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do.
20 Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me.
21 I find then a law, that when I would do good, evil is present with me.
22 For I delight in the law of God, after the inward man.
23 But I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members.
24 O wretched man that I am: who shall deliver me from ‖the body of this death?
25 I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord.
So then, with the mind I myself serve the law of God: but with the flesh the law of sin.

CHAP. VIII.

THERE is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit.
2 For the law of the spirit of life, in Christ Jesus, hath made me free from the law of sin and death.
3 For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God, sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and ‖for sin, condemned sin in the flesh:
4 That the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit.
5 For they that are after the flesh, do mind the things of the flesh: but they that are after the spirit, the things of the spirit.
6 For †to be carnally minded, is death: but †to be spiritually minded, is life and peace:
7 Because †the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be.
8 So then they that are in the flesh, cannot please God.
9 But ye are not in the flesh, but in the spirit, if so be that the spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his.
10 And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin: but the spirit is life because of righteousness.
11 But if the spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead, dwell in you: he that raised up Christ from the dead, shall also quicken your mortal bodies, ‖by his spirit that dwelleth in you.
12 Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh.
13 For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye through the spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live.

16 But if what I would not, that I do, I consent
17 unto the law that it is good. So now it is no more I that [1]do it, but sin which dwelleth in 18 me. For I know that in me, that is, in my flesh, dwelleth no good thing: for to will is present with me, but to [1]do that which is good 19 is not. For the good which I would I do not:
but the evil which I would not, that I practise.
20 But if what I would not, that I do, it is no more I that [1]do it, but sin which dwelleth in 21 me. I find then [2]the law, that, to me who 22 would do good, evil is present. For I delight 23 [3]in the law of God after the inward man: but I see a different law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity [4]under the law of sin which is in 24 my members. O wretched man that I am!
who shall deliver me out of [5]the body of this 25 death? [6]I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord. So then I myself with the mind serve the law of God; but with the flesh the law of sin.

8 There is therefore now no condemnation to 2 them that are in Christ Jesus. For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus made me free 3 from the law of sin and of death. For what the law could not do, [7]in that it was weak through the flesh, God, sending his own Son in the likeness of [8]sinful flesh [9]and as an offering for sin, 4 condemned sin in the flesh: that the [10]ordinance of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk 5 not after the flesh, but after the spirit. For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the spirit the 6 things of the spirit. For the mind of the flesh is death; but the mind of the spirit is life and 7 peace: because the mind of the flesh is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of 8 God, neither indeed can it be: and they that 9 are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you. But if any man hath not the Spirit of Christ, he is none 10 of his. And if Christ is in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the spirit is life be-11 cause of righteousness. But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwelleth in you, he that raised up Christ Jesus from the dead shall quicken also your mortal bodies
[11]through his Spirit that dwelleth in you.
12 So then, brethren, we are debtors, not to the 13 flesh, to live after the flesh: for if ye live after the flesh, ye must die; but if by the spirit ye [12]mortify the [13]deeds of the body, ye shall live.

14 For as many as are led by the spirit of God, they are the sons of God.
15 For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear: but ye have received the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, father.
16 The spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God.
17 And if children, then heirs, heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ: if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together.
18 For I reckon, that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us.
19 For the earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God.
20 For the creature was made subject to vanity, not willingly, but by reason of him who hath subjected the same in hope:
21 Because the creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption, into the glorious liberty of the children of God.
22 For we know that ‖ the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now.
23 And not only they, but ourselves, also which have the firstfruits of the spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves waiting for the adoption, to wit, the [a]redemption of our body.
24 For we are saved by hope: but hope that is seen, is not hope: for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for?
25 But if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it.
26 Likewise the spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what we should pray for as we ought: but the spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered.
27 And he that searcheth the hearts, knoweth what is the mind of the spirit, ‖ because he maketh intercession for the Saints, according to the will of God.
28 And we know that all things work together for good, to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose.
29 For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his son, that he might be the firstborn amongst many brethren.
30 Moreover, whom he did predestinate, them he also called: and whom he called, them he also justified: and whom he justified, them he also glorified.
31 What shall we then say to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us?
32 He that spared not his own son, but delivered him up for us all: how shall he not with him also freely give us all things?
33 Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth:
34 Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us.

14 For as many as are led by the Spirit of God,

[8] Or, Shall Christ Jesus that died, ... us?

1611

35 Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?

36 (As it is written, [b]for thy sake we are killed all the day long, we are accounted as sheep for the slaughter.)

37 Nay in all these things we are more than conquerors, through him that loved us.

38 For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come,

39 Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

CHAP. IX.

I SAY the truth in Christ, I lie not, my conscience also bearing me witness in the holy Ghost,

2 That I have great heaviness and continual sorrow in my heart.

3 For I could wish that myself were ‖accursed from Christ for my brethren, my kinsmen according to the flesh:

4 Who are Israelites: to whom pertaineth the adoption, and the glory, and the ‖covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the promises:

5 Whose are the fathers, and of whom as concerning the flesh Christ came, who is over all, God blessed for ever. Amen.

6 Not as though the word of God hath taken none effect. For they are not all Israel which are of Israel:

7 Neither because they are the seed of Abraham are they all children: but [a]in Isaac shall thy seed be called.

8 That is, They which are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God: but the children of the promise are counted for the seed.

9 For this is the word of promise, [b]At this time will I come, and Sarah shall have a son.

10 And not only this, but when Rebecca also had conceived by one, even by our father Isaac,

11 (For the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, that the purpose of God according to election might stand, not of works, but of him that calleth;)

12 It was said unto her, [c]The ‖elder shall serve the ‖younger.

13 As it is written, [d]Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated.

14 What shall we say then? Is there unrighteousness with God? God forbid.

15 For he saith to Moses, [e]I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion.

16 So then it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that sheweth mercy.

17 For the Scripture saith unto Pharaoh, [f]Even for this same purpose have I raised thee up, that I might shew my power in thee, and that my Name might be declared throughout all the earth.

35 Who shall separate us from the love [1]of Christ? shall tribulation, or anguish, or persecution, or 36 famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? Even as it is written,

For thy sake we are killed all the day long;
We were accounted as sheep for the slaughter.

37 Nay, in all these things we are more than con-
38 querors through him that loved us. For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor

9 I say the truth in Christ, I lie not, my conscience bearing witness with me in the Holy
2 Ghost, that I have great sorrow and unceasing
3 pain in my heart. For I could [3]wish that I myself were anathema from Christ for my brethren's sake, my kinsmen according to the flesh:
4 who are Israelites; whose is the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the prom-
5 ises; whose are the fathers, and of whom is Christ as concerning the flesh, [4]who is over all,
6 God blessed [5]for ever. Amen. But it is not as though the word of God hath come to nought. For they are not all Israel, which are of Israel:
7 neither, because they are Abraham's seed, are they all children: but, In Isaac shall thy seed
8 be called. That is, it is not the children of the flesh that are children of God; but the children
9 of the promise are reckoned for a seed. For this is a word of promise, According to this season will I come, and Sarah shall have a son.
10 And not only so; but Rebecca also having con-
11 ceived by one, even by our father Isaac—for the children being not yet born, neither having done anything good or bad, that the purpose of God according to election might stand, not 12 of works, but of him that calleth, it was said unto her, The elder shall serve the younger.
13 Even as it is written, Jacob I loved, but Esau I hated.

14 What shall we say then? Is there unright-
15 eousness with God? God forbid. For he saith to Moses, I will have mercy on whom I have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I
16 have compassion. So then it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God
17 that hath mercy. For the scripture saith unto Pharaoh, For this very purpose did I raise thee up, that I might shew in thee my power, and that my name might be published abroad in all the earth.

1611

18 Therefore hath he mercy on whom he will have mercy, and whom he will he hardeneth.

19 Thou wilt say then unto me; Why doth he yet find fault? For who hath resisted his will?

20 Nay but, O man, who art thou that ||repliest against God? [g]Shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, Why hast thou made me thus?

21 Hath not the [h]potter power over the clay, of the same lump, to make one vessel unto honour, and another unto dishonour?

22 What if God, willing to shew his wrath, and to make his power known, endureth with much longsuffering the vessels of wrath ||fitted to destruction:

23 And that he might make known the riches of his glory on the vessels of mercy, which he had afore prepared unto glory,

24 Even us whom he hath called, not of the Jews only, but also of the Gentiles?

25 As he saith also in Osee, [i]I will call them my people, which were not my people: and her, beloved, which was not beloved.

26 [k]And it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, there shall they be called the children of the living God.

27 Esaias also crieth concerning Israel, [l]Though the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea, a remnant shall be saved.

28 For he will finish ||the work, and cut it short in righteousness: because a short work will the Lord make upon the earth.

29 And as Esaias said before, [m]Except the Lord of Sabaoth had left us a seed, we had been as Sodoma, and been made like unto Gomorrha.

30 What shall we say then? That the Gentiles which followed not after righteousness, have attained to righteousness, even the righteousness which is of faith:

31 But Israel which followed after the law of righteousness, hath not attained to the law of righteousness.

32 Wherefore? because they sought it not by faith, but as it were by the works of the law: for they stumbled at that stumblingstone,

33 As it is written, [n]Behold, I lay in Sion a stumblingstone, and rock of offence: and whosoever believeth on him, shall not be ||ashamed.

CHAP. X.

BRETHREN, my heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved.

2 For I bear them record, that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge.

3 For they being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God.

4 For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth.

5 For Moses describeth the righteousness which 24 even us, whom he also called, not from the

I will call that my people, which was not my people;
And her beloved, which was not beloved.

26 And it shall be, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people,
There shall they be called sons of the living God.

27 And Isaiah crieth concerning Israel, If the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea, it is the remnant that shall 28 be saved: for the Lord will execute his word upon the earth, finishing it and cutting it short.
29 And, as Isaiah hath said before,

Except the Lord of Sabaoth had left us a seed,
We had become as Sodom, and had been made like unto Gomorrah.

30 What shall we say then? That the Gentiles, which followed not after righteousness, attained to righteousness, even the righteousness which 31 is of faith: but Israel, following after a law of 32 righteousness, did not arrive at that law. Wherefore? [2]Because they sought it not by faith, but as it were by works. They stumbled at the stone 33 of stumbling; even as it is written,

Behold, I lay in Zion a stone of stumbling and a rock of offence:
And he that believeth on [3]him shall not be put to shame.

10 Brethren, my heart's [4]desire and my supplication to God is for them, that they may be
2 saved. For I bear them witness that they have a zeal for God, but not according to knowledge.
3 For being ignorant of God's righteousness, and seeking to establish their own, they did not sub-
4 ject themselves to the righteousness of God. For Christ is the end of the law unto righteousness
5 to every one that believeth. For Moses writeth that the man that doeth the righteousness which is of the law, that [a]the man which doeth those things shall live by them.

6 But the righteousness which is of faith, speaketh on this wise: [b]Say not in thine heart, Who shall ascend into heaven? That is to bring Christ down from above.

7 Or, Who shall descend into the deep? That is to bring up Christ again from the dead.

8 But what saith it? [c]The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that is the word of faith which we preach,

9 That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved.

10 For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation.

11 For the Scripture saith, [d]Whosoever believeth on him, shall not be ashamed.

12 For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him.

13 [e]For whosoever shall call upon the Name of the Lord, shall be saved.

14 How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a Preacher?

15 And how shall they preach, except they be sent? as it is written: [f]How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the Gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!

16 But they have not all obeyed the Gospel. For Esaias saith, [g]Lord, who hath believed †our ‖report?

17 So then, faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God.

18 But I say, have they not heard? yes verily, [h]their sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world.

19 But I say, Did not Israel know? First Moses saith, [i]I will provoke you to jealousy by them that are no people, and by a foolish nation I will anger you.

20 But Esaias is very bold, and saith, [k]I was found of them that sought me not: I was made manifest unto them that asked not after me.

21 But to Israel he saith, [l]All day long I have stretched forth my hands unto a disobedient and gainsaying people.

CHAP. XI.

I SAY then, Hath God cast away his people? God forbid. For I also am an Israelite of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin.

2 God hath not cast away his people which he foreknew. Wot ye not what the Scripture saith of Elias? how he maketh intercession to God against Israel, saying,

3 [a]Lord, they have killed thy Prophets, and digged down thine Altars, and I am left alone, and they seek my life.

6 is of the law shall live thereby. But the right-thy heart, Who shall ascend into heaven? (that 7 is, to bring Christ down:) or, Who shall descend into the abyss? (that is, to bring Christ up from 8 the dead.) But what saith it? The word is nigh thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that 9 is, the word of faith, which we preach: [1]because if thou shalt [2]confess with thy mouth Jesus as Lord, and shalt believe in thy heart that God raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved:

10 for with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made 11 unto salvation. For the scripture saith, Whosoever believeth on him shall not be put to 12 shame. For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek: for the same Lord is Lord of all, and is rich unto all that call upon him:
13 for, Whosoever shall call upon the name of the 14 Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a 15 preacher? and how shall they preach, except they be sent? even as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that bring [3]glad tidings of good things!

16 But they did not all hearken to the [4]glad tidings. For Isaiah saith, Lord, who hath be-17 lieved our report? So belief cometh of hear-18 ing, and hearing by the word of Christ. But I say, Did they not hear? Yea, verily,

Their sound went out into all the earth,
And their words unto the ends of [5]the world.

19 But I say, Did Israel not know? First Moses saith,

I will provoke you to jealousy with that which is no nation,
With a nation void of understanding will
I anger you.

20 And Isaiah is very bold, and saith,

I was found of them that sought me not;
I became manifest unto them that asked not of me.

21 But as to Israel he saith, All the day long did I spread out my hands unto a disobedient and gainsaying people.

11 I say then, Did God cast off his people?
God forbid. For I also am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin.
2 God did not cast off his people which he fore-knew. Or wot ye not what the scripture saith [6]of Elijah? how he pleadeth with God against 3 Israel, Lord, they have killed thy prophets, they have digged down thine altars: and I am left alone, and they seek my life.

1611

4 But what saith the answer of God unto him? [b]I have reserved to myself seven thousand men, who have not bowed the knee to the image of Baal.
5 Even so then at this present time also there is a remnant according to the election of grace.
6 And if by grace, then is it no more of works: otherwise grace is no more grace. But if it be of works, then is it no more grace, otherwise work is no more work.
7 What then? Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for, but the election hath obtained it, and the rest were ‖blinded,
8 According as it is written, [c]God hath given them the spirit of ‖slumber: [d]eyes that they should not see, and ears that they should not hear, unto this day.
9 And David saith, [e]Let their table be made a snare, and a trap, and a stumblingblock, and a recompense unto them.
10 [f]Let their eyes be darkened, that they may not see, and bow down their back alway.
11 I say then; Have they stumbled that they should fall? God forbid. But rather through their fall salvation is come unto the Gentiles, for to provoke them to jealousy.
12 Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the ‖diminishing of them, the riches of the Gentiles: how much more their fulness?
13 For I speak to you Gentiles, inasmuch as I am the Apostle of the Gentiles, I magnify mine office:
14 If by any means I may provoke to emulation them which are my flesh, and might save some of them.
15 For if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world: what shall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead?
16 For if the firstfruit be holy, the lump is also holy: and if the root be holy, so are the branches.
17 And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree, wert graffed in ‖amongst them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree:
18 Boast not against the branches: but if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee.
19 Thou wilt say then, The branches were broken off, that I might be graffed in.
20 Well: because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not highminded, but fear.
21 For if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee.
22 Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God: on them which fell, severity; but towards thee, goodness, if thou continue in his goodness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off.
23 And they also, if they bide not still in unbelief, shall be graffed in: for God is able to graff them in again.
24 For if thou wert cut out of the olive tree which is wild by nature, and wert graffed contrary to nature into a good olive tree: how much more shall these

4 But what saith the answer of God unto him? I have left for myself seven thousand men, who have
5 not bowed the knee to Baal. Even so then at this present time also there is a remnant accord-
6 ing to the election of grace. But if it is by grace, it is no more of works: otherwise grace is 7 no more grace. What then? That which Israel seeketh for, that he obtained not; but the election obtained it, and the rest were hardened:
8 according as it is written, God gave them a spirit of stupor, eyes that they should not see, and ears that they should not hear, unto this very

13 But I speak to you that are Gentiles. Inasmuch then as I am an apostle of Gentiles, I
14 glorify my ministry: if by any means I may provoke to jealousy them that are my flesh, and 15 may save some of them. For if the casting away of them is the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be, but life from 16 the dead? And if the firstfruit is holy, so is the lump: and if the root is holy, so are the 17 branches. But if some of the branches were broken off, and thou, being a wild olive, wast grafted in among them, and didst become partaker with them [2]of the root of the fatness of 18 the olive tree; glory not over the branches: but if thou gloriest, it is not thou that bearest the 19 root, but the root thee. Thou wilt say then, Branches were broken off, that I might be grafted
20 in. Well; by their unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by thy faith. Be not high-
21 minded, but fear: for if God spared not the natural branches, neither will he spare thee.
22 Behold then the goodness and severity of God: toward them that fell, severity; but toward thee, God's goodness, if thou continue in his good-
23 ness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off. And they also, if they continue not in their unbelief, shall be grafted in: for God is able to graft 24 them in again. For if thou wast cut out of that which is by nature a wild olive tree, and wast grafted contrary to nature into a good olive tree: how much more shall these, which be the natural branches, be graffed into their own olive tree?

25 For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery (lest ye should be wise in your own conceits) that ||blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in.

26 And so all Israel shall be saved, as it is written, [g]There shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob.

27 For this is my covenant unto them, when I shall take away their sins.

28 As concerning the Gospel, they are enemies for your sake: but as touching the election, they are beloved for the fathers' sakes.

29 For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance.

30 For as ye in times past have not ||believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief:

31 Even so have these also now not ||believed, that through your mercy they also may obtain mercy.

32 For God hath ||concluded them all in unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all.

33 O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out!

34 [h]For who hath known the mind of the Lord, or who hath been his counsellor?

35 Or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed unto him again?

36 For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen.

CHAP. XII.

I BESEECH you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service.

2 And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, that acceptable, and perfect will of God.

3 For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think, but to think †soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith.

4 For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office:

5 So we being many are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another.

6 Having then gifts, differing according to the grace that is given to us, whether prophecy, let us prophesy according to the proportion of faith.

2 [8]reasonable [9]service. And be not fashioned according to this [10]world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is [11]the good and [7]acceptable and perfect will of God.

3 For I say, through the grace that was given me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but so to think as to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to each man a measure of faith. For even as we have many mem-
4 bers in one body, and all the members have not
5 the same office: so we, who are many, are one body in Christ, and severally members one of 6 another. And having gifts differing according to the grace that was given to us, whether prophecy, let us prophesy according to the 7 proportion of [12]our faith; or ministry, let us give ourselves to our ministry; or he that teach-
8 eth, to his teaching; or he that exhorteth, to his exhorting: he that giveth, let him do it with [13]liberality; he that ruleth, with diligence; he that sheweth mercy, with cheerfulness.

9 Let love be without dissimulation: abhor that which is evil, cleave to that which is good.
10 Be kindly affectioned one to another ||with brotherly love, in honour preferring one another.
11 Not slothful in business: fervent in spirit, serving the Lord.
12 Rejoicing in hope, patient in tribulation, continuing instant in prayer.
13 Distributing to the necessity of Saints; given to hospitality.
14 Bless them which persecute you, bless, and curse not.
15 Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep.
16 Be of the same mind one towards another. Mind not high things, but ||condescend to men of low estate. Be not wise in your own conceits.
17 Recompense to no man evil for evil. Provide things honest in the sight of all men.
18 If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men.
19 Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath: for it is written, [a]Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord.
20 [b]Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him: if he thirst, give him drink. For in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head.
21 Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.

CHAP. XIII.

LET every soul be subject unto the higher powers: For there is no power but of God. The powers that be, are ||ordained of God.
2 Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist, shall receive to themselves damnation.
3 For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same.
4 For he is the minister of God to thee for good: but if thou do that which is evil, be afraid: for he beareth not the sword in vain: for he is the minister of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil.
5 Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not only for wrath, but also for conscience sake.
6 For, for this cause pay you tribute also: for they are God's ministers, attending continually upon this very thing.
7 Render therefore to all their dues, tribute to whom tribute is due, custom to whom custom, fear to whom fear, honour to whom honour.
8 Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law.
9 For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Thou shalt not covet: and if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this saying, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

9 Let love be without hypocrisy. Abhor that which 10 is evil; cleave to that which is good. In love of the brethren be tenderly affectioned one to 11 another; in honour preferring one another; in diligence not slothful; fervent in spirit; serving 12 [1]the Lord; rejoicing in hope; patient in tribu-
13 lation; continuing stedfastly in prayer; communicating to the necessities of the saints;
14 [2]given to hospitality. Bless them that persecute
15 you; bless, and curse not. Rejoice with them
16 that rejoice; weep with them that weep. Be of the same mind one toward another. Set not your mind on high things, but [3]condescend to [4]things that are lowly. Be not wise in your 17 own conceits. Render to no man evil for evil. Take thought for things honourable in the sight
18 of all men. If it be possible, as much as in 19 you lieth, be at peace with all men. Avenge not yourselves, beloved, but give place unto [5]wrath: for it is written, Vengeance belongeth unto me; I will recompense, saith the Lord.
20 But if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him to drink: for in so doing thou 21 shalt heap coals of fire upon his head. Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.

13 Let every soul be in subjection to the higher powers: for there is no power but of God; and
2 the powers that be are ordained of God. Therefore he that resisteth the power, withstandeth the ordinance of God: and they that withstand
3 shall receive to themselves judgement. For rulers are not a terror to the good work, but to the evil. And wouldest thou have no fear of the power? do that which is good, and thou
4 shalt have praise from the same: for [6]he is a minister of God to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, be afraid; for [6]he beareth not the sword in vain: for [6]he is a minister of God, an avenger for wrath to him that doeth
5 evil. Wherefore ye must needs be in subjection, not only because of the wrath, but also 6 for conscience sake. For for this cause ye pay tribute also; for they are ministers of God's service, attending continually upon this very 7 thing. Render to all their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honour to whom honour.
8 Owe no man anything, save to love one another: for he that loveth [7]his neighbour hath ful-
9 filled [8]the law. For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not covet, and if there be any other commandment, it is summed up in this word, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

1611

10 Love worketh no ill to his neighbour, therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.
11 And that, knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed.
12 The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light.
13 Let us walk ‖honestly as in the day, not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying.
14 But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof.

CHAP. XIV.

HIM that is weak in the faith receive you, but ‖not to doubtful disputations.
2 For one believeth that he may eat all things: another who is weak, eateth herbs.
3 Let not him that eateth, despise him that eateth not: and let not him which eateth not, judge him that eateth. For God hath received him.
4 Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth; Yea he shall be holden up: for God is able to make him stand.
5 One man esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be ‖fully persuaded in his own mind.
6 He that ‖regardeth a day, regardeth it unto the Lord; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks: and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks.
7 For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself.
8 For whether we live, we live unto the Lord: and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore or die, we are the Lord's.
9 For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living.
10 But why dost thou judge thy brother? or why dost thou set at nought thy brother? [a]we shall all stand before the Judgment seat of Christ.
11 For it is written, [b]As I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God.
12 So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God.
13 Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge this rather, that no man put a stumblingblock or an occasion to fall in his brother's way.
14 I know, and am persuaded by the Lord Jesus, that there is nothing †unclean of itself: but to him that esteemeth any thing to be †unclean, to him it is unclean.

10 Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: love therefore is the fulfilment of [1]the law.
11 And this, knowing the season, that now it is high time for you to awake out of sleep: for now is [2]salvation nearer to us than when we 12 first believed. The night is far spent, and the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the

14 But him that is weak in faith receive ye, yet
2 not [3]to doubtful disputations. One man hath faith to eat all things: but he that is weak
3 eateth herbs. Let not him that eateth set at nought him that eateth not; and let not him that eateth not judge him that eateth: for God
4 hath received him. Who art thou that judgest the [4]servant of another? to his own lord he standeth or falleth. Yea, he shall be made to stand; for the Lord hath power to make him
5 stand. One man esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. Let each man be fully assured in his own
6 mind. He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord: and he that eateth, eateth unto the Lord, for he giveth God thanks; and he that eateth not, unto the Lord he eateth
7 not, and giveth God thanks. For none of us liveth to himself, and none dieth to himself.
8 For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; or whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the 9 Lord's. For to this end Christ died, and lived again, that he might be Lord of both the dead
10 and the living. But thou, why dost thou judge thy brother? or thou again, why dost thou set at nought thy brother? for we shall all stand 11 before the judgement-seat of God. For it is written,

> As I live, saith the Lord, to me every knee shall bow,
> And every tongue shall [5]confess to God.

12 So then each one of us shall give account of himself to God.
13 Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge ye this rather, that no man put a stumblingblock in his brother's way, or 14 an occasion of falling. I know, and am persuaded in the Lord Jesus, that nothing is unclean of itself: save that to him who accounteth anything to be unclean, to him it is unclean.
15 For if because of meat thy brother is grieved, thou walkest no longer in love. Destroy not with thy meat him for whom Christ died.

16 Let not then your good be evil spoken of.
17 For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the holy Ghost.
18 For he that in these things serveth Christ, is acceptable to God, and approved of men.
19 Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another.
20 For meat destroy not the work of God: [d]all things indeed are pure; but it is evil for that man who eateth with offence.
21 It is good neither to eat [e]flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak.
22 Hast thou faith? have it to thyself before God. Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth.
23 And he that ‖doubteth, is damned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith: For whatsoever is not of faith, is sin.

CHAP. XV.

WE then that are strong, ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves.
2 Let every one of us please his neighbour for his good to edification.
3 For even Christ pleased not himself, but, as it is written, [a]The reproaches of them that reproached thee, fell on me.
4 For whatsoever things were written aforetime, were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope.
5 [b]Now the God of patience and consolation grant you to be likeminded one towards another, ‖according to Christ Jesus:
6 That ye may with one mind and one mouth glorify God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.
7 Wherefore receive ye one another, as Christ also received us, to the glory of God.
8 Now I say, that Jesus Christ was a Minister of the circumcision for the truth of God, to confirm the promises made unto the fathers:
9 And that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy, as it is written, [c]For this cause I will confess to thee among the Gentiles, and sing unto thy Name.
10 And again he saith, [d]Rejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people.
11 And again, [e]Praise the Lord, all ye Gentiles, and laud him, all ye people.
12 And again Esaias saith, [f]There shall be a root of Jesse, and he that shall rise to reign over the Gentiles, in him shall the Gentiles trust.
13 Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope through the power of the holy Ghost.

16 Let not then your good be evil spoken of:
17 for the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the 18 Holy Ghost. For he that herein serveth Christ is well-pleasing to God, and approved of men.
19 So then [1]let us follow after things which make for peace, and things whereby we may edify one
20 another. Overthrow not for meat's sake the work of God. All things indeed are clean; howbeit it is evil for that man who eateth with 21 offence. It is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother
22 stumbleth[2]. The faith which thou hast, have thou to thyself before God. Happy is he that judgeth not himself in that which he [3]ap-
23 proveth. But he that doubteth is condemned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith; and whatsoever is not of faith is sin[4].

15 Now we that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please our-
2 selves. Let each one of us please his neighbour

4 thee fell upon me. For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that through patience and through comfort of 5 the scriptures we might have hope. Now the God of patience and of comfort grant you to be of the same mind one with another according to 6 Christ Jesus: that with one accord ye may with one mouth glorify the God and Father of our 7 Lord Jesus Christ. Wherefore receive ye one another, even as Christ also received [5]you, to the 8 glory of God. For I say that Christ hath been made a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God, that he might confirm the promises
9 given unto the fathers, and that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy; as it is written,

Therefore will I [6]give praise unto thee among the Gentiles,
And sing unto thy name.

10 And again he saith,

Rejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people.

11 And again,

Praise the Lord, all ye Gentiles;
And let all the peoples praise him.

12 And again, Isaiah saith,

There shall be the root of Jesse,
And he that ariseth to rule over the Gentiles;
On him shall the Gentiles hope.

13 Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, in the power of the Holy Ghost.
14 And I myself also am persuaded of you, my brethren, that ye yourselves are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, able also to admonish one another.

15 Nevertheless, brethren, I have written the more boldly unto you, in some sort, as putting you in mind, because of the grace that is given to me of God,

16 That I should be the minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, ministering the Gospel of God, that the ‖offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being sanctified by the holy Ghost.

17 I have therefore whereof I may glory through Jesus Christ, in those things which pertain to God.

18 For I will not dare to speak of any of those things which Christ hath not wrought by me, to make the Gentiles obedient, by word and deed, 19 Through mighty signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God, so that from Jerusalem, and round about unto Illyricum, I have fully preached the Gospel of Christ.

20 Yea, so have I strived to preach the Gospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should build upon another man's foundation:

21 But as it is written, [g]To whom he was not spoken of, they shall see: and they that have not heard, shall understand.

22 For which cause also I have been ‖much hindered from coming to you.

23 But now having no more place in these parts, and having a great desire these many years to come unto you:

24 Whensoever I take my journey into Spain, I will come to you: for I trust to see you in my journey, and to be brought on my way thitherward by you, if first I be somewhat filled †with your company.

25 But now I go unto Jerusalem, to minister unto the Saints.

26 For it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certain contribution for the poor Saints which are at Jerusalem.

27 It hath pleased them verily, and their debtors they are. For if the Gentiles have been made partakers of their spiritual things, their duty is also to minister unto them in carnal things.

28 When therefore I have performed this, and have sealed to them this fruit, I will come by you into Spain.

29 And I am sure that, when I come unto you, I shall come in the fulness of the blessing of the Gospel of Christ.

30 Now I beseech you, brethren, for the Lord Jesus Christ's sake, and for the love of the Spirit, that ye strive together with me in your prayers to God for me,

31 That I may be delivered from them that ‖do not believe in Judæa, and that my service which I have for Jerusalem may be accepted of the Saints:

32 That I may come unto you with joy by the will of God, and may with you be refreshed.

33 Now the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

filled with all knowledge, able also to admonish one another. But I write the more boldly unto you in some measure, as putting you again in remembrance, because of the grace that was given me of God, that I should be a minister of Christ Jesus unto the Gentiles, [1]ministering the gospel of God, that the offering up of the Gentiles might be made acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost. I have therefore my glorying in Christ Jesus in things pertaining to God. For I will not dare to speak of any [2]things save those which Christ wrought through me, for the obedience of the Gentiles, by word and deed, in the power of signs and wonders, in the power of [3]the Holy Ghost; so that from Jerusalem, and round about even unto Illyricum, I have [4]fully preached the gospel of Christ; yea, [5]making it my aim so to preach the gospel, not where Christ was already named, that I might not build upon another man's foundation; but, as it is written,

> They shall see, to whom no tidings of him came,
> And they who have not heard shall understand.

Wherefore also I was hindered these many times from coming to you: but now, having no more any place in these regions, and having these many years a longing to come unto you, whensoever I go unto Spain (for I hope to see you in my journey, and to be brought on my way thitherward by you, if first in some measure I shall have been satisfied with your company)—but now, I say, I go unto Jerusalem, ministering unto the saints. For it hath been the good pleasure of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certain contribution for the poor among the saints that are at Jerusalem. Yea, it hath been their good pleasure; and their debtors they are. For if the Gentiles have been made partakers of their spiritual things, they owe it to them also to minister unto them in carnal things. When therefore I have accomplished this, and have sealed to them this fruit, I will go on by you unto Spain. And I know that, when I come unto you, I shall come in the fulness of the blessing of Christ.

Now I beseech you, brethren, by our Lord Jesus Christ, and by the love of the Spirit, that ye strive together with me in your prayers to God for me; that I may be delivered from them that are disobedient in Judæa, and that my ministration which I have for Jerusalem may be acceptable to the saints; that I may come unto you in joy through the will of God, and together with you find rest. Now the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

16 I commend unto you Phœbe our sister, who is a [6]servant of the church that is at Cenchreæ:

Christ, according to the revelation of the mystery, which was kept secret since the world began,

26 But now is made manifest, and by the Scriptures of the Prophets, according to the commandment of the everlasting God, made known to all nations for the obedience of faith, 27 To God, only wise, be glory through Jesus Christ, for ever. Amen.

Christ, according to the revelation of the mystery which hath been kept in silence
26 through times eternal, but now is manifested, and [1]by the scriptures of the prophets, according to the commandment of the eternal God, is made known unto all the nations unto obedience
27 [2]of faith; to the only wise God, through Jesus Christ, [3]to whom be the glory [4]for ever. Amen.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE CORINTHIANS.

CHAP. I.

PAUL called to be an Apostle of Jesus Christ through the will of God, and Sosthenes our brother,

2 Unto the Church of God which is at Corinth, to them that [a]are sanctified in Christ Jesus, [b]called to be Saints, with all that in every place call upon the Name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours.

3 Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I thank my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ,

5 That in every thing ye are enriched by him, in all utterance, and in all knowledge:

6 Even as the Testimony of Christ was confirmed in you.

7 So that ye come behind in no gift; waiting for the †coming of our Lord Jesus Christ,

8 Who shall also confirm you unto the end, that ye may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 [c]God is faithful by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

10 Now I beseech you, brethren, by the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no †divisions among you: but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind, and in the same judgment.

11 For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren, by them which are of the house of Chloe, that there are contentions among you.

12 Now this I say, that every one of you saith, I am of Paul, and I of [d]Apollos, and I of Cephas, and I of Christ.

13 Is Christ divided? was Paul crucified for you? or were ye baptized in the name of Paul?

14 I thank God that I baptized none of you, but [e]Crispus and Gaius:

15 Lest any should say that I had baptized in mine own name.

1 PAUL, called to be an apostle of Jesus Christ through the will of God, and Sosthenes [1]our
2 brother, unto the church of God which is at Corinth, even them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, with all that call upon the name of our Lord Jesus Christ in every 3 place, their Lord and ours: Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I thank [2]my God always concerning you, for the grace of God which was given you in Christ
5 Jesus; that in everything ye were enriched in 10 Now I beseech you, brethren, through the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfected together in the same mind and in the same judgement.

11 For it hath been signified unto me concerning you, my brethren, by them which are of the household of Chloe, that there are contentions
12 among you. Now this I mean, that each one of you saith, I am of Paul; and I of Apol-
13 los; and I of Cephas; and I of Christ. [4]Is Christ divided? was Paul crucified for you? or were ye baptized into the name of Paul?
14 [5]I thank God that I baptized none of you, save 15 Crispus and Gaius; lest any man should say that ye were baptized into my name.

16 And I baptized also the household of Stephanas: besides, I know not whether I baptized any other.

17 For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the Gospel: [f] not with wisdom of ‖ words, lest the Cross of Christ should be made of none effect.

18 For the preaching of the Cross is to them that perish foolishness: but unto us which are saved it is the [g] power of God.

19 For it is written, [h] I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent.

20 [i] Where is the wise? where is the Scribe? where is the disputer of this world? Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world?

21 [k] For after that, in the wisdom of God, the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe.

22 For the [l] Jews require a sign, and the Greeks seek after wisdom.

23 But we preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumblingblock, and unto the Greeks foolishness:

24 But unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ, the power of God, and the wisdom of God.

25 Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men: and the weakness of God is stronger than men.

26 For ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are called.

27 But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world, to confound the wise: and God hath chosen the weak things of the world, to confound the things which are mighty:

28 And base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are,

29 That no flesh should glory in his presence.

30 But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption:

31 That according as it is written, [m] He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord.

4 And my speech and my preaching [b] was not with ‖ enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power:

17 For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel: not in wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ should be made void.

18 For the word of the cross is to them that are perishing foolishness; but unto us which are 19 being saved it is the power of God. For it is written,

I will destroy the wisdom of the wise,
And the prudence of the prudent will I reject.

20 Where is the wise? Where is the scribe? where is the disputer of this [1] world? hath not God

21 made foolish the wisdom of the world? For seeing that in the wisdom of God the world through its wisdom knew not God, it was God's good pleasure through the foolishness of the 22 [2] preaching to save them that believe. Seeing that Jews ask for signs, and Greeks seek after

23 wisdom: but we preach [3] Christ crucified, unto Jews a stumblingblock, and unto Gentiles foolishness; but unto [4] them that are called, both

24 Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God. Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men; and the 25 weakness of God is stronger than men.

26 For [5] behold your calling, brethren, how that not many wise after the flesh, not many mighty,

27 not many noble, [6] are called: but God chose the foolish things of the world, that he might put to shame them that are wise; and God chose the weak things of the world, that he might

28 put to shame the things that are strong; and the base things of the world, and the things that are despised, did God choose, yea [7] and the things that are not, that he might bring

29 to nought the things that are: that no flesh

30 should glory before God. But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who was made unto us wisdom from God, [8] and righteousness and sanctification, 31 and redemption: that, according as it is written, He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord.

2 And I, brethren, when I came unto you, came not with excellency of [9] speech or of wisdom,

2 proclaiming to you the [10] mystery of God. For I determined not to know anything among you,

3 save Jesus Christ, and him crucified. And I was with you in weakness, and in fear, and in much

4 trembling. And my [9] speech and my [2] preaching were not in persuasive words of wisdom, but in

5 demonstration of the Spirit and of power: that your faith should not [11] stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.

6 Howbeit we speak wisdom among the [12] perfect: yet a wisdom not of this [13] world, nor of the rulers of this [13] world, which are coming to nought:

1611

7 But we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom which God ordained before the world unto our glory.

8 Which none of the princes of this world knew: for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.

9 But as it is written, [c]Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.

10 But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God.

11 For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? Even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God.

12 Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God, that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God.

13 [d]Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the holy Ghost teacheth, comparing spiritual things with spiritual.

14 But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.

15 [e]But he that is spiritual ‖judgeth all things, yet he himself is ‖judged of no man.

16 [f]For who hath known the mind of the Lord that he †may instruct him? But we have the mind of Christ.

CHAP. III.

foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon.
11 For other foundation can no man lay, than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.
12 Now if any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble:
13 Every man's work shall be made manifest. For the day shall declare it, because it †shall be revealed by fire, and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is.
14 If any man's work abide which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward.
15 If any man's work shall be burnt, he shall suffer loss: but he himself shall be saved: yet so as by fire.
16 [b]Know ye not that ye are the Temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?
17 If any man ‖defile the Temple of God, him shall God destroy: for the Temple of God is holy, which Temple ye are.
18 Let no man deceive himself: If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise.
19 For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God: for it is written, [c]He taketh the wise in their own craftiness.
20 And again, [d]The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain.
21 Therefore let no man glory in men, for all things are yours.

13 [c]Being defamed, we intreat: we are made as the filth of the world, and are the offscouring of all things unto this day.

14 I write not these things to shame you, but as my beloved sons I warn you.

15 For though you have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers: For in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the Gospel.

16 Wherefore I beseech you, be ye followers of me.

17 For this cause have I sent unto you Timotheus, who is my beloved son, and faithful in the Lord, who shall bring you into remembrance of my ways which be in Christ, as I teach every where in every Church.

9 For, I think, God hath set forth us the apostles last of all, as men doomed to death: for we are made a spectacle unto the world, [1]and 10 to angels, and to men. We are fools for Christ's sake, but ye are wise in Christ; we are weak, but ye are strong; ye have glory, 11 but we have dishonour. Even unto this present hour we both hunger, and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain

6 be saved in the day of the Lord [5]Jesus. Your glorying is not good. Know ye not that a lit-

9 I wrote unto you in an Epistle, not to company with fornicators.

10 Yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then must ye needs go out of the world.

11 But now I have written unto you, not to keep company, if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner: with such a one, no, not to eat.

12 For what have I to do to judge them also that are without? do not ye judge them that are within?

13 But them that are without, God judgeth. Therefore put away from among yourselves that wicked person.

CHAP. VI.

DARE any of you, having a matter against another, go to law before the unjust, and not before the Saints?

2 Do ye not know that the Saints shall judge the world? And if the world shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters?

3 Know ye not that we shall judge Angels? How much more things that pertain to this life?

4 If then ye have judgments of things pertaining to this life, set them to judge who are least esteemed in the Church.

5 I speak to your shame. Is it so, that there is not a wise man amongst you? no, not one that shall be able to judge between his brethren?

6 But brother goeth to law with brother, and that before the unbelievers?

7 Now therefore, there is utterly a fault among you, because ye go to law one with another: Why do ye not rather take wrong? Why do ye not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded?

8 Nay, you do wrong and defraud, and that your brethren.

9 Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind,

10 Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God.

11 And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the Name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God.

12 All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not ‖expedient: all things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any.

13 Meats for the belly, and the belly for meats: but God shall destroy both it and them. Now the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord: and the Lord for the body.

14 And God hath both raised up the Lord, and will also raise up us by his own power.

leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

9 I wrote unto you in my epistle to have no
10 company with fornicators; [1]not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous and extortioners, or with idolaters; for then 11 must ye needs go out of the world: but [2]now I write unto you not to keep company, if any man that is named a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one no, not to 12 eat. For what have I to do with judging them that are without? Do not ye judge them that 13 are within, whereas them that are without God judgeth? Put away the wicked man from among yourselves.

6 Dare any of you, having a matter against [3]his neighbour, go to law before the unrighteous,
2 and not before the saints? Or know ye not that the saints shall judge the world? and if the world is judged by you, are ye unworthy
3 [4]to judge the smallest matters? Know ye not that we shall judge angels? how much more,
4 things that pertain to this life? If then ye have [5]to judge things pertaining to this life, [6]do ye set them to judge who are of no account in 5 the church? I say this to move you to shame. Is it so, that there cannot be found among you one wise man, who shall be able to decide be-6 tween his brethren, but brother goeth to law with brother, and that before unbelievers?
7 Nay, already it is altogether [7]a defect in you, that ye have lawsuits one with another. Why not rather take wrong? why not rather be de-
8 frauded? Nay, but ye yourselves do wrong,
9 and defraud, and that your brethren. Or know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with men,
10 nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the 11 kingdom of God. And such were some of you: but ye [8]were washed, but ye were sanctified, but ye were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and in the Spirit of our God.

12 All things are lawful for me; but not all things are expedient. All things are lawful for me; but I will not be brought under the 13 power of any. Meats for the belly, and the belly for meats: but God shall bring to nought both it and them. But the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord; and the 14 Lord for the body: and God both raised the Lord, and will raise up us through his power.

15 Know ye not that your bodies are the members of Christ? Shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid.

16 What, know ye not that he which is joined to an harlot is one body? for two (saith he) shall be one flesh.

17 But he that is joined unto the Lord is one spirit.

18 Flee fornication: Every sin that a man doeth, is without the body: but he that committeth fornication, sinneth against his own body.

19 What, know ye not that your body is the Temple of the holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?

20 For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's.

CHAP. VII.

NOW concerning the things whereof ye wrote unto me, It is good for a man not to touch a woman.

2 Nevertheless, to avoid fornication, let every man have his own wife, and let every woman have her own husband.

3 Let the husband render unto the wife due benevolence: and likewise also the wife unto the husband.

4 The wife hath not power of her own body, but the husband: and likewise also the husband hath not power of his own body, but the wife.

5 Defraud you not one the other, except it be with consent for a time, that ye may give yourselves to fasting and prayer, and come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency.

6 But I speak this by permission, and not of commandment.

7 For I would that all men were even as I myself: but every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that.

8 I say therefore to the unmarried and widows, It is good for them if they abide even as I.

9 But if they cannot contain, let them marry: for it is better to marry than to burn.

10 And unto the married I command, yet not I, but the Lord, Let not the wife depart from her husband:

11 But and if she depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband: and let not the husband put away his wife.

12 But to the rest speak I, not the Lord, If any brother hath a wife that believeth not, and she be pleased to dwell with him, let him not put her away.

13 And the woman which hath an husband that believeth not, and if he be pleased to dwell with her, let her not leave him.

14 For the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband; else were your children unclean, but now are they holy.

15 But if the unbelieving depart, let him depart.

15 Know ye not that your bodies are members of Christ? shall I then take away the members of Christ, and make them members of a harlot?
16 God forbid. Or know ye not that he that is joined to a harlot is one body? for, The twain, 17 saith he, shall become one flesh. But he that 18 is joined unto the Lord is one spirit. Flee fornication. Every sin that a man doeth is without the body; but he that committeth fornica-
19 tion sinneth against his own body. Or know ye not that your body is a [1]temple of the [2]Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have

7 Now concerning the things whereof ye wrote:
2 It is good for a man not to touch a woman. But, because of fornications, let each man have his own wife, and let each woman have her own
3 husband. Let the husband render unto the wife her due: and likewise also the wife unto
4 the husband. The wife hath not power over her own body, but the husband: and likewise also the husband hath not power over his own
5 body, but the wife. Defraud ye not one the other, except it be by consent for a season, that ye may give yourselves unto prayer, and may be together again, that Satan tempt you not be-
6 cause of your incontinency. But this I say by 7 way of permission, not of commandment. [3]Yet I would that all men were even as I myself. Howbeit each man hath his own gift from God, one after this manner, and another after that.
8 But I say to the unmarried and to widows, It
9 is good for them if they abide even as I. But if they have not continency, let them marry:
10 for it is better to marry than to burn. But unto the married I give charge, yea not I, but the Lord, That the wife depart not from her 11 husband (but and if she depart, let her remain unmarried, or else be reconciled to her husband); and that the husband leave not his wife.
12 But to the rest say I, not the Lord: If any brother hath an unbelieving wife, and she is content to dwell with him, let him not leave her.
13 And the woman which hath an unbelieving husband, and he is content to dwell with her, let her

A brother or a sister is not under bondage in such cases: but God hath called us †to peace.

16 For what knowest thou, O wife, whether thou shalt save thy husband? or how knowest thou, O man, whether thou shalt save thy wife?

17 But as God hath distributed to every man, as the Lord hath called every one, so let him walk, and so ordain I in all Churches.

18 Is any man called being circumcised? let him not become uncircumcised: Is any called in uncircumcision? let him not be circumcised.

19 Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, but the keeping of the Commandments of God.

20 Let every man abide in the same calling wherein he was called.

21 Art thou called being a servant? care not for it: but if thou mayest be made free, use it rather.

22 For he that is called in the Lord, being a servant, is the Lord's †freeman: likewise also he that is called being free, is Christ's servant.

23 Ye are bought with a price, be not ye the servants of men.

24 Brethren, let every man, wherein he is called, therein abide with God.

25 Now concerning virgins, I have no commandment of the Lord: yet I give my judgment as one that hath obtained mercy of the Lord to be faithful.

26 I suppose therefore that this is good for the present ‖distress, I say, that it is good for a man so to be.

27 Art thou bound unto a wife? seek not to be loosed. Art thou loosed from a wife? seek not a wife.

28 But and if thou marry, thou hast not sinned, and if a virgin marry, she hath not sinned: nevertheless, such shall have trouble in the flesh: but I spare you.

29 But this I say, brethren, the time is short. It remaineth, that both they that have wives, be as though they had none:

30 And they that weep, as though they wept not: and they that rejoice, as though they rejoiced not: and they that buy, as though they possessed not:

31 And they that use this world, as not abusing it: for the fashion of this world passeth away.

32 But I would have you without carefulness. He that is unmarried, careth for the things that belongeth to the Lord, how he may please the Lord:

33 But he that is married, careth for the things that are of the world, how he may please his wife.

34 There is difference also between a wife and a virgin: the unmarried woman careth for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy, both in body and in spirit: but she that is married, careth for the things of the world, how she may please her husband.

35 And this I speak for your own profit, not that I may cast a snare upon you, but for that which is comely, and that you may attend upon the Lord without distraction.

the brother or the sister is not under bondage in such cases: but God hath called [1]us 16 in peace. For how knowest thou, O wife, whether thou shalt save thy husband? or how knowest thou, O husband, whether thou shalt 17 save thy wife? Only, as the Lord hath distributed to each man, as God hath called each, so let him walk. And so ordain I in all the 18 churches. Was any man called being circumcised? let him not become uncircumcised. Hath any been called in uncircumcision? let 19 him not be circumcised. Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing; but the 20 keeping of the commandments of God. Let each man abide in that calling wherein he was 21 called. Wast thou called being a bondservant? care not for it: [2]but if thou canst become free, 22 use it rather. For he that was called in the Lord, being a bondservant, is the Lord's freedman: likewise he that was called, being free, is 23 Christ's bondservant. Ye were bought with a 24 price; become not bondservants of men. Brethren, let each man, wherein he was called, therein abide with God.

25 Now concerning virgins I have no commandment of the Lord: but I give my judgement, as one that hath obtained mercy of the Lord to be 26 faithful. I think therefore that this is good by reason of the present distress, namely, that it is 27 good for a man [3]to be as he is. Art thou bound unto a wife? seek not to be loosed. Art thou 28 loosed from a wife? seek not a wife. But and if thou marry, thou hast not sinned; and if a virgin marry, she hath not sinned. Yet such shall have tribulation in the flesh: and I would 29 spare you. But this I say, brethren, the time [4]is shortened, that henceforth both those that have 30 wives may be as though they had none; and those that weep, as though they wept not; and those that rejoice, as though they rejoiced not; and those that buy, as though they possessed
31 not; and those that use the world, as not [5]abusing it: for the fashion of this world passeth away. But I would have you to be free
32 from cares. He that is unmarried is careful for the things of the Lord, how he may please 33 the Lord: but he that is married is careful for the things of the world, how he may please his 34 [6]wife. And there is a difference also between the wife and the virgin. She that is unmarried is careful for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy both in body and in spirit: but she that is married is careful for the things of the world, 35 how she may please her husband. And this I say for your own profit; not that I may cast a [7]snare upon you, but for that which is seemly, and that ye may attend upon the Lord without distraction.

36 But if any man think that he behaveth himself uncomely toward his virgin, if she pass the flower of her age, and need so require, let him do what he will, he sinneth not: let them marry.

37 Nevertheless, he that standeth stedfast in his heart, having no necessity, but hath power over his own will, and hath so decreed in his heart that he will keep his virgin, doeth well.

38 So then he that giveth her in marriage, doeth well: but he that giveth her not in marriage, doeth better.

39 The wife is bound by the law as long as her husband liveth: but if her husband be dead, she is at liberty to be married to whom she will, only in the Lord.

40 But she is happier if she so abide, after my judgment: and I think also that I have the Spirit of God.

CHAP. VIII.

NOW as touching things offered unto idols, we know that we all have knowledge. Knowledge puffeth up: but Charity edifieth.

2 And if any man think that he knoweth any thing, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know.

3 But if any man love God, the same is known of him.

4 As concerning therefore the eating of those things that are offered in sacrifice unto idols, we know that an idol is nothing in the world, and that there is none other God but one.

5 For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth (as there be gods many, and lords many:)

6 But to us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we ‖in him, and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by him.

7 Howbeit there is not in every man that knowledge: for some with conscience of the idol unto this hour, eat it as a thing offered unto an idol, and their conscience being weak is defiled.

8 But meat commendeth us not to God: for neither if we eat, ‖are we the better: neither if we eat not, ‖are we the worse.

9 But take heed lest by any means this ‖liberty of yours become a stumblingblock to them that are weak.

10 For if any man see thee which hast knowledge sit at meat in the idol's temple: shall not the conscience of him which is weak, be †emboldened to eat those things which are offered to idols?

11 And through thy knowledge shall the weak brother perish, for whom Christ died?

12 But when ye sin so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ.

13 Wherefore if meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend.

36 But if any man thinketh that he behaveth himself unseemly toward his [1]virgin daughter, if she be past the flower of her age, and if need so requireth, let him do what he will;
37 he sinneth not; let them marry. But he that standeth stedfast in his heart, having no necessity, but hath power as touching his own will, and hath determined this in his own heart, to keep his own [1]virgin daughter, shall do well.
38 So then both he that giveth his own [1]virgin daughter in marriage doeth well; and he that 39 giveth her not in marriage shall do better. A wife is bound for so long time as her husband liveth; but if the husband be [2]dead, she is free to be married to whom she will; only in the Lord.
40 But she is happier if she abide as she is, after my judgement: and I think that I also have the Spirit of God.

8 Now concerning things sacrificed to idols: We know that we all have knowledge. Know-
2 ledge puffeth up, but love [3]edifieth. If any man thinketh that he knoweth anything, he
3 knoweth not yet as he ought to know; but if any man loveth God, the same is known of him.
4 Concerning therefore the eating of things sacrificed to idols, we know that no idol is anything in the world, and that there is no God but one.
5 For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or on earth; as there are gods many,
6 and lords many; yet to us there is one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we unto him; and one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom are all things, and we through him.
7 Howbeit in all men there is not that knowledge: but some, being used until now to the idol, eat as of a thing sacrificed to an idol; and their
8 conscience being weak is defiled. But meat will not commend us to God: neither, if we eat not, [4]are we the worse; nor, if we eat, [5]are we the 9 better. But take heed lest by any means this [6]liberty of yours become a stumblingblock to 10 the weak. For if a man see thee which hast knowledge sitting at meat in an idol's temple, will not his conscience, if he is weak, [7]be em-
11 boldened to eat things sacrificed to idols? For [8]through thy knowledge he that is weak perisheth, the brother for whose sake Christ died.
12 And thus, sinning against the brethren, and wounding their conscience when it is weak, ye 13 sin against Christ. Wherefore, if meat maketh my brother to stumble, I will eat no flesh for evermore, that I make not my brother to stumble.

9 Am I not free? am I not an apostle? have I not seen Jesus our Lord? are not ye my work in
2 the Lord? If to others I am not an apostle, yet doubtless I am to you: for the seal of mine Apostleship are ye in the Lord.

3 Mine answer to them that do examine me, is this:

4 Have we not power to eat and to drink?

5 Have we not power to lead about a sister a ‖wife as well as other Apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?

6 Or I only and Barnabas, have not we power to forbear working?

7 Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock?

8 Say I these things as a man? or saith not the law the same also?

9 For it is written in the law of Moses, [a]Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn: doth God take care for oxen?

10 Or saith he it altogether for our sakes? for our sakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that plougheth, should plough in hope: and that he that threshеth in hope, should be partaker of his hope.

11 [b]If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things?

12 If others be partakers of this power over you, are not we rather? Nevertheless, we have not used this power: but suffer all things, lest we should hinder the Gospel of Christ.

13 [c]Do ye not know that they which minister about holy things ‖live of the things of the Temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar?

14 Even so hath the Lord ordained, that they which preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel.

15 But I have used none of these things. Neither have I written these things, that it should be so done unto me: for it were better for me to die, than that any man should make my glorying void.

16 For though I preach the Gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for necessity is laid upon me, yea, woe is unto me, if I preach not the Gospel.

17 For if I do this thing willingly, I have a reward: but if against my will, a dispensation of the Gospel is committed unto me.

18 What is my reward then? verily that when I preach the Gospel, I may make the Gospel of Christ without charge, that I abuse not my power in the Gospel.

19 For though I be free from all men, yet have I made myself servant unto all, that I might gain the more.

20 And unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews: to them that are under the law, as under the law, that I might gain them that are under the law:

21 To them that are without law, as without law (being not without law to God, but under the law to Christ,) that I might gain them that are without law.

22 To the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak: I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some.

at least I am to you: for the seal of mine
3 apostleship are ye in the Lord. My defence to 4 them that examine me is this. Have we no
5 right to eat and to drink? Have we no right to lead about a wife that is a [1]believer, even as the rest of the apostles, and the brethren of the 6 Lord, and Cephas? Or I only and Barnabas,
7 have we not a right to forbear working? What soldier ever serveth at his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not
8 of the milk of the flock? Do I speak these things after the manner of men? or saith not 9 the law also the same? For it is written in the law of Moses, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn. Is it for the 10 oxen that God careth, or [2]saith he it altogether for our sake? Yea, for our sake it was written: because he that plougheth ought to plough in hope, and he that thresheth, to thresh in hope of par-
11 taking. If we sowed unto you spiritual things, is it a great matter if we shall reap your car-
12 nal things? If others partake of this right over you, do not we yet more? Nevertheless we did not use this right; but we bear all things, that we may cause no hindrance to the 13 gospel of Christ. Know ye not that they which minister about sacred things eat of the things of the temple, and they which wait upon the altar have their portion with the altar?
14 Even so did the Lord ordain that they which proclaim the gospel should live of the gospel.
15 But I have used none of these things: and I write not these things that it may be so done in my case: for it were good for me rather to die, than that any man should make my glorying
16 void. For if I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of; for necessity is laid upon me; for woe is unto me, if I preach not the 17 gospel. For if I do this of mine own will, I have a reward: but if not of mine own will, I
18 have a stewardship intrusted to me. What then is my reward? That, when I preach the gospel, I may make the gospel without charge, so as not to use to the full my right in the gospel.
19 For though I was free from all men, I brought myself under bondage to all, that I might gain
20 the more. And to the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain Jews; to them that are under the law, as under the law, not being myself under the law, that I might gain them that are 21 under the law; to them that are without law, as without law, not being without law to God, but under law to Christ, that I might gain them that 22 are without law. To the weak I became weak, that I might gain the weak: I am become all things to all men, that I may by all means save some.

1611

23 And this I do for the Gospel's sake, that I might be partaker thereof with you.
24 Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run, that ye may obtain.
25 And every man that striveth for the mastery, is temperate in all things: Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible.
26 I therefore so run, not as uncertainly: so fight I, not as one that beateth the air:
27 But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway.

CHAP. X.

MOREOVER brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea:
2 And were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud, and in the sea:
3 And did all eat the same spiritual meat:
4 And did all drink the same spiritual drink: (for they drank of that spiritual Rock that ‖followed them: and that Rock was Christ)
5 But with many of them God was not well pleased: for they were overthrown in the wilderness.
6 Now these things were †our examples, to the intent we should not lust after evil things, as [a]they also lusted.
7 Neither be ye idolaters, as were some of them, as it is written, [b]The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.
8 Neither let us commit fornication, as some of them committed, and [c]fell in one day three and twenty thousand.
9 Neither let us tempt Christ, as some of them also tempted, and [d]were destroyed of serpents.
10 Neither murmur ye, as some of them also murmured, and [e]were destroyed of the destroyer.
11 Now all these things happened unto them for ‖ensamples: and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come.
12 Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall.
13 There hath no temptation taken you, but such as is ‖common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that you are able: but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it.
14 Wherefore my dearly beloved, flee from idolatry.
15 I speak as to wise men: judge ye what I say.
16 The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?
17 For we being many are one bread, and one body: for we are all partakers of that one bread.

23 And I do all things for the gospel's sake,
24 that I may be a joint partaker thereof. Know ye not that they which run in a [1]race run all, but one receiveth the prize? Even so
25 run, that ye may attain. And every man that striveth in the games is temperate in all things. Now they do it to receive a corruptible crown;
26 but we an incorruptible. I therefore so run, as not uncertainly; so [2]fight I, as not beating the 27 air: but I [3]buffet my body, and bring it into bondage: lest by any means, after that I have preached to others, I myself should be rejected.
10 For I would not, brethren, have you ignorant, how that our fathers were all under the
2 cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized [4]unto Moses in the cloud and in the 3 sea; and did all eat the same spiritual meat;
4 and did all drink the same spiritual drink: for they drank of a spiritual rock that followed
5 them: and the rock was Christ. Howbeit with most of them God was not well pleased: for 6 they were overthrown in the wilderness. Now [5]these things were our examples, to the intent we should not lust after evil things, as they
7 also lusted. Neither be ye idolaters, as were some of them; as it is written, The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.
8 Neither let us commit fornication, as some of them committed, and fell in one day three and 9 twenty thousand. Neither let us tempt the [6]Lord, as some of them tempted, and perished

8 For the man is not of the woman: but the woman of the man.
9 Neither was the man created for the woman: but the woman for the man.
10 For this cause ought the woman to have ‖power on her head, because of the Angels.
11 Nevertheless, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man in the Lord.
12 For as the woman is of the man: even so is the man also by the woman; but all things of God.
13 Judge in yourselves, is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered?
14 Doth not even nature itself teach you, that if a man have long hair, it is a shame unto him?
15 But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her: for her hair is given her for a ‖covering.
16 But if any man seem to be contentious, we have no such custom, neither the Churches of God.
17 Now in this that I declare unto you, I praise you not, that you come together not for the better, but for the worse.
18 For first of all when ye come together in the Church, I hear that there be ‖divisions among you, and I partly believe it.
19 For there must be also ‖heresies among you, that they which are approved may be made manifest among you.
20 When ye come together therefore into one place, this is ‖not to eat the Lord's Supper.
21 For in eating every one taketh before other his own supper: and one is hungry, and another is drunken.
22 What, have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? Or despise ye the Church of God, and shame ‖them that have not? What shall I say to you? shall I praise you in this? I praise you not.
23 For I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, [a]that the Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread:
24 And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take, eat, this is my body, which is broken for you: this do ‖in remembrance of me.
25 After the same manner also he took the cup when he had supped, saying, This cup is the new Testament in my blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me.
26 For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ‖ye do shew the Lord's death till he come.
27 Wherefore, whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord.
28 But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup.
29 For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh ‖damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body.
30 For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep.

8 For the man is not of the woman; but the 9 woman of the man: for neither was the man created for the woman; but the woman for 10 the man: for this cause ought the woman to [1]have a sign of authority on her head, because 11 of the angels. Howbeit neither is the woman without the man, nor the man without the 26 ye drink it, in remembrance of me. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come.

27 Wherefore whosoever shall eat the bread or drink the cup of the Lord unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and the blood of the Lord.
28 But let a man prove himself, and so let him eat
29 of the bread, and drink of the cup. For he that eateth and drinketh, eateth and drinketh judgement unto himself, if he [11]discern not the body.

CHAP. XII.

NOW concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant.
2 Ye know that ye were Gentiles, carried away unto these dumb idols, even as ye were led.
3 Wherefore I give you to understand, that no man speaking by the spirit of God calleth Jesus ‖accursed: and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the holy Ghost.

‖ Or, Anathema.

4 Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same spirit.
5 And there are differences of administrations, but the same Lord.
6 And there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God, which worketh all in all.
7 But the manifestation of the spirit is given to every man to profit withal.
8 For to one is given by the spirit the word of wisdom, to another the word of knowledge, by the same spirit.
9 To another faith, by the same spirit: to another the gifts of healing, by the same spirit:
10 To another the working of miracles, to another prophecy, to another discerning of spirits, to another divers kinds of tongues, to another the interpretation of tongues.
11 But all these worketh that one and the selfsame spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will.
12 For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body: so also is Christ.
13 For by one spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or †Gentiles, whether we be bond or free: and have been all made to drink into one spirit.

† Gr. Greeks.

14 For the body is not one member, but many.
15 If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body: is it therefore not of the body?
16 And if the ear shall say, Because I am not the eye, I am not of the body: is it therefore not of the body?
17 If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the smelling?
18 But now hath God set the members every one of them in the body, as it hath pleased him.
19 And if they were all one member, where were the body?
20 But now are they many members, yet but one body.
21 And the eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor again, the head to the feet, I have no need of you.

ANNO DOMINI 59.

32 But [1]when we are judged, we are chastened of the Lord, that we may not be condemned with the 33 world. Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come
34 together to eat, wait one for another. If any man is hungry, let him eat at home; that your coming together be not unto judgement. And the rest will I set in order whensoever I come.

12 Now concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I
2 would not have you ignorant. Ye know that when ye were Gentiles ye were led away unto those dumb idols, howsoever ye might be led.
3 Wherefore I give you to understand, that no man speaking in the Spirit of God saith, Jesus is anathema; and no man can say, Jesus is Lord, but in the Holy Spirit.
4 Now there are diversities of gifts, but the 5 same Spirit. And there are diversities of min-
6 istrations, and the same Lord. And there are diversities of workings, but the same God, who 7 worketh all things in all. But to each one is given the manifestation of the Spirit to profit
8 withal. For to one is given through the Spirit the word of wisdom; and to another the word
9 of knowledge, according to the same Spirit: to another faith, in the same Spirit; and to an-
10 other gifts of healings, in the one Spirit; and to another workings of [2]miracles; and to another prophecy; and to another discernings of spirits: to another divers kinds of tongues; and 11 to another the interpretation of tongues: but all these worketh the one and the same Spirit, dividing to each one severally even as he will.
12 For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of the body, being 13 many, are one body; so also is Christ. For in one Spirit were we all baptized into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether bond or free;
14 and were all made to drink of one Spirit. For 15 the body is not one member, but many. If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body; it is not therefore not of the 16 body. And if the ear shall say, Because I am not the eye, I am not of the body; it is not 17 therefore not of the body. If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the smelling?
18 But now hath God set the members each one of 19 them in the body, even as it pleased him. And if they were all one member, where were the 20 body? But now they are many members,
21 but one body. And the eye cannot say to the hand, I have no need of thee: or again the head to the feet, I have no need of you.

22 Nay, much more those members of the body, which seem to be more feeble, are necessary.
23 And those members of the body, which we think to be less honourable, upon these we ‖bestow more abundant honour, and our uncomely parts have more abundant comeliness.
24 For our comely parts have no need: but God hath tempered the body together, having given more abundant honour to that part which lacked:
25 That there should be no ‖schism in the body: but that the members should have the same care one for another.
26 And whether one member suffer, all the members suffer with it: or one member be honoured, all the members rejoice with it.
27 Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular.
28 And God hath set some in the Church, first Apostles, secondarily Prophets, thirdly Teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps in governments, ‖diversities of tongues.
29 Are all Apostles? are all Prophets? are all Teachers? are all ‖workers of miracles?
30 Have all the gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret?
31 But covet earnestly the best gifts: And yet shew I unto you a more excellent way.

CHAP. XIII.

THOUGH I speak with the tongues of men and of Angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal.
2 And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge: and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have no charity, I am nothing.
3 And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.
4 Charity suffereth long, and is kind: charity envieth not: charity ‖vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up,

6 Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth ‖in the truth:
7 Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.
8 Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away.
9 For we know in part, and we prophesy in part.
10 But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.
11 When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I ‖thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things.
12 For now we see through a glass, †darkly: but then face to face: now I know in part, but then shall I know even as also I am known.

FOLLOW after charity, and desire spiritual gifts, but rather that ye may prophesy.
2 For he that speaketh in an unknown tongue, speaketh not unto men, but unto God: for no man †understandeth him: howbeit in the spirit he speaketh mysteries.
3 But he that prophesieth, speaketh unto men to edification, and exhortation, and comfort.
4 He that speaketh in an unknown tongue, edifieth himself: but he that prophesieth, edifieth the Church.
5 I would that ye all spake with tongues, but rather that ye prophesied: for greater is he that prophesieth than he that speaketh with tongues, except he interpret, that the Church may receive edifying.
6 Now brethren, if I come unto you speaking with tongues, what shall I profit you, except I shall speak to you either by revelation, or by knowledge, or by prophesying, or by doctrine?
7 And even things without life giving sound, whether pipe or harp, except they give a distinction in the ‖sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped?
8 For if the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle?
9 So likewise you, except ye utter by the tongue words †easy to be understood, how shall it be known what is spoken? for ye shall speak into the air.
10 There are, it may be, so many kinds of voices in the world, and none of them are without signification.
11 Therefore if I know not the meaning of the voice, I shall be unto him that speaketh a Barbarian, and he that speaketh shall be a Barbarian unto me.
12 Even so ye, forasmuch as ye are zealous †of spiritual gifts, seek that ye may excel to the edifying of the Church.
13 Wherefore let him that speaketh in an unknown tongue pray that he may interpret.
14 For if I pray in an unknown tongue, my spirit prayeth, but my understanding is unfruitful.
15 What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, and will pray with understanding also: I will sing with the spirit, and I will sing with the understanding also.
16 Else, when thou shalt bless with the spirit, how shall he that occupieth the room of the unlearned say Amen at thy giving of thanks, seeing he understandeth not what thou sayest?
17 For thou verily givest thanks well: but the other is not edified.
18 I thank my God, I speak with tongues more than you all.
19 Yet in the Church I had rather speak five words with my understanding, that by my voice I might teach others also, than ten thousand words in an unknown tongue.
20 Brethren, be not children in understanding: howbeit, in malice be ye children, but in understanding be †men.

14 Follow after love; yet desire earnestly spiritual gifts, but rather that ye may prophesy.
2 For he that speaketh in a tongue speaketh not unto men, but unto God; for no man [1]understandeth; but in the spirit he speaketh mys-
3 teries. But he that prophesieth speaketh unto men edification, and comfort, and consolation.
4 He that speaketh in a tongue [2]edifieth himself; but he that prophesieth [2]edifieth the church.
5 Now I would have you all speak with tongues, but rather that ye should prophesy: and greater is he that prophesieth than he that speaketh with tongues, except he interpret, that the 6 church may receive edifying. But now, brethren, if I come unto you speaking with tongues, what shall I profit you, unless I speak to you either by way of revelation, or of knowledge,
7 or of prophesying, or of teaching? Even things without life, giving a voice, whether pipe or harp, if they give not a distinction in the sounds, how shall it be known what is
8 piped or harped? For if the trumpet give an uncertain voice, who shall prepare himself for 9 war? So also ye, unless ye utter by the tongue speech easy to be understood, how shall it be known what is spoken? for ye will be speaking
10 into the air. There are, it may be, so many kinds of voices in the world, and [3]no kind is 11 without signification. If then I know not the meaning of the voice, I shall be to him that speaketh a barbarian, and he that speaketh will 12 be a barbarian [4]unto me. So also ye, since ye are zealous of [5]spiritual gifts, seek that ye may abound unto the edifying of the church.
13 Wherefore let him that speaketh in a tongue
14 pray that he may interpret. For if I pray in a tongue, my spirit prayeth, but my under-15 standing is unfruitful. What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, and I will pray with the understanding also: I will sing with the spirit, and will sing with the understanding also.
16 Else if thou bless with the spirit, how shall he that filleth the place of [6]the unlearned say the Amen at thy giving of thanks, seeing he know-
17 eth not what thou sayest? For thou verily givest thanks well, but the other is not [7]edified.
18 I thank God, I speak with tongues more than 19 you all: howbeit in the church I had rather speak five words with my understanding, that I might instruct others also, than ten thousand words in a tongue.
20 Brethren, be not children in mind: howbeit in malice be ye babes, but in mind be [8]men.

21 In the law it is [a]written, With men of other tongues and other lips will I speak unto this people: and yet for all that will they not hear me, saith the Lord.

22 Wherefore tongues are for a sign, not to them that believe, but to them that believe not: But prophesying serveth not for them that believe not, but for them which believe.

23 If therefore the whole Church be come together into some place, and all speak with tongues, and there come in those that are unlearned, or unbelievers, will they not say that ye are mad?

24 But if all prophesy, and there come in one that believeth not, or one unlearned, he is convinced of all, he is judged of all.

25 And thus are the secrets of his heart made manifest, and so falling down on his face he will worship God, and report that God is in you of a truth.

26 How is it then, brethren? when ye come together, every one of you hath a Psalm, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation: Let all things be done unto edifying.

27 If any man speak in an unknown tongue, let it be by two, or at the most by three, and that by course, and let one interpret.

28 But if there be no interpreter, let him keep silence in the Church, and let him speak to himself, and to God.

29 Let the Prophets speak two or three, and let the other judge.

30 If any thing be revealed to another that sitteth by, let the first hold his peace.

31 For ye may all prophesy one by one, that all may learn, and all may be comforted.

32 And the spirits of the Prophets are subject to the Prophets.

33 For God is not the author of †confusion, but of peace, as in all Churches of the Saints.

34 Let your women keep silence in the Churches, for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience: as also saith the [b]law.

35 And if they will learn any thing, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the Church.

36 What? came the word of God out from you? or came it unto you only?

37 If any man think himself to be a Prophet, or spiritual, let him acknowledge, that the things that I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord.

38 But if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant.

39 Wherefore brethren, covet to prophesy, and forbid not to speak with tongues.

40 Let all things be done decently, and in order.

21 In the law it is written, By men of strange tongues and by the lips of strangers will I speak unto this people; and not even thus will 22 they hear me, saith the Lord. Wherefore tongues are for a sign, not to them that believe, but to the unbelieving: but prophesying is for a sign, not to the unbelieving, but to them that 23 believe. If therefore the whole church be assembled together, and all speak with tongues, and there come in men unlearned or unbelieving, will they not say that ye are mad? But if
24 all prophesy, and there come in one unbelieving or unlearned, he is [1]reproved by all, he is judged
25 by all; the secrets of his heart are made manifest; and so he will fall down on his face and worship God, declaring that God is [2]among you indeed.

26 What is it then, brethren? When ye come together, each one hath a psalm, hath a teaching, hath a revelation, hath a tongue, hath an interpretation. Let all things be done unto 27 edifying. If any man speaketh in a tongue, let it be by two, or at the most three, and that 28 in turn; and let one interpret: but if there be no interpreter, let him keep silence in the church;
29 and let him speak to himself, and to God. And let the prophets speak by two or three, and let 30 the others [3]discern. But if a revelation be made to another sitting by, let the first keep silence.
31 For ye all can prophesy one by one, that all
32 may learn, and all may be [4]comforted; and the spirits of the prophets are subject to the proph-
33 ets; for God is not a God of confusion, but of peace; as in all the churches of the saints.

34 Let the women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but let them be in subjection, as also saith the law.
35 And if they would learn anything, let them ask their own husbands at home: for it is shameful
36 for a woman to speak in the church. What? was it from you that the word of God went forth? or came it unto you alone?

37 If any man thinketh himself to be a prophet, or spiritual, let him take knowledge of the things which I write unto you, that they are 38 the commandment of the Lord. [5]But if any man is ignorant, let him be ignorant.

39 Wherefore, my brethren, desire earnestly to prophesy, and forbid not to speak with tongues.
40 But let all things be done decently and in order.

15 Now I make known unto you, brethren, the gospel which I preached unto you, which also 2 ye received, wherein also ye stand, by which also ye are [6]saved; I make known, I say, [7]in

1611

†what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain.
3 For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures:
4 And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the Scriptures.
5 And that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve.
6 After that, he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once: of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some are fallen asleep.
7 After that, he was seen of James, then of all the Apostles.
8 And last of all he was seen of me also, as of ‖one born out of due time.
9 For I am the least of the Apostles, that am not meet to be called an Apostle, because I persecuted the Church of God.
10 But by the grace of God I am what I am: and his grace which was bestowed upon me, was not in vain: But I laboured more abundantly than they all, yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me:
11 Therefore, whether it were I or they, so we preach, and so ye believed.
12 Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead?
13 But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen.
14 And if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain:
15 Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God, because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ: whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not.
16 For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised.
17 And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain, ye are yet in your sins.
18 Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ, are perished.
19 If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable.
20 But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept.
21 For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead.
22 For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.
23 But every man in his own order. Christ the firstfruits, afterward they that are Christ's, at his coming.
24 Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God even the Father, when he shall have put down all rule, and all authority and power.
25 For he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet.
26 The last enemy that shall be destroyed, is death.

what words I preached it unto you, if ye hold

ANNO DOMINI 59.

27 For he hath put all things under his feet; but when he saith all things are put under him, it is manifest that he is excepted which did put all things under him.

28 And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all.

29 Else what shall they do, which are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead?

30 And why stand we in jeopardy every hour?

31 I protest by ‖your rejoicing which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord, I die daily.

32 If ‖after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me, if the dead rise not? let us eat and drink, for to morrow we die.

33 Be not deceived: evil communications corrupt good manners.

34 Awake to righteousness, and sin not: for some have not the knowledge of God, I speak this to your shame.

35 But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?

36 Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die.

37 And that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain.

38 But God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body.

39 All flesh is not the same flesh, but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds.

40 There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial: But the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another.

41 There is one glory of the sun, another of the moon, and another glory of the stars: for one star differeth from another star in glory.

42 So also is the resurrection of the dead, it is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption.

43 It is sown in dishonour, it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power:

44 It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body.

45 And so it is written: The first man Adam was made a living soul, the last Adam was made a quickening spirit.

46 Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual: but that which is natural, and afterward that which is spiritual.

47 The first man is of the earth, earthy. The second man is the Lord from heaven.

48 As is the earthy, such are they that are earthy, and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly.

49 And as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly.

‖ Some read, our.

‖ Or, to speak after the manner of men.

27 For, He put all things in subjection under his feet. [1]But when he saith, All things are put in subjection, it is evident that he is excepted who did subject all things unto him.

28 And when all things have been subjected unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subjected to him that did subject all things unto him, that God may be all in all.

29 Else what shall they do which are baptized for the dead? If the dead are not raised at all,

30 why then are they baptized for them? why do

31 we also stand in jeopardy every hour? I protest by [2]that glorying in you, brethren, which I

32 have in Christ Jesus our Lord, I die daily. If after the manner of men I fought with beasts at Ephesus, [3]what doth it profit me? If the dead are not raised, let us eat and drink, for to-mor-

33 row we die. Be not deceived: Evil company

34 doth corrupt good manners. [4]Awake up righteously, and sin not; for some have no knowledge of God: I speak this to move you to shame.

35 But some one will say, How are the dead raised? and with what manner of body do they come?

36 Thou foolish one, that which thou thyself sowest

37 is not quickened, except it die: and that which thou sowest, thou sowest not the body that shall be, but a bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or

38 of some other kind; but God giveth it a body even as it pleased him, and to each seed a body

39 of its own. All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one flesh of men, and another flesh of beasts, and another flesh of birds, and another 40 of fishes. There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial: but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another.

41 There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars; for one star differeth from another star in glory.

42 So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption:

43 it is sown in dishonour; it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power:

44 it is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is

45 also a spiritual body. So also it is written, The first man Adam became a living soul. The last

46 Adam became a life-giving spirit. Howbeit that is not first which is spiritual, but that which is 47 natural; then that which is spiritual. The first man is of the earth, earthy: the second man is

48 of heaven. As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy: and as is the heavenly, such 49 are they also that are heavenly. And as we have borne the image of the earthy, [5]we shall also bear the image of the heavenly.

[1] Or, But when he shall have said, All things are put in subjection (evidently excepting him that did subject all things unto him), when, I say, all things &c.

[2] Or, your glorying

[3] Or, what doth it profit me, if the dead are not raised? Let us eat &c.

[4] Gr. Awake out of drunkenness righteously.

[5] Many ancient authorities read let us also bear.

50 Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God: neither doth corruption inherit incorruption.
51 Behold, I shew you a mystery: we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed,
52 In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump, (for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.)
53 For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality.
54 So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, [a]Death is swallowed up in victory.
55 [b]O death, where is thy sting? O ‖grave, where is thy victory?
56 The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law.
57 But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ.
58 Therefore my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as you know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord.

PAUL an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, unto the Church of God which is at Corinth, with all the Saints which are in all Achaia:
2 Grace be to you and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.
3 Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort,
4 Who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God.
5 For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation also aboundeth by Christ.
6 And whether we be afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation, which ‖is effectual in the enduring of the same sufferings which we also suffer: or whether we be comforted, it is for your consolation, and salvation.
7 And our hope of you is stedfast, knowing, that as you are partakers of the sufferings, so shall ye be also of the consolation.

1 PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus through the will of God, and Timothy [1]our brother, unto the church of God which is at Corinth, with all the saints which are in the whole of Achaia:
2 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.
3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and God of 4 all comfort; who comforteth us in all our affliction, that we may be able to comfort them that are in any affliction, through the comfort where-
5 with we ourselves are comforted of God. For as the sufferings of Christ abound unto us, even so our comfort also aboundeth through Christ.
6 But whether we be afflicted, it is for your comfort and salvation; or whether we be comforted, it is for your comfort, which worketh in the patient enduring of the same sufferings which
7 we also suffer: and our hope for you is stedfast; knowing that, as ye are partakers of the suffer-
8 ings, so also are ye of the comfort. For we would not have you ignorant, brethren, concerning our affliction which befell us in Asia, that we were weighed down exceedingly, beyond our strength, insomuch that we despaired even of life.

9 But we had the ‖sentence of death in ourselves, that we should not trust in ourselves, but in God which raiseth the dead.

10 Who delivered us from so great a death, and doth deliver: in whom we trust that he will yet deliver us:

11 You also helping together by prayer for us, that for the gift bestowed upon us by the means of many persons, thanks may be given by many on our behalf.

12 For our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity, not with fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God, we have had our conversation in the world, and more abundantly to you-wards.

13 For we write none other things unto you, than what you read or acknowledge, and I trust you shall acknowledge even to the end.

14 As also you have acknowledged us in part, that we are your rejoicing, even as ye also are ours, in the day of the Lord Jesus.

15 And in this confidence I was minded to come unto you before, that you might have a second ‖benefit:

16 And to pass by you into Macedonia, and to come again out of Macedonia unto you, and of you to be brought on my way toward Judæa.

17 When I therefore was thus minded, did I use lightness? or the things that I purpose, do I purpose according to the flesh, that with me there should be yea yea, and nay nay?

18 But as God is true, our ‖word toward you was not yea and nay.

19 For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached among you by us, even by me and Silvanus and Timotheus, was not Yea and Nay, but in him, was yea.

20 For all the promises of God in him are Yea, and in him Amen, unto the glory of God by us.

21 Now he which stablisheth us with you in Christ, and hath anointed us, is God, 22 Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts.

23 Moreover, I call God for a record upon my soul, that to spare you I came not as yet unto Corinth.

24 Not for that we have dominion over your faith, but are helpers of your joy: for by faith ye stand.

CHAP. II.

BUT I determined this with myself, that I would not come again to you in heaviness.

2 For if I make you sorry, who is he then that maketh me glad, but the same which is made sorry by me?

3 And I wrote this same unto you, lest when I came, I should have sorrow from them of whom I ought to rejoice, having confidence in you all, that my joy is the joy of you all.

power, insomuch that we despaired even of life:
9 [1]yea, we ourselves have had the [2]answer of death within ourselves, that we should not trust in ourselves, but in God which raiseth the dead:
10 who delivered us out of so great a death, and will deliver: on whom we have [3]set our hope
11 that he will also still deliver us; ye also helping together on our behalf by your supplication; that, for the gift bestowed upon us by means of many, thanks may be given by many persons on our behalf.
12 For our glorying is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in holiness and sincerity of God, not in fleshly wisdom but in the grace of God, we behaved ourselves in the world, and more
13 abundantly to you-ward. For we write none other things unto you, than what ye read or even acknowledge, and I hope ye will acknow-
14 ledge unto the end: as also ye did acknowledge us in part, that we are your glorying, even as ye also are ours, in the day of our Lord Jesus.
15 And in this confidence I was minded to come before unto you, that ye might have a second
16 [4]benefit; and by you to pass into Macedonia, and again from Macedonia to come unto you, and of you to be set forward on my journey
17 unto Judæa. When I therefore was thus minded, did I shew fickleness? or the things that I purpose, do I purpose according to the flesh, that with me there should be the yea yea and the 18 nay nay? But as God is faithful, our word to-19 ward you is not yea and nay. For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached among you [5]by us, even [5]by me and Silvanus and Timothy, was not yea and nay, but in him is yea.
20 For how many soever be the promises of God, in him is the yea: wherefore also through him is the Amen, unto the glory of God through 21 us. Now he that stablisheth us with you [6]in 22 Christ, and anointed us, is God; [7]who also sealed us, and gave us the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts.
23 But I call God for a witness upon my soul, that to spare you I forbare to come unto Cor-
24 inth. Not that we have lordship over your faith, but are helpers of your joy: for by [8]faith
2 ye stand. [9]But I determined this for myself, that I would not come again to you with sor-
2 row. For if I make you sorry, who then is he that maketh me glad, but he that is made sorry
3 by me? And I wrote this very thing, lest, when I came, I should have sorrow from them of whom I ought to rejoice; having confidence in you all, that my joy is the joy of you all.
4 For out of much affliction and anguish of heart

1611

I wrote unto you with many tears, not that you should be grieved, but that ye might know the love which I have more abundantly unto you.

5 But if any have caused grief, he hath not grieved me, but in part: that I may not overcharge you all.

6 Sufficient to such a man is this ‖punishment, which was inflicted of many.

7 So that contrariwise, ye ought rather to forgive him, and comfort him, lest perhaps such a one should be swallowed up with overmuch sorrow.

8 Wherefore I beseech you, that you would confirm your love towards him.

9 For to this end also did I write, that I might know the proof of you, whether ye be obedient in all things.

10 To whom ye forgive any thing, I forgive also: for if I forgave any thing, to whom I forgave it, for your sakes forgave I it, ‖in the person of Christ, 11 Lest Satan should get an advantage of us: for we are not ignorant of his devices.

12 Furthermore when I came to Troas, to preach Christ's Gospel, and a door was opened unto me of the Lord, 13 I had no rest in my spirit, because I found not Titus my brother, but taking my leave of them, I went from thence into Macedonia.

14 Now thanks be unto God, which always causeth us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the savour of his knowledge by us in every place.

15 For we are unto God a sweet savour of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them that perish.

16 To the one we are the savour of death unto death; and to the other the savour of life unto life: and who is sufficient for these things?

17 For we are not as many which ‖corrupt the word of God: but as of sincerity, but as of God, in the sight of God speak we in Christ.

CHAP. III.

DO we begin again to commend ourselves? or need we, as some others, Epistles of commendation to you, or letters of commendation from you?

2 Ye are our Epistle written in our hearts, known and read of all men.

3 Forasmuch as ye are manifestly declared to be the Epistle of Christ ministered by us, written not with ink, but with the spirit of the living God, not in tables of stone, but in fleshy tables of the heart.

4 And such trust have we through Christ to God-ward:

5 Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think any thing as of ourselves: but our sufficiency is of God:

6 Who also hath made us able ministers of the New Testament, not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit ‖giveth life.

7 But if the ministration of death, written, and engraven in stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not stedfastly behold the face of Moses, for the glory of his countenance, which glory was to be done away:

I wrote unto you with many tears; not that ye should be made sorry, but that ye might know the love which I have more abundantly unto you.

5 But if any hath caused sorrow, he hath caused sorrow, not to me, but in part (that I press not 6 too heavily) to you all. Sufficient to such a one is this punishment which was inflicted by [1]the 7 many; so that contrariwise ye should [2]rather forgive him and comfort him, lest by any means such a one should be swallowed up with his
8 overmuch sorrow. Wherefore I beseech you to 9 confirm your love toward him. For to this end also did I write, that I might know the proof of you, [3]whether ye are obedient in all things.
10 But to whom ye forgive anything, I forgive also: for what I also have forgiven, if I have forgiven anything, for your sakes have I forgiven it in 11 the [4]person of Christ; that no advantage may be gained over us by Satan: for we are not ignorant of his devices.

12 Now when I came to Troas for the gospel of Christ, and when a door was opened unto me
13 in the Lord, I had no relief for my spirit, because I found not Titus my brother: but taking my leave of them, I went forth into 14 Macedonia. But thanks be unto God, which always leadeth us in triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest through us the savour of his 15 knowledge in every place. For we are a sweet savour of Christ unto God, in them that are being saved, and in them that are perishing;
16 to the one a savour from death unto death; to the other a savour from life unto life. And 17 who is sufficient for these things? For we are not as the many, [5]corrupting the word of God: but as of sincerity, but as of God, in the sight of God, speak we in Christ.

3 Are we beginning again to commend ourselves? or need we, as do some, epistles of com-
2 mendation to you or from you? Ye are our epistle, written in our hearts, known and read
3 of all men; being made manifest that ye are an epistle of Christ, ministered by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in tables that are
4 hearts of flesh. And such confidence have we
5 through Christ to God-ward: not that we are sufficient of ourselves, to account anything as from ourselves; but our sufficiency is from God;
6 who also made us sufficient as ministers of a new [6]covenant; not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life.
7 But if the ministration of death, [7]written, and engraven on stones, came [8]with glory, so that the children of Israel could not look stedfastly upon the face of Moses for the glory of his face; which glory [9]was passing away:

8 How shall not the ministration of the spirit be rather glorious?
9 For if the ministration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the ministration of righteousness exceed in glory.
10 For even that which was made glorious had no glory in this respect, by reason of the glory that excelleth.
11 For if that which is done away was glorious, much more that which remaineth is glorious.
12 Seeing then that we have such hope, we use great ‖plainness of speech.
13 And not as Moses, which put a veil over his face, that the children of Israel could not stedfastly look to the end of that which is abolished;
14 But their minds were blinded: for until this day remaineth the same veil untaken away, in the reading of the old testament: which veil is done away in Christ.
15 But even unto this day, when Moses is read, the veil is upon their heart.
16 Nevertheless, when it shall turn to the Lord, the veil shall be taken away.
17 Now the Lord is that spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.
18 But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image, from glory to glory, even as ‖by the spirit of the Lord.

CHAP. IV.

THEREFORE, seeing we have this ministry, as we have received mercy we faint not:
2 But have renounced the hidden things of †dishonesty, not walking in craftiness, nor handling the word of God deceitfully, but by manifestation of the truth commending ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God.
3 But if our Gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost:
4 In whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious Gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them.
5 For we preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord, and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake.
6 For God who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.
7 But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us.
8 We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed, but ‖not in despair;
9 Persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed;

8 how shall not rather the ministration of the 9 spirit be with glory? [1]For if the ministration of condemnation is glory, much rather doth the ministration of righteousness exceed in glory.
10 For verily that which hath been made glorious hath not been made glorious in this respect, by 11 reason of the glory that surpasseth. For if that which [2]passeth away was [3]with glory, much more that which remaineth is in glory.
12 Having therefore such a hope, we use great
13 boldness of speech, and are not as Moses, who put a veil upon his face, that the children of Israel should not look stedfastly [4]on the end of 14 that which [5]was passing away: but their [6]minds were hardened: for until this very day at the reading of the old [7]covenant the same veil [8]remaineth unlifted; which veil is done away in 15 Christ. But unto this day, whensoever Moses 16 is read, a veil lieth upon their heart. But whensoever [9]it shall turn to the Lord, the veil is 17 taken away. Now the Lord is the Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.
18 But we all, with unveiled face [10]reflecting as a mirror the glory of the Lord, are transformed into the same image from glory to glory, even as from [11]the Lord the Spirit.
4 Therefore seeing we have this ministry, even
2 as we obtained mercy, we faint not: but we have renounced the hidden things of shame, not walking in craftiness, nor handling the word of God deceitfully; but by the manifestation of the truth commending ourselves to every man's conscience
3 in the sight of God. But and if our gospel is veiled, it is veiled in them that are perishing:
4 in whom the god of this [12]world hath blinded the [6]minds of the unbelieving, [13]that the [14]light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the
5 image of God, should not dawn upon them. For we preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus as Lord, and ourselves as your [15]servants [16]for 6 Jesus' sake. Seeing it is God, that said, Light shall shine out of darkness, who shined in our hearts, to give the [14]light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.
7 But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the exceeding greatness of the power may be
8 of God, and not from ourselves; we are pressed on every side, yet not straitened; perplexed, yet
9 not unto despair; pursued, yet not [17]forsaken;
10 smitten down, yet not destroyed; always bearing about in the body the [18]dying of Jesus, that the life also of Jesus may be manifested in our body.
11 For we which live are alway delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh.

12 So then death worketh in us, but life in you.

13 We having the same spirit of faith, according as it is written, [a]I believed, and therefore have I spoken: we also believe, and therefore speak.

14 Knowing that he which raised up the Lord Jesus shall raise up us also by Jesus, and shall present us with you.

15 For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might, through the thanksgiving of many, redound to the glory of God.

16 For which cause we faint not, but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day.

17 For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory,

18 While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal.

CHAP. V.

FOR we know, that if our earthly house of this Tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hand, eternal in the heavens.

2 For in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven.

3 If so be that being clothed we shall not be found naked.

4 For, we that are in this tabernacle, do groan, being burdened, not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life.

5 Now he that hath wrought us for the selfsame thing, is God, who also hath given unto us the earnest of the spirit.

6 Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord.

7 (For we walk by faith, not by sight.)

8 We are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord.

9 Wherefore we ||labour, that, whether present or absent, we may be accepted of him.

10 For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.

11 Knowing therefore the terror of the Lord, we persuade men; but we are made manifest unto God, and I trust also, are made manifest in your consciences.

12 For we commend not ourselves again unto you, but give you occasion to glory on our behalf, that you may have somewhat to answer them which glory †in appearance, and not in heart.

13 For whether we be besides ourselves, it is to God: or whether we be sober, it is for your cause.

12 So then death worketh in us, but life in 13 you. But having the same spirit of faith, according to that which is written, I believed, and therefore did I speak; we also believed;
14 and therefore also we speak; knowing that he which raised up [1]the Lord Jesus shall raise up us also with Jesus, and shall present us
15 with you. For all things are for your sakes, that the grace, being multiplied through [2]the many, may cause the thanksgiving to abound unto the glory of God.
16 Wherefore we faint not; but though our outward man is decaying, yet our inward man is 17 renewed day by day. For our light affliction, which is for the moment, worketh for us more and more exceedingly an eternal weight of 18 glory; while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal.

5 For we know that if the earthly house of our [3]tabernacle be dissolved, we have a building from God, a house not made with hands, eter-
2 nal, in the heavens. For verily in this we groan, longing to be clothed upon with our
3 habitation which is from heaven: if so be that being clothed we shall not be found naked.
4 For indeed we that are in this [3]tabernacle do groan, [4]being burdened; not for that we would be unclothed, but that we would be clothed upon, that what is mortal may be swallowed up
5 of life. Now he that wrought us for this very thing is God, who gave unto us the earnest of 6 the Spirit. Being therefore always of good courage, and knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the 7 Lord (for we walk by faith, not by [5]sight);
8 we are of good courage, I say, and are willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be 9 at home with the Lord. Wherefore also we [6]make it our aim, whether at home or absent,
10 to be well-pleasing unto him. For we must all be made manifest before the judgement-seat of Christ; that each one may receive the things done [7]in the body, according to what he hath done, whether it be good or bad.
11 Knowing therefore the fear of the Lord, we persuade men, but we are made manifest unto God; and I hope that we are made manifest
12 also in your consciences. We are not again commending ourselves unto you, but speak as giving you occasion of glorying on our behalf, that ye may have wherewith to answer them
13 that glory in appearance, and not in heart. For whether we [8]are beside ourselves, it is unto God; or whether we are of sober mind, it is unto you.

1611

14 For the love of Christ constraineth us, because we thus judge: that if one died for all, then were all dead:

15 And that he died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again.

16 Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh: yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more.

17 Therefore if any man be in Christ, ‖he is a new creature: [a]old things are past away; behold, all things are become new.

18 And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation, 19 To wit, that God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them, and hath †committed unto us the word of reconciliation.

20 Now then we are Ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us; we pray you in Christ's stead, that ye be reconciled to God.

21 For he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him.

CHAP. VI.

WE then, as workers together with him, beseech you also, that ye receive not the grace of God in vain.

2 (For he saith, [a]I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation have I succoured thee: behold, now is the accepted time, behold, now is the day of salvation)

3 Giving no offence in any thing, that the ministry be not blamed:

4 But in all things †approving ourselves as the Ministers of God, in much patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses,

5 In stripes, in imprisonments, in ‖tumults, in labours, in watchings, in fastings,

6 By pureness, by knowledge, by longsuffering, by kindness, by the holy Ghost, by love unfeigned,

7 By the word of truth, by the power of God, by the armour of righteousness on the right hand and on the left,

8 By honour and dishonour, by evil report and good report, as deceivers, and yet true:

9 As unknown, and yet well known: as dying, and behold, we live: as chastened, and not killed:

10 As sorrowful, yet alway rejoicing: as poor, yet making many rich: as having nothing, and yet possessing all things.

11 O ye Corinthians, our mouth is open unto you, our heart is enlarged.

12 Ye are not straitened in us, but ye are straitened in your own bowels.

13 Now for a recompense in the same, (I speak as unto my children) be ye also enlarged.

14 Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness?

> And in a day of salvation did I succour thee:

behold, now is the acceptable time; behold,
3 now is the day of salvation): giving no occasion of stumbling in anything, that our minis-
4 tration be not blamed; but in everything commending ourselves, as ministers of God, in much patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in 5 distresses, in stripes, in imprisonments, in tu-
6 mults, in labours, in watchings, in fastings; in pureness, in knowledge, in longsuffering, in kindness, in the [3]Holy Ghost, in love un-
7 feigned, in the word of truth, in the power of God; [4]by the armour of righteousness on the 8 right hand and on the left, by glory and dishonour, by evil report and good report; as 9 deceivers, and yet true; as unknown, and yet well known; as dying, and behold, we live; as 10 chastened, and not killed; as sorrowful, yet alway rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing all things.

11 Our mouth is open unto you, O Corinthians,
12 our heart is enlarged. Ye are not straitened in us, but ye are straitened in your own affections.
13 Now for a recompense in like kind (I speak as unto my children), be ye also enlarged.

14 Be not unequally yoked with unbelievers: for what fellowship have righteousness and iniquity? or what communion hath light with darkness?

15 And what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel?
16 And what agreement hath the Temple of God with idols? for ye are the Temple of the living God, as God hath said, [b] I will dwell in them, and walk in them, and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.
17 [c] Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you,
18 [d] And will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty.

CHAP. VII.

HAVING therefore these promises (dearly beloved) let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.
2 Receive us, we have wronged no man, we have corrupted no man, we have defrauded no man.
3 I speak not this to condemn you: for I have said before, that you are in our hearts to die and live with you.
4 Great is my boldness of speech toward you, great is my glorying of you, I am filled with comfort, I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation.
5 For when we were come into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on every side; without were fightings, within were fears.
6 Nevertheless, God that comforteth those that are cast down, comforted us by the coming of Titus.
7 And not by his coming only, but by the consolation wherewith he was comforted in you, when he told us your earnest desire, your mourning, your fervent mind toward me, so that I rejoiced the more.
8 For though I made you sorry with a letter, I do not repent, though I did repent: For I perceive that the same Epistle hath made you sorry, though it were but for a season.
9 Now I rejoice, not that ye were made sorry, but that ye sorrowed to repentance: for ye were made sorry ‖after a godly manner, that ye might receive damage by us in nothing.
10 For godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of, but the sorrow of the world worketh death.
11 For behold this selfsame thing that ye sorrowed after a godly sort, what carefulness it wrought in you, yea, what clearing of yourselves, yea, what indignation, yea, what fear, yea, what vehement desire, yea, what zeal, yea, what revenge; In all things ye have approved yourselves to be clear in this matter.
12 Wherefore though I wrote unto you, I did it not for his cause that had done the wrong, nor for his cause that suffered wrong, but that our care for you in the sight of God might appear unto you.
13 Therefore we were comforted in your comfort, yea, and exceedingly the more joyed we for the joy of Titus, because his spirit was refreshed by you all.

15 And what concord hath Christ with [1] Belial? or what portion hath a believer with an unbeliever? And what agreement hath a [2] temple of God with idols? for we are a [2] temple of the living God; even as God said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. Wherefore

Come ye out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord,
And touch no unclean thing;
And I will receive you,
And will be to you a Father,
And ye shall be to me sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty. Having therefore these promises, beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all defilement of flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.
2 [3] Open your hearts to us: we wronged no man, we corrupted no man, we took advantage of no man. I say it not to condemn you: for I have said before, that ye are in our hearts to die together and live together. Great is my boldness of speech toward you, great is my glorying on your behalf: I am filled with comfort, I overflow with joy in all our affliction.
5 For even when we were come into Macedonia, our flesh had no relief, but we were afflicted on every side; without were fightings, within were fears. Nevertheless he that comforteth the lowly, even God, comforteth us by the [4] coming of Titus; and not by his [4] coming only, but also by the comfort wherewith he was comforted in you, while he told us your longing, your mourning, your zeal for me; so that I rejoiced yet more.
8 For though I made you sorry with my epistle, I do not regret it, though I did regret; [5] for I see that that epistle made you sorry, though but for a season. Now I rejoice, not that ye were made sorry, but that ye were made sorry unto repentance: for ye were made sorry after a godly sort, that ye might suffer loss by us in nothing.
10 For godly sorrow worketh repentance [6] unto salvation, a repentance which bringeth no regret: but the sorrow of the world worketh death. For behold, this selfsame thing, that ye were made sorry after a godly sort, what earnest care it wrought in you, yea, what clearing of yourselves, yea, what indignation, yea, what fear, yea, what longing, yea, what zeal, yea, what avenging! In everything ye approved yourselves to be pure in the matter. So although I wrote unto you, I wrote not for his cause that did the wrong, nor for his cause that suffered the wrong, but that your earnest care for us might be made manifest unto you in the sight of God. Therefore we have been comforted: and in our comfort we joyed the more exceedingly for the joy of Titus, because his spirit hath been refreshed by you all.

15 And his †inward affection is more abundant toward you, whilst he remembereth the obedience of you all, how with fear and trembling you received him.

16 I rejoice therefore that I have confidence in you in all things.

CHAP. VIII.

MOREOVER, brethren, we do you to wit of the grace of God bestowed on the Churches of Macedonia,

2 How that in a great trial of affliction, the abundance of their joy, and their deep poverty, abounded unto the riches of their liberality.

3 For to their power (I bear record) yea, and beyond their power they were willing of themselves:

4 Praying us with much intreaty, that we would receive the gift, and take upon us the fellowship of the ministering to the Saints.

5 And this they did, not as we hoped, but first gave their own selves to the Lord, and unto us, by the will of God.

6 Insomuch that we desired Titus, that as he had begun, so he would also finish in you the same grace also.

7 Therefore (as ye abound in every thing, in faith, and utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love to us) see that ye abound in this grace also.

8 I speak not by commandment, but by occasion of the forwardness of others, and to prove the sincerity of your love.

9 For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich.

10 And herein I give my advice, for this is expedient for you, who have begun before, not only to do, but also to be †forward a year ago.

11 Now therefore perform the doing of it, that as there was a readiness to will, so there may be a performance also out of that which you have.

12 For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.

13 For I mean not that other men be eased, and you burdened:

14 But by an equality: that now at this time your abundance may be a supply for their want, that their abundance also may be a supply for your want, that there may be equality, 15 As it is written, [a]He that had gathered much had nothing over, and he that had gathered little had no lack.

16 But thanks be to God which put the same earnest care into the heart of Titus for you.

17 For indeed he accepted the exhortation, but being more forward, of his own accord he went unto you.

14 For if in anything I have gloried to him on your behalf, I was not put to shame; but as we spake all things to you in truth, so our glorying also, which I made before Titus, was found to be truth.

15 And his inward affection is more abundantly toward you, whilst he remembereth the obedience of you all, how with fear and trembling ye re-

16 ceived him. I rejoice that in everything I am of good courage concerning you.

8 Moreover, brethren, we make known to you the grace of God which hath been given in the

2 churches of Macedonia; how that in much proof of affliction the abundance of their joy and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their

3 [1]liberality. For according to their power, I bear witness, yea and beyond their power, they

4 gave of their own accord, beseeching us with much intreaty in regard of this grace and the

5 fellowship in the ministering to the saints: and this not as we had hoped, but first they gave their own selves to the Lord, and to us by the

6 will of God. Insomuch that we exhorted Titus, that as he had made a beginning before, so he

7 would also complete in you this grace also. But as ye abound in everything, in faith, and utterance, and knowledge, and in all earnestness, and in [2]your love to us, see that ye abound in this

8 grace also. I speak not by way of commandment, but as proving through the earnestness

9 of others the sincerity also of your love. For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might

10 become rich. And herein I give my judgement: for this is expedient for you, who were the first to make a beginning a year ago, not only to do,

11 but also to will. But now complete the doing also; that as there was the readiness to will, so there may be the completion also out of your

12 ability. For if the readiness is there, it is acceptable according as a man hath, not according

13 as he hath not. For I say not this, that others

14 may be eased, and ye distressed: but by equality; your abundance being a supply at this present time for their want, that their abundance also may become a supply for your want; that 15 there may be equality: as it is written, He that gathered much had nothing over; and he that gathered little had no lack.

16 But thanks be to God, which putteth the same earnest care for you into the heart

17 of Titus. For indeed he accepted our exhortation; but being himself very earnest, he went forth unto you of his own accord.

18 And we have sent with him the brother, whose praise is in the Gospel, throughout all the Churches.
19 And not that only, but who was also chosen of the Churches to travel with us with this ‖grace, which is administered by us to the glory of the same Lord, and declaration of your ready mind.
20 Avoiding this, that no man should blame us in this abundance which is administered by us.
21 Providing for honest things, not only in the sight of the Lord, but in the sight of men.
22 And we have sent with them our brother, whom we have oftentimes proved diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, upon the great confidence which ‖I have in you.
23 Whether any do inquire of Titus; he is my partner and fellowhelper concerning you: or our brethren be inquired of, they are the messengers of the Churches, and the glory of Christ.
24 Wherefore shew ye to them, and before the Churches, the proof of your love, and of our boasting on your behalf.

CHAP. IX.

FOR as touching the ministering to the Saints, it is superfluous for me to write to you.
2 For I know the forwardness of your mind, for which I boast of you to them of Macedonia, that Achaia was ready a year ago, and your zeal hath provoked very many.
3 Yet have I sent the brethren, lest our boasting of you should be in vain in this behalf, that, as I said, ye may be ready.
4 Lest haply if they of Macedonia come with me, and find you unprepared, we (that we say not, you) should be ashamed in this same confident boasting.
5 Therefore I thought it necessary to exhort the brethren, that they would go before unto you, and make up beforehand your †bounty, ‖whereof ye had notice before, that the same might be ready, as a matter of bounty, not of covetousness.
6 But this I say, He which soweth sparingly shall reap sparingly: and he which soweth bountifully shall reap bountifully.
7 Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for [a]God loveth a cheerful giver.
8 And God is able to make all grace abound towards you, that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work,
9 (As it is written: [b]He hath dispersed abroad: He hath given to the poor: his righteousness remaineth for ever.
10 Now he that [c]ministereth seed to the sower, both minister bread for your food, and multiply your seed sown, and increase the fruits of your righteousness)
11 Being enriched in every thing to all bountifulness, which causeth through us thanksgiving to God.
12 For the administration of the service not only supplieth the want of the Saints, but is abundant also by many thanksgivings unto God,

18 And we have sent together with him the brother whose praise in the gospel is spread through all
19 the churches; and not only so, but who was also appointed by the churches to travel with us in the matter of this grace, which is ministered by us to the glory of the Lord, and to shew our 20 readiness: avoiding this, that any man should blame us in the matter of this bounty which is 21 ministered by us: for we take thought for things honourable, not only in the sight of the Lord,
22 but also in the sight of men. And we have sent with them our brother, whom we have many times proved earnest in many things, but now much more earnest, by reason of the great
23 confidence which he hath in you. Whether any inquire about Titus, he is my partner and my fellow-worker to you-ward; or our brethren, they are the [1]messengers of the churches, they 24 are the glory of Christ. [2]Shew ye therefore unto them in the face of the churches the proof of your love, and of our glorying on your behalf.

9 For as touching the ministering to the saints,
2 it is superfluous for me to write to you: for I know your readiness, of which I glory on your behalf to them of Macedonia, that Achaia hath been prepared for a year past; and [3]your zeal
3 hath stirred up [4]very many of them. But I have sent the brethren, that our glorying on your behalf may not be made void in this respect;
4 that, even as I said, ye may be prepared: lest by any means, if there come with me any of Macedonia, and find you unprepared, we (that we say not, ye) should be put to shame in this
5 confidence. I thought it necessary therefore to intreat the brethren, that they would go before unto you, and make up beforehand your aforepromised [5]bounty, that the same might be ready, as a matter of bounty, and not of [6]extortion.
6 But this I say, He that soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he that soweth
7 [7]bountifully shall reap also [7]bountifully. Let each man do according as he hath purposed in his heart; not [8]grudgingly, or of necessity: for 8 God loveth a cheerful giver. And God is able to make all grace abound unto you; that ye, having always all sufficiency in everything, may 9 abound unto every good work: as it is written,

He hath scattered abroad, he hath given to the poor;
His righteousness abideth for ever.

10 And he that supplieth seed to the sower and bread for food, shall supply and multiply your seed for sowing, and increase the fruits of your
11 righteousness: ye being enriched in everything unto all [9]liberality, which worketh through us
12 thanksgiving to God. For the ministration of this service not only filleth up the measure of the wants of the saints, but aboundeth also through many thanksgivings unto God;

1611

13 Whiles by the experiment of this ministration they glorify God for your professed subjection unto the Gospel of Christ, and for your liberal distribution unto them, and unto all men:

14 And by their prayer for you, which long after you for the exceeding grace of God in you.

15 Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift.

CHAP. X.

NOW I Paul myself beseech you, by the meekness and gentleness of Christ, who ‖in presence am base among you, but being absent am bold toward you:

2 But I beseech you, that I may not be bold when I am present with that confidence wherewith I think to be bold against some, which ‖think of us as if we walked according to the flesh.

3 For though we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh:

4 (For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty ‖through God to the pulling down of strong holds;)

5 Casting down ‖imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ:

6 And having in a readiness to revenge all disobedience, when your obedience is fulfilled.

7 Do ye look on things after the outward appearance? if any man trust to himself that he is Christ's, let him of himself think this again, that as he is Christ's, even so are we Christ's.

8 For though I should boast somewhat more of our authority (which the Lord hath given us for edification, and not for your destruction) I should not be ashamed:

9 That I may not seem as if I would terrify you by letters.

10 For his letters (say they) are weighty and powerful, but his bodily presence is weak, and his speech contemptible.

11 Let such a one think this: that such as we are in word by letters, when we are absent, such will we be also in deed when we are present.

12 For we dare not make ourselves of the number, or compare ourselves with some that commend themselves: but they measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves amongst themselves, ‖are not wise.

13 But we will not boast of things without our measure, but according to the measure of the ‖rule which God hath distributed to us, a measure to reach even unto you.

14 For we stretch not ourselves beyond our measure as though we reached not unto you, for we are come as far as to you also, in preaching the Gospel of Christ.

15 Not boasting of things without our measure, that is, of other men's labours, but having hope, when your faith is increased, that we shall be ‖enlarged by you, according to our rule abundantly.

13 seeing that through the proving of you by this ministration they glorify God for the obedience of your confession unto the gospel of Christ, and for the [1]liberality of your contribution
14 unto them and unto all; while they themselves also, with supplication on your behalf, long after you by reason of the exceeding grace
15 of God in you. Thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift.

10 Now I Paul myself intreat you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ, I who in your presence am lowly among you, but being absent
2 am of good courage toward you: yea, I beseech you, that I may not when present shew courage with the confidence wherewith I count to be bold against some, which count of us as if we walked
3 according to the flesh. For though we walk in the flesh, we do not war according to the flesh
4 (for the weapons of our warfare are not of the flesh, but mighty before God to the casting down
5 of strong holds); casting down [2]imaginations, and every high thing that is exalted against the knowledge of God, and bringing every thought
6 into captivity to the obedience of Christ; and being in readiness to avenge all disobedience,
7 when your obedience shall be fulfilled. [3]Ye look at the things that are before your face. If any man trusteth in himself that he is Christ's, let him consider this again with himself, that, even as he is Christ's, so also are we.
8 For though I should glory somewhat abundantly concerning our authority (which the Lord gave for building you up, and not for casting you 9 down), I shall not be put to shame: that I may not seem as if I would terrify you by my let-
10 ters. For, His letters, they say, are weighty and strong; but his bodily presence is weak,
11 and his speech of no account. Let such a one reckon this, that, what we are in word by letters when we are absent, such are we also in deed
12 when we are present. For we are not bold [4]to number or compare ourselves with certain of them that commend themselves: but they themselves, measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves with themselves, are with-
13 out understanding. But we will not glory beyond our measure, but according to the measure of the [5]province which God apportioned to us
14 as a measure, to reach even unto you. For we stretch not ourselves overmuch, as though we reached not unto you: for we [6]came even as far 15 as unto you in the gospel of Christ: not glorying beyond our measure, that is, in other men's labours; but having hope that, as your faith groweth, we shall be magnified in you according to our [5]province unto further abundance, so as you, and not to boast in another man's ‖line of things made ready to our hand.

17 [a]But he that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord.

CHAP. XI.

WOULD to God you could bear with me a little in my folly, and indeed ‖bear with me.

2 For I am jealous over you with godly jealousy, for I have espoused you to one husband, that I may present you as a chaste virgin to Christ.

3 But I fear lest by any means, as the Serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ.

4 For if he that cometh preacheth another Jesus whom we have not preached, or if ye receive another spirit, which ye have not received, or another Gospel, which ye have not accepted, ye might well bear with him.

5 For, I suppose, I was not a whit behind the very chiefest Apostles.

6 But though I be rude in speech, yet not in knowledge; but we have been throughly made manifest among you in all things.

7 Have I committed an offence in abasing myself, that you might be exalted, because I have preached to you the Gospel of God freely?

8 I robbed other Churches, taking wages of them to do you service.

9 And when I was present with you, and wanted, I was chargeable to no man: For that which was lacking to me the brethren which came from Macedonia supplied, and in all things I have kept myself from being burdensome to you, and so will I keep myself.

10 As the truth of Christ is in me, †no man shall stop me of this boasting in the regions of Achaia.

11 Wherefore? because I love you not? God knoweth.

12 But what I do, that I will do, that I may cut off occasion from them which desire occasion, that wherein they glory, they may be found even as we.

13 For such are false Apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the Apostles of Christ.

14 And no marvel, for Satan himself is transformed into an Angel of light.

15 Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as the ministers of righteousness, whose end shall be according to their works.

16 I say again, Let no man think me a fool; if otherwise, yet as a fool ‖receive me, that I may boast myself a little.

17 That which I speak, I speak it not after the Lord, but as it were foolishly in this confidence of boasting.

18 Seeing that many glory after the flesh, I will glory also.

19 For ye suffer fools gladly, seeing ye yourselves are wise.

20 For ye suffer if a man bring you into bondage, if a man devour you, if a man take of you, if a man exalt himself, if a man smite you on the face.

you, and not to glory in another's [1]province in 17 regard of things ready to our hand. But he 18 that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord. For not he that commendeth himself is approved, but whom the Lord commendeth.

11 Would that ye could bear with me in a little
2 foolishness: [2]nay indeed bear with me. For I am jealous over you with [3]a godly jealousy: for I espoused you to one husband, that I might
3 present you as a pure virgin to Christ. But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve in his craftiness, your [4]minds should be corrupted from the simplicity and the purity
4 that is toward Christ. For if he that cometh preacheth another Jesus, whom we did not preach, or if ye receive a different spirit, which ye did not receive, or a different gospel, which ye did not accept, ye do well to bear with him.
5 For I reckon that I am not a whit behind [5]the 6 very chiefest apostles. But though I be rude in speech, yet am I not in knowledge; nay, in everything we have made it manifest among 7 all men to you-ward. Or did I commit a sin in abasing myself that ye might be exalted, because I preached to you the gospel of God
8 for nought? I robbed other churches, taking wages of them that I might minister unto you;
9 and when I was present with you and was in want, I was not a burden on any man; for the brethren, when they came from Macedonia, supplied the measure of my want; and in everything I kept myself from being burdensome
10 unto you, and so will I keep myself. As the truth of Christ is in me, no man shall stop me of this glorying in the regions of Achaia.
11 Wherefore? because I love you not? God
12 knoweth. But what I do, that I will do, that I may cut off [6]occasion from them which desire an occasion; that wherein they glory, they may 13 be found even as we. For such men are false apostles, deceitful workers, fashioning themselves into apostles of Christ. And no mar-
14 vel; for even Satan fashioneth himself into an 15 angel of light. It is no great thing therefore if his ministers also fashion themselves as ministers of righteousness; whose end shall be according to their works.

16 I say again, Let no man think me foolish; but if ye do, yet as foolish receive me, that I
17 also may glory a little. That which I speak, I speak not after the Lord, but as in foolish-
18 ness, in this confidence of glorying. Seeing that many glory after the flesh, I will glory
19 also. For ye bear with the foolish gladly,
20 being wise yourselves. For ye bear with a man, if he bringeth you into bondage, if he devoureth you, if he taketh you captive, if he exalteth himself, if he smiteth you on the face.

21 I speak as concerning reproach, as though we had been weak: howbeit, whereinsoever any is bold, I speak foolishly, I am bold also.
22 Are they Hebrews? so am I: are they Israelites? so am I: are they the seed of Abraham? so am I:
23 Are they ministers of Christ? I speak as a fool, I am more: in labours more abundant: in stripes above measure: in prisons more frequent: in deaths oft.
24 Of the Jews five times received I [a]forty stripes save one.
25 Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned: thrice I suffered shipwreck: a night and a day I have been in the deep.
26 In journeying often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by my own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren, 27 In weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness.
28 Besides those things that are without, that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the Churches.
29 Who is weak, and I am not weak? who is offended, and I burn not?
30 If I must needs glory, I will glory of the things which concern mine infirmities.
31 The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which is blessed for evermore, knoweth that I lie not.
32 In Damascus the governor under Aretas the King, kept the city with a garrison, desirous to apprehend me.

CHAP. XII.

IT is not expedient for me, doubtless, to glory; I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord.
2 I knew a man in Christ above fourteen years ago, (whether in the body, I cannot tell, or whether out of the body, I cannot tell, God knoweth:) such a one, caught up to the third heaven.
3 And I knew such a man (whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell, God knoweth:)
4 How that he was caught up into Paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not ‖lawful for a man to utter.
5 Of such a one will I glory, yet of myself I will not glory, but in mine infirmities.
6 For though I would desire to glory, I shall not be a fool: for I will say the truth. But now I forbear, lest any man should think of me above that which he seeth me to be, or that he heareth of me:
7 And lest I should be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me a [a]thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me, lest I should be exalted above measure.
8 For this thing I besought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me.

21 I speak by way of disparagement, as though we had been weak. Yet whereinsoever any is bold (I speak in foolishness), I am bold
22 also. Are they Hebrews? so am I. Are they Israelites? so am I. Are they the seed
23 of Abraham? so am I. Are they ministers of Christ? (I speak as one beside himself) I more; in labours more abundantly, in prisons more abundantly, in stripes above measure,

12 [4]I must needs glory, though it is not expedient; but I will come to visions and revelations
2 of the Lord. I know a man in Christ, fourteen years ago (whether in the body, I know not; or whether out of the body, I know not; God knoweth), such a one caught up even to 3 the third heaven. And I know such a man (whether in the body, or apart from the body, 4 I know not; God knoweth), how that he was caught up into Paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter.
5 On behalf of such a one will I glory: but on mine own behalf I will not glory, save in my
6 weaknesses. For if I should desire to glory, I shall not be foolish; for I shall speak the truth: but I forbear, lest any man should account of me above that which he seeth me to be, or 10 Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then am I strong.

11 I am become a fool in glorying, ye have compelled me. For I ought to have been commended of you: for in nothing am I behind the very chiefest Apostles, though I be nothing.
12 Truly the signs of an Apostle were wrought among you in all patience, in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds.
13 For what is it wherein ye were inferior to other Churches, except it be that I myself was not burdensome to you? forgive me this wrong.
14 Behold, the third time I am ready to come to you, and I will not be burdensome to you; for I seek not yours, but you: for the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children.
15 And I will very gladly spend and be spent for †you, though the more abundantly I love you, the less I be loved.
16 But be it so: I did not burden you: nevertheless, being crafty, I caught you with guile.
17 Did I make a gain of you by any of them whom I sent unto you?
18 I desired Titus, and with him I sent a brother: did Titus make a gain of you? Walked we not in the same spirit? walked we not in the same steps?
19 Again, think you that we excuse ourselves unto you? we speak before God in Christ: but we do all things, dearly beloved, for your edifying.
20 For I fear lest when I come, I shall not find you such as I would, and that I shall be found unto you such as ye would not, lest there be debates, envyings, wraths, strifes, backbitings, whisperings, swellings, tumults, 21 And lest when I come again, my God will humble me among you, and that I shall bewail many which have sinned already, and have not repented of the uncleanness and fornication and lasciviousness which they have committed.

17 Did I take advantage of you by any one of them
18 whom I have sent unto you? I exhorted Titus, and I sent the brother with him. Did Titus take any advantage of you? walked we not by the same Spirit? walked we not in the same steps?
19 [5]Ye think all this time that we are excusing ourselves unto you. In the sight of God speak we in Christ. But all things, beloved, are for 20 your edifying. For I fear, lest by any means, when I come, I should find you not such as I would, and should myself be found of you such as ye would not; lest by any means there should be strife, jealousy, wraths, factions, backbitings, 21 whisperings, swellings, [6]tumults; lest, when I come again, my God should humble me before you, and I should mourn for many of them that have sinned heretofore, and repented not of the uncleanness and fornication and lasciviousness which they committed.

13 This is the third time I am coming to you. At the mouth of two witnesses or three shall
2 every word be established. I have said [7]beforehand, and I do say [7]beforehand, [8]as when I was present the second time, so now, being absent, to them that have sinned heretofore, and to all the rest, that, if I come again, I will not spare;
3 seeing that ye seek a proof of Christ that speaketh in me; who to you-ward is not weak, but is
4 powerful in you: for he was crucified through weakness, yet he liveth through the power of God. For we also are weak [9]in him, but we shall live with him through the power of God toward you.

5 Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith: prove your own selves. Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates?
6 But I trust that ye shall know that we are not reprobates.
7 Now I pray to God that ye do no evil, not that we should appear approved, but that ye should do that which is honest, though we be as reprobates.
8 For we can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth.
9 For we are glad when we are weak, and ye are strong: and this also we wish, even your perfection.
10 Therefore I write these things being absent, lest being present I should use sharpness, according to the power which the Lord hath given me to edification, and not to destruction.
11 Finally, brethren, farewell: Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace, and the God of love and peace shall be with you.
12 Greet one another with an holy kiss.
13 All the Saints salute you.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE GALATIANS.

CHAP. I.

PAUL an Apostle, not of men, neither by man, but by Jesus Christ, and God the Father, who raised him from the dead,
2 And all the brethren which are with me, unto the Churches of Galatia:
3 Grace be to you and peace, from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ,
4 Who gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us from this present evil world, according to the will of God and our Father,
5 To whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.
6 I marvel, that you are so soon removed from him that called you into the grace of Christ, unto another Gospel:
7 Which is not another; but there be some that trouble you, and would pervert the Gospel of Christ.
8 But though we, or an Angel from heaven, preach any other Gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.
9 As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other Gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed.

seek to please men? For if I yet pleased men, I should not be the servant of Christ.

11 But I certify you, brethren, that the Gospel which was preached of me is not after man.

12 For I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ.

13 For ye have heard of my conversation in time past in the Jews' Religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the Church of God, and wasted it:

14 And profited in the Jews' Religion above many my †equals in mine own nation, being more exceedingly zealous of the traditions of my fathers.

15 But when it pleased God, who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace,

16 To reveal his son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen, immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood:

17 Neither went I up to Jerusalem, to them which were Apostles before me, but I went into Arabia, and returned again unto Damascus.

18 Then after three years, I ‖went up to Jerusalem to see Peter, and abode with him fifteen days.

19 But other of the Apostles saw I none, save James the Lord's brother.

20 Now the things which I write unto you, behold, before God I lie not.

21 Afterwards I came into the regions of Syria and Cilicia,

22 And was unknown by face unto the Churches of Judæa which were in Christ.

23 But they had heard only, that he which persecuted us in times past, now preacheth the faith which once he destroyed.

24 And they glorified God in me.

CHAP. II.

THEN fourteen years after, I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and took Titus with me also.

2 And I went up by revelation, and communicated unto them that Gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but ‖privately to them which were of reputation, lest by any means I should run, or had run, in vain.

3 But neither Titus, who was with me, being a Greek, was compelled to be circumcised:

4 And that because of false brethren unawares brought in, who came in privily to spy out our liberty, which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage.

5 To whom we gave place by subjection, no not for an hour, that the truth of the Gospel might continue with you.

6 But of these, who seemed to be somewhat, (whatsoever they were, it maketh no matter to me, God accepteth no man's person,) for they who seemed to be somewhat, in conference added nothing to me.

7 But contrariwise, when they saw that the Gospel of the uncircumcision was committed unto me, as the Gospel of the circumcision was unto Peter:

seeking to please men? if I were still pleasing men, I should not be a [1]servant of Christ.

11 For I make known to you, brethren, as touching the gospel which was preached by me, that 12 it is not after man. For neither did I receive it from [2]man, nor was I taught it, but it came to 13 me through revelation of Jesus Christ. For ye have heard of my manner of life in time past in the Jews' religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the church of God, and made havoc
14 of it: and I advanced in the Jews' religion beyond many of mine own age [3]among my countrymen, being more exceedingly zealous for the 15 traditions of my fathers. But when it was the good pleasure of God, who separated me, even from my mother's womb, and called me through 16 his grace, to reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the Gentiles; immediately I
17 conferred not with flesh and blood: neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me: but I went away into Arabia; and again I returned unto Damascus.

18 Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to [4]visit Cephas, and tarried with him fifteen 19 days. But other of the apostles saw I none, 20 [5]save James the Lord's brother. Now touching the things which I write unto you, behold, be-21 fore God, I lie not. Then I came into the re-
22 gions of Syria and Cilicia. And I was still unknown by face unto the churches of Judæa 23 which were in Christ: but they only heard say, He that once persecuted us now preacheth the 24 faith of which he once made havoc; and they glorified God in me.

2 Then [6]after the space of fourteen years I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, taking
2 Titus also with me. And I went up by revelation; and I laid before them the gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but privately before them who [7]were of repute, lest by any means I
3 should be running, or had run, in vain. But not even Titus who was with me, being a Greek,
4 was compelled to be circumcised: [8]and that because of the false brethren privily brought in, who came in privily to spy out our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring
5 us into bondage: to whom we gave place in the way of subjection, no, not for an hour; that the truth of the gospel might continue with you.
6 But from those who [7]were reputed to be somewhat ([9]whatsoever they were, it maketh no matter to me: God accepteth not man's person)—they, I say, who were of repute imparted noth-
7 ing to me: but contrariwise, when they saw that I had been intrusted with the gospel of the uncircumcision, even as Peter with the gospel of 9 And when James, Cephas, and John, who seemed to be pillars, perceived the grace that was given unto me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship, that we should go unto the heathen, and they unto the circumcision.

10 Only they would that we should remember the poor, the same which I also was forward to do.

11 But when Peter was come to Antioch, I withstood him to the face, because he was to be blamed.

12 For before that certain came from James, he did eat with the Gentiles: but when they were come, he withdrew, and separated himself, fearing them which were of the circumcision.

13 And the other Jews dissembled likewise with him, insomuch that Barnabas also was carried away with their dissimulation.

14 But when I saw that they walked not uprightly according to the truth of the Gospel, I said unto Peter before them all, If thou, being a Jew, livest after the manner of Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, why compellest thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews?

15 We who are Jews by nature, and not sinners of the Gentiles,

16 Knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ, even we have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law: for by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified.

17 But if while we seek to be justified by Christ, we ourselves also are found sinners, is therefore Christ the minister of sin? God forbid.

18 For if I build again the things which I destroyed, I make myself a transgressor.

19 For I through the law am dead to the law, that I might live unto God.

20 I am crucified with Christ. Nevertheless, I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me, and the life which I now live in the flesh, I live by the faith of the son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me.

21 I do not frustrate the grace of God: for if righteousness come by the law, then Christ is dead in vain.

CHAP. III.

2 This only would I learn of you, received ye the spirit by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith?

11 But when Cephas came to Antioch, I resisted him to the face, because he stood condemned.

17 flesh be justified. But if, while we sought to be justified in Christ, we ourselves also were found sinners, is Christ a minister of sin? God
18 forbid. For if I build up again those things which I destroyed, I prove myself a trans-
19 gressor. For I through [4]the law died unto 20 [4]the law, that I might live unto God. I have been crucified with Christ; [5]yet I live; and yet no longer I, but Christ liveth in me: and that life which I now live in the flesh I live in faith, the faith which is in the Son of God, who 21 loved me, and gave himself up for me. I do not make void the grace of God: for if righteousness is through [4]the law, then Christ died for nought.

3 O foolish Galatians, who did bewitch you, before whose eyes Jesus Christ was openly set
2 forth crucified? This only would I learn from you, Received ye the Spirit by [2]the works of 3 the law, or by the [6]hearing of faith? Are ye so foolish? having begun in the Spirit, [7]are ye

7 Know ye therefore, that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham.

8 And the Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the Gospel unto Abraham, saying, [a]In thee shall all nations be blessed.

9 So then, they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham.

10 For as many as are of the works of the law, are under the curse: for it is written, [b]Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them.

11 But that no man is justified by the law in the sight of God, it is evident: for, [c]The just shall live by faith.

12 And the law is not of faith: but [d]the man that doeth them shall live in them.

13 Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us: for it is written, [e]Cursed is every one that hangeth on tree:

14 That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles, through Jesus Christ: that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

15 Brethren, I speak after the manner of men: though it be but a man's ‖covenant, yet if it be confirmed, no man disannulleth, or addeth thereto.

16 Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many, but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ.

17 And this I say, that the Covenant that was confirmed before of God in Christ, the law, which was four hundred and thirty years after, cannot disannul, that it should make the promise of none effect.

18 For if the inheritance be of the law, it is no more of promise: but God gave it to Abraham by promise.

19 Wherefore then serveth the law? it was added because of transgressions, till the seed should come to whom the promise was made, and it was ordained by Angels in the hand of a Mediator.

20 Now a mediator is not a Mediator of one, but God is one.

21 Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid: for if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness should have been by the law.

22 But the Scripture hath concluded all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe.

23 But before faith came, we were kept under the law, shut up unto the faith which should afterwards be revealed.

24 Wherefore the law was our Schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by Faith.

25 But after that Faith is come, we are no longer under a Schoolmaster.

26 For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus.

27 For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ.

7 [1]Know therefore that they which be of faith,
8 the same are sons of Abraham. And the scripture, foreseeing that God [2]would justify the [3]Gentiles by faith, preached the gospel beforehand unto Abraham, saying, In thee
9 shall all the nations be blessed. So then they which be of faith are blessed with the faithful
10 Abraham. For as many as are of [4]the works of the law are under a curse: for it is written, Cursed is every one which continueth not in all things that are written in the book of the law, 11 to do them. Now that no man is justified [5]by the law in the sight of God, is evident: for,
12 The righteous shall live by faith; and the law is not of faith; but, He that doeth them shall 13 live in them. Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law, having become a curse for us: for it is written, Cursed is every one that hang-14 eth on a tree: that upon the Gentiles might come the blessing of Abraham in Christ Jesus; that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

15 Brethren, I speak after the manner of men: Though it be but a man's [6]covenant, yet when it hath been confirmed, no one maketh it void,
16 or addeth thereto. Now to Abraham were the promises spoken, and to his seed. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And 17 to thy seed, which is Christ. Now this I say; A [6]covenant confirmed beforehand by God, the law, which came four hundred and thirty years after, doth not disannul, so as to make the prom-
18 ise of none effect. For if the inheritance is of the law, it is no more of promise: but God hath 19 granted it to Abraham by promise. What then is the law? It was added because of transgressions, till the seed should come to whom the promise hath been made; and it was ordained through angels by the hand of a medi-
20 ator. Now a mediator is not a mediator of 21 one; but God is one. Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid: for if there had been a law given which could make alive, verily righteousness would have been of the law.
22 Howbeit the scripture hath shut up all things under sin, that the promise by faith in Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe.

23 But before [7]faith came, we were kept in ward under the law, shut up unto the faith
24 which should afterwards be revealed. So that the law hath been our tutor to bring us unto 25 Christ, that we might be justified by faith. But now that faith is come, we are no longer under 26 a tutor. For ye are all sons of God, through 27 faith, in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ.

1611

28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.
29 And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise.

CHAP. IV.

NOW I say, that the heir, as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be Lord of all,
2 But is under tutors and governors until the time appointed of the father.
3 Even so we, when we were children, were in bondage under the ‖Elements of the world:
4 But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son made of a woman, made under the law,
5 To redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons.
6 And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father.
7 Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ.
8 Howbeit, then when ye knew not God, ye did service unto them which by nature are no Gods.
9 But now after that ye have known God, or rather are known of God, how turn ye ‖again to the weak and beggarly ‖Elements, whereunto ye desire again to be in bondage?
10 Ye observe days, and months, and times, and years.
11 I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed upon you labour in vain.
12 Brethren, I beseech you, be as I am; for I am as ye are, ye have not injured me at all.
13 Ye know how through infirmity of the flesh I preached the Gospel unto you at the first.
14 And my temptation which was in my flesh ye despised not, nor rejected, but received me as an Angel of God, even as Christ Jesus.
15 ‖Where is then the blessedness you spake of? for I bear you record, that if it had been possible, ye would have plucked out your own eyes, and have given them to me.
16 Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth?
17 They zealously affect you, but not well: yea, they would exclude ‖you, that you might affect them.
18 But it is good to be zealously affected always in a good thing, and not only when I am present with you.
19 My little children, of whom I travail in birth again, until Christ be formed in you,
20 I desire to be present with you now, and to change my voice, for ‖I stand in doubt of you.
21 Tell me, ye that desire to be under the law, do ye not hear the law?
22 For it is written, that Abraham had two sons, the one by a bondmaid, the other by a freewoman.

28 There can be neither Jew nor Greek, there can be no male and female: for ye all are one man in 29 Christ Jesus. And if ye are Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, heirs according to promise.
4 But I say that so long as the heir is a child, he differeth nothing from a bondservant, though 2 he is lord of all; but is under guardians and stewards until the term appointed of the father.
3 So we also, when we were children, were held in bondage under the [1]rudiments of the world:
4 but when the fulness of the time came, God sent forth his Son, born of a woman, born 5 under the law, that he might redeem them which were under the law, that we might re-6 ceive the adoption of sons. And because ye are sons, God sent forth the Spirit of his Son 7 into our hearts, crying, Abba, Father. So that thou art no longer a bondservant, but a son;
and if a son, then an heir through God.
8 Howbeit at that time, not knowing God, ye ments, whereunto ye desire to be in bondage 10 over again? Ye observe days, and months, and 11 seasons, and years. I am afraid of you, lest by any means I have bestowed labour upon you in vain.

12 I beseech you, brethren, be as I am, for I am 13 as ye are. Ye did me no wrong: but ye know that because of an infirmity of the flesh I preached the gospel unto you the [2]first time:
14 and that which was a temptation to you in my flesh ye despised not, nor [3]rejected; but ye received me as an angel of God, even as Christ 15 Jesus. Where then is that gratulation [4]of yourselves? for I bear you witness, that, if possible, ye would have plucked out your eyes 16 and given them to me. So then am I become your enemy, because I [5]tell you the truth?
17 They zealously seek you in no good way; nay, they desire to shut you out, that ye may seek 18 them. But it is good to be zealously sought in a good matter at all times, and not only when 19 I am present with you. My little children, of whom I am again in travail until Christ be 20 formed in you, yea, I could wish to be present with you now, and to change my voice; for I am perplexed about you.

24 Which things are an Allegory; for these are the two ‖ Covenants; the one from the mount Sinai, which gendereth to bondage, which is Agar.

25 For this Agar is mount Sinai in Arabia, and ‖ answereth to Jerusalem which now is, and is in bondage with her children.

26 But Jerusalem which is above is free, which is the mother of us all.

27 For it is written, [a] Rejoice, thou barren that bearest not; break forth and cry, thou that travailest not; for the desolate hath many more children than she which hath an husband.

28 Now we, brethren, as Isaac was, are the children of promise.

29 But as then he that was born after the flesh, persecuted him that was born after the Spirit, even so it is now.

30 Nevertheless, what saith the Scripture? [b] Cast out the bondwoman and her son: for the son of the bondwoman shall not be heir with the son of the freewoman.

31 So then, brethren, we are not children of the bondwoman, but of the free.

CHAP. V.

STAND fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage.

2 Behold, I Paul say unto you, that if ye be circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing.

3 For I testify again to every man that is circumcised, that he is a debtor to do the whole law.

4 Christ is become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are justified by the law: ye are fallen from grace.

5 For we through the spirit wait for the hope of righteousness by faith.

6 For in Jesus Christ neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision, but faith which worketh by love.

7 Ye did run well; ‖ who did hinder you, that ye should not obey the truth?

11 And I, brethren, if I yet preach circumcision, why do I yet suffer persecution? then is the offence of the cross ceased.

12 I would they were even cut off which trouble you.

13 For brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another.

27 which is our mother. For it is written,

Rejoice, thou barren that bearest not;
Break forth and cry, thou that travailest not:

PAUL an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, to the Saints which are at Ephesus, and to the faithful in Christ Jesus.

2 Grace be to you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly ‖places in Christ:

4 According as he hath chosen us in him, before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy, and without blame before him in love:

5 Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will:

6 To the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the beloved:

7 In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace,

8 Wherein he hath abounded toward us in all wisdom and prudence:

9 Having made known unto us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure, which he had purposed in himself,

10 That in the dispensation of the fulness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in †heaven, and which are on earth, even in him:

11 In whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will:

13 In whom ye also trusted after that ye heard the word of truth, the Gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise,
14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance, until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.
15 Wherefore I also, after I heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus, and love unto all the Saints,
16 Cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers,
17 That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the Spirit of wisdom and revelation ‖in the knowledge of him:
18 The eyes of your understanding being enlightened: that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the Saints:

21 Far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come:
22 And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the Church,
23 Which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all.

CHAP. II.

AND you hath he quickened who were dead in trespasses and sins,
2 Wherein in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience,
3 Among whom also we all had our conversation in times past in the lusts of our flesh, fulfilling †the desires of the flesh and of the mind, and were by nature the children of wrath, even as others:
4 But God who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us,
5 Even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, (by grace ye are saved)
6 And hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus:
7 That in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace, in his kindness towards us, through Christ Jesus.
8 For by grace are ye saved, through faith, and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God:

16 and [2]which ye shew toward all the saints, cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of
17 you in my prayers; that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you a spirit of wisdom and revelation in the 18 knowledge of him; having the eyes of your heart enlightened, that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, what the riches of the 19 glory of his inheritance in the saints, and what the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to that work-
20 ing of the strength of his might which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and made him to sit at his right hand
21 in the heavenly places, far above all rule, and authority, and power, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this [3]world,
22 but also in that which is to come: and he put all things in subjection under his feet, and gave him to be head over all things to the church,
23 which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all.

2 And you did he quicken, when ye were dead
2 through your trespasses and sins, wherein aforetime ye walked according to the [4]course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, of the spirit that now worketh in the 3 sons of disobedience; among whom we also all once lived in the lusts of our flesh, doing the desires of the flesh and of the [5]mind, and were by nature children of wrath, even as the rest:—
4 but God, being rich in mercy, for his great love
5 wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead through our trespasses, quickened us together
6 [6]with Christ (by grace have ye been saved), and raised us up with him, and made us to sit with him in the heavenly places, in Christ Jesus:
7 that in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in kindness toward 8 us in Christ Jesus: for by grace have ye been saved through faith; and that not of your-
9 selves: it is the gift of God: not of works, that 10 no man should glory. For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God afore prepared that we should walk in them.

1611

11 Wherefore remember that ye being in time passed Gentiles in the flesh, who are called uncircumcision by that which is called the circumcision in the flesh made by hands, 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world.

13 But now in Christ Jesus, ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.

14 For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us:

15 Having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances, for to make in himself of twain one new man, so making peace.

16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross, having slain the enmity ‖thereby,

17 And came and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were nigh.

18 For through him we both have an access by one Spirit unto the Father.

19 Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the Saints, and of the household of God,

20 And are built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone,

21 In whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy Temple in the Lord:

22 In whom you also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit.

CHAP. III.

FOR this cause I Paul, the prisoner of Jesus Christ for you Gentiles,

2 If ye have heard of the dispensation of the grace of God, which is given me to you-ward:

3 How that by revelation he made known unto me the mystery, (as I wrote ‖afore in few words,

4 Whereby, when ye read, ye may understand my knowledge in the mystery of Christ)

5 Which in other ages was not made known unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy Apostles and Prophets by the Spirit,

6 That the Gentiles should be fellowheirs, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ, by the Gospel:

7 Whereof I was made a Minister, according to the gift of the grace of God given unto me, by the effectual working of his power.

8 Unto me, who am less than the least of all Saints, is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ,

9 And to make all men see what is the fellowship of the mystery, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jesus Christ:

10 To the intent that now unto the prin-

11 Wherefore remember, that aforetime ye, the Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called Circumcision, in 12 the flesh, made by hands; that ye were at that time separate from Christ, alienated from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of the promise, having no hope and 13 without God in the world. But now in Christ Jesus ye that once were far off are made nigh
14 in the blood of Christ. For he is our peace, who made both one, and brake down the middle 15 wall of partition, having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances; that he might create in himself of the twain one new man, so making
16 peace; and might reconcile them both in one body unto God through the Cross, having slain 17 the enmity thereby: and he came and [1]preached peace to you that were far off, and peace to 18 them that were nigh: for through him we both have our access in one Spirit unto the Father.
19 So then ye are no more strangers and sojourners, but ye are fellow-citizens with the saints, and 20 of the household of God, being built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Christ
21 Jesus himself being the chief corner stone; in whom [2]each several building, fitly framed together, groweth into a holy [3]temple in the Lord;
22 in whom ye also are builded together [4]for a habitation of God in the Spirit.

3 For this cause I Paul, the prisoner of Christ
2 Jesus in behalf of you Gentiles,—if so be that ye have heard of the [5]dispensation of that grace
3 of God which was given me to you-ward; how that by revelation was made known unto me the 4 mystery, as I wrote afore in few words, whereby, when ye read, ye can perceive my understanding
5 in the mystery of Christ; which in other generations was not made known unto the sons of men, as it hath now been revealed unto his holy apos-
6 tles and prophets in the Spirit; to wit, that the Gentiles are fellow-heirs, and fellow-members of the body, and fellow-partakers of the promise in
7 Christ Jesus through the gospel, whereof I was made a minister, according to the gift of that grace of God which was given me according to 8 the working of his power. Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, was this grace given, to preach unto the Gentiles the unsearch-
9 able riches of Christ; and to [6]make all men see what is the [5]dispensation of the mystery which from all ages hath been hid in God who created 10 all things; to the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places might be known, by the church, the manifold wisdom of God,

11 According to the eternal purpose which he purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord:

12 In whom we have boldness and access, with confidence, by the faith of him.

13 Wherefore I desire that ye faint not at my tribulations for you, which is your glory.

14 For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,

15 Of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named,

16 That he would grant you according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might, by his Spirit in the inner man,

17 That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith, that ye being rooted and grounded in love,

18 May be able to comprehend with all Saints, what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height:

19 And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God.

20 Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us,

21 Unto him be glory in the Church by Christ Jesus, throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

CHAP. IV.

I THEREFORE the prisoner ‖of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called,

2 With all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering, forbearing one another in love.

3 Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

4 There is one body, and one spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling.

5 One Lord, one Faith, one Baptism,

6 One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all.

7 But unto every one of us is given grace, according to the measure of the gift of Christ.

8 Wherefore he saith: [a]When he ascended up on high, he led ‖captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men.

9 (Now that he ascended, what is it but that he also descended first into the lower parts of the earth?

10 He that descended, is the same also that ascended up far above all heavens, that he might ‖fill all things.)

11 [b]And he gave some, Apostles: and some, Prophets: and some, Evangelists: and some, Pastors, and teachers:

12 For the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ:

cipalities and the powers in the heavenly places might be made known through the church the 11 manifold wisdom of God, according to the [1]eternal purpose which he purposed in Christ Jesus our 12 Lord: in whom we have boldness and access in 13 confidence through [2]our faith in him. Wherefore I ask that [3]ye faint not at my tribulations for you, which [4]are your glory.

14 For this cause I bow my knees unto the 15 Father, from whom every [5]family in heaven
16 and on earth is named, that he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, that ye may be strengthened with power through
17 his Spirit in the inward man; that Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith; to the end
18 that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be strong to apprehend with all the saints what is the breadth and length and height and depth, 19 and to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that ye may be filled unto all the fulness of God.

20 Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, ac-
21 cording to the power that worketh in us, unto him be the glory in the church and in Christ Jesus unto [6]all generations for ever and ever. Amen.

4 I therefore, the prisoner in the Lord, beseech you to walk worthily of the calling wherewith
2 ye were called, with all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering, forbearing one another in 3 love; giving diligence to keep the unity of the 4 Spirit in the bond of peace. There is one body, and one Spirit, even as also ye were called in 5 one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, 6 one baptism, one God and Father of all, who
7 is over all, and through all, and in all. But unto each one of us was the grace given accord-
8 ing to the measure of the gift of Christ. Wherefore he saith,

> When he ascended on high, he led captivity captive,
> And gave gifts unto men.

9 (Now this, He ascended, what is it but that he also descended [7]into the lower parts of the 10 earth? He that descended is the same also that ascended far above all the heavens, that he 11 might fill all things.) And he gave some to be apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the 12 perfecting of the saints, unto the work of ministering, unto the building up of the body of Christ:
13 till we all attain unto the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the ‖stature of the fulness of Christ:

14 That we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive:

15 But, ‖speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things which is the head, even Christ:

16 [c]From whom the whole body fitly joined together, and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body, unto the edifying of itself in love.

17 This I say therefore and testify in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk in the vanity of their mind,

18 Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God, through the ignorance that is in them, because of the [d]‖blindness of their heart:

19 Who, being past feeling, have given themselves over unto lasciviousness, to work all uncleanness with greediness.

20 But ye have not so learned Christ:

21 If so be that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jesus,

22 That ye put off, concerning the former conversation, the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts:

23 And be renewed in the spirit of your mind:

24 And that ye put on that new man, which after God is created in righteousness, and ‖true holiness.

25 Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbour: for we are members one of another.

26 Be ye angry and sin not, let not the sun go down upon your wrath:

27 Neither give place to the devil.

28 Let him that stole steal no more: but rather let him labour, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have ‖to give to him that needeth.

29 Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good ‖to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers.

30 And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption.

31 Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice, 32 [e]And be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.

CHAP. V.

BE ye therefore followers of God, as dear children.

of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a fullgrown man, unto the measure of the 15 of error; but [1]speaking truth in love, may grow up in all things into him, which is the

17 This I say therefore, and testify in the Lord, that ye no longer walk as the Gentiles also 18 walk, in the vanity of their mind, being darkened in their understanding, alienated from the life of God because of the ignorance that is in them, because of the hardening of their heart;
19 who being past feeling gave themselves up to lasciviousness, [3]to work all uncleanness with 20 [4]greediness. But ye did not so learn Christ;

25 Wherefore, putting away falsehood, speak ye truth each one with his neighbour: for 26 we are members one of another. Be ye angry, and sin not: let not the sun go down 27 upon your [6]wrath: neither give place to the 28 devil. Let him that stole steal no more: but rather let him labour, working with his hands the thing that is good, that he may have where-29 of to give to him that hath need. Let no corrupt speech proceed out of your mouth, but such as is good for [7]edifying as the need may be, that it may give grace to them that hear.
30 And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, in whom ye were sealed unto the day of redemp-31 tion. Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and railing, be put away from 32 you, with all malice: and be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave [8]you.

5 Be ye therefore imitators of God, as beloved chil-
2 dren; and walk in love, even as Christ also loved you, and gave himself up for [9]us, an offering and a sacrifice to God for an odour of a sweet smell.

1611

3 But fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetcousness, let it not be once named amongst you, as becometh Saints:
4 Neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, nor jesting, which are not convenient: but rather giving of thanks.
5 For this ye know, that no whoremonger, nor unclean person, nor covetous man who is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God.
6 Let no man deceive you with vain words: for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of ‖disobedience.
7 Be not ye therefore partakers with them.
8 For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light,
9 (For the fruit of the spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth;)
10 Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord:
11 And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them.
12 For it is a shame even to speak of those things which are done of them in secret.
13 But all things that are ‖reproved, are made manifest by the light: for whatsoever doth make manifest, is light.
14 Wherefore he saith: [a]Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light.
15 [b]See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, 16 Redeeming the time, because the days are evil.
17 Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is.
18 And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess: but be filled with the Spirit:
19 Speaking to yourselves, in Psalms, and Hymns, and Spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord,
20 Giving thanks always for all things unto God, and the Father, in the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ, 21 Submitting yourselves one to another in the fear of God.
22 Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord.
23 For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the Church: and he is the saviour of the body.
24 Therefore as the Church is subject unto Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands in every thing.
25 Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the Church, and gave himself for it:
26 That he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water, by the word,
27 That he might present it to himself a glorious Church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing: but that it should be holy and without blemish.
28 So ought men to love their wives, as their own bodies: he that loveth his wife, loveth himself.

3 But fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not even be named among 4 you, as becometh saints; nor filthiness, nor foolish talking, or jesting, which are not
5 befitting: but rather giving of thanks. For this ye know of a surety, that no fornicator, nor unclean person, nor covetous man, which is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the king-
6 dom of Christ and God. Let no man deceive you with empty words: for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the sons of disobe-
7 dience. Be not ye therefore partakers with them;
8 for ye were once darkness, but are now light in 9 the Lord: walk as children of light (for the fruit of the light is in all goodness and right-10 eousness and truth), proving what is well-pleas-11 ing unto the Lord; and have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather 12 even [1]reprove them; for the things which are done by them in secret it is a shame even to 13 speak of. But all things when they are [2]reproved are made manifest by the light: for everything that is made manifest is light.
14 Wherefore he saith, Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall shine upon thee.
15 Look therefore carefully how ye walk, not as 16 unwise, but as wise; [3]redeeming the time, be-17 cause the days are evil. Wherefore be ye not foolish, but understand what the will of the 18 Lord is. And be not drunken with wine, wherein is riot, but be filled [4]with the Spirit;
19 speaking [5]one to another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody
20 with your heart to the Lord; giving thanks always for all things in the name of our Lord
21 Jesus Christ to [6]God, even the Father; subjecting yourselves one to another in the fear of Christ.
22 Wives, be in subjection unto your own hus-
23 bands, as unto the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife, as Christ also is the head of the church, being himself the saviour of the 24 body. But as the church is subject to Christ, [7]so let the wives also be to their husbands in 25 everything. Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave him-26 self up for it; that he might sanctify it, having cleansed it by the [8]washing of water with the 27 word, that he might present the church to himself a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing; but that it should be holy

29 For no man ever yet hated his own flesh: but nourisheth and cherisheth it, even as the Lord the Church:
30 For we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones.
31 For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall be joined unto his wife, and they two shall be one flesh.
32 This is a great mystery: but I speak concerning Christ and the Church.
33 Nevertheless, let every one of you in particular, so love his wife even as himself, and the wife see that she reverence her husband.

CHAP. VI.

CHILDREN, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right.
2 Honour thy father and mother, (which is the first commandment with promise,)
3 That it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth.
4 And ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.
5 Servants, be obedient to them that are your masters according to the flesh, with fear and trembling, in singleness of your heart, as unto Christ:
6 Not with eyeservice as menpleasers, but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart:
7 With good will doing service, as to the Lord, and not to men,
8 Knowing that whatsoever good thing any man doeth, the same shall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free.
9 And ye masters, do the same things unto them, ‖forbearing threatening: knowing that ‖your master also is in heaven, neither is there respect of persons with him.
10 Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.
11 Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.
12 For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against ‖spiritual wickedness in ‖high places.
13 Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and ‖having done all, to stand.
14 Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness:
15 And your feet shod with the preparation of the Gospel of peace;
16 Above all, taking the shield of Faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked.
17 And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God:

29 for no man ever hated his own flesh; but nourisheth and cherisheth it, even as Christ
30 also the church; because we are members
31 of his body. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife; and the twain shall become one 32 flesh. This mystery is great: but I speak in 33 regard of Christ and of the church. Nevertheless do ye also severally love each one his own wife even as himself; and let the wife see that she fear her husband.

6 Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for 2 this is right. Honour thy father and mother (which is the first commandment with prom-
3 ise), that it may be well with thee, and thou

8 knowing that whatsoever good thing each one doeth, the same shall he receive again from the Lord,
9 whether he be bond or free. And, ye [4]masters, do the same things unto them, and forbear threatening: knowing that both their Master and yours is in heaven, and there is no respect of persons with him.
10 [6]Finally, [7]be strong in the Lord, and in the 11 strength of his might. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the 12 wiles of the devil. For our wrestling is not against flesh and blood, but against the principalities, against the powers, against the world-rulers of this darkness, against the spiritual hosts

19 And for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly, to make known the mystery of the Gospel,

20 For which I am an ambassador ‖in bonds, that ‖therein I may speak boldly, as I ought to speak.

21 But that ye also may know my affairs, and how I do, Tychicus, a beloved brother and faithful minister in the Lord, shall make known to you all things:

22 Whom I have sent unto you for the same purpose, that ye might know our affairs, and that he might comfort your hearts.

23 Peace be to the brethren, and love, with faith, from God the Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

24 Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ ‖in sincerity.

tion praying at all seasons in the Spirit, and watching thereunto in all perseverance and supplication for all the saints, and on my behalf, 19 that utterance may be given unto me [1]in opening my mouth, to make known with boldness the mystery of the gospel, for which I am an 20 ambassador in [2]chains; that in it I may speak boldly, as I ought to speak.

21 But that ye also may know my affairs, how I do, Tychicus, the beloved brother and faithful minister in the Lord, shall make known to you 22 all things: whom I have sent unto you for this very purpose, that ye may know our state, and that he may comfort your hearts.

23 Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. 24 Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ in uncorruptness.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE PHILIPPIANS.

CHAP. I.

PAUL and Timotheus, the servants of Jesus Christ, to all the Saints in Christ Jesus which are at Philippi, with the Bishops and Deacons:

2 Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 I thank my God upon every ‖remembrance of you,

4 Always in every prayer of mine for you all making request with joy,

5 For your fellowship in the Gospel from the first day until now;

6 Being confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work in you, ‖will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ:

7 Even as it is meet for me to think this of you all, because ‖I have you in my heart, inasmuch as both in my bonds, and in the defence and confirmation of the Gospel, ye all are ‖partakers of my grace.

8 For God is my record, how greatly I long after you all, in the bowels of Jesus Christ.

9 And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge, and in all ‖judgment.

10 That ye may ‖approve things that ‖are excellent, that ye may be sincere and without offence till the day of Christ.

11 Being filled with the fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ unto the glory and praise of God.

1 PAUL and Timothy, [1]servants of Christ Jesus, to all the saints in Christ Jesus which are at 2 Philippi, with the [2]bishops and deacons: Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 I thank my God upon all my remembrance 4 of you, always in every supplication of mine on behalf of you all making my supplication 5 with joy, for your fellowship in furtherance of 6 the gospel from the first day until now; being confident of this very thing, that he which began a good work in you will perfect it until 7 the day of Jesus Christ: even as it is right for me to be thus minded on behalf of you all, because [3]I have you in my heart, inasmuch as, both in my bonds and in the defence and confirmation of the gospel, ye all are partakers 8 with me of grace. For God is my witness, how I long after you all in the tender mercies of 9 Christ Jesus. And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge 10 and all discernment; so that ye may [4]approve the things that are excellent; that ye may be sincere and void of offence unto the day of 11 Christ; being filled with the [5]fruits of righteousness, which are through Jesus Christ, unto the glory and praise of God.

12 But I would ye should understand, brethren, that the things which happened unto me have fallen out rather unto the furtherance of the Gospel.
13 So that my bonds ‖in Christ are manifest in all ‖the palace, and ‖in all other places.
14 And many of the brethren in the Lord, waxing confident by my bonds, are much more bold to speak the word without fear.
15 Some indeed preach Christ even of envy and strife, and some also of good will.
16 The one preach Christ of contention, not sincerely, supposing to add affliction to my bonds:
17 But the other of love, knowing that I am set for the defence of the Gospel.
18 What then? Notwithstanding, every way, whether in pretence, or in truth, Christ is preached, and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice.
19 For I know that this shall turn to my salvation through your prayer, and the supply of the spirit of Jesus Christ,
20 According to my earnest expectation, and my hope, that in nothing I shall be ashamed, but that with all boldness, as always, so now also Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death.
21 For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.
22 But if I live in the flesh, this is the fruit of my labour: yet what I shall choose, I wot not.
23 For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ, which is far better.
24 Nevertheless, to abide in the flesh, is more needful for you.
25 And having this confidence, I know that I shall abide and continue with you all, for your furtherance and joy of faith,
26 That your rejoicing may be more abundant in Jesus Christ for me, by my coming to you again.
27 Only let your conversation be as it becometh the Gospel of Christ, that whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may hear of your affairs, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one mind, striving together for the faith of the Gospel,
28 And in nothing terrified by your adversaries: which is to them an evident token of perdition, but to you of salvation, and that of God.
29 For unto you it is given in the behalf of Christ, not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake,
30 Having the same conflict which ye saw in me, and now hear to be in me.

CHAP. II.

IF there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies,
2 Fulfil ye my joy, that ye be likeminded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind.
3 Let nothing be done through strife, or vainglory, but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves.
4 Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others.

12 Now I would have you know, brethren, that
